Judge Michael J. Turano came in at 9.30 and called the assault cases, State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly vs. Frank Terranova. This is an alleged assault with a revolver, January 3, upon Joseph Selvidio of Staten Island, N. Y. The assault is reported to have occurred in Central park, at the residence of Rosa Retacco, or the date of the wedding of her daughter, Antoinette. Following a song by Joseph Selvidio, Terranova claimed to have been insulted and the men went outside to settle the argument, but friends separated them. Terranova then went into the house and at the kitchen doorway, it was testified, drew a revolver and fired a 22 bullet at Selvidio, who ducked and the bullet went into a cupboard. The witnesses were Joseph Selvidio of Staten Island, N. Y., a wedding guest; Rosa Retacco of Central Park, mother of the bride, whose evidence was given through Interpreter George P. Tuscano; Louis Retacco, 26, a brother of the bride, Teresa Taccione, a guest, and Westerly Chief of Police Thomas F. Brown. A 22 bullet shell picked up on the kitchen floor was admitted as evidence. The state's case was presented by Town Solicitor John Ferguson Jr., and the defendant was represented by Attorney Augustine Ledwidge. The defence presented no witnesses and the accused was found probably guilty and bound over to the February session, the third Monday of Washington county superior court. The bonds of $6,000 were furnished by Santo and Cristina Sposato and Frances and Maria Sposato.

Percy William Riley under arrest on a forgery complaint was admitted to bail for appearance in third district court next Friday. $1,000 bonds being furnished by James Maxwell.

VOLUNTOWN

In accordance with his annual custom, Rev. Father Ludovic Paradis of St. Thomas' church read the annual report of the parish at both masses Sunday last. The report, which was one of the best in the history of the parish, gave great satisfaction to both pastor and people. Notwithstanding the industrial depression during the year, when the local mills have run only half time, it was found necessary to installa a new heating plant in the church, and repairs on the rectory grounds were found necessary. The bills for these repairs were all met and a balance was left in the treasury. Pastor and people were greatly pleased over the report, as it showed a splendid spirit of co-operation. The spiritual section of the report shows a number of converts received into the church during the year.

Dec. 16, 1924, a valuable hope chest was awarded Aime Coriarty, Ja., a small crippled boy.

The blizzard-like storm of Tuesday added several inches of snow and gave a wintry look to the town, but business went on as usual. The state highway department kept the state roads open for traffic.

Local people are making plans to view the eclipse this (Saturday) morning and are hoping the weatherman will be good.

Friends of Ernest Dupont are pleased to note his rapid progress toward recovery after a very serious illness.

Anthony Reno, who has spent the past two weeks at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, is expected home today (Saturday). Mr. Reno is reported as on the way to emoplete recovery.

MRS. WM. BUTTS WAS VERY SICK

Gives Full Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for Remarkable Recovery

Wellston, O. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make me strong. I was troubled with my back and sides hurting me till I could not do my work, and whenever I caught cold it made me irregular. Since I have taken the Vegetable Compound my side and back don't bother me and I can do my housework and care for my children now, where before I did not feel like doing anything or going around. After my first child was born about four years ago I saw an advertisement in the paper about the Vegetable Compound. I knew it would help me, but I was afraid to try it because people said it would help you to have children and I knew I was having children fast enough. But I thought if it would help me it would be better to have a whole house full of children and have good health. I became stronger from taking it and my husband says I look like a live woman instead of a dead one. When Spring comes I am going to take your Blood Medicine as I am very thin. I will answer letters from any woman who wishes to ask about your medicine." — Mrs. WILLIAM BUTTS, Wellston, Ohio.

TODAY'S ECLIPSE.

Perhaps you are not ordinarily interested in astronomical events, but even if that is so you should not be willing to miss the total eclipse of the sun this morning, provided the weatherman is willing to the extent of keeping the clouds away.

Eclipses are not rare. Such a phenomenon is rare only in particular locations. Not many are disposed to go to the four corners of the globe to witness a complete shutting off of the sun's light, and inasmuch as it was over a century ago since there was a total eclipse hereabouts, and it will be another century before there is another the event, so far as this section of the world is concerned, must be rated as decidedly rare and worth witnessing, if for no other purpose than to interest posterity by your account of it.

For Norwich and practically all of Connecticut the eclipse will be total for a two-minute period, while the obscuration of the sun and its redirement will occupy about two hours.

Happily it is definitely known when the obscuration will commence, when it will be at its height and when it will end. There is a certainty about it that is impressive, and there are likewise certain features concerning it about which there is equal definiteness. With conditions right, attention should be given to the oncoming shadow, to the beautiful corona, visible at no other time, to the stars in midforenoon, including Mercury which few people have ever seen, to the shadow bands and other conditions involved in the coming and disappearing of the darkness.

To observe all these a point of high ground with no obstructions is desirable. When looking directly at the sun care should be taken to protect the eyes by using smoked glass or a well developed photographic film.

It will be a big day for the astronomers and students of astronomy, but it is an event in which ther cannot fail to be general interest. It is an opportunity of a lifetime.

CALLING ANOTHER CONFERENCE.

It is not to be supposed for a moment that the senate is any more anxious for another conference among nations for the restriction of armaments than is the president. And yet if judgment were to be based upon recent expressions and action such might be so considered. The president is known to be against the calling of a conference at this time, while the senate has just passed a resolution requesting him to call one.

The president's opposition is not so much against a conference as it is to calling one when the prospects of success are not favorable, and when one has already been called for next summer by the league of nations. There is no good reason for setting up competition in this respect. There is a common goal. If it can be reached through the league of nations there is no reason why the United States should try to interfere. There is no reason why we should attempt to throw a monkey wrench into the conference already called by calling another for the same purpose. And yet that is what some would like to have the president do.

There is such a thing as undertaking such an important task in the face of certain defeat, and there is the much more consistent policy of governing the calling of such a conference by the attitude displayed by the nations which would participate therein. It is possible to prepare the way for such a conference in a manner to lend encouragement to the desired object. It is also possible to antagonize those whose presence is desired.

The president's opposition to the calling of a conference now is that conditions are not ripe for it. The prospects for a successful outcome are not propitious. There is on the other hand the desire to avoid interference with another move of the same kind. Whether there is any chance of that succeeding has nothing to do with it. We cannot take the position of trying to hog everything in the way of a conference and expect to get anywhere.

JUSSERAND'S RETIREMENT.

When the diplomatic representative of a country spends more than a score of years at one post there is a reason for it. Such a record stands out as the best kind of evidence as to the type of service that has been rendered, and it is not an unreasonable claim that in that time he has built up a large circle of friends in the country where he has been stationed.

That is, the situation in the case of Ambassador Jusserand who came here from France 22 years ago, and who leaves next week to return to France in conclusion of his diplomatic service at Washington.

He has served France during a most important period, and during all the years while he was becoming the dean of foreign diplomats at Washington he was contributing to the strengthening of the ties of friendship between France and this country. He has conscientiously represented his country but in doing so he has displayed the highest principles of diplomacy. He thoroughly understood the duties of an ambassador and, even though he has witnessed the display of all kinds of conduct in such an office, he adhered strictly to the soundest of principles. It was such that contributed to his success as a diplomat. It was such that displayed his fitness for the office and which made his work the more effective. He and his country received greater respect because of it. He gave consideration to the country where he was located as well as to the one he represented.

There can be no surprise therefore that there is displayed so much regret over his departure. He has lived here a third of his years. There is an appreciation of what his return to France means in the withdrawal of his personality and in the removal of such an influential representative of France. He has established an enviable record.

THE CHAPMAN DECISION.

The decision of the federal authorities to turn Gerald Chapman over to Hartford county officials for trial on the charge of murdering a policeman in New Britain must be regarded as the proper one, and due credit must be given to State's Attorney Alcorn for bringing it about.

In the situation following his capture and return to Atlanta penitentiary sight must not be overlooked of the clever work connected with his capture, and now that Chapman has been returned to Atlanta there is removed the fact that he is rated as an escaped prisoner.

Whether he is convicted in Connecticut on the charge brought against him there is the unserved federal sentence hanging over him. Should he be retained at Atlanta now, it would not only be impossible to bring him to justice for the New Britain affair but it would be a case of keeping an alleged murderer from the penalty which he deserves. By the time he had served his Atlanta sentence the evidence that can be brought against him for the New Britain affair would have disappeared. Perhaps no one familiar with the facts would be alive.

The decision, therefore, to bring Chapman back to Connecticut is probably not pleasing to Chapman. It is a case where his feelings are not to be considered. No one is responsible for the trouble in which he finds himself but himself, and certainly a desperate criminal of his type can expect no leniency or favors.

GOVERNMENT OPERATION.

The director general of railroads, which office was created during the war, is able to state what the government's operation of railroads cost during the 26 months in which the transportation lines were under the direction of the federal authorities.

By that report it is shown that the government is poorer by $1,674,506,000. The running of the railroads by the government made it necessary for the outlay of that much in excess of what was received, and of course that deficit had to be made up by the people through the channel of taxation. Such taxation is, of course, in excess of transportation costs during that period since service during government control was not free.

This expense may be charged up to the war, but it was nevertheless an experiment in government operation which sets forth the undesirability of ever returning to such except in case of a great emergency. Government operation has revealed all the detrimental features that have been claimed for it. It developed extravagance and decreased efficiency, even though the roads under government control were permitted to do what the railroads under private operation were restrained from doing.

Even though it has cost the country a large sum, it is perhaps well that we know what is involved in government operation and what can be expected when anything of the kind is advocated. It has been a costly lesson, but it is convincing.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Altogether now, this morning. Heads up!

A hog shortage is predicted for next year. No one would believe such a thing possible.

There's something about the cross word puzzles which creates an Oliver Twist sentiment.

If the legislature acts in keeping with the advice of Governor Trumbull it will not go wrong.

After today's eclipse you should be prepared to tell those a hundred years hence what to be on the lookout for.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In church life the last several weeks have recorded a long list of annual meetings. One doesn't know just how far the reading public takes an interest in such things. There must be at least some interest otherwise space would not be given in our papers for such publication. Surely one is well repaid for reading these reports. It answers the cheap criticism of some superior outsiders that "churches are only a drug on the market." When one considers what our churches are doing along charitable and humanitarian lines, that alone would justify their existence. One has a right to ask if these outside critics of the church are organized for doing the same character of work? No one will say that churches, made up of imperfect men and women, are perfect. But please point out to me any other organization that covers so large a territory of human needs.

How a little snow, followed by rain, and then by hard, sure ice appeals to the little ones, especially to the little boy, for it helps him to try that new sled that Santa Claus brought him a Christmas. One has but to look into their bright, glowing faces to find the fulness of earthly joy. One wishes that nothing would ever happen to cloud those faces with sadness and sorrow. Let them now have the unclouded day, not only on the icy hill, but inside of the home is it not possible to provide places for the little ones to coast other than the dangerous street? Automobiles because so numerous are more deadly than the express trains used to be. The hill, however straight, is a public highway and no place for coasting in these days. Yet the little ones, especially ought not to be deprived of this sport that naturally belongs to childhood.

According to press despatches, Senator Bingham is the tallest man in the senate. Of course Bingham can get away with it in great shape because there is a tallness inside of him that corresponds. But woe to the man who swings around with a fine physique and handsome face if that is all there is to the proposition! The writer knows of a certain clergyman who would easily command a salary of $10,000 per annum, with house rent and a trip to Europe thrown in if all he was expected to do was to stand in the pulpit and simply gaze around. But churches have always made an unreasonable and exacting demand of their preachers that they say something. But when this fair Adonis opened his mouth he invariably put his foot into it, and spent the rest of his time in trying to get it out. Poor little sawed-offs have a hard time to begin with, but if they really deliver the goods, most congregations are kind enough to overlook their slender shanks and small waist line.

Early in the nineteenth century a few spiritually minded students of Williams college sought the open field for a prayer service. Overtaken by a storm the shelter of a haystack in whose shadow they conceived the audacious project (as it then seemed) of sending the gospel to pagan lands. The idea was violently opposed by the orthodoxy of the day because the heathen did not come under the scheme of salvation. Were not all pagans marching in solid phalanxes straight into hell? What wild dreams were these thoughtless students entertaining! But they thought enough of the project to put this motto on the walls of their room in Andover Theological seminary: "We can if we will, and therefore we will because we can." By living up to this motto these students set on foot an enterprise that has changed the moral face of the world!

This country like all the other nations has had its passing thrills, fads, enthusiasms, and air castles. Among others that had a mixture of the romantic and the real was the gold craze of California in 1848. It was on January 24 of that year that gold was discovered at Colona. As the news filtered through the wilderness an exodus into the unknown west started off with all the features of a whirlwind. It is perfectly safe to say that where one man found fame and fortune there were ten who found only failure and famine. In this craze heroism was mingled with tragedy; and it taught the world two lessons: First, if men would put forth the same amount of energy after things that cannot be stolen, and do not fly away, we would have a richer and better world. Secondly, the real wealth of life is something earned and not accidentally found.

By the time these paragraphs appear in print we shall all of us living in this locality be star gazers. In one sense we may be said to be quite fortunate in living within the comparatively narrow path of the eclipse's visibility. But we shall not look upon the majestic phenomenon with blanched faces and fearful hearts as was done formerly, neither shall we march through the streets with drums and incantations to drive away the evil spirits that are (or were) supposed to be responsible for the eclipse. If the sun, moon and earth are in the straight line, the moon because of its comparative nearness to the earth is able to cast its shadow upon it, thus bringing on a short period of darkness. Of course this period is short because of the motion of the three bodies involved. But the really remarkable thing about an eclipse is that the second of its beginning and ending can be foretold with such accuracy.

The uses of sand are manifold; it is needed by the human constitution, if we are to stand up before all the enemies that attack our nerves; the young man and woman need it as they enter public life today with all its attractions and temptations, and perhaps as it was never needed before; the young student needs it as he goes to college with a slender purse but with an intense desire for an education; the young husband needs it with a little family to support and who finds himself attacked by some serious disease; the young widow needs it left with slender means and with little ones to support; it is also needed on our icy streets and sidewalks as man, woman and child give free exhibitions of the Virginia reel to the amusement of the public. We are, however, grateful that thus far accidents have been so few.

He is an Ohio man, who was educated at Illinois Wesleyan University. Law being his vocation, he got his training from lawyers, was admitted to the Illinois bar, and two years later became city office as district attorney, sat in the convention which framed the state's constitution and was a member of its first legislature. Twenty years of professional service to litigants and of loyalty to the republican party's interests followed. In 1913 he had his reward by election to the United States senate.

FEASTING ONE'S WAY AROUND THE WORLD

New Year's dinner which constitutes one of the most widely observed of man's feasts, is not past. That is, it is not if you can put aside a section all too easily acquired—that your way is necessarily the only way. As a matter of fact, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society there are four very widely observed New Year days—those of Christendom, Islam, the Hebrews and the Chinese—and numerous others celebrated by smaller groups.

If a mean were struck of the various dates, what might loosely be called the world's "average New Year day" would fall several months farther along toward summer than January 1.

The bulletin briefly traces the gastronomic trail of New Year dinners and other feasts through a number of countries.

Side Dishes Show Distance From Home

"Dining in the homes of England and Western Europe, the American abroad on New Year's day would find the chief dish a reminder of home. Turkey, duck or goose makes the most popular roast in England, while plum pudding—this time with a generously flavored brandy sauce—usually tops off the meal.

"In France and Spain, our American explorer of the world's tables would again encounter the turkey but there he would find the capon and the pheasant sharing its popularity. Methods of preparation and side dishes, however, would tell him unmistakably that he was getting farther afield. Truffles, chestnuts and olives are important ingredients of the dressing of the New Year's fowls in those Latin countries. In France snails might be numbered among the viands that supplement the piece de resistance, and in Spain the meal, starting, say, with almond soup, would be sure to include among the secondary dishes a spicy rice cooked in olive oil with tomatoes and other vegetables and perhaps bits of meat.

"In northern Africa, whatever the date of the feast, it would be sure to have as its central dish cous-cous. This consists of wheat prepared like fine grains of rice, steamed with lamb or mutton, and vegetables if the latter are obtainable. It is served in a large, almost hemispherical, basket-dish so closely woven that it holds water. About this container the diners sit, taking their food with their fingers. Olives, dates, and figs help to complete the meal; and on occasion there may be a dish of locusts — 'grasshoppers'—prepared with wheat. The legs, wings and heads are removed before the creatures are cooked.

Queer Mixture in Tibet

"Among the Zulus of southern Africa whole oxen or bullocks are roasted at feast time; and in central Africa the feast of feasts is roasted elephant's foot.

"In Persia, as throughout all the near and central east, mutton holds first place. There the accepted epicurean trick is to cool the meat in pomegranate juice. Rice is cooked in grease and the two combined form the famous pilau. With the pilau is served the thin, crisp, paperlike bread of Persia.

"If one's culinary investigations extend to backward Tibet he finds a strange combination of a barbarism which shows itself in the eating of raw meat—the 'highest and gamier' the better—and an ingenuity that has evolved concentrated emergency rations. A Tibetan feast might consist of yak meat, strong tea mixed with rancid butter, and parched barley meal moistened with the greasy tea. Evaporated and dried yak's milk soaked in tea would constitue the Tibetan dessert course.'

The Apotheosis of Rice

"In India no important repast would be complete without quantities of rice and curry. It is in Java, however, that rice is raised to its highest status as a food. If he who goes exploring among the foods of the world is a connoisseur he may well pause in Java, devoting days and weeks to exploring the variations—the nuances, one might almost say—of that Dutch-Javan food masterpiece, the rijsttafel (rice table.)

"Rice is boiled to flaky whiteness and spread evenly on platters, each of which is to serve as an individual dish. But this rice, good as it is in itself, and later because of the borrowed savors, is as yet only the foundation of the dish the "table" as the Dutch have it. On it are placed little heaps of choice tid-bits limited in variety only by the genius and imagination of the chef and his master's pocket-book. The foods of the superstructure may include minced bits of a number of meats prepared and flavored in various ways, their juices penetrating the rice below; little piles of delicate vegetables such as tiny peas or asparagus tips, eggs, fish, curry sauce, chutneys, relishes, semi-confections, and a choice of many other food delicacies. The rijst-tafel constitutes a meal in itself upon which one may dine sumptuously or with which he may toy fastidiously as his appetite dictates.

Many Meats at Korean Feasts

"Feasting is something of an institution among well-to-do Koreans. Once or twice a year the wealthy rice landlords go to Seoul, the capital, and invite small armies of friends and acquaintances to dine with them that their prestige may be heightened in the eyes of their world. Half a dozen or more meats may be served at such a feast—beef, mutton, venison, fowls fish and oysters. Rice, of course, holds an important place on the menu. The guests eat their portions from little individual tables.

"In Japan, too, guests at feasts eat from low small, separate tables, their dishes being served usually in the kitchen. The New Year feast is likely to be an exception in the appearance of the piece de resistance—usually fish—whole before the guests. A favorite food for this sort of treatment is a big red snapper. It is placed on a table of its own in the center of a circle of the guest tables, and portions are served from it by a servant.

Pickled Chrysanthemum Leaves In Japan

"The little tables at a Japanese feast are packed with a varied array of individual dishes. The guest pertinacity will find clear chicken soup, the inevitable covered dish of rice, a slab of raw fish, roast bird, shrimp fritters, fruit, and various pickled greens. He may find, too, the most characteristic of all Japanese edibles, pickled chrysanthemum petals. For dessert he will have rice cakes and sweetened bean paste, a stiff jellylike substance, not unlike Turkish paste.

"Traveling still farther eastward on his circumnavibation of the food world, our explorer would still have to pass through the Pacific Islands before completing his journey. Tahiti may be taken as typical of this region. There preparation for a feast means killing the fatted pig. The animal is usually roasted whole with yams and native plantains. Coconut sauce and coconut milk complete the feast which is served on a huge banana leaf spread on the floor. The guests squat cross about this green 'board' eating with their fingers."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Melody in the Heart

There is an abundance of music in the world, but it avails us nothing unless we get some of it into our heart. To make music with an instrument, or even with the voice, is bitter mockery if we have only discord and darkness in the soul. The heart is made for melody and life is maimed and disappointing unless it rises to the freedom and rhythm of a song.

Sometimes melody comes we know not how. We hear the sound thereof, but whence it comes or whither it goes we cannot tell. We only know that suddenly arousing ourselves we hear our heart singing. Sometimes we can trace connection between this music and a good deed done; sometimes the heart rejoices and sings because a burden has been rolled away; sometimes hope whispers things so sweet that the soul is declared with a flood of music. But there are times when we are happy and we know not why; happiness has not been in all our thoughts, we have made no conscious change in attitude or choice but suddenly as if by magic, the universe takes on new loveliness, old clouds melt and fade away, the road grows smooth beneath our feet, and life becomes a sweet and sacred song.

In such rare hours it seems as though hearts door left ajar has been pushed open by one of the harpers whom John saw harping with their harps, and that the celestial visitor having excused himself for a season from the choir of heaven has come to earth to make a mortal's life melodious.

Or may it not be that the universe is music? If all created things are thoughts of God, why should we not think of the universe as a melody of the infinite?

In that case Mrs. Brownings words would be strangely true: "God Himself is the best poet, and the real is His song. The philosophers of the ancient world felt certain that there is a music of the spheres and the poets have dared so even beyond the philosophers dreams, and have said:

Such harmony is in immortal souls,
But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in,
We cannot hear it.

But the Christian can go farther still. He knows by experience that not only does this celestial harmony exist, but that even though shut in by the "muddy vesture of decay, the harmony reports itself to consciousness and becomes a reality in the earthly life of man.

That there is such a thing as celestial melody in immortal souls is a fact of universal experience but this luminous experience is for most men occasional and fleeting. In a world in which so many eyes are weeping and sin seems so prevalent music does not spring at all times so spontaneously in the Christian heart, and the question presses on us, How can melodious frames of mind be formed?

The apostle Paul knew from experience how to produce and maintain melody in the heart. When he and Silas were thrown into the Philippian jail they spoke to each other in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs and so great became their joy that at midnight they burst into singing, a sound never before heard in a Macedonian prison. In singing Paul and Silas followed the example of the Lord Himself. As He entered the Garden of Gethsemane she entered His heart and braced His spirit by singing in company with His disciples a favorite psalm.

If a melody is as musicians have told us, a "musical thought," then why should not "God so loved the world" be counted the sweetest of all melodies known to our race?

If a melody is "a sweet and agreeable succession of sounds," what more enchanting melody can the heart ever know than the promises which constitute the Lord's gracious gift to the world? If His word abides in us then are we His disciples, and we carry with us through all life's nights and tempests "melody in the heart."

YOUR INCOME TAX

Salaries.

Salaries paid employes constitute one of the largest items of business expenses in the returns of many taxpayers. To be allowed, such a deduction must conform closely to the wording of the statute by which it is defined as "a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered." The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable, and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services.

Amounts paid as compensation, but not in fact as the purchase price of services, are not deductible. For example, an ostensible salary paid by a corporation may be the distribution of a dividend on stock. This may be the procedure in the case of a corporation having few stockholders all of whom draw salaries. If in such a case the salaries are in excess of those ordinarily paid for similar services, and the excessive payments correspond or bear close relationship to the stockholdings of the officers or employes, it would seem likely that such salaries are not wholly for services rendered, but that the excessive payments are a distribution of earnings upon stock and subject to treatment as a dividend.

An ostensible salary may be in part payment of property, for example where a partnership sells out to a corporation, the former partners agreeing to remain in the service of the corporation. In such case it may be found that the salaries paid the former partners are not merely for services, but in part constitute payment for the transfer of their business. The amount of the excess should be treated by the payer as a capital expenditure, which is not deductible, and by the recipient as part of the purchase price.

A person who claims a deduction for wages or salary paid himself should report the amount as income, just as any other wages or salary received. Salaries or wages paid by a parent to a minor child who has not been emancipated—allowed control of his earnings—whether in consideration of services or otherwise are not allowable deductions.

Rosa Raisa Had to Flee in Disguise.

Russia ruled Poland ruthlessly when Rosa Raisa was a child and her dreams of studying music seemed impossible of fulfilment.

Spies and soldiers seemed everywhere in little Bialystock, Russian Poland, where she spent her early years, and pogroms were frequent. At one time she was forced to take refuge in a damp cellar for three days with her three-months-old sister, and when the little one cried from hunger, Rosa had to hold her hand over its mouth to prevent its cries being heard by the czar's soldiers.

While acquiring a mere education, she hoped that she might study singing some day. Her brother was a student at the University of Warsaw, and a member of a secret revolutionary society composed of students when the institution was closed by order of the czar following trouble caused by the young patriots. The students formed a study circle to continue their pursuit of education and she carried notices of meetings and other information among them. Her motives were suspected and at 14 she had to flee to escape arrest while her brother left Russia to avoid being sent to Siberia.

Disguised as a boy, she escaped by representing that she was a member of a family of friends who were going to Austria. Making her way to Italy, she sought out her cousin in Naples. Without funds she found work and soon again dreamed of studying voice.

Slender of figure and of medium height, nothing but her full throat indicated to the casual acquaintance that she might become a great singer. A well-to-do woman heard her sing, took her into her home and for five years gave her an opportunity to study music, languages, literature and allied arts. Rosa attended the Conservatory of San Pietro of Majella and Madame Marchesi taught her patience and voice. Cleofonte Campanini coached her and in his private theatre at Parma, she made her debut at 23.

Then came successes with the Chicago Grand Opera company and later in London and Paris and South America. At home she created the role of Francesca in Zandonai's opera. Last season she created the part of Astera in Boito's "Nero." She married Rimini Giacomo, baritone of the Chicago Grand Opera company, and they frequently tour together in concert.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

TIRANA

Rebel attacks upon Tirana, capital of Albania, afford only one more episode of the kind in Albania's stormy history, save a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The country was created in 1913 to avert a World war," continues the bulletin," and until the World war did come it was Europe's newest nation, though it was peopled by the oldest race in the Balkans. During the world struggle five countries occupied parts of it; Germany, Austria and Bulgaria controlling northern districts while France and Italy divided the south.

"It was Edward Gibbon who once called Albania 'a country within sight of Italy, which is less known than the interior of America.' More than a century later the tables were turned when a letter from England for Albania was sent to the United States and returned with the notation 'Not for Albany, try Europe.' Even today when the war's aftermath has carried Americans into many obscure corners of Europe, Albania remains almost unvisited, unknown, and seldom mentioned in the day's news.

"The Albanians are a rugged, primitive mountain people who, it has been said, 'occasionally die from ordinary disease, but more often from differences of opinion.' They are classed along with the French, Portuguese and Walloons as members of the Greco-Latin branch of the Aryan race. Their mountain life has fostered a passionate love of independence and they cling to their language and their customs with a vigorous tenacity, even when grouped [illegible] transplanted to other lands. The name of the Albanians, meaning [illegible] of the snowland,' has been fastened upon them by their neighbors; they call themselves 'Skipetars,' or mountaineers. One important trait the Albanians [illegible] Girdites, little [illegible] the [illegible] of any Mohammedans in their locality.

"Along the Adriatic coast the Romans [illegible] their influence as is [illegible] traces. To [illegible] divided the Christian [illegible] groups. The Roman Catholics [illegible] live to the north, the Greek Orthodox Toscs live to the south.

"An Albanian, Marco Bozzaris, is referred to in the famous lines, 'At midnight in his guarded tent' George Castriota, better known to history as Scanderbeg, is their national hero.

"The home town of Scanderbeg, victor in a score or more fierce battles with the Turks, is Kroia (or Kruga) located on a picturesque precipice of Albania's westernmost mountain chain.

"Tirana is in the west central part of Albania, 20 miles inland from Durazzo, the country's principal port and former capital. Until the outbreak of the World war the only well-paved highway in the country linked these two cities. Not a mile of railroad has yet been built. The government seat was moved inland as a measure of protection against such invasions as that which overtook Fiume.

"Tirana lacks the aspects of a frontier settlement that one would expect. It has [illegible] bazaars, homes that seem truly palatial in comparison with the primitive village mud houses and mosques of genuine beauty, facing broad, well-paved streets. The streets are spotted with squares where fountains play and market places where women sell embroideries, brass work and intricately carved pipes for smokers. The city's population is less than 15,000.

"An Albanian family is sufficient unto itself. Except for the trading in a few cities—in Scutari, Korytza and Argyrocastra, besides those already mentioned, there is no semblance of an economic system.

"A woman in a country district works hard, but she is no mere drudge. She makes bread of maize and cooks it over an open hearth fire. The remaining wood ashes she uses in place of soap. She weaves woolen cloth and plaits black braid for the garments she makes of it.

"The folklore of these country folk is extensive and remains to be studied. There are tales galore of the 'evil eye,' the casting of spells and witchcraft. Many of these have a crude basis of utility. One observer points to widespread belief in the ghtriga, or witchwoman, who has the power to decrease her size to that of a fly, crawl through the keyholes and crannies, and suck her victim's blood. He wonders whether the malaria-carrying mosquito may not have given rise to this story."

TRAIN CRASHED INTO AUTOMOBILE THAT SLID ONTO TRACKS AT MOOSUP

Morris J. Solomon, about 45, of 224 Broadway this city, is in a serious condition at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering with concussion of the brain and possible fracture of the skull, and a fractured right thigh, received Friday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock at Moosup, when the new Dodge coupe he was driving was struck by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad train, due in Moosup at 5:30 from Providence.

Mr. Solomon who is one of the proprietors of the Yantic Grain Co., was headed north through the center of Moosup near the station and evidently heard the warning bells but was unable to swing clear of the oncoming train because of the glare ice on the road at the crossing. His car was struck head-on by the train and carried down the tracks for a distance of 150 feet. The force of the impact hurled Mr. Solomon clear of the automobile and he was found 50 feet distant from the wrecked car.

Witnesses of the accident carried Mr. Solomon into the railroad station and Dr. C. N. Allen of Moosup was called and administered medical treatment. Mr. Solomon was unconscious when picked up and Dr. Allen caused a call to be sent in to the Backus hospital of Norwich, the ambulance bringing the injured man to this city.

Dr. David Sussler was called and after an examination described the injuries of Mr. Solomon as concussion of the brain and possible fracture of the skull, a fractured right thigh and numerous other minor injuries.

At an early hour this (Saturday) morning Mr. Solomon was still in a semi-conscious condition at the Backus hospital, his condition being practically the same as when he was brought to the institution early Friday evening.

The automobile was a complete wreck in the forward part where the full force of the blow was felt, the two wheels smashed, fenders bent and the raditor and motor pushed back and torn away from the chassis. The wrecked machine was hauled from the railroad yard after the accident and placed in a Moosup garage.

SUCCESS IN CAMPAIGN OF VISITATION EVANGELISM

The visitation evangelism campaign which was launched by Dr. A. Earl Kernahan Sunday afternoon, came to a splendid climax Friday evening. Four churches have cooperated—Greeneville Congregational, Trinity Methodist Episcopal, First Baptist and Central Baptist—all engaged in this successful enterprise. Some very significant statistics were reported at the supper meeting Friday evening at Trinity Methodist church. These churches had 385 people to call upon. One hundred and fifty-five have been won to Christ and membership in the churches. This is Dr. Kernahan's fourth visit to Norwich. He spoke here for two weeks three years ago, and he has conducted two visitation campaigns here prior to this one.

The present campaign has been fully as successful as the two preceding ones. Most of the cooperating churches plan to receive the new members at Easter time.

There have been more than 15,000 people won to Christ and the church in the campaigns that Dr. Kernahan has directed in the last thirteen months of campaign work. He goes from here to Rochester, N. Y. This takes him from coast to coast this year. He closes his work for the summer June 27 in California. Next fall he conducts a campaign in Columbia university.

OBITUARY.

Eugene B. Armstrong.

Following an illness of about two weeks, Eugene B. Armstrong, 66 years of age, died just after midnight Friday at his home, No. 64 Peck street. Mr. Armstrong was taken sick two weeks ago with a chill and his illness developed into pleuro-pneumonia. Throughout his illness he was given every attention and care by his daughters.

Mr. Armstrong was born in Norwich March 9, 1858, and had lived in this city all his life. During his early years he mastered the trade of a printer, entering the employ of The Bulletin as an apprentice about fifty years ago, when the office was on Main street. He continued with The Bulletin for a number of years and was later employed in two other printing offices in the city, but for about eight years past had again been employed in The Bulletin job department. He was a member of Norwich Typographical union No. 100.

Mr. Armstrong was twice married. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Agnes Armstrong, at home, and Mrs. Alice Stone of New Haven, and two sons, E. Percival Armstrong of Waterbury and Merton C. Armstrong of Rochester, N. Y., and an only brother, Sumner W. Armstrong, of No. 84 Peck street. E. Percival Armstrong, his son, is vice national commander of the American Legion and until recently was state commander of the Connecticut department, American Legion.

Mr. Armstrong's chief interest was in his home, where he was a loving and loyal father and husband, while he was earnest and conscientious in his employment, and he leaves many friends who will feel a sincere sense of loss in his passing away.

Edwin C. Johnson

Funeral services for Edwin Comstock Johnson of Princeton, N. J., formerly of Norwich and Uncasville, were held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of his sister-in-law, Miss Mary H. Paddock, 335 Washington street. Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, read the service. The bearers were Frederick A. Johnson, Richard W. Johnson and Frederick Rogers, of Montville, and Charles S. Johnson, 2d, of Norwich.

Burial was in the family plot in Yantic cemetery, where Archdeacon Brown read the committal service. The beautiful floral forms included several from friends at Princeton University.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of George G. Grant.

BERKER IS BOUND OVER ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Gabriel C. Berker, 34, for whom the police have had a warrant since last October, gave himself up at police headquarters Friday morning and was later presented in the city court on the charge of embezzlement in aiding, abetting and counseling George A. Finn in the embezzlement of $55,000 from the Bankers' Trust company, of which Finn was formerly secretary and treasurer.

Attorney Earl Mathewson, who accompanied Berker when he gave himself up, entered a demurrer, which was overruled by Judge A. F. Libby, and Berker was bound over to the May term of the criminal superior court. Bonds were fixed at $20,000, which were furnished by Lawrence F. Dwyer of Torrington, who conducts a hotel there and is the owner of considerable real estate in Waterbury.

City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins and the superior court prosecuting attorney, Arthur M. Brown, acted together in the city court, and the Torrington man was accepted as surety after his financial responsibility had been checked up. It was learned that he had been convicted some time ago of a violation of the liquor law.

Preparations for the delivery of Berker have been under way for the last two weeks, and Thursday night he came to New London, where he spent the night at a hotel. Friday morning he came here by trolley and went at once to the office of Attorney Mathewson, where he waited until it was time to go to police headquarters with his attorney and bondsman. Reaching there, Attorney Mathewson introduced Berker to Officer Charles Smith, who was at the desk, and Berker was allowed to remain in the custody of his attorney until his case was called in court about 1.30 in the afternoon.

Upon the advice of his counsel, Berker declined to make any statement, but it was learned that he has been in New York practically all the time since he has been missing from this city. He expects to be here for several days at his home on Huntington place, and it is understood that he declares he will take care of all the creditors of his brokerage business, which has been closed since the embezzlement at the Bankers' Trust company was discovered.

Errors on the Safe Side

As there are some faults that have been termed faults on the right side so there are some errors that might be denominated errors on the safe side. Thus we seldom regret having been too mild, too cautious or too humble; but we often repent having been too violent, too precipitate or too proud.—Colton.

Wood in Our Games

In more than thirty varities, about 25,000,000 feet of wood go every year to provide us with skis and billiard cues, snowshoes and tennis racquets, candle pins, bows and arrows and many other things. Wood, says Nature Magazine, does its bit to keep us healthy, amused and lovers of sport and the out of doors.

Truth and Lightning

Lightning plays curious pranks, but one thing it does not do is to photograph images of trees or other objects upon the skin of its victims, says Nature Magazine. Much pseudo-scientific nonsense has been written about the ramifying pink marks often found on the bodies of persons who have been struck by lightning.

PLAINFIELD TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM HARTFORD CRESCENTS BASKETBALL FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Jan. 23.—Before a crowd of 800 fans, the crack Army and Navy basketball team defeated the fast team from the Capitol City, the Hartfrod Crescents, 32 to 29, here tonight. It was a nip and tuck affair throughout the entire game, the home club initiating the new green uniforms in this game.

The first half opened up with pep and action and after five seconds of play Sullivan looped the first basket by a neat pass from Normandin. Both teams scored in turn. The first half ended in the home club's favor, 18 to 11. Sullivan scored 7 field goals for the Army and Navy club. The score was tied in the second half by neat shooting by Larson of the Hartford team. The fans were on their feet yelling for 13 minutes when neither team made a score. In the last few minutes of play the home club showed superiority in shooting. The final score was 32 to 29.

In the preliminary game the Buddies of Plainfield were defeated by the Norwich Y. M. C. A. club by the score of 20 to 16.

NEW LONDON BASKETBALLERS HAVE BUSY WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 23.—Another busy week end for local high school and professional basketball teams will find almost every team involved in action on this (Saturday) afternoon and evening. Both high school teams will play away from home, while the real home attraction is the contest at the armory with the Submarine Base playing in the main attraction. On the tail end of the bill the Army five will play the Headquarters five. The regular Saturday evening games at the Y. M. C. A., featuring the Industrial league, will also be played.

Sub Base vs. Hudson A. C.

The Hudson A. C. from New Haven will be the first of several leading professional teams to oppose the Submarine Base in New London. The contest will be played at the state armory, with one of the largest crowds expected to attend. The Base has been making steady progress toward reclaiming the foremost position which the gobs occupied before this season. The Hudson A. C. is little known of its accomplishments upon the marked court, but the stand this team made in baseball against the Base marks it as a tough customer. Besides this game, the Army five will play a preliminary contest with the Headquarters five.

Bulkeley at New Haven.

Bulkeley is busy in the Elm City, playing the two high schools in that city on succeeding days. This evening the Bulkeley team played the New England championship high school team—the New Haven Commercial High five. On Saturday the New Haven Hillhouse quintet will be opposed at 3 o'clock. This game will also test the Orange and Black to its utmost, climaxing the stay at the Elm City. This evening the players will spend the evening as guests of the players on the Commercial High team and will be quartered in the homes of these players. If Bulkeley can only win one of these two games they will be doing good, for the two teams representing the Elm City high schools are the strongest in the state, and the fact that the Tufts tourney has been captured by the Commercial five for the past two years gives this team a distinction over the remainder included on her schedule.

Chapman Tech at Madison.

Chapman Tech takes to traveling after a short sojourn at home, and will travel to Madison to oppose the high school five of that town. Having won the first game of the home and home series, the Red and Black five is confident of gaining a second victory and completing matters. The victory over Plainfield was decisive in every respect, and the teams remaining on the schedule will find Tech a tough proposition in the future.

BULKELEY LOSES CLOSE GAME AT NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 23.—In a basketball game featured by close guarding by both teams New Haven Commercial High, New England basketball champs, barely nosed out Bulkeley high of New London by the score of 17 to 12. It was one of the best contests played on the local high school courts, with McCarthy's brilliant individual basket shooting bringing the local five to the front.

The contest in itself saw two brilliant basketball players vieing for honors. But McCarthy received more help from his mates and was able to outscore the dexterious Taylor of the Whaling city aggregation and Commercial was able to win.

From the opening whistle until the final one it was either Taylor or McCarthy who cut the draperies for a score. McCarthy opened the scoring of the game but Taylor's basket soon after evened matters and it was a seesaw affair from this point on. Bulkeley managed to score as many field goals as Commercial did but lost out from the foul line, Commercial players sinking in the winning points from free tries.

Taylor was individual star for Bulkeley but McCarthy overshadowed with a better type of forward play. The score:

CONN. AGGIES TO PLAY AT WEST POINT TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Jan. 23.—The Connecticut Aggies left today for West Point, where they will play the Army quintet tomorrow afternoon. Besides Coach Dole and Manager Goodrich, those making the trip include Captain Balock, Eddy, Makofski, O'Brien, Seymour, Schonfeld, Allard and Bitgood.

Dole's team will find a worthy opponent in the cadet five tomorrow and the men have been working hard to be in top form for the battle that is expected. The Aggies held their final workout for the game yesterday, when the team practised on formations, and then finished up with a fast scrimmage.

The cadet team that will take the floor against the Aggies tomorrow is rated as one of the best in eastern inter-collegiate circles. In Captain Wood, Roosman and Newman, the West Pointers have three stars that are certain to give the Aggies plenty of trouble. Roosma has played with the Army quintet four years, and he is one of the best basketball shooters in the game today. Against C. C. N. Y. last week he connected for 12 baskets from the floor, and his work was instrumental in giving the City team their first set-back of the season.

Both teams have the same record as far as games won and lost this season is concerned, each having lost three and dropped one. Army has turned back St. Francis, Delaware and C. C. N. Y., with a defeat by St. John's of Brooklyn to mar their record. Connecticut has defeated New Hampshire, Springfield and Trinity, was in turn defeated by Wesleyan.

Followers of the Connecticut quintet obtained a ray of hope from the fact that the St. John's, who defeated the Army, was in turn defeated by Springfield, one of the teams that fell before Dole's men. Whether or not this has any bearing on the present strength of the Army five remains to be seen, but on the basis of comparative scores, it makes the outlook encouraging to the Connecticut followers.

Harry Fisher, who turned out the Army's winning teams in 1922 and 1923 is coaching the Army five again this year, which insures a well balanced team taking the floor against Connecticut.

The game tomorrow will be the fourth meeting in as many years between the two institutions. Army has won twice, and Connecticut once. If both teams play true to form the game should be a close one, and hard fought throughout.

Coach Alexanders freshmen team will play the Roxbury Prep school at Storrs tomorrow night, in their fourth game of the season. The yearlings will take the floor with Captain Haddon and Eddy forwards, Whitmore, center and Heller and Donahue, guards.

ENGLISH RUNNER TO MAKE HOME IN AMERICA

New York, Jan. 23.—A. G. Hill, victor in the 800-metre and 1,500 metre races at the 1924 Olympics, is coming to the United States early in February but not for an attempt to check Paavo Nurmi's onward sweep or rival American's middle distance stars.

According to word received by athletic officials here, Hill intends to make his home in this country. It was said he has been out of competition almost entirely since his Olympic triumphs nearly five years ago and has no idea of re-entering the game.

Officials of the Wilco A. A., however, in a desire to have Hill give an exhibition performance, have invited the noted British runner to appear at their indoor games in Brooklyn February 7. Fans would welcome a chance to see the athlete who beat America's best middle stars in 1920, including Earl Eby, Joie Ray and Harry Shields.

Hill is booked to leave England January 28 and arrive here February 6.

PICKED FIELD OF TRACK STAR PERFORMERS TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 23.—A selected field of Olympics, collegiate and National A. A. U. track and field athletes will compete in the 39 events planned for the Brooklyn college games in the 14th Regiment Armory in Brooklyn tomorrow night.

Foremost among the field of entries is Paavo Nurmi, who seeks to continue his string of world's record by clipping a few odd seconds off the world's mark in the 2,400 yards pace, the feature of the lengthy program.

In addition to Nurmi, Joie Ray Illinois A. C., star Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A.; Leo Larrivee, Holy Cross; Abel R. Kiviat, Wilco A. A.; J. W. Driscoll, Boston A. A.; Ray Robertson, Boston A. A; Ray Watson, Boston A. A.; Jack Sellers, New York A. C.; Vernon Ascher, Georgetown; Jimmy Burgess, Georgetown; Loren Murchison, Newark A. C.; Bob McAllister, New York A. C., and other runners are entered in the track events in addition to such hurdlers as Ivan Riley, Illinois A. C., and Herbert Meyer, Newark A. C.

Willie Ritola, Finland's great distance star and rival of Nurmi, will meet Verne Booth of Johns Hopkins and George Lermond of Boston college in the 5,000 meter special, while Harold M. Osborn, Illinois A. C. star and winner of the decathlon in the Olympic games, will have plenty of opposition to his specialties.

Two mile collegs relay with Yale, Boston college and Georgetown as opponents will be one of the most interesting events on the program, Georgetown, Holy Cross, Boston colleges and Rutgers will meet in a one mile.

HEYDLER PROMISES TO AID IN BRIBERY PROBE

New York, Jan. 23.—Full co-operation with the New York district attorney's investigation into the Dolan-O'Connell baseball bribery scandal was promised today by John A. Heydler, president of the National league, upon his return from Chicago, where he attended a meeting of the advisory council.

President Heydler said he would put every resource he had at the disposal of the probe and expressed willingness to testify himself if occasion required it. The bribe revelations first were made to Heydler by Arthur Fletcher, Philadelphia manager, after the latter had been advised by Heinie Sand, of O'Connell's $500 offer to the Phillie shortstop.

President Heydler also expressed gratification at the action of the advisory council in proving a "cut" in world's series money for fourth place clubs in each major league. Previously only second and third place teams shared in the receipts, in addition to the series contenders, but the extension of this, Mr. Heydler believes, will maintain keener interest and competition to the finish of the season.

NURMI SAYS AMERICAN TRACKS ARE "TOO SPRINGY"

New York, Jan. 23.—(By the A. P.)—American indoor tracks are "too springy" and cold weather here, differing from the drier climate of Finland, is a serious hindrance to outdoor training.

This is the gist of the first comment Paavo Nurmi has made on general conditions in this country since he started his record-breaking sweep early this month. It was contained in a message from the phantom Finn to a newspaper in Helsingford, capital of Finland, in which he described his two races at the Finnish-American games, his first appearance here.

The newspaper, commenting on the event, expressed surprise at the Finn showing of Joie Ray, who pushed Nurmi to a world's record in the mile at the Finnish-American meet. Ray's performance, it was said, forced a revision of Finnish estimates of his ability, based previously on his 1920 and 1924 Olympic showings, which were disappointing and well below his customary standard.

WILLIAMS MEMORIAL GIRL'S TEAM PROVE MASTERS OF PLAINFIELD MAIDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 23.—New London seems as far as Plainfield teams can extend their conquested territory to, for this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium the Williams Memorial Institute sextet defeated a representative girls' team from Plainfield High school, making the second team in two days from Plainfield which fell before the onslaught of local teams. Last night Chapman Tech found the measure of the Plainfield boys' team, while this afternoon W. M. I. added a humiliating defeat upon the record of the girls' team, winning from that outfit by a score of 31 to 2.

W. M. I. set off at a rapid pace and held things in the palm of the hand throughout. Plainfield encountered a stiff defense in the backcourt girls from W. M. I., who easily kept the visitors' forwards away from the basket. The local girls were more alert in intercepting the ball as it cut through the air, and by means of a well organized pass system worked the ball down the court to either of the forwards, Miss C. Pendleton or Miss M. Booth, who sent it through the draperies for scores. Plainfield very seldom threatened to break into the scoring column, both of the W. M. I. guards being active in keeping the ball from their possession.

Only the second quarter found the visiting girls breaking into the scoring column. It was a good shot by Miss D. Generous, but it was also the only opportunity Plainfield had to score. W. M. I. as a team outplayed Plainfield at every turn, with scores coming fast after the first quarter. Mostly all of the baskets scored by W. M. I. were from the chest, therefore counting two points for every basket.

The score:

W. M. I.

FLOURNOY TALKS OF DEMPSEY-GIBBONS BOUT

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Frank Flournoy, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, New York city, is expected to arrive here tomorrow morning presumably intent upon closing negotiations for a match between Jack Dempsey, and Tom Gibbons, in New York in May.

Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, who was notified of Flournoy's coming, in referring to a Paris dispatch today saying that Manager Bettinson of the London sporting club was awaiting his answer on a Gibbons-Firpo fight, which was to be given on January 25, declared that he had given an answer several days ago.

"I offered the proposition of a guarantee of $75,000 to Gibbons and $3,000 for expenses," Kane said. "That is the only answer I have and that already has been given.

LOCAL BOXER SCORES KNOCKOUT OVER TAMPA BOY

Young Al Coulon of Taftville, who is spending the winter in Florida, where he is making quite an impression as a boxer, scored a knockout in the fourth round of the six round semi-final bout at Tampa, Fla., last Monday night, according to the Tampa Morning Tribune. Coulon's victim was Jimmy Reed, who had lost only two decisions in his last 28 fights, and last Monday's knockout was the first in his career. Coulon knocked Reed down three times in the third round and finished him off in the fourth. This is Coulon's second victory in the south and he is booked for several more bouts before the season closes.

SEVERAL LEADERS WITHDRAW FROM DOG DERBY

The Pas, Man., Jan. 23.—Withdrawal of several of the leading competitors from the annual 300-mile the Pas Dog Derby of February 5 was threatened today unless promoters abandoned the proposed course along Hudson Bay railway to Herb Lake.

Experienced dog mushers, including "Shorty" Russick, last year's winner, adopted a resolution last night protesting that the course, including 162 miles of railroad track, was treacherous and "unpardonably cruel" to the dogs.

President Hal Crowed of the Pas Dog association said the course had been selected some months ago and that it would be impossible to alter plans at this late date.

New York, Jan. 23.—Miller Huggins, manage. of the New York Yankees, is on his way to New York from St. Petersburg, Fla., to talk over training camp plans with Colonel Jacob Ruppert and to prepare for the departure of the advance guard of Yankees to the southland.

Huggins went to St. Louis yesterday where he signed Urban Shocker to a Yankee contract. Word of Its Origin

The work "luke" in "luke-warm," simply means warm, being derived from an old word "lew" meaning warm. The world was kept, but a translation was added; later on, however, people forgot that the word "warm" was a translation of "luke," and thought that the "luke" part must refer to some special kind of warmth. In this way the "tepid" meaning evolved.

For Mutal Benefit

A Consumers' league is an association of persons who desire, so far as possible, to do their buying in such way as to further the welfare of those who make or distribute the things bought. The movement started in England in 1890, and about the same time was taken up by the Workingmen's society in New York.

Use Radiator Shields

The bureau of mines says that the walls and ceiling above radiators become dark because the air heated by the radiators rises, carrying the dust and dirt in a room with it. This circulation of air cannot be prevented, but radiator shields will prevent the walls and ceiling from becoming dark.

WE OPEN AT 10 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

A Memorable Event for Saturday, January 24th

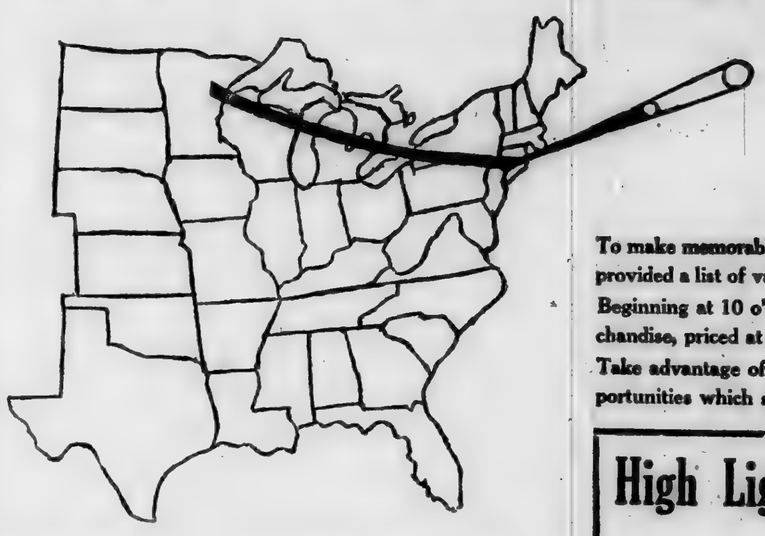
ANOTHER CENTURY

And more, will pass by before any resident of Norwich will have the privilege of seeing one of the most awe inspiring events which Nature can provide.

Hurtling through space, at a speed beyond human comprehension, the sun, the moon, and the earth, for a few brief seconds, align themselves so that the face of the sun is blotted out, and night prevails in the daytime.

Watch the progress of this eclipse with the aid of a bit of photographic film, exposed and developed, or a piece of smoked glass. Then, at 9:13, for about two minutes, you will be able to see a spectacle which induces astronomers to travel thousands of miles to get a glimpse of. It is the wonderful corona — a halo of colored light flaming out from the circumference of the moon-shadowed sun. To us, a narrow fringe of color—actually, flames leaping into space to a height of hundreds of thousands of miles.

Since the time of the Pilgrims New England has not seen this. Don't miss it.



Saturday The Boston Store Offers Values Which Eclipse Them All

To make memorable this event, in the history of the store, The Boston Store has provided a list of values which eclipse anything we have offered to you before. SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
In School Days Revised

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
But not a beggar sunning;
No sumac round its portals walk
No huckleberry vines are running.

For Hiram Stubbs now owns the lot
And runs a filling station
To satisfy the passing cars
That call for liquidation.

The desks that bore upon their sides
The luck knives carved initial
Have been all ditched to make room for
The oils of joy official.

No school girl trim with modest limb
Now carts her dinner bucket,
Lipstick Jane who drives thru rain
From Portland to Pawtucket.

No pedagogue now waves his birch
Or gives a sum of fractions,
For Hiram Stubbs now figures hard
From rubes to make subtractions.

So here thee well, school house of yore
Now bright with Red Crown's story,
Tell forth thy tales of gasoline's
Evaporating glory.

The Old Rugged Cross

On a hill far away stood an old rugged cross,
The emblem of suffering and shame,
And I love that old cross where the dearest and best
For a world of lost sinners was slain.

Chorus

So I'll cherish the old rugged cross,
Till my trophies at last I lay down;
I will cling to the old rugged cross
And exchange it some day for a crown

O, that old rugged cross, so despised by the world,
Has a wondrous attraction for me;
For the dear Lamb of God left His glory above,
To bear it to dark Calvary.

In the old rugged cross, stained with blood so divine,
A wondrous beauty I see.
For 'twas on that old cross Jesus suffered and died,
To pardon, and sanctify me.

To the old rugged cross I will ever be true,
Its shame and reproach gladly bear;
Then He'll call me some day to my home far away,
Where His glory forever I'll share.

In the Afterglow

Mother o'mine, in the afterglow
Of mothering years, I love you so,
For loving me e'er life I knew,
When next your heart a new life gives,
Loving me on into fair childhood,
When I so little understood
The long, hard way we all must go.
Mother o'mine, I love you so.

Loving me, too, when life so sweet
Tempted my wayward, girlish feet
Away from paths of truth, and right
To roads that lead to sin's dark night.
Winning me back with loving tone
To ways that you had made your own
By struggle and stress and pain and prayer,
By love's own cords you held me there.

Mother o' mine, 'tis mine to take
The burdensome load, the stress, the ache,
That come in motherhood's fair years,
The joy, the pain, the love, the tears.
'Tis mine to give what you gave to me.
Mother o'mine, I would faithful be
To the highest note in the song you taught
My sinless lips, the music wrought
With all the mothers' hopes and fears,
That fill to the brim the mothering years.

Mother o'mine, in the afterglow,
Of motherhood years, I thank you so
For gifts to me from out your heart,
All thoughts that rise my hot tears start,
God gives me ways to make you know
How great is my love before you go
Away to your rest from your mothering;
I would remove life's every sting,
And give you rest in the afterglow,
Dear mother o'mine, I love you so.

DELIGHTED WITH RADIO

Dear Sisters: Thought I would write a few lines but don't hardly dare to though after reading so many nice letters last week. But I'm going to take a chance. These short days it is quite hard to find time to write much but thought if I didn't write pretty soon some of the sisters might think that I was spending too much time listening to the radio. I have one which I feel quite proud of. I has a loud speaker so all can hear. I think it is the most wonderful thing ever invented. Heard three sermons yesterday from different pulpits, all again as though they were right in the room. It doesn't make any different what the weather is you can be entertained with concerts and most everything that is going on. What more could anyone ask for to pass the time. If you find an hour or two in an afternoon take your sewing or other kind of work and turn the dials and you can work and listen at the same time. It helps to brighten up a dreary day. In that way the time passes very pleasantly. We might as well have a little enjoyment as we go along remembering we only live but once.

Will send a recipe for apple pie, a tested one of my own making and will also send recipe for pie crust which is as follows: sift 3 tablespoons of baking powder, 1-2 teaspoons of salt and a quart of flour; after this add 1 1-2 cups of lard, worked in lightly, add cold water, just enough to roll, be careful and not get too much water. This is the crust. For the apple or the inside of the pie I take a bowl and put in about 3 tablespoons of flour, a little salt and a cup and a half of sugar, and spice to taste. We like nutmeg, about 1-2 teaspoon is about right. Stir this all together and put half to the bottom of the apples after lining the pie tin, and the other on top of the apples and then put on the upper crust and cut several places on top so the steam can escape. I seldom have any trouble. Pinch the edges down good before putting in the oven and if the juice should run out take out of oven in a few minutes and then return and finish without further trouble. Try this way and see if you don't like it. Best wishes to the Corner.

CANNING SAUSAGE MEAT AND BEANS

Dear Social Corner Editor and sisters: I thank all who remembered me with cards at Christmas and New Year's. Also a Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar I received.

I wonder if any of the sisters who make their own sausage ever put it in glass jars for future use. Pack the meat in the jars as firmly as possible to within an inch of the top then fill the jar with hot lard, put on cover and seal. It will keep a long time this way.

You can keep head cheese in the same way.

Did you ever can baked beans to be used in the summer? When baking them in winter, bake a quart or so extra, put in glass jars the same as you would fruit. Next summer they will come in handy for sandwiches or for lunch.

Papa's Boy: I don't think R. D. or Gadabout would have to be urged very much if they were in N to call on you. Did you have a nice time Thursday evening?

I. J. B.: How did you enjoy having two birthdays this year? It isn't every one who can.

Cactus Blossom: Was pleased to see a letter from you. Do you ever write poetry now? I have some written by you, when you and I were young.

Just Ma's letter made me wonder for a while who was who but I decided it was Just Me who wrote it. Am I right? If so please let me know how Mrs. D. is. I hope she is better.

Primrose: Why so silent? Am I the guilty one? I would have enjoyed meeting with Club 4 in Putnam Dec. 31 and to have met the old members as well as the new ones. Think I can guess who some of them are.

Twice Twenty: Are you too busy to write? Hope both you and Mr. T. are not sick.

Central says line wanted.

KEZIAH DOOLITTLE.

WHAT COOKING MEANS

Dear Social Corner: We are now traveling a new old road with many new resolutions and hope to live them all. But it remains to be seen for Jordan is a hard road to travel.

Went to Willimantic to visit Club No. 1. Had a pleasant time and the lunch was very good and plenty of it so no one went hungry. I learned a new dance from Hope Cobweb call the Garter dance.

Made the acquaintance of a few and found some that I met last summer at Twice Twenty's.

I am sorry Butterfly and Kentucky Wonder met with a loss. But among all classes we find such. After one experience of that kind I take paper napkins for we never know our next door neighbor.

I am glad Olga had a nice time which will induce her to come again. Before me is a calendar which reminds me so much of the Shetucket river.

I send thanks, for it is just what I need.

No one responded to the conundrum that I sent in, so will here give the answer—(A Hat.)

What does cooking mean to a woman?

It means the patience of Job and the persistence of the Pilgrim Fathers.

It means the endurance, the long suffering and the martyrdom of Joan of Arc.

It means the steaming and the stewing, the boiling and the baking, thrice daily, spring, summer, autumn and winter, year after year.

It means desperation and resignation. It means a crown and a harp and a clear title to an estate in Heaven.

Bean Sandwich: One cup cold baked beans, pulp, one tablespoon melted butter or cream, salad dressing enough to moisten, one teaspoon finely minced onion. Spread on slices of buttered bread. It tastes good when a person is hungry.

A happy New Year to all.

HIGHER DEGREES ON THE GRANGE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: The many letters sent in to the Corner page last week show that the interest is increasing and not declining. I am always glad to hear about the meetings, for on those special days, my thoughts are often there, and I regret any absence. January 14th was a beautiful winter day, and no doubt many of the sisters and readers were in Hartford attending the annual session of the state grange. Some came, perhaps for the first time, while others were former members. I am pleased to note that sister Olive and myself entered the ranks of a subordinate grange last November and were entitled to join the pomona and state, at this recent session. The assembly was held in the Governor's Foot Guard hall, which was beautifully decorated with flags, blue and yellow crepe paper, and green trailing vines. The stage scene was elaborate like a beautiful summer garden.

The attendance was very large, grangers coming from far and near, and of all ages. Olive and myself received the 35th degree, with a large class at 11:30 A. M., which we enjoyed very much. At 6 P. M. we were among those who entered into the sixth degree, which was a class of 257 also our Social Corner Sister Priscilla was along with us.

It was truly a beautiful service, which should ever linger in our thoughts and memories—the teaching which were presented for all goodness and truth. I wish to thank Social Corner Member for a pretty little calendar, which I have received, and appreciate the kindness.

Anna Z: I have sent you a card addressed 77 Elder Street, Burnside, but perhaps you did not receive it, as I see by your letter in last week's paper, your address is 78 instead of 77. However, I am glad you received the letter all right from sister Mavis. I should be pleased to obtain her address and meet her, when opportunity is favorable. There are several sisters in this vicinity, who I have no doubt, would be glad to meet with each other. I hope the out door meeting may bring us together.

Best wishes to all.

JENNIE.

MORE GREETINGS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I suppose you are all looking forward to the eclipse the 29th. It certainly will be a strange sight.

Bo Tree: Next time you visit Butterfly let me know and I'll surely give you that ride.

1492: Yes. It was one of E. T. Paul's compositions. Most of his compositions are the same.

Trixy: Did I sit side of you in church the other Sunday? Do you think you could play that song today?

Keziah Doolittle: How are you? I have not seen you for a long time; not since you went away from E. K. I once visited your daughter in Ocean.

Alwilda: How are the puzzles coming on? Struck any snags yet?

Caro: How do you like your "Ripstitcher"? Tore out any more chunks lately?

Esmarajda: How about coming up and having some of that fudge? You know the way we do you not?

Twice Twenty: Do you remember the time I stopped at your house to telephone? That was many long years ago. At least it seems that. Time flies doesn't it?

Heather: How do you like your new place? Write. Have not seen a letter from you lately.

Pep: Been skating lately? Remember the night we skated around the bog?

Nely Grey: I can see your light also but cannot see inside. I see M and H going to school quite often.

Lilac Lady: How does the radio? Did you hear McCormack sing the other night?

Best wishes to all for a prosperous and happy year.

CAKE WITHOUT EGGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long time since I have written, but will try to do better in the future. I enjoy reading the letters every week and find them interesting and helpful.

I will tell the sisters how I prepare my cranberries if it is not too late in the season. We like them all through the cold weather.

I pick them over, wash, put through the meat chopper, then cover with cold water and stir and was with a wooden spoon. Then skim the berries out of the water, leaving the seeds in the bottom of the pan. I then drain the water in with the berries. In this way the berries are nearly seedless and cook quickly.

If I want them as jell I measure equal parts sugar and berries. Now that eggs are expensive I am sending a recipe for cake without eggs.

Chocolate Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 1-2 cups flour, vanilla.

Devils Cake, without eggs: 1 cup brown sugar, 4 tablespoons softened fat, 2 tablespoons molasses to take the place of eggs, 3 tablespoons cocoa melted in, 4 tablespoons boiling water, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups flour, vanilla and salt. If baked in deep pans will need 3-4 hour or longer. Best wishes for the Social Corner.

FRANCES ADEL. (April 6.)

GREETINGS AND THANKS FROM SCOTTIE

Dear Social Editor and Friends: How are you all this lovely weather? I am a little late in wishing all a happy New Year, but better late than never.

First I must thank Social Corner member for the pretty calendar. You must be kept busy getting them ready. Mine is such a pretty home scene with a baby in the cradle.

Now I want to thank all who sent me Christmas cards, Nannie Lou, Goody, Wordy Bell, Delish Deal, True Blue, Elsie, Pansy, Necia, Black Eyed Susie, Student, Lo, Mollie Larkin, Comfort, Chocolate, Delight, Hope, Foxglove and Mother, Whirlwind, Calla Lily, Effie M., Practical Polly. If to have left anyone out don't think I mean to slight you, thanks just the same.

Comfort: How are you since we were at Willimantic? We had such a nice time and such a nice dinner. There was a little misunderstanding with Strawberry Ch at she did not go up.

Necia: We were glad to see Mr. Necia had improved so much. Hope he will gain every day. Yours as ever for the Corner.

SCOTTIE.

LIKES CORNERS AND ACQUAINTANCES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: As the Social Corner is a success I wish good luck to all connected with it. The recipes are all good. I enjoy reading the different letters. I am a poor writer myself, but I like to meet the old friends and get acquainted with new ones.

Two Irishmen met and one said to the other, "Pat, did you ever talk before a lot of people? He said he had talked before a few. Mike asked Pat what he said. Pat answered, "I said not guilty."

Every joy or trial
Falleth from above,
Traced upon our dial
By the sun of love.
We may trust him solely
All for us to do;
They who trust him wholly
Find him wholly true.

With best wishes,

IOLA.

THAT SETTLES IT

Dear Sisters and Social Corner Editor: Let me try to answer Alwilda's first question of last week's Social Corner page. Do words mean anything at all? A word we are told, is a sign of an idea. Notice, a word is not an idea but a sign of such. That is why we can talk so long without saying anything.

Some words will live forever, others die as they should.

The good book says, "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." So "that settles it," as the old woman said when she dropped the cat in the coffee.

DEMARALDA.

ANOTHER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have been interested in your Corner for some time past and hope to be for some time to come. I know quite a few of the members and some of them are close friends.

In closing I will take for my pen name AUTO.

AN UNWELCOMED CHRISTMAS PRESENT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: A Christmas and New Year greeting to all. I think it about time I sent in a few lines to the Corner. I have been rather off my base since Christmas morning. I started to go out to a Christmas dinner and not a Christmas present I did not expect—a leg fall on an icy sidewalk. It put my left hand out of business, the arm was badly bruised and it gave me a severe shaking up. I sprained my wrist so I could not hold a pen for several days and even now it makes it ache. My hand is getting better, but very slowly. I do not use it now except when I have to. It is so sore and painful. There was a large bunch on my hand where it struck the sidewalk. It was a wonder I did not break the bones. There is much to be thankful for.

A friend asked me what I was going to do next and I told her that was a hard question to answer for I seem to be having and doing things right along.

I want to thank the sisters who were so kind as to send me those lovely calendars and cards. There were no names or addresses so I could not return the favor.

Santa Claus was very good to me, I received nine boxes of candy, one from Honolulu with pineapple candy which was made there and it was lovely; I also received 70 cards, six calendars, a work basket, a dozen lovely pink rosebuds, a box of mixed flowers, a bead bag and a cape for a housewrap and a lovely pocket book to carry on my arm.

How about that emblem pin the Cornerites were discussing a while ago? I started that idea several years ago. I am still in favor of it and wish it could be carried out.

Calla Lily: I wish you would get busy and engineer the business. Give us a pin that will not be too expensive but one we could wear in public and one that will be easy to recognize on the street. I have a picture of one in my mind that I think would represent our allegiance to each other as it should to the public.

What do the rest of you think of it? There could be a vote taken of all those connected with the Corner that would tell how many are in favor of it. There surely ought to be fifty or more out of a thousand and that would be enough to start with. Please mention it in next week's Corner page.

Aunt Sarah: I wonder if you remember since I became a member of the Corner. You know it was you who first proposed that I join. I have forgotten how many years it is. Where were you in New London?

Best wishes for the Corner from

I. M. PEDRO.

ANOTHER CALL FOR MIRACLES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Again I wish to thank some one who sends us all the pretty little calendar every New Year. I am much pleased with mine. It is always pleasant to be remembered.

Barbara: I also wish some body would send in a recipe for Miracles, but perhaps they have vanished into oblivion, like some other old time cookery. When I was a girl and used to "go visiting" and spend the afternoon and take tea with the Robbins girls, Mrs. Robbin often had them at tea and I thought they were wonderful good and have never seen or heard of them since. As I remember them they were fried like doughnuts or crullers. In the western part of the state the term "doughnut" belongs strictly to the raised kind; all the others are crullers.

I remember getting the recipe from her once, but I hadn't begun cooking then and for some reason, my mother never made any, and all I can recall to memory is 3 eggs and 1 cup sugar. It seems to though in all this great crowd of Social Corner members that somebody must know about them.

Eveline Burr: When I read about your autograph album I wished so much that I had signed the two I once had. I don't know why I didn't. Only in the course of moving and getting rid of superfluous and gone by things, they went with the rest but I can recall some of the sentiments and names written in them. A favorite one used to be, Remember me when this you see, though many miles apart we be." And your mention of the old village church heated at the rear by two big coal stoves brought to mind the church where I used to go in dear old Westminster, which was heated as I presume it is yet, by two big wood stoves at the rear. Back of them and under the gallery, it would be quite comfortable but further on the chilly drafts came down from front and above you, and the floor was so cold that your feet were half frozen sometimes and one couldn't take much interest in the service under those circumstances. My troubles in settling things after moving are exactly the reverse of yours now. When I first began to move I also had enough to fill a big house but having followed the gypsy trail, as it were, for 20 years and sold out completely two or three times and started all over again, I have just about enough to fill a two by four cottage and when I happen to get a bigger house and stretch my belongings out a little they look few and scattered. So I don't know which is worse, to have too much or too little. Still there is always enough and more than you thought, when you are ready to move again. Billie wishes some of the sisters would start with telling about things that belong to their first memories but as I have already written plenty for one letter I will postpone that for a future time.

IOLA.

DEEPLY REGRETS H. M. L's DEATH

Dear Social Corner: I want to thank Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar. We are all still wondering who she (?) is?—as every year we are all remembered without fail. Was deeply touched to read of H. M. L's death, and I wish to extend Club No. 1's heartfelt sympathy to all of the family. Her face and all the sisters who always came with her were greatly missed at our last meeting.

Dish, Chub, and Chore Girl: Come just the same when you feel that you can, for if she could say it, she would tell you too.

How nice it was to have such a full page last week! Long may it live is the wish of

ELIZA JANE.

WHO CAN HELP FREE AIR?

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I noticed Silent Partner's inquiry concerning the whereabouts of Free Air and did certainly appreciate the fact that someone missed me. I have been pretty [illegible] Silent Partner having two partitions taken out and one put in. Such a messy undertaking. When I crawled out from the plaster, they spread on the paper and paint and there I was puffing and blowing again. After that the furnace took a notion to smoke and the men cleaned out the chimney and left the soot right where I'd have to wade through it so I took a day off and cleaned that out. That was a week ago and I've got the soot but one bre. Now I am deep, deep in the income tax, not that I've got such a big income but there's just as much work about a small one as there is about the most largest one.

Rural Aunty is getting to be a regular radio bug. Every time I call her up she's tuning in, or just finished, or just going to.

Kingston Brown: I saw you on the street one Tuesday afternoon and you didn't seem to have your cornphone on. I guess you hear better now don't you? Ha. Ha. You certainly don't need any.

I would like to have someone tell how to finish off the pailing of a reed tray so that it won't show where the ending is. The directions I have are not right. I hope to get help through the Corner in a short time as I wish to finish the tray as soon as possible. Have just made a reed lamp and like it very much. No more worry about broken shades now.

Oh, I must not forget to thank social Corner member for the pretty calendar. I have it in the living room. It goes well with the wall paper.

Was glad to see so many letters in last week's Bulletin.

Well I hope I've saved another one's life with a dose of FREE AIR.

PENNAMES OUGHT NOT TO CONFUSE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It has been some time since I wrote the Corner. Although having started several letters which were left unfinished I'll try again. First I want to thank a Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar I received. I have received one for so many years I surely would be disappointed if it failed to come. I have filed away after calendar is torn off every one I have received from the first from Interested Reader. Next let me also thank all who sent me cards Nov. 25, my birthday, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years. There surely was a stack fro friends, relatives and Social Corner friends.

I see by one of the Corner pages that Blue Bell has changed her name to White Dawn on account of so many Bells of one kind and another. I feel as she does, there is confusion in those names. I don't see why names not conflicting with another can't be found. This week the editor changed some one's name to Water Lily, we have a Tiger Lily, Calla Lily and others and two Priscillas I think. Our Editor ought to have the right to sign a name or change it so as not to have any part like another's name especially like old writers names. Not have any No. 2 and No. 3 of the same name. If I remember correctly our editor gave Dearie her name and she rightly placed it.

Feel like Kitty Lou who says she would like to see the old and new writers fill up the page. Why don't more of Club No. 2 members write and not leave it for those who belong to Clubs 1, 3 and 4?

Bob White and Lucy Acorn: Why not try and come to the February meeting. We miss you both.

Crimson Rambler: Drop in at the store and if anything is on the air just ask son to tune in on his Tuska superdine radio set. They are nice for those who like them as for me I'm not crazy about them but will say they are surely a fine thing for people living out of the city for evening entertainment. We got some fine talks, music and songs on it. John McCormack was great the listeners in at the store said. I didn't hear it. I was out. We have a loud speaker with our radio.

Billie: Was glad to see your name again on the Corner list.

Nellie Boy: Hear you are on the sick list.

Whirlwind: Some time ago I saw you were a P. S. member. What is th name of your temple? I am a charter member of our temple and there are quite a few P. S. in club No. 2.

I extend sympathy to all those who have lost dear ones, also wish a speedy recovery for all sick ones, and a happy healthy and prosperous year for all.

CALLA LILY. (Nov. 25.)

Club No. 2.

WHAT A SEA OF FACES!

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank the Corner Member for the cute calendar sent to me, a daily reminder all through the year. Glad to see a full page last week and a half page ever, if they keep coming in this way the editor will have to have a special paper printed for us. What a sea of faces there would be, if all were in a group together!

Bar-Bar: I am feeling fine these days. No the days of miracles have not passed if you read the right papers which reveal them, and the one Book which will show you how and ask the one Being who will, yes surely will.

Spry Bird: So glad to see a letter from you. We need to have creepers over in our town. How is it down there? Are you going to Mount Tom the 24th? Dont get pushed off or get dizzy looking up. What a disappointment if not a pleasant day.

F. C.: Let us hear from your pen. Am sorry you are not in the best of health. Keep up good courage. I can see your sunny smile as in days of yore and in the pleasant memories of my first home nest, dear to me still.

"Whichever way the wind may blow
Whither it comes with rain or snow
My heart of hearts will always know
That God is love.

ANSWERS ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As I did not answer to the roll call feel that I must write now and thank Social Corner member for lovely calendar. Wishing me such good luck.

Delish Deal: Sometime when you are writing will you please add the date of your birthday?

Bonie: Am sorry I am so late in acknowledging the pretty birthday card. Would like to know when your birthday comes.

Saturday Eve: Was interested in the history of the carol Silent Night. I took it to Sunday school and read it to the other members of the class.

Grace: Was glad to see a letter from you. They are always interesting.

BETSEY TROTWOOD.

THANKFUL FOR REMEMBRANCES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Was very pleased to receive Christmas cards and wish to thank all those who remembered me. I also received a lovely calendar but do not know from whom it came. However, I certainly appreciate it.

Wishing the editor and all the Cornerites a happy a happy New Year, I remain sincerely yours,

DELIGHT.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: Have attended two of the Social Corner meetings and should like to become a member. Will take as a pennname.

FITCHVILLE.

ONE OF NEMA'S EARLY RECOLLECTIONS

To the Editor and Sisters of Social Corner: It looks as if the Social Corner is very popular and members will have to hustle to get a letter in the page as it is overflowing each week.

Social Corner Member: I thank you for the beautiful calendar. It is just what I admire, a flower of pink roses.

I wonder how you know exactly what others like. I wish you a happy year.

Puzzle: There was an error. I have not the pleasure of your acquaintance so did not send a card and do not like to take credit that belongs to another. Come to Willimantic and get acquainted.

Use of jelly. If a crumb of food sticks in the throat swallow some jelly. Jelly is also good for irritation of the throat and when the throat is dry. Wild choke cherries make fine jelly.

For headache drink catnip tea.

Whirlwind: Glad you had a pleasant trip to New York. Grand Central is a fine building. Have been there many times.

Billie: You ask for early recollections. One of my first adventures was following the hand organ man and monkey. It was summer time and a crowd of small children gathered about the organ as soon as we heard the music and saw the monkey collecting pennies. As the man passed down Main street, playing in front of stores we danced about him and had a fine time.

We followed him, crossed the railroad tracks and went out into the country where we had never been before. We thought the monkey was very comical as he danced along. Finally the organ-grinder knew we were going too far and he tried to send us back, shook his fist at us and muttered something we did not understand. When we saw he did not want us to go farther we all stood still and screamed. We knew we were lost, a group of children all about four years old. Just then Mother O'Mine appeared. She had missed me and was told to follow the organ and monkey. She turned us back towards home. The walk never seemed so long anywhere. It was not half the fun it had been going away. That summer I was the proud possessor of two little straw sunbonnets called "shakers." One was trimmed with pink chambray, the other with blue, these were bonnets made out of pressed straw. The trimming was a cape about seven inches wide around the neck, a narrow ruffle around the front, straps over the ears and tied on top of the head, and strings tied under the chin. All the little girls wore them. At that time children attended school Saturday forenoon unless they were very mischievous. Then they were advised to stay home until they could behave. I still have my little green covered primer and first Sunday school book.

In this icy time it is well to remember the birds. Scatter cracked corn, crumbs and left over garden seeds and watch them enjoy it.

It has been amusing to watch them skate over the ice in our yard to eat the grain thrown to them. They like a piece of suet tied in a plum tree or bush.

Best wishes to all,

NEMA.

WELL IMPRESSED BY THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner: It gives me great pleasure to forward the poem Mother o'mine to the Social Corner for Silent Partner's benefit, for I do enjoy the letters from the many communities. Next to the Boston Globe's household department, there is nothing in newspaperdom to compare with it.

We were married in Norwich in 1888 and have always taken the Courier. I've often thought of writing a line but there seemed to be enough without me, so I too might be dubbed a "silent partner."

With very best wishes and congratulating the members upon their efficient social editor.

Sincerely

L. P. U.

THANKS FROM I. J. B.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I want to thank the Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar which I received, and thanks to those who sent cards—Keziah Doolittle, Necia, Whirlwind, True Blue, Auntie No. 1, Lo, Calla Lily, Black Eyed Susie, Chocolate, June Days, Francesca, Odella, Capotola, Orilla Ta, Chauffeur and others.

Hopeful: Glad you are living and to hear you had a nice time Christmas day.

Mary Sunshine: How are you?

Wordy Belle: Was pleased to hear from you.

Catnip: I suppose you had laid for me at the B. M. last week but I was not there. Will you please bring it at next meeting?

Francesca: Hope to see You soon.

I. J. B.

GREETINGS FROM HARRY E

Dear Social Corner Friends: As I see that my name has been added to the list, I thought I would write a few lines.

I am looking forward to going to a Corner picnic sometime soon as I have never attended any and Nely Grey says they always have a good time.

Peaty Alder: Take another look behind those lights. I really don't think you are very good at guessing. I guess you know all right now. Don't you?

Lilac Lady: Do you still believe in independence? I do, anyway.

Tilly: I wonder if the Lilac Lady has lost her hat lately.

Pep: I think you are pretty good at guessing who's who. How did you do it? Hope your cold is better.

I will say good bye till another time.

HARRY E.

A PUZZLE FOR RURAL DELIVERY

Dear Corner Friends: First of all I wish to thank the Social Corner member for pretty little desk calendar. It is very appropriate for the occasion the scenery is very much like that in this locality.

Saville: I do hope you won't think I have forgotten what you requested me to do, but when I arrived home I concluded, after examination, that article was nothing you would care about, but was very sorry I didn't know in time what you wanted. Perhaps next time you will have your wish gratified. Does that suffice?

Rural Delivery: Have not had the radio, as yet. Guess it is for lack of funds, but was thinking if I lived until blackberry time next year I might get busy like the Black Berry Girl that wanted the new "bunnit." But should I stub my toe and fall down and lose my berries then. I should see the end of my radio business. I always said if I got in a tight place I should call on you for help, so here goes, as you are a very learned person. May I ask you to solve this problem for me? (wait for a stormy day) How many quarts of black berries must I pick in order to be able to purchase a radio, allowing for those that I may spill, etc, and accepting the price they may be this coming summer? I shall await very anxiously for your figures. Hope I am not asking too much of you, for where you can solve those cross word puzzles, think you can solve this small item. How about it? I never expect to be as lucky though, as the Black Berry Girl in meeting a good Samaritan. Wish it was time to commence picking now as I may not have the fever when they are in their glory.

Gadabout: How are you? Have you had any of those grippe colds? I hope not.

Anna Z: Was very glad you tried my soap recipe and that you had such good success with it. Don't you feel very much repaid for your labor? That home made soap will float too. I never found it injurious to my hands. I don't quite understand why the cloth raised up, but I guess I forgot to tell you to wring it first out of cold water or perhaps there was a small hole in the cloth, else it must have gotten over the edge in some manner. Very glad you had good luck. You will see how long that lasts. Besides it improves with age, when it becomes good and hard.

Billie: I was very glad to see a few lines again from your pen and to know you are very much alive. The last I heard from you was when you were folding up your tent and like the birds flying south to the sunny climes. Never knew whether you ever came north again or not. Are you in S. now? Where ever you are write me a letter giving your present address. Mine is the same as when we used to correspond.

Lorna: How is that cold? Mine is on the mend now. Keep busy so as to be in good condition for the 24th, for you don't want to miss that good time. Polly White was very much pleased with that little (B. I. B.) bib.

Joan: Your letter received and what a sensation! How mad I am! Nobody knows how mad I am! Guess that X. Y. Z. pill was an awful dose to swallow. Hasn't it got through working after those three years. Oh Boy, but it must have hit hard. I am sorry for the innocent one to have to suffer for the guilty culprit. Hope this tangle can be straightened out shortly is the wish of CRIMSON RAMBLER.

TREATMENT OF THE HAIR

Dear Cornerites: In reply to L wish to say red hair is considered a great beauty nowadays. It would be very foolish to put anything on to darken it. Blue would be very becoming to you or you could becomingly wear navy, golden brown, green of all shades, grays and black, gray and tan colors.

Here is the recipe you wished for your hair. Apply once a week: White vaselin e,3 ounces, castor oil (cold drawn) 1 1-2 ounces, Gallic acid, 1 1-4 ounce, oil of lavender 20 drops. Mix well, rub a small quantity at a time on the finger tips and massage it into the scalp. Allow as little as possible to get on the hair as greasy appearance isn't pleasant.

Dry scalp is one of the hardest and most obstinate to treat but massage your scalp every night and any tonic chosen should be applied with massage as most of the benefit is obtained by massage. You can very easily learn to give yourself scalp massage if you read carefully the following directions. Press the finger tips (fingers close together) to the scalp and with a gentle pressure rub the scalp in a circular manner, causing it to move. The object it to loosen the scalp as much as possible and bringing a warm glow to it by causing the blood to flow to the surface. When this is accomplished, move the fingers to another spot and in this way go over the whole scalp.

You are right in your complaint, almost all remedies for the scalp seem to be put together with the understanding that the hair is too dry and therefore they contain oils of various kinds. One ointment will not do for every person; some require one kind and some another.

Now there are people who have undue oiliness of the hair. The following remedy will keep the scalp cool and the hair dry and free from oils. Spirit of ether 1 1-2 ounce, tincture benzoin, 2 drams; vasiline, 1 drop, heliotrope, 3 drops, geranium oil, 1 drop. Keep well corked and do not expose to flames, as it is highly inflamable.

I think my letter concerning the treatment of dandruff was in the paper about six weeks ago. I will try and find out. I think you can get extra copies if you wish.

KITTY LOU.

THANKS FOR FLOWERS

Dear Social Corner Members: What a beautiful day it has been today after the severe storm yesterday. Everything looks so clean and bright after a snow storm.

We want to thank Club No. 1 and Club No. 3 for the lovely flowers sent to our mother's funeral. Mother always enjoyed going to the club meetings and was glad to do her share of the work. I know she would have been very much pleased that you thought of her.

We are so bewildered by our great sorrow that we cannot seem to settle down to anything at present. I suppose time will heal the wound.

Neighbor Eveready: I hear that you suggested sending the flowers.

Olga: It was very thoughtful of you to postpone this month's meeting. Thank you. You can appreciate how I feel for H. M. L. has always been like a real mother to me since my marriage and I thought the world of her.

Papa's Boy: I hear from you quite often through Diamond. Hope you are over your cold and are feeling better again.

Dorinda: Sorry you have had the grip.

Diamond: Am going to stop in to see you before long.

Best wishes for the Corner.

CHUB.

HAVE FAITH AND KEEP AGOIN'

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: How are you all, the sick ones and the shutins and every one? I wish you one and all a happy new year, even if 23 days of the first month have passed. We are still on the threshhold of the new year. Just for a second we may wonder what it has in store for us, but we older sisters do not care to pierce through the mysterious future. We do not care, as the saying is, "to cross our brigs before we reach them," any more than to make resolutions we cannot keep. Still I like to resolve some one thing and I think this a nice resolution, and one hard to keep ourselves but we can do it with divine aid and that is, to do the very best we can in every thing, and to make the best of what is.

As the poet says "Keep a-goin," even if you feel there is nothing to go for or to do, the only thing is to Keep a-goin' and still keep a-goin. Just remember, we have only to live one day at a time, and we cannot be sure of that so just let us live at the present time and let the to-morrows and the future take care of themselves. We do not have to

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Norwich citizens learned with pleasure a half century ago that Mayor James Lloyd Greene had been unanimously nominated by the republicans of Connecticut for their candidate for governor. Plans were immediately made for a big parade and welcome home time for the popular city official.

Items in number 3 from The Bulletin of 1875 are as follows:

Monday, January 18, 1875—One of the oldest and best foundries in this part of the state is the Shetucket on Franklin. The buildings were erected under the superintendence and from the designs of one of the most thorough and practical journeymen in the country and are so arranged as to provide facility for light as well as heavy work. Under the management of Jedediah Spalding the foundry bids fair to recover its old prestige and and win more than its old measure of success.

Between sixty and seventy bushels of eels were speared between this city and Allyns Point Saturday.

The Greeneville school district makes a good showing this year. It shows the pupils in attendance at school to be 653 in public school and 20 in private school, leaving 174 between 4 and 16 years who are attending no school.

Among those who have received patents from the United States Patent office is J G Lamb of Norwich Town, for spinning rings.

SOCIAL CORNER

[illegible] for the [illegible] of a new year to make new resolves but let each new day be a new year or after we have failed or done wrong let us then resolve to do better and begin at once to carry out our new resolutions.

What we need is more faith, for faith brings courage which helps us to lift ourselves above the trials and troubles and aid us to endure until we can see that we are receiving the care and strength from our Heavenly Father. And now I will wish you all a happy new year and may Our Father help us all in our endeavor to do and make the best of everything during the year 1925.

I thank each and every sister who remembered me at Christmas. I thank you for your greetings and words of sympathy. We are struggling along and just keep a-goin and hope to come out somewhere in the spring. You were kind and thoughtful to remember me and I wish you all would give me your address so I could thank you by card personally.

Delight: If I get your address shall write you. If not, accept my thanks for your Christmas gift.

Delilah Deal: I shall think of you often, and Anna Mell we must just do anything but to let our thoughts dwell on ourselves even if we ask foolish questions and seem curious.

I shall be glad to hear from anyone at any time.

Best wishes to all.

BELIEVES IN PREPAREDNESS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Yesterday was a fine day for January so I went over to the city to do a lot of errands and invested in a pair of rubber boots. Today is bringing us a real snow storm, the prospect outside is dreary enough, the well is at some distance from the house and the R. D. box considerably farther than the well, but with these rubber boots I feel fairly well prepared to get both water and mail. I am a believer in preparedness. Were it not for these aforementioned boots how [illegible] I should contemplate [illegible] I do now. That [illegible] The Farm Journal [illegible] to say about Peter [illegible] and his methods. He says of the [illegible] sloppy room until the melting snow is coming through in the winter time when conditions are not just what they should be, a shingling job. He lets the potatoes stay in the ground until they are actually frozen in, he neglects to fit his children out with proper footwear until the severe storms are here and they must lose time from school because of his carelessness.

All the winters I have known have been new England winters and I think the first ones I remember were generally more severe than these latter ones but as I review them it seems to me that for the most part they have been not so bad if people only made ready for them beforehand. The Tumbledown have found them much more unbearable than the Readys have. Many of us have at some time seen one of these Peters breaking up the remains of his dilapidated dooryard fence gathered with, ice, to provide fire to keep from freezing. He was hunting while Mr. Ready across the way was busy getting his winter's stock of wood. I fear there are Mrs. Tumbledowns also but I am inclined to believe that among the Social Corner sisters, at least, the Mrs. Readys are greatly in the majority.

What a comfortable feeling comes to the woman who has extra supplies on hand for emergencies such as come to us all, not only in the way of staple groceries, canned goods and such but bedding, underclothing, simple medicines, two or three hot water bottles etc. Many of us humans could learn a useful lesson in preparedness by watching the squirrels in the fall gathering nuts and storing them away for the winter. Instinct teaches them to thus provide themselves with food. All the more should reason guide us to take advantages of the warmer part of the year to prepare for the cold and stormy portion. Thus the winter would lose half its terror and much of the illness that comes upon us at this time of year would be avoided. We should do well to ponder some of the old saws such as, Never put off till tomorrow what can be done today. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Make hay while the sun shines, etc. With best wishes to you all.

WRITING LIKE VISITING WITH SISTERS

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: First want to thank the kind unknown sisters for the lovely calendar I received yesterday. It is the first one I have received and I shall prize it so much. What a beautiful snow storm we have today. I love to see the snow when it is so pure and white, before it has been tracked or soiled—trees and bushes how lovely in their decorations of white. It never snows but what the words of John Greenleaf Whittier's poem The First Snowfall, runs through my mind, especially the

The snow had begun in the gloaming
And busily all the night
Had been heaping the fields and highways
With a silence deep and white.

Whirlwind and I spoke of you all Wednesday and wished we could have been with you but I have put my car up for the winter.

I am always looking in the Social Corner news for good recipes and helpful hints, as I have never given the sisters any to speak of will write a few that I find good

To remove iodine stains make a thick paste of starch, put on the spot and then wash and the stain will disappear.

Don't throw away stale bread crusts. Dry thoroughly, and put through the chopper, not too fine and use for bread pudding. It makes as good pudding as bread crumbs but requires a little more milk.

Furs when taken out in the fall, are often crushed and mussed in appearance. They can be made to look like new by following these directions: Wet the fur with a hair brush, brushing up the wrong way of the fur. Leave it to dry in the air for about half an hour, and then give it a good beating on the right side with a rattan after beating it comb it with a coarse comb combing up the right way of the fur.

As you pack away your winter things, label each wrapped bundle. It will save you lots of time and inconvenience next fall.

Wash brushes in luke warm water with a few drops of ammonia. Very hot water will soften the bristles and spoil them for good service.

A handy spool holder that can be made to hold as many spools as desired and on which each color is readily seen, is made from a strip of one inch by one inch wood and wire nails inserted at two inch intervals. A large screw eye in the top makes it easy to hang.

A stack of soft blotters kept in a handy place provide a useful convenience for wiping up spilled grease or fruit juice. They may be thrown away and are more sanitary than rags or cotton waste.

A clean layer of fine sawdust placed under a linoleum before it is laid will make it wear longer, will give a sort of cushion effect and add to the warmth of the kitchen.

To clean brass trimmin of ornaments, use equal parts of vinegar and kerosene applied with a soft flannel and polished with another piece of the same material.

The best holders are made from old felt hats, cut in either squares or circles with a loop attached for hanging. The heat does not penetrate, they wear well and are easily washed.

Tomatoes may be made to skin more easily by setting a pan of them in an oven a minute or two, when the oven is already heated from baking. It gives you time.

If flowers in your vase have begun to wither, add half an aspirin tablet to revive them.

I hope the sisters will find these little suggestions and helps as useful as I have.

You have doubtless all read the poem In School Days. Well while reading tonight I found a revised version of it which I will send for you all to read.

How rare it is so many buildings of all kinds are being torn down or converted into gas stations. One does not see how so many stations make a living and yet they do and Wharstand and I have found it mighty nice to have them so near for if we get out of gas (which we sometimes do) it is not so far to walk to the nearest station. We have noticed so many building and so many improvements all along the way since we first started to attend Social Corner meetings. We love to drive along and notice the lovely well kept fences and the good looking stock. One view especially is wonderful as we drive to Willimantic. Just before we get into Andover we can look across the fields to the left (going toward Willimantic) and there nestled among the trees on the side of a hill is a lovely white farm house and building. Oh, there are so many lovely spots all along the way both to Willimantic and Norwich. It always makes me think of the little boy who said, "Oh, ain't nature grand!"

I am just longing to see the dear sisters again and I know Whirlwind is, for every Wednesday she calls up and says Good morning Foxglove. Social Corner day. I wish we were going, don't you? and I always say, Yes. Whirlwind for we have such wonderful time.

Well I did not intend to write such a rambling letter when I started but it just seems as though I was visiting with you all. If the editor thinks I have taken more than my share of the Corner page he can just throw it into the basket and no one will be any the wiser. Oh I have had a pleasant evening writing this letter. The [illegible] long and very quiet after [illegible] goes to bed now mother is away. [illegible] is having a lovely time in Chicago but it's been terribly cold out there, from 12 to 22 below zero.

Must fix fires for the night and so I'll say good night all.

Yours with the best wishes for the Corner.

LIFE'S EARLIEST IMPRESSIONS.

The concluding paragraph in Billie's letter last week should have read as follows:

Had we better start something? I wish the members would write about things that belong to their first memory anywhere from two years to five. I believe I can tell a few myself and we will call them Life's Earliest Impressions And now I wish all a prosperous year and for each may every hour run itself in the golden sands of happiness.

CODFISH IN MANY FORMS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Delicate cooking and attractive serving will convert so plebian a food as salt codfish into a dish fit for a luxurious table. One of the most popular specialties for an New England family is codfish cakes made of baked potatoes.

Codfish cakes, too, seldom merit the reputation which their New England origin gave them. The usual fault is they are too pasty or to stiff and dry. Bake five medium sized potatoes (greasing before putting them in the oven then you can peel them) 3-4 pound of strioned codfish, soaking this about 4 hours, then boil. Mix equal parts of codfish (chopped) and hot mashed potato, 1-4 teaspoon of pepper, 3 tablespoons of cream, beat in the yolks of an egg to every 2 cups of mixture and beat them until they are creamy. Have it a little too soft to handle until it is chilled in a cold place. Then form into small balls, roll in the white of the egg or flour and fry in deep hot fat. The fat must be absolutely hot so hot that it will not shutter but becomes perfectly still. Then put in your cakes fry to a rich brown, and, serve with apple sauce.

There is another little known codfish preparation which deserves a larger acquaintance. The boiled fish is arranged in the center of the platter hot boiled [illegible] borders it and tomato sauce is poured over the whole. For the sauce a minced onion is cooked in two tablespoons of butter until it is yellowed, and then a pint can of tomatoes turned in. This mixture cook for about 20 minutes longer and strain. One tablespoon of flour will thicken the sauce. Season with salt and pepper.

Creamed Codfish: So simple and ancient a dish usually lacks cream or butter. Two rounding tablespoons of butter would not spoil the sauce. But in a day of high prices such as this it might well be accounted extravagant. Allow a pint of picked up codfish for a pint of sauce. Cook the fish in the butter for three minutes, add the flour cook three minutes then turn in the milk, which should be hot, and stir until the sauce thickens. A Spanish sweet red pepper, that comes canned, shredded and stirred in during the cooking, contributes to the flavor of this dish as well as of creamed finnan haddie.

Boiled Salt Codfish: I make a very fine cusine which I have boiled salt codfish for its base. In the center of the platter it is mashed with a rich egg sauce, and trimmed all around with vegetables, nicely buttered slices of boiled beets little carrots, boiled onions and boiled potatoes of miniature size. With the platter I always served a mayonnaise bowl heaped with dice of fat salt pork, fried crisp and dry. So many times it was almost humorous to watch the people scorn the pork, and it was almost invariably eaten to the very last piece before the platter was cleared. There was something strange harmonious between the crisp pork and the fish. This dish by the way has a better scientific balance than most restaurant rations. For the pork and the fish sauce, supplied what the codfish lacked in oil and the vegetables do the rest.

Genuine Baked Salt Cod Chowder: This is made by cutting two pounds of cod into inch squares. Fry a slice of onion in a tablespoon of butter. Remove the onion and put the small squares of fish in the pan tossing them about until they become well coated. Pack the fish in a well buttered baking dish alternately with slices of boiled potato, half a pound of minced salt pork, small pieces of butter, rolled in flour. Minced parsely and two chopped tomatoes. Pour over all cream, then add a layer of cracker crumbs. Cover the dish and bake for 30 minutes. Then remove the cover and brown.

A Good Cup of Coffee: Fill kettle with fresh water (cold) and put in to boil. Place over a pot just kept for coffee a square of cheese cloth over the top letting it sag down the center. Put in 4 heaping tablespoons (or 4 cups of coffee) of finely pulverized coffee. When water in the kettle is boiling fiercely pour it then over the ground coffee and stir until moistened. Put it into the scalded coffee pot, add 1 quart boiling water and boil five minutes, add 1-4 cup cold water and allow to stand three minutes and serve.

Copied the above from the Tribune Institute and tried it. The coffee was so good thought I would pass it along.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

HE ACCOMODATING SALT

Social Corner Friends: There isn't a better friend in the household than common salt, and one can't begin to remember half of the things it will gladly do for us if we give the opportunity.

Equal parts of salt and ashes is a wonderful scrub killer and mender mixed with water. I have used it for floors.

A pinch of salt in the water will keep flowers.

Willow furniture will look like new cleaned with salt and water. Rub until dry.

A tiny bit of salt added to the water when an egg while beating will make them froth quicker and the froth will be stiffer.

Dampened cream salt will help make it burn.

Salt sprinkled in the oven under cakes thus prevents the burning.

Sprinkle salt on the fire for broiling

Salt and lemon juice will remove stains from linen without injury to the fabric.

Salt in starch prevents its sticking.

When laying a matting do not cut to fit the corners but soak in salt and water, then turn.

To boil a cracked egg rub salt into the crack of the egg after dampening the egg.

One teaspoon of salt to a quart of cook will keep it any length of time.

Clean a white sweater by putting it to a flour bag containing equal part of flour and salt and shake well.

Before washing new goods let stand in salt and water.

To killing plantain leaves and grass keep wasting in rock salt and water.

The hands of fainting persons are rubbed in salt to help circulation.

One quarter teaspoon salt in one quarter glass of water taken 1-2 hour before breakfast is a good laxative and generally beneficial.

Salt in the bottom of shoes in the winter will help the circulation and prevent the feet from getting cold. This precaution is quite common and effective among Maine woodsmen.

For enameled bath tubs, etc., rub with a cloth saturated with kerosene upon which has been spread a layer of salt. Afterwards rinse but with warm soapy water.

Hemorrhages can be stopped by applying salt.

Salt put in the kerosene in lamps will prevent explosion.

Eggs can be laid down in salt.

Wipe making cocoa and coffee a tiny pinch of salt may be added.

Salt sprinkled on grapefruit makes it taste sweeter. It allays that terrible sourness.

Salt sprinkled on the carpet before sweeping makes it look brighter.

To make grandmother's gargle, for sore throat: 1-2 pint strong sage tea, 2 tablespoons strained honey, 2 tablespoons common salt, 2 tablespoon cayenn, steeping the cayenne with the sage. Mix and bottle for use, gargle four or five time daily according to the severity of the case.

Salt helps to give us ice cream; if it was not for salt the cream wouldnt freeze.

Before washing soiled handkerchiefs allow them to soak in cold water into which has been put a handful or so of salt in the water.

Putting salt in water when you are washing glass ware helps to give it a more brilliant look and rubbing them with it after drying makes them doubly brilliant. Glass ware boiled in salt and water is prevented from cracking. Place them in cold salted water, about 1 tablespoon to a quart) let boil slowly. After it comes to a boil let stay five minutes, then let cool as the air will not strike them.

Common salt will remove stains from a in the cups. Salt and corn meal all clean straw hat.

Salt is good to smooth your irons. Beeswax and salt together is a good combination.

When I want milk to curdle I add salt as I have the lemon and it answers the purpose

Salt and water is excellent to clean a hairbrush.

Salt and vinegar will clean brass. Salt with soap will clean zinc, then polish with kerosene.

Salt will set the color of pink blue, lavender, grey and black. Make a strong solution.

A little salt added to the water when washing windows makes it clearer and gives them lustre.

Ink From the Maple

A homemade ink was, in earlier days, sometimes made from the bark of the red maple by boiling it and adding sulphate of iron, says the American Tree Association. It contains considerable tannin, and, at one time, was occasionally employed in dyeing.

JAKE SHADROFF, COLCHESTER, BEAT UP A NEW LONDON HOME-WRECKER

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 23.—Jake Shadroff, a resident of Colchester, was charged with an assault on Mandel Adel. Jake did not pretend that he was other than guilty, for indeed he told the court that he felt proud of the assault. He justified all that he did and accused Adel of having broken in the Shadroff home and with enabling the mother of the family to commit did Shadroff become that he was in tears during much of the time he was telling of what happened. He said that his father had been the friend of Adel and that he had befriended him and fed him when the man was hungry. Mrs. Shadroff, it turned out and her husband went to New York and there with a Hebrew ceremony agreed that they should live apart—that they should be divorced. The son did not learn of this for three weeks. Then he learned that his mother was "keeping house" for Mandel at the latter's home in Archer court in this city and there he went to get satisfaction from the family-wrecker. He got it by pounding Adel good and proper.

The court fined Shadroff $50 and gave him a suspended jail sentence of six months for taking the law into his own hands and attempting to execute it. Shadroff made such a scene that he was taken from the court room before the session was over. He now says he will square accounts with Adel for the latter's conduct.

Miss Kathleen Sullivan, of the submarine base; Miss Beatie McCluskage, Jewett City, and Michael Pieapia, Poquonoc road Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Complaint was made to the police this afternoon that a horse had been hitched to a telephone pole on Main street near Hallam street, several hours and that the animal was suffering from the intense cold. An officer had the horse taken to a stable where it is being held pending being claimed by the owner.

Miss Eleanor Foley, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Foley of 142 Crystal avenue, died Friday at the Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, where she had been under treatment nine months. She is survived by her parents, two sisters, Mrs. James Powers and Miss Bessie Foley and by two brothers, John and Robert Foley, all of New London. Prior to her health becoming impaired, Miss Foley was a student at Willimantic Normal school.

The funeral of Carolina, widow of Antone Perry, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, the pastor. The bearers were Antone Silva, Joseph Sousa, Peter Fernando, Joseph Silva, Frank Maria and Antone Perra. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, and Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, Robert R. Congdon, James N. Sterry, Albert E. Saxton and Richard E. Belden, alumni of the class of 1886 of Bulkeley High school, of which class Mr. Stayner was a graduate, and George Whittlesey. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Bertram DeVault, a soldier, formerly stationed at Fort H. G. Wright, and from whom a divorce was obtained in the superior court at Norwich today by his wife, Elizabeth Leverone DeVault, New London, is a prisoner at the county jail here, serving a six months' sentence for assault upon Caterino Bruno. Bruno was unmercifully beaten by DeVault several months ago and the latter was given the sentence at the criminal term of the superior court concluded at Norwich this month.

Miss Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan operatic star, who was taken ill following her arrival in New London Wednesday night and whose illness caused a postponement of her concert scheduled to take place at the state armory last night, is rapidly improving at her apartment at the Hotel Mohican. Today the attending physicians permitted the singer to sit up. If the condition of Miss Ponselle improves tomorrow as it was today, the singer will leave late tomorrow afternoon for Boston. This morning Dr. Arnold Gelerie, Miss Ponselle's New York physician, arrived here and expressed himself as being thoroughly satisfied with the condition of the patient. Dr. Gelgrie returned this afternoon to New York. Miss Ponselle has agreed to return to New London the 30th inst., which is an open date with her, and give her concert under the auspices of the Connecticut College for Women, which concert was postponed because of her illness, provided that the date meets with the approval of the college officials. Friday was the noted singer's 30th birthday. Of her Who's Who says: "Rosa Melba Ponselle was born in Meriden, Conn., the daughter of Benjamin and Madalena Conte Ponselle, was educated in the public schools of Meriden, and under private tutors in New York city. She took vocal lessons for six months and joined the Metropolitan Opera company and was the first American to make a debut in a leading role with Caruso. Her religious faith is Catholic, and her home is at 319 West 95th street, New York, N. Y."

Complaint was made to the police today because of the dangerous condition of the sidewalk from ice and snow in front of the factory of the J. N. La Pointe company, Pequot avenue on which plant Councilor Edward I. Streeter Jr., is manager. The danger spot was reported to the highway department. Complaint was also made because of the slippery condition of sidewalks on Cedar street.

Mrs. E. Farris Mu[illegible] was hostess last evening in the Women's club rooms in the Harris building at a bridge social of the Catholic Women's club. Nine tables were in play. Prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Quinn, Dr. Frank Corrigan, Mrs. John Holland, Mrs. Harry Kennedy and Mrs. John A. MacDonald.

Judge Prince, in the police court today gave a couple of [illegible]ors who came here from the rum cruiser Tampa at Boston, a dose of our climate for a comically assault on Railroad Police Sergeant Martin Kane. The rowdies got as far as the union railway station on their way to the coast guard station here and engaged in a row that was an annoyance to everyone about the railway station. They were disputing over the price of railroad fare when Sergeant Kane, a most considerate man, interfered to preserve the peace. One of the pair, Walter Garthe, resented the interference of Officer Kane and smashed him in the face in a scuffle. The officer was wearing glasses and these were broken, while four of his teeth were knocked out. The bridge of his nose was fractured by a blow. Dr. F. M. Dunn dressed his wounds. While the struggle between Officer Kane was in progress, another sailor, Fred Collier, a young fellow who enlisted in the service but a month ago and who came from the shipyard at Quincy, was hustled into the baggage room at the station and there was detained for his participation in the row till the patrol wagon could be made use of. He was arrested without trouble, but Garthe made a fight all the way to the police station and kicked and bit the officers who had him in custody. That they did not use violence to secure his arrest was evidence of the self-control of the police. Patrolman Babcock and Courtney went to the assistance of the railroad officers, but the worst of the battle had occurred then and the local police finished the task that was begun by the railroad officers. Garthe was sent to jail for three months while Collier was committed for a term of 60 days. It is understood that in the future the severest penalty the law provides will be insisted upon for offenders in the uniform of the government. The men today offered the only excuse they had, saying they were intoxicated and that they did not realize what they did. The officers who made the arrest declared that while the men had been indulging in liquor they were far from being so drunk that they did not realize they were offenders against the peace of the city and the laws of the land.

New London is housing a throng of visitors tonight, the influx of transients comprising hundreds of students of colleges throughout New England and about two score professors, who are in New London for the purpose of witnessing the eclipse tomorrow forenoon. Practically all the hotels are filled to overflowing for the visitors began entering the city as early as 4 o'clock.

Some will go to the Hotel Mohican roof while others will witness the eclipse from grounds of Connecticut College for Women on Mohegan avenue, but the major portion will witness the phenomenon from Williams Memorial park, where a force of city employes yesterday removed the greater portion of the accumulation of snow.

During the partial eclipse, which will precede and follow the totality, all street lights will be in darkness so that the best possible view of the phenomenon can be obtained.

The entire day force of the police department will be on duty this afternoon Captain Charles A. Planey issued orders for the shifts that ordinarily report for duty, at 8.30, 9 and 10 o'clock to report at the police station at 8 o'clock.

The resumption of the police probe by the special committee of the city council took place this evening in the juvenile court room, municipal building. The last of the witnesses of the police department were interrogated and were Patrolmen Walter Rehn, Henry Heck and Patrick Sheehan. It is predicted that another hearing of the committee will take place within a few nights and that it is the intention of the committee to summon several newspapermen, who have been closely connected with the workings of the department and have inside knowledge of the habits and practices of the department's personnel.

James Taylor, 42 Potter street, was arrested this evening by Patrolman Augustus Ray, upon complaint of Taylor's step-son, Dennis Mahoney, charged with breach of the peace. The accused will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. Taylor appeared at his home about 6 o'clock and had been drinking although he was not intoxicated. Mahoney upbraided his step-father for indulging in strong drink, and the latter resented the rebuke, so much so that he [illegible] and attacked the young man. Taylor admi[illegible] several blows [illegible] the face of the youth, one of them cutting him near the mouth. Mahoney went to the police station and lodged complaint against Taylor.

Miss Marie Bauby of Waterbury, a well known singer, who has been heard in public in this city, particularly at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, came to New London today and visited with Rosa Ponselle, who has been ill at her apartment at the Hotel Mohican several days, Miss Bauby being an intimate friend of the operatic star. A number of girls from Connecticut College presented Miss Ponselle a birthday cake this afternoon.

P. LeRoy Harwood, of Ocean avenue, treasurer of the Mariners' Savings bank, left last night for Jacksonville, Fla., where he will remain ten days or two weeks.

An automobile, owned by Walter S. Clark, 231 Montauk avenue, was stolen tonight when the car was parked for a short time on Mountain avenue near Commercial street. Clark left the car by the highway while he went to the home of an acquaintance. He absented himself from the car but five minutes, but before entering the house he placed his overcoat over the radiator. When he returned to take possession of the machine, a Maxwell club sedan, he discovered it missing, together with his coat. Clark reported the theft at the police station and he state police at Groton and Centerbrook were notified, as were the police at Norwich and Westerly.

Following burglaries at two residences in as many nights, the police this evening received a telephone message that an attempt was being made to gain entrance to the dwelling at 39 Tilley street. Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolman Frank Philopena went to the house, but a search of the premises and the vicinity failed to locate any suspicious persons. The occupants of the house declared that the intruders numbered two and that they repeatedly tried to open front and rear doors.

ANTHRAX WAS THE CAUSE OF THE LAVIN BOY'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 23.—There is no longer any doubt but that Thomas J. Lavin, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Lavin, 249 Huntington street, died of anthrax, a disease common with sheep, but uncommon with human beings. Today Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell received advice from the state laboratory at Hartford that tests made showed that anthrax caused the child's death. The boy died at Lawrence hospital a fortnight ago, after a brief illness. Although the attending physicians pronounced death caused by anthrax, Dr. Knowlton, of the state board of health came to New London, and entertained some doubt as to whether anthrax was responsible for the child's death and to determine that fact samples of the boy's blood were taken to Hartford where the tests showed positive anthrax.

Walter T. Murphy, manager of the Lyceum, Capitol and Crown theatres, is confined to his home on Starr street as a result of a severe cold.

CHAS. H. GATES FOUND DYING IN HARRIS BLDG. FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 23.—Charles H. P. Gates, 77, of 24 Hempstead street, employed as elevator operator at the Harris building, State street, was found in a dying condition at his place of employment this forenoon, expiring before medical aid could be obtained. He was a stone mason by occupation, but had been employed at the Harris building four years. He was a member of the First Baptist church. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Robert A. Lyons, and by two brothers, Charles E. Gates and Alfred A. Gates, all of this city. Mr. Gates was found lying in a semi-conscious condition on the second floor of the building shortly after 8 o'clock by occupants of the structure, on their way to work. The body was lying close to a radiator and but a few feet from the entrance to the elevator. A hurry call was sent for physicians, but as the first arrived and before the man could be prescribed for, Gates breathed his last. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, after conducting an examination, pronounced the cause of death heart trouble.

The will of the late Daniel G. Reid, the tin plate king, left virtually the entire estate to Mrs. Rhea Reid Topping, his daughter, save for trusts of $250,000 each for her three sons.

FEEDING INADEQUATE FOR ALL LIVESTOCK

Present day feeding methods may be inadequate in furnishing the proper amount of minerals to all livestock and especially to poultry because there is less skim milk products being used today than formerly. This combined with a high protein meat scraps ration severely reduces the mineral content of the ration. In other words meat scraps that have only 50 per cent protein contains 25 per cent inorganic matter. The 75 per cent meat scraps contain from 5 to 10 per cent inorganic matter. This means then that a high per cent meat scraps does not supply the necessary minerals to the poultry rations and to make the ration balanced as far as the mineral content is concerned one must supplement the ration with from 2 to 4 per cent of the following mixture which is recommended by the Ohio Experimeng station:

Fine ground raw bone meal, 60 parts; ground limestone, 20 parts; table salt, 20 parts.

MILK HANDLERS CAUTIONED TO BE CAREFUL IN WINTER

In cold [illegible] they the bacterial count of milk may be low, while sanitary conditions may not be what they should be, says the bureau of dairying, United States department of agriculture. The mere presence of winter say the experts, should not lead milk-plant operators to relax care in keeping everything strictly sanitary. Although the colder atmosphere makes it easier to keep bacteria under control, a low count does not mean so much as it does in summer.

Men who handle milk are cautioned to [illegible] particular care, even when laboratory tests show satisfactory results, to see that milk does not leak through valves before it has been held long enough in the pasteurizer, as such leakage may thwart the purpose of pasteurization. Emphasis is laid on the work of bottle and can washing machines to see that sprays are not clogged, that alkali solutions are of proper strength, and that sufficient heat is being applied. The temperature of pasteurization is called the most important of all factors, and for this reason thermometers must always be kept in order.

DON'T BLAME COWS FOR "STRONG" MILK

When you turn up your nose at the flavor of cabbage in milk, don't blame the cow or the cabbage. Often as not the fault is in the method of feeding judging by experiments now made public by the federal department of agriculture.

Cabbage and potatoes are often put in the cow's ration to supply succulence and also to get rid of a surplus crop, explains C. J. Babcock, assistant market milk specialist in the federal bureau of dairying. Extensive experiments under typical dairy conditions at the federal experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., sought to determine whether feeding cabbage or potatoes affects the flavor or odor of milk, and how they may be fed so as to lessen such effect.

When dairy cows consume an average of 14.3 pounds of cabbage or more one hour before milking, the experiments show, objectionable flavors and odors appear in the milk. But when the cabbage is fed after milking, few objectionable odors or flavors result.

Pretty much the same result was obtained from the experiments with potatoes. When cows eat 14.8 pounds of potatoes or more an hour before milking, the test shows, slightly abnormal flavors and odors appear in the milk.

Increasing the quantity of potatoes fed made little difference in the strength of the flavor or odor produced in the milk. Feeding potatoes after milking left no objectionable flavor or odor.

BARBERRY READILY KILLED WITH SALT OR KEROSENE

The common barberry, which is responsible for the spread of the black stem rust disease of small grain, is very difficult to kill by digging but is readily killed by certain chemicals, says the United States department of agriculture. Fragments of roots smaller than a lead pencil left in the digging operation frequently have been known to sprout, and even small chips from the crown may do so when conditions are favorable. The use of chemicals does away with the difficulty and is strongly recommended wherever other plants will not be endangered and where a slight sterilization of the soil for a few years will not be objectionable.

The department has tested many chemicals in the effort to find the best means of killing the barberries. Several have been found which are effective, and the use of two of these, common salt and kerosene is described in Department Circular 332, just issued by the United States department of agriculture.

From 5 to 10 pounds of dry salt is difficult to kill bushes having a group of shoots at the base of from 6 to 12 inches in diameter. The plants may be cut down or left standing, but the salt should surround all shoots and care should be taken to surround any outlying shoots as well. If there is danger of the salt being disturbed by livestock, it may be covered by dirt or stones or brush, etc. The treatment is successful at any time of the year when the ground is not frozen.

Kerosene is used to kill the bushes by applying at the base in such a manner that it wets the base of every shoot and also the ground for 3 or 4 inches around each shoot. The amount necessary varies from 3 quarts for a bush having a group of shoots 6 inches in diameter to one gallon for a bush with a 12 inch base. This treatment is successful if applied at any time during the growing season, but the action of kerosene over salt is in the fact that livestock need not be kept away from the treated bushes.

CONTROL OF COW POX

Now is the time of year when cow pox is generally the worst. It is an eruptive disease of the skin and spreads very rapidly from one cow to the other if care is not exercised. When the pox starts it causes the parts to become sore and hot, then water blisters appear, leaving a pit and later a scab forms. This scab is generally the means of spreading the disease to other cattle. There are several ways of controlling it but the most important to prevent spreading is to milk the cows affected after the others and to keep the animals as clean as possible by washing with a 4 per cent potassium permanganate solution.

BEST TO ELIMINATE THE NON PRODUCERS

Probably the greatest hindrance to the profitable keeping of poultry on the ordinary farm is the retention of a lot of fowl that are poor layers, due either to their being too old or of a type to produce meat rather than eggs.

The production of eggs is the end of the poultry business in which the most profit can be made, so that a heavy egg producing type is the type that is best suited to ordinary farm conditions.

Generally speaking the pullet year is the most profitable period of a hen's life. It is advisable, therefore, either to mark the chicks when hatched, using a different mark for each year, or to band the pullets when they are put into winter quarters, so that at culling time the age of the different birds may be seen at a glance and only those that are required for breeding purposes retained after the first year's production.

For the careful breeder the use of the trap-nest is the logical means to cull the flock but the ordinary farmer does not use trap-nests so that reliance must be placed on physical characteristics. The high producer will be found to be an active disposition, early off the roost in the morning and late to go to roost at night and always busy. Her head will be clean cut, face smooth and free from wrinkles, with bright prominent eyes, skin soft, pliable and of fine texture and a general appearance of health and vigor.

Cull all birds that show a lack of vigor, a sluggish, lazy disposition, a course, rough head with overhanging eyebrows, an inclination to break down behind, or that show heavy deposits of internal fat, as evidenced by a thick skin and an abdomen that is hard and firm to the touch. In contrast to this the heavy layer will have skin that is fine in texture and the abdomen will be soft and pliable. This last feature is one on which great weight should be placed, but in culling reliance should be placed on a combination of features rather than on any one feature.

ALFALFA SEED FOR USE IN CONNECTICUT

Connecticut farmers who expect to sow alfalfa next spring should demand of their seed dealer a guarantee that the seed is of a hardy strain such as the Grimm variety and grown in sections where the climate is comparable to that in this state, says J. S. Owens, crops specialist for the extension service of Connecticut Agricultural college.

Tests at the Storrs experimental station show that seed grown in a warm climate may germinate here but the crop is not likely to live through even the first winter. North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Idaho produced this year about 10,000,000 pounds of seed. Canada has about 3,500,000 pounds of seed this year, a considerable part of which is available for export. Seed from these sources is considered adapted to Connecticut conditions. On the other hand, Utah, California, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona have produced about 35,000,000 pounds of seed and which is of extremely doubtful value in Connecticut. About 12,000,000 pounds of seed have been imported from Argentine, France and South Africa, and farmers here should avoid it, according to Mr. Owens.

It is pointed out that the preponderance of alfalfa seed on the market is not adapted to Connecticut conditions and unless the seed dealer can guarantee the origin of seed there are likely to be disappointments from next spring's seedings. Indications are for unprecedented alfalfa seedings in this state next spring and summer. The Hartford county farm bureau, for example, is launching a campaign to increase alfalfa acreage on dairy farms in that county by 5,000 acres in 1925.

Angus P. Thorne, superintendent of charities of Bridgeport, was elected president of the Connecticut Swine Growers' association at its annual winter meeting in Hartford.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET CLOSED IRREGULAR.

New York, Jan. 23.—Considerable irregularity developed toward the close of today's stock market after an early period of strength during which nearly 30 issues advanced to their highest levels in a year or more. The rise was checked by the usual week-end profit-taking and a sharp break of more than four points in American Woolen, which was attributed to unfavorable rumors concerning the preferred dividend and expectations of a poor 1924 earnings report.

United States Steel common opened 5-8 higher at 129 5-8, or just seven points below its record price established in 1917, and then slipped back to 128, closing slightly above that figure for a net loss of 3-4 of a point on the day. Baldwin closed 1 3-4 points lower at 132 3-8, despite President Vauclain's prediction that good business would extend over a period of several years. American Can closed about a point lower at 164 3-4.

Another series of gasoline and crude oil price advances brought about buying in the oil shares, which displayed a stronger tone. Pacific Oil led the advance in that group, closing 1 3-8 points higher at 59 1-4. Mariand, Phillips, Shell Union, Sinclair and the Pan-American and Standard Oil issues all reached new high levels on the movement.

United States Cast Iron Pipe was run up nearly 15 points to 185, a record top in further reflection of the decision of the directors to wipe out accumulated dividends on the preferred, and the publication of the 1924 earnings statement showing more than $40 a share earned on the common stock. The stock closed at 182. Amegican Sugar Refining soared nearly 8 points to 68 and then slipped back to 65.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported some interference to retail trade by stormy weather in the early part of the week. Bullish sentiment was created, however, by the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York whose reserve ratio climbed from 76.9 per cent a week ago to 81.8 per cent this week, indicating that stock market operations were not exerting any strain on the money market.

Chief interest in the rail group centered in the further advance of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois issues. The strength of the "Katy" and Chicago and Alton shares was based on reports that the "Katy" was seeking control of the latter in order to obtain terminal facilities in Chicago.

Call money held at 3 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling which touched a new top at $4.80 1-2 yesterday, ruled around $4.80 1-8 today. French francs were quoted around 4.41 1-2 cents and nominal recessions took place in other European rates.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 23.—Moderate improvement in bond prices today accompanied an expansion in activity, which embraced virtually all classes of securities. Advances generally were limited, but a firm undertone prevailed in all sections of the list.

Several semi-speculative railroad obligations worked into new high ground, with considerable activity developing in Seaboard "Baby," Atlantic Coast Line and International Great Northern issues. Among the industrial issues which gave good demonstrations of strength were Wilson & Company, Virginia-Carolina Chemical, Empire Gas & Fuel and International Mercantile Marine bonds.

Mexican government loans turned reactionary, reflecting speculative disappointment over the absence of any new developments leading to a settlement of the Mexican debt situation. The withdrawal of recent buying support resulted in recessions of a point or more in the active issues.

Negotiations were virtually completed for flotation of a $10,000,000 loan here for the German General Electric company. Public offering of a 20-year 7 per cent bond issue probably will be made by the National City company next week at a price to yield about 7 1-2 per cent.

A $12,500,000 issue for the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation, which will replace Cosden and company, was quickly sold today.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 23—A spirited demand for the oil shares, following a further extension of gasoline and crude oil price advances, was the overshadowing feature of today's curb market. Net gains of 4 to 9 1-2 points were recorded by Buckeye Pipe, Cities Service, Illinois Pipe, Indiana Pipe, Magnolia Petroleum, Prairie Oil & Gas (old stock), South Pennsylvania Oil and Southern Pipe Line. Standard Oil of Indiana and several other of the more popular issues advanced a point or more.

Public Utilities were mixed. American Light and Traction jumped 3 1-2 points to 145 and moderate advances took place in East Penn Electric and Middle West Utilities, but Commonwealth Power and the new Electric Bond & Share stocks each reacted about 1 1-2 points.

Radio issues moved within narrow and irregular limits. Rove continued its advance by erossing 13 to within a point of the record high, but other changes were largely unimportant.

Strength of Childs company (new stock), which advanced nearly 3 points to 46, featured the trading in industrial issues.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Wheat ran up wildly here today as high as $1.96 a bushel, May delivery, but heavy selling to realize profits led to a sharp reaction at the last. One of the reasons given for the fresh advance was a report that values of wheat in Argentina were jumping quicker than the market in Chicago, regardless of the fact that wheat here and rye even more so had established a spectacular new top record again today. The wheat market here closed unsettled at 3-4c net lower to 1c advance, May 1.93 3-4 to 1.94 and July 1.69 3-4 to 1.70, with corn 2 1-4 to 3 1-4c down, oats 3-8 to 1 1-8c off, and provisions varying from 12c decline to an equal upturn.

Emphasizing the news from Argentina about rapidly rising prices for Southern Hemisphere wheat was a report that labor troubles were spreading in Australia, one of the chief other countries competing with the United States. With prospects thus apparently opening for increased European demand for wheat from the United States and Canada, general speculative buying here took on huge proportions. Some observers expressed an opinion that the total volume would prove to be the largest on record.

Unusual strength in the rye market here tended greatly to stimulate the wheat advance. Closing prices for rye were 4 3-8 to 5 1-4c above yesterday's finish.

Difficulty in selling low-grade corn had a depressing effect on the corn market and also on oats.

Provisions in line with the hog market, held about steady.

CHAPLIN

Mrs. Annette E. Church, widow of the late Albert L. Church, who was spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Isadore I. Harvey, in Greenport, L. I., died from the result of a shock last Sunday morning. The body was brought here and a funeral service was held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the home where she had spent her summers. Rev. John H. Knott conducted the service reading appropriate selections of scripture, giving Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," and closing with prayer. Burton M. Welch sang "Rock of Ages." The tribute of flowers were choice and beautiful. The bearers were Edgar A. Church, Paul and Harold Church, John L. Copley, Theron L. Swift and Walter Church. Burial was in the family lot in the Center cemetery. Mrs. Church was for many years an esteemed resident of the town and had been a member of the Congregational church for nearly fifty years.

She is survived by one son, Edgar A. Church of New York, and the following daughters, Mrs. Ida L. Copley of Rutland, Vt., Mrs. Julia Fox of New Britain, Mrs. Isadore I. Harvey of Greenport, L. I., Mrs. Eva Fuller of Mansfield, and several grandchildren. Avery and VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

In the February number of a nationally known magazine is a highly interesting article giving the rise an orphan at the age of seven, left an orphan at the age ofw seven, spent his childhood on a farm and began his business career at the age of twelve in a Philadelphia factory. He is the founder of the E. L. Mansure Co., manufacturers of upholstery and drapery trimmings, operating manufacturing plants in Chicago and Philadelphia. The firm does a business of many millions of dollars a year. Mr. Mansure is sixty-two years old and lives in Chicago.

Mr. Mansure has a fine summer home on the state road in town near North Windham where he has expended much money and has made the place one of the most attractive in town.

Mr. Mansure recently sent the Congregational church a check for $200 which was deeply appreciated and a unanimous vote of thanks was extended him at the annual meeting of the church for his liberal gift.

BALTIC

Council Ste. Marie Sewing circle held its meeting this week at the home of Miss Mary Jane Gauvin.

A large crowd attended the basketball games in W. S. C. hall Wednesday evening between Baltic and Danielson teams. The games were won by the local boys.

The Baltic Community Workers met in usual Tuesday evening in Sprague hall. Excellent progress is being made both in the basket and millinery classes, Mrs. Hinchliffe and Mrs. Dunstan proving very efficient teachers.

At the recent whist tournament held in Franco-American club between the members of Ste Marie council No. 187 first prize was awarded to Miss Viola Charron and the consolation prize to Miss Bernadette Riel.

WORKING FOR COMMUNITY HOUSE AND CHURCH AT STORRS COLLEGE

Although the state-wide campaign inaugurated by the Connecticut Federation of Churches to raise $300,000 for a church and community house at Storrs is but half complete in Waterbury, the first point attacked, and is just starting in Hartford, more than $50,000, or one-sixth of the total, has already been raised. It is expected that steps will be taken within a few weeks to perfect an organization in Norwich.

Rev. William H. Bath, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church, both of Norwich, are members of the committee of fifty directing the state-wide campaign for the Connecticut Federation of Churches. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, has agreed to assist in formulating plans for the local campaign.

Senator E. W. Hazen of Haddam was the first donor to the fund., contributing $10,000. This was followed soon after by a gift of $5,000 from Miss Helen Chase of Waterbury and a similar gift from Harris Whittemore and Miss Gertrude Whittemore of Naugatuck. A number of other large contributions have been volunteered. Senator Hiram Bingham announced a substantial subscription just before leaving for Washington to assume his duties as United States senator. Four former governors of Connecticut, Henry Roberts of Hartford, Frank B. Weeks of Middletown, Everett J. Lake of Hartford, and Hiram Bingham of New Haven are on the list of donors. Other former governors have not been interviewed but it is hoped to have all living former executives represented on the list. John Wadhams of Torrington, chairman of the state board of finance, made a strong plea on behalf of the movement at a meeting in Waterbury and is actively supporting the campaign.

While the project was launched by the Protestant denominations in the state, it has been endorsed by a number of leading representatives of other faiths and both Roman Catholics and Jews are represented on the recently organized committee in Hartford. It is pointed out that of the student body at Storrs 30 per cent. are of Catholic faith and 10 per cent. Jews. The proposed community house is designed to meet the needs of students of all religious faiths.

It is pointed out by the sponsors of this movement that while the state has been generous in its investments in land, buildings and equipment at Connecticut Agricultural college, public statutes existing since 1915 make it impossible for the state to make any appropriations for meeting the religious and spiritual needs of the college and community.

The present church structure at Storrs was built in 1846 on a site that has been used for church purposes since before the Revolutionary war. The building has seating capacity for but 300 persons and its heating and ventilating facilities are antiquated. The student body now at Storrs numbers more than 500 young men and women and there are perhaps 300 other members of the community, including faculty members and their families and various employes of the college.

Members of the college faculty are contributing liberally, within their means, to the church fund. No especial effort is being made to encourage students to subscribe, as many students are working their way through school and parents of students are being asked to support the movement through the local organizations.

The plan as outlined calls for a church building to cost $150,000, a community house to cost $75,000 and a sum of $75,000 for endowment of these projects. These figures represent both building and equipment costs.

In its architectural features, the proposed church is to represent the best traditions of New England church structures. The exterior is planned in early Georgian architecture, the front of the portico having a colonnade of four white Corinthian columns. Surmounting the portico will be a Georgian steeple of the Christopher Wren type. The outside walls are to be of hard burned common Connecticut brick in shades from light salmon to black. There will be wide colonial casings around the windows and white cornices at the eaves. Roofs will be of slate. Heat for the building will be obtained from the college power plant.

The community house is to have much the same type of architecture, although the main entrance will be on a much smaller scale.

The church auditorium is planned to seat 350 persons, with a balcony at the rear. The estimate includes the installation of a pipe organ.

The community house is designed to provide adequate housing for the Sunday school, Christian Endeavor society, Bible classes, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., non-Protestant religious groups, student council, Boy Scouts, Grange and other organizations. The community house is to be provided with a kitchen and small banquet rooms, with an assembly room capable of seating 340 persons or 204 at tables.

Among the organizations that have endorsed the plan are the Congregational Conference of Connecticut, the Connecticut congress of mothers and parent-teachers association and the college board of trustees.

DIVORCES ARE GRANTED TO FIVE PETITIONERS

Five divorces were granted in the superior court here Friday morning by Judge C. L. Avery in three of which the petitioners were the wives and in the other cases the husbands. Desertion, intolerable cruelty and incurable insanity were the causes.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. De Vault of New London was granted a divorce from Bertrum C. De Vault, former soldier at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island. The decree was issued on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, after Mrs. De Vault and a daughter by a former marriage, Miss Letitia Bricca had testified regarding the cruel treatment inflicted by DeVault upon the plaintiff since Jan. 1, 1919. Mrs. De Vault before her first marriage was Miss Elizabeth Leverone. De Vault at the present time is in jail serving a sentence for assault and battery. The couple were married Dec. 7, 1912.

Marion Callahan Jordan of New London, was divorced from Frank Jordan, now of Bridgeport on the ground of desertion. The couple were married in New London on May 22, 1921, but, according to testimony of the plaintiff they never lived together following the ceremony. Custody of a three-year old daughter was awarded to the mother.

On grounds of desertion a decree was granted to Harry A. Carino from Marguret Carino, both of New London. The couple were married on Jan. 20, 1921, and desertion was claimed from Feb. 6 of that year.

Percy Riley of Stonington was divorced from Sarah Jones Riley and given the custody of a 16-year-old son. Mrs. Riley is an inmate of the Norwich State hospital and a statement from Superintendent Wilcox introduced in court showed that she was incurably insane. Judge Avery ordered Mr. Riley to pay the sum of $5 per week to the state of Connecticut during the time that Mrs. Riley is confined in a state institution.

Cora Oviatt Imdahl of Stonington was given a decree from John Imdahl on grounds of desertion which was claimed from May 25, 1921. The couple were married March 18, 1915. She was given the right to resume the name of Cora A. Oviatt.

GIVEN SURPRISE ON HER 89TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Arthur Mathews of 64 Tenth street celebrated her 89th birthday, Wednesday. During the day many of her friends called, bringing gifts and flowers and extending their sincere congratulations. She received many birthday cards from those in and out of town who were unable to visit her.

In the evening she was pleasantly surprised by a group of her children, grandchildren, great grandchildren and neighbors who gathered with her to finish the day in a joyous and memorable way which Mrs. Mathews enjoyed very much as she is exceedingly smart for a person of her age.

Music was furnished by a five-piece orchestra, consisting of Ruth Fitch, piano; Miriam Grover and Janig Lambert, violins; Ruth Parker, saxaphone; Arthur Fitch, drums. A radio also entertained the company.

Refreshments of ice cream and assorted cakes were served, a birthday cake with candles being one of the features.

Mrs. Mathews came to Norwich 75 years ago Jan. 15, and has resided here ever since. For several years she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Mathews. Since she came to Norwich there has been many changes of which she speaks with interest.

At the present time she enjoys listening to the leading topics of the day and in having her friends and relatives calling to see her.

Of her two children, 11 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren, there were some from out of town who were unable to be present.

Shaver of No. 4 Washington place fortunately escaped injury. His machine skidded on the ice and after crashing into the side of the road, turned around and then upset. One wheel was smashed and the machine suffered other damage.

Mr. Shaver crawled from beneath the machine uninjured. He is connected with the Inland Paper Board company and was on his way to the plant when the accident happened.

DISCUSSION ON EXPERTS BY TAX ANALYSIS COMMITTEE

What their recommendation shall be upon the question of the employment of experts in equalizing the tax situation in Norwich, whether they shall be local or out of town, was the principal point that was discussed by the tax analysis committee at a meeting Friday evening in the assessors' office at the court house.

James L. Case, chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting, with Secretary John J. O'Rourke keeping the minutes, and a contract that is offered by an appraisal concern that would do the work in five months was read. This brought out a spirited discussion that showed there was considerable division in the committee as to whether the appraisal of property should be done by out of town or local "experts." The question of time and expense were both elements in the discussion, as it was shown that out of town appraisers would ask anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000 for doing the work.

The meeting adjourned after a two hour discussion with a vote to invite the board of assesors to attend the next meeting to discuss the subject in detail, the intention being to have them declare whether they can and will do the work, what equipment they would need and what they would estimate the expense to be.

Those attending the meeting were James L. Case, John J. O'Rourke, C. D. Noyes, Grosvenor Ely, Casper K. Bailey, Shepard B. Palmer, John F. Rogers, F. B. Ricketson, Robert McNeely, Albert Boardman, Michael J. Curran, D. T. Shea and Assessor A. R. Manning.

The committee in charge of the event comprised Miss Margaret Counihan, chairman; Miss Molly Driscoll, Miss Margaret Driscoll, Miss Margaret Condon, Miss Rose Dennis, Miss Hannah O'Donnell and Miss May Nolan.

WRAPS HIS COAT ABOUT BLAZING GIRL

When her clothing caught fire from a gas range in the store of James T. Fitzpatrick, No. 13 North Thames street, Miss Mabel Robbins, aged 21, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Robbins of No. 30 North Thames street, was badly burned Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock and was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital, where she is a patient. Miss Robbins was employed in the store and while sweeping stooped to pick up something from the floor when her clothing brushed against the gas heater and took fire.

People in the store tried to smother the flames, but the terror-stricken girl rushed into the street. Harry Brooks, assistant manager of the Strand theatre, who happened to be passing by, threw his coat about the girl and extinguished the flames, probably saving her life by his quick and timely action. Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was summoned and the ambulance sent for. The burns about her body were dressed at the hospital.

REPLENISHED WOODPILE FOR SCOTLAND WOMAN

If the days of chivalry are over, as many a present day critic would have us understand, there is one woman in Scotland, U. S. A., who will refute their statement, and back hers up with enough proof to convince everyone. This is Mrs. Hazard Tucker, who recently suffered an illness which prevented her getting in a supply of wood to ward off the approaching cold of the wintry days.

On Monday of this week Mrs. Tucker prepared to chop wood to supply her diminished stock of kindling, and as she entered the yard at her home an automobile was driven into the yard and Lewis Hopkins, John Bass and Clarence Perry and son, John Perry, got out. The men told Mrs. Tucker to have the wood drawn into the yard and they would chop it for her and replenish her stock before a hard storm made it impossible.

The work of chopping wood continued for several hours. The woodpile grew to generous size and when the four "Knights" left the Tucker home there was a supply of kindling wood sufficient to last for a long time.

The next day the big snow came but Mrs. Tucker was well provided for, and although the weather was stormy out of doors, life was all sunshine for the lady of the house. This act of thoughtfulness on the part of her four neighbors was greatly appreciated by Mrs. Tucker, who is now convinced that silver linings are hiuden behind every dark cloud.

REALIZED GOOD SUM AT MOOSEHEART WHIST

The meeting of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich Chapter, No. 124, was held Thursday evening with Senior Regent Mrs. Mary Hunter presiding. The committee in charge of the recent whist reported that a good sum of money had been realized and that another whist is planned for next week, at Buckingham Memorial.

In the near future the chapter plans to hold a dance at the close of the meeting. The session closed after Mrs. Emma Beaver spoke briefly on the good of the order.

Oxygen gas dissolves in molten silver but is expelled when the silver becomes solid, thus making casting difficult.

LETTER FROM A FARMER'S WIFE.

"For over two years I suffered from pains in my side and back, with headaches and weakness," says Mrs. Walter E. Anderson, a farmer's wife of Rangeley, Maine. "It semed as though I could not get my work done from one day to the next, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored my health so that now I can do all kinds of work, sewing, washing, ironing and sweeping. I hope this letter will influence other women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Volumes of such letters from women explain why Lydia E Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., is the greatest user of roots and herbs in the world.

THE ECLIPSE.

O Thou who lit Thy flaming lamp of day
To swing on chains unseen, in dome of blue,
With jewel beams no naked eye can view,
How kind! to sheathe each golden arrow ray,
And grant one glimpse to feeble orbs of clay,
To hold Thy shield of silver tween between,
That heaven-penned signs may be seen
As foretastes of the crown we should pursue.
How like Thy lamp must be Thy blessed Face
Men may not view, with feet on earthy space,
Till first Thou dost eclipse their longing sight
And seal their lids with silent sleep of gloom;
Then forth they burst like Lazarus from the tomb
With eyes reborn—to hear Eternal Light.

THE HARVEST OF GOLD.

My life was a garden long ago,
With nothing but weeds for the years to show.

I treasured these weeds, they were all I had,
For the soil was poor and the seed was bad.

But the great god Love, who rules on high
Took pity on me as he passed by.

He saw in my untilled, love-starved heart
A fertile field for his great art.

And he sent me you, with your magic touch,
God knows I never deserved so much.

Through the Spring of Life you planted the soil
And watered with tears the fruits of your toil.

From the withering suns of summer days
You shielded my heart in a hundred ways.

When the first frost came—the world's sad neglect,
You gathered my blooms in your soul to protect.

And now in the fullness of the Fall
Our garden of love is the fairest of all.

We can face the blustering Winter's cold
With a warmth that comes from a harvest of gold.

MILITIA MEN QUELL ANTI-KLAN WARFARE IN HERRIN

S. Glenn Young and Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas, Leaders of Klansmen, and Anti-Klansmen, Were Among Four Men Who Were Shot Saturday—Young Died From a Bullet Through the Heart—Was Also Wounded in the Right Breast—Crime Was Perpetrated in Front of the European Hotel, A Reputed Rendezvous of Anti-Klan Adherents.

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 25.—With militiamen again patrolling the streets of Herrin, order prevailed today after the latest outbreak of klan and anti-klan warfare last night in which four men were killed including S. Glenn Young, klan liquor raider, and Ora Thomas, deputy sheriff, recognized outstanding leaders of the two factions.

The two others killed in the fight, in a Main street cigar shop, were Ed Forbes and Homer Warner, reputed klansmen, and companions of Young.

Young died from a bullet through the heart, although he was wounded also in the right breast. These shots, according to reports, came from the two revolvers used by Thomas.

When citizens entered the shop a few minutes after an exchange of forty or fifty shots they found Young dead and Warner unconscious. Thomas slumped to the floor and died on the way to the City hospital.

Forbes lay dead on the sidewalk outside, shot through the base of the skull. Warner died in the hospital two hours later.

A company of militia, headed by Major Robert Davis, arrived early today from Carbondale and took charge.

Versions of the battle vary. It is known, however, that it occurred in the Canary cigar store and barber shop, in the front of the European hotel, a reputed rendezvous of anti-Ku Klux Klan adherents.

Accounts agree that a shot was fired, a few minutes before the outbreak, from an alley adjacent to a restaurant operated by Young. The bullet lodged in a telephone pole. Rose Lizenby, a Herrin policeman, said Thomas fired a shot at him. Spectators fled and Thomas is reported to have gone to the hotel, a block distant, as a call was sent for Young sympathizers to mobilize.

The anti-Klan version is that Young and his companions thereupon went to the hotel to seek Thomas and "shoot it out."

The Klan account is that Young and the others were attacked as they passed by outside. Young adherents asserted that Forbes was shot from above.

Thomas' body was removed to one undertaking establishment and the bodies of the others to another place. It was announced an inquest into the killings would be held Tuesday, although Coroner McCowan indicated it might be started tomorrow.

Major Davis late today issued an order stopping the long procession of curious persons passing through the undertaking establishments to view the bodies.

The body of Young was wrapped in a purple robe, said to designate a "Kleagle" of the Ku Klux Klan.

Although first reports said several had been wounded in addition to those killed, none were taken to the hospital. Reports persisted late today that two standers-by had been grazed by bullets. These, however, could not be verified.

Lizenby, who said the first shot was fired at him, had been the target of bullets before. On the night of last April 13, acting as guard at the home of Sam Stearns, chairman of the county board of supervisors, he was hit in the leg by a bullet fired from a speeding automobile. Previous to that shooting, Stearns and Young had broken relations over Young's methods of conducting raids.

Stearns, who, as head of the Williamson county klan, had brought Young to this county, refused to finance Young's operations any longer.

Thomas was appointed a deputy sheriff by Sheriff George Galligan five or six months ago. He was among those caught by Young in his liquor raids last winter and served a jail sentence upon his conviction in federal court for that offense.

Young had arranged to leave Herrin and go to Miami, Fla., with his wife, who was blinded last June near Okawville, Ill., by assassins' bullets intended for Young, when he heard that Thomas had been appointed deputy.

"I will stay in the county as long as Thomas," Young was quoted as having said.

Although reported to have been divorced from the state klan organization by an official order of Grand Dragon Palmer of Chicago and withdrawn from the payroll of the county klan, which was said to have made up a purse of $1,000 to obtain his removal from the county, Young had been "free lancing" lately and was supported by some klansmen and personal friends.

He had conducted various raids in the last three months, taking the prisoners to Benton, Ill., where they filed bond for appearance in federal court.

Young told an Associated Press correspondent last Dec. 12 that he was then "a member of the Ku Klux Klan in good standing." He denied, however, that he was a klan member at the time of the raids a year ago. He also denied that he was employed by the klan, as had been continually reported. Young said he had been employed by the county board of supervisors, but this was promptly denied by Chairman Stearns.

Young's first appearance in Williamson county was on the night of Dec. 23, 1923, when in a spectacular raid, he and avowed klansmen, all of whom claimed to be deputized by federal prohibition officers, captured 75 alleged bootleggers. Virtually all of the prisoners were convicted in federal court at Damsville and served sentences ranging from one month to one year.

These cases were heard by Federal Judge Lindley and were prosecuted by Deputy United States Attorney Allen, when the Klan objected to their prosecution by United States Attorney Potter of Marion, the county seat of Williamson county. In all a total of thirteen lives has been taken in the county's Klan and anti-Klan strife.

Constable Caesar Cagle, a Klansman was killed last February 8 when the Herrin hospital was riddled with bullets. Jack Skelcher, one of the alleged assailants of Mr. and Mrs. Young near Okawville, was killed July 1 when he resisted arrest at the Herrin city limits. Seven men, including both adherents and opponents of the Klan, were killed or fatally wounded August 30 when Sheriff Galligan, Deputy Thomas and other anti-Klansmen attempted to seize Young's bullet riddled automobile in a garage at Herrin. On each occasion one or more were wounded in addition to those killed.

MURDERS WERE RESULT OF FACTIONAL TROUBLES

Chicago, Jan. 25.—C. E. Anderson, mayor of Herrin, Ills., declared here tonight that the killings of S. Glenn Young, Ora Thomas, and two other men would terminate the factional troubles which have raged there for months.

"This will wind up the trouble in Williamson county," Mayor Anderson said, "with the leaders of both the Klan and anti-Klan factions dead as a result of the shooting, from now on there will be peace and quiet in Herrin."

PAWTUVKET MILL HANDS HAVE VOTED TO STRIKE

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 25.—Four hundred employes of the Greenhalgs Mills of Pawtucket voted today to go on strike a week from tomorrow unless a 10 per cent. wage reduction made effective two weeks ago is rescinded. Several conferences have already been held with the treasurer of the company, George P. Greenhalgh, who said that he was unable to make any adjustment since competing cotton factories in New Bedford, Mass., where operating under a 10 per cent. reduction. The mill employs 500 workers.

The action of the Greenhalgh Mill employes was the first taken by cotton mill operatives in the Blackstone valley since 10 per cent. wage reductions were announced in several plants recently. On the first ballot the workers largely favored an immediate strike.

OBITUARY.

John C. Eastman.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—John C. Eastman, owner, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily Journal, died suddenly at his home here today of a stroke of apoplexy.

Although the death of Mr. Eastman, who was 62 years old, came unexpectedly, he had been warned by his physicians last April to relax from his strenuous duties. He cut down his hours slightly, but continued to supervise closely all departments of the paper. He was troubled with insomnia early this morning and called his nurse to read to him. While talking to the nurse he fell and shortly after the arrival of his physician went into a sleep from which he did not arouse.

Mr. Eastman arrived in Chicago in 1890 at the age of 28. He joined the Chicago Herald staff as a reporter, and was given the assignment to cover the first meetings when the world's fair was under proposal. He later built up a news bureau for the Herald at the fair, writing the lead stories and supervising the work of the other reporters.

His initiative and energy attracted attention and in 1895, the star reporter was made business manager of the newly established Chicago Chronicle. He made good in the business field and three years later became advertising manager of the New York Journal. In 1900 he came to Chicago for William Randolph Hearst, and established the Chicago American, being its president, treasurer and business manager.

He purchased the Journal from Ralph Booth and in a few years increased its circulation more than 400 per cent. He changed it from a republican to a democratic paper on broad national issues and independently democratic in local and state affairs.

When in ill health last summer, he expressed a desire to remain at his desk until next April, when the proposed traction ordinance is to be submitted to the people.

Mr. Eastman left a written request that his friends should not view his features in death. "Say to my friends," he wrote, "that I prefer to be remembered as I was." He left directions that his funeral service be simple, and requested that the minister "speak no words in praise of me."

FIGHT IN SENATE AGAINST CONFIRMATION OF STONE

Washington, Jan. 25.—The fight against immediate confirmation of the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a supreme court justice will be renewed tomorrow in the senate.

After the effort to return a second indictment against Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, had been brought into senate debate yesterday on the Stone nomination, administration leaders advised President Coolidge of the situation, and he in turn informed Mr. Stone. There was no statement, however, from either the White House or the department of justice, nor was there any announcement as to whether administration senators would depart from the policy of silence adhered to during yesterday's discussion.

Assistant Attorney General Donovan, who is in charge of the new proceedings that are to be brought against Senator Wheeler in the District of Columbia, accompanied President Coolidge down the Potomac today on the Mayflower. It was assumed that he gave the executive first hand information regarding the case which has to do with alleged acceptance of fees for appearance before a government department for a Montana oil man after his election to the senate. Several days ago it was stated at the White House that the executive's information regarding the Wheeler case was only general in character, and such as anyone might have learned from the newspapers.

During the executive session discussion in the senate yesterday two proposals with respect to Mr. Stone's nomination were advanced, one that it be held up in the senate pending an inquiry into the Wheeler case, and the other that it go back to the judiciary committee so that Mr. Stone could appear and make a statement.

Pending action on Mr. Stone's nomination, that of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to succeed him as attorney general will be held up. The judiciary committee will meet tomorrow with the expectation of receiving a report from the sub-committee headed by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, which has decided to report the Warren nomination without recommendation.

PRINCE HENRY OF PLESS WEDS COUNTESS CLOTHILDE DE SILVA

London, Jan. 25 (By the A. P.)—A surprise to society was the quiet wedding today of Prince Henry of Pless to Countess Clothilde De Silva, daughter of the Marquis Arcicollar of Spain.

The civil ceremony was performed in the West London registrar's office and the religious ceremony took place late in the afternoon at the German embassy church. The small edifice was filled with persons of the social set of London. The service was conducted in the German language.

The prince and princess will remain in London until Thursday, when they will go on a honeymoon trip to the continent. The bride is a beautiful girl of twenty. The Prince of Pless once was an intimate friend of Former Emperor William. His first wife was a famous beauty, Mary Cornwallis-West, sister of the former Dutchess of Westminster. Their wedding in 1891 at St. Margaret's Westminster, was attended by King Edward and the entire royal family, and was the outstanding fashionable event of that year.

The relations of the prince and princess became strained during the World war and the princess made an application to the vatican for an annulment of the marriage and the union was dissolved. At the time it was said the prince desired to marry another famous beauty, a 20-year-old Austrian countess named Diedrich.

Last year the prince, who is 63 years old, assumed the Polish name of Pszcynie. He is reputed to be enormously wealthy, owning immense estates in upper Silesia.

"CZAR" OF CHICAGO'S UNDEWOLD SHOT

Chicago, Jan. 25.—John Torrio, uncrowned "Czar" of Chicago's underworld, who was shot three times as he alighted from an automobile in front of his home yesterday in a renewal of the gang warfare which has eliminated several local vice chieftains, was resting easily in a hospital tonight and is expected to recover.

Meanwhile the police, who have already arrested 115 men, including several notorious gunmen, in connection with the case are continuing their search for Torrio's assailants.

Torrio refused to say whether he knew the men who shot him. Mrs. Torrio, at her husband's bedside, described one of his assailants for the police.

POLAND TO FUND ITS DEBT TO UNITED STATES

Warsaw, Jan. 25 (By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies last night voted unanimously ratification of the agreement for funding Poland's debt to the United States. The payments will continue until 1984.

Poland, under the agreement, will pay to the United States more than a million dollars this year.

Premier Grabski in an address to the chamber said the funding of the debt would serve to strengthen the bonds uniting the two countries.

Debt to America The Great Topic in France

All Other Questions Are Considered of Secondary Importance.

Paris, Jan. 25.—(By The A. P.)—France's war debt to the United States is the problem uppermost in the mind of every Frenchman at the present time and was the dominating topic of private conversations in the French parliament throughout the past week.

Both parliament and the country appear to realize that all other questions are of secondary importance when compared to the debt imbroglio, the settlement of which strikes at the very root of France's economic and financial life. Premier Herriot's speech on the subject during the course of the coming week is expected to be the most important declaration the present government has been called upon to make since it assumed power last June.

A cabinet council presided over by President Doumergue, will meet at 9 o'clock tomorrow evening, and it is reported that Premier Herriot then will lay before his colleagues for their approval an outline of his declaration of France's debts.

Excepting the twenty-six communist deputies, whose avowed policy is the destruction of all bourgeois governments, close students of French parliamentary life assert that there are not ten members out of the 584 deputies who favor outright repudiation of the American debt. They declare, however, that there certainly are not ten members who are prepared to accept the figure of more than four billion dollars mentioned recently in the United States as the amount owed the United States by France.

Premier Herriot is regarded as likely to experience no difficulty in welding the chamber into a solid whole behind him when he advocates that the amount of the debt be considerably reduced.

The phrase coined by former Premier Caillaux, to the effect that "a large part of that money was used for the purchase of uniforms in which our soldiers were killed" met with much success in the chamber of deputies last week. The French government, it is asserted, does not desire to enter debt negotoaians in a combative spirit, but hopes to persuade the United States that France should receive preferential treatment over other countries which suffered less than France during the war.

IMPORTANT MATTERS TO COME BEFORE CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 25.—With the senate in a rather unexpected tangle over the postal pay and rate increase bill, the Isle of Pines treaty and the supreme court nomination of Attorney General Stone, the house is beginning to slow up its work in order not to find time hanging on its hands.

Having disposed of the most important of the annual supply bills, the house now is giving only leisurely consideration to the others. Even so, leaders expect to send two more to the senate this week, the budgets for the independent office and for the state, justice, commerce and labor departments.

Thus far the senate has kept pace with the house on the appropriation bills and it finds itself in a tangle on other matters largely through an effort to consider three things at once. The Isle of Pines was its unfinished business; then it gave the postal bill a special order status, and finally it got into a jam on the Stone nomination.

None of the leaders will venture an opinion as to when any of these matters will be disposed of.

President Coolidge is exerting some influence with respect to action on both the Isle of Pines treaty and the world court resolution, but even administration senators assert that there appears little prospect for action on either before March 4.

The postal bill will have right of way tomorrow, but there will be renewed efforts to have stricken from it the section calling for increased postal rates to take care of advances in the salaries of postal employes. The senate last week refused to strike this out on a point of order.

The Muscle Shoals question will bob up again this week, this time in the house, where leaders plan to bring in arule Tuesday to have the Underwood leasing bill sent to conference instead of referring it to the military committee.

ENORMOUS LOANS MADE BY AMERICAN INVESTORS

Washington, Jan. 25.—More money was loaned abroad by American investors and institutions during 1924 than in any previous period outside of war years.

The commerce department reported today that tabulations placed the total of foreign securities publicly offered in the United States for the year at $1,208,438,394, as compared with $538,316,500 in 1923 and $843,335,000 in 1922.

More than a billion dollars out of the 1924 total went to foreign governments, national, provincial, or municipal, while $132,902,500 was borrowed by corporations on their own bond issues. Europe was by far the largest borrower, taking $567,770,000 of the total. Canada and Newfoundland took $244,295,844.

VIEWS ON NATIONALISM BY NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER

New York, Jan. 25.—Nationalism has reached its height, and only an accepted body of international law and international conduct can open the way to happier future, Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, said in a preface published today to an estimate of the services to international law of Elihu Root, who will be 80 years old on Feb. 15. The estimate was written by James Brown Scott.

Mr. Root is praised by Mr. Butler as one who has caught a clear vision of the international law and the international relations that might be.

"The next important forward steps in the history of civilization will most assuredly be those that are based upon an accepted body of international law and an established code of international conduct," says the Columbia president.

"The intense nationalistic movement that has marked the history of the western world for several hundred years has gone as far as it can go without damage to the very interests which it would conserve and represent, unless it bears fruit in an ordered system of international co-operation which shall recognize the moral responsibility of nations as well as their self-respect.

"This great end will not be reached by verbal declarations or by expressions of pious wish. It will only be reached by concrete acts of international co-operation that are moral in purpose and righteous in method."

NEW SHADES DEVISED BY LONDON DRESSMAKERS

London, Jan. 25.—Clotted cream is one of the new shades conceived by London dressmakers for their clients who are going to the Riviera within the next few weeks. White and cream in numerous varieties of tones are exceedingly popular just now with the women bound for Mediterranean resorts to escape the English fog and rain, and many costumes of this kind are given flavor by splashes of vivid red, orange, chocolate or coffee.

Clotted cream dresses of kasha or a similar wool materials are considered particularly effective, the rough wool design giving the costume a wonderful creamy appearance. Brown, maize and orange are made to flash between the many white costumes, but the predominance of the white and cream is taken to mean by the modistes here that these colors will set the fashion in London in the spring. In other seasons it has been shown that what is popular on the Riviera in February will be worn by the women of London in May and June.

DECREASE IN DEATHS AT GRADE CROSSINGS

Washington, Jan. 25.—The fact that 131 fewer deaths were caused by grade crossing accidents between June 1 and Oct. 1, 1924, than in the same period of 1923, on the basis of interstate commerce commission reports, was attributed tonight by the American Railway association to the safety campaign being conducted by the railroads.

This decrease was brought about, the association stated, despite an increase of approximately 20 per cent. in the number of automobiles in use. During the four months of 1924 the statement showed 738 fatalities and 2791 injuries were due to grade crossing accidents as compared with 869 and 3,173, respectively, during the same period of 1923.

SEAPLANE TRAVERSED 132.38 MILES AN HOUR

Etampes, France, Jan. 25.—Sergeant Major Descamps, the French aviator, today broke the speed record for 500 likometres (310.69 miles) for airplanes carrying a load of 500 kilograms (1,102.31 pounds) He covered the distance in 2 hours, 20 minutes and 42 seconds, an average per hour of 213053 kilometres (132.38 miles). The former record was held by the American aviator, Louis G. Meister.

Descamps' intermediate timings showed 100 kilometres in 27 minutes, 10 seconds, averaging 220.7; and 200 kilometres in 55 minutes, 20 seconds, averaging 216.828. These also are new world's records, formerly held by the Czecholosvakians, Captain Kalla and Sergeant Kaspar, respectively.

TO CONDUCT CAMPAIGN FOR REPEAL OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Nation-Wide Movement Announced by Austen G. Fox, Chairman of the Moderation League—Campaign Has the Approval of Men Widely Known in Professions and Sciences, Also in Financial, Industrial and Commercial Circles—Memorandum to Be Sent to Legislators Does Not Deal With Approval or Disapproval of Prohibition.

New York, Jan. 25.—A nation-wide campaign for the repeal of state laws for the enforcement of the Volstead act was announced tonight by Austen G. Fox, chairman of the Moderation league.

A memorandum setting forth the views of members of the league that an "intolerable" situation is created by the double jeopardy involved in prosecution for the same act under both national and state laws is being sent to every member of every state legislature.

The position taken by Mr. Fox is approved by the directors and advisory board of the league, about three score men, whose names are widely known in the various professions and sciences and in financial, industrial and commercial circles. The announcement says:

"Many of the leaders of both parties now appreciate that when the several states passed enforcement acts the inevitable double jeopardy involved in state enforcement was not foreseen. In the language of a distinguished republican senator, speaking in his own state, 'of course, it was not the intention to authorize any such procedure.' Indeed, it was not until long after the passage of the Volstead act that the supreme court of the United States sustained the astounding contention of the federal government that 'conviction and punishment in a state court * * * * for making, transporting and selling intoxicating liquors is not a bar to prosecution in a court of the United States under the federal law for the same acts.'"

The league argues in the memorandum sent to legislators that its position on the question "is quite apart from approval or disapproval of prohibition."

The final report of the chamber's committee on pollution of streams also will be taken up and George E. Beers of New Haven, chairman of the committee, will explain the report.

COLOR OF EGGSHELLS DOES NOT AFFECT THE CONTENTS

New York, Jan. 25.—A potent but unjustifiable factor governing the sale of eggs in the big cities of the country is the color of their shells, Professor Joseph W. Kingborne, manager director of the National Poultry Institute of Washington, D. C., said at the Madison Square Garden poultry show here today.

The average New York housewife, he explained, prefers white eggs, while the Boston housewife is partial to brown ones. The difference, he said, is purely a matter of appearance, as the color of egg shells has nothing whatever to do with the food contents. Prof. Kingborne pointed out that since New York city eats 7,058,352 eggs or nearly $309,000 worth, each day, it is desirable that the popular misconception be done away with.

DEATH OF A WIDELY KNOWN WEATHER PROPHET

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 25.—Andrew Jackson De Voe, 80, nationally known amateur weather prophet, died at his home of heart disease today, disappointed by failure to realize one of his life's greatest ambitions. For years he had been looking forward to viewing the eclipse of the sun; but when the great solar spectacle came yesterday he was too ill to behold it.

De Voe prided himself on the fact that, unlike most amateur predicters, he made his weather prophecy pay. For more than a quarter of a century he had earned several thousand dollars a year by providing copyrighted forecasts to patent medicine companies on issuing yearly almanacs.

In addition he prepared weather predictions for farmers, cotton brokers, and speculators who applied for his services.

De Voe is said to have won his first reputation by his prediction of the blizzard of 1888 that buried New York city deep in snow. He is reported to have foreseen that event by two weeks.

A few years ago, De Voe visited Washington in an effort to induce the United States government to adopt his system of forecasting, which he asserted, was superior to the one used by the weather bureau. He failed in this, however, as he neither employed instruments nor the calculations recognized by the official forecasters.

De Voe formerly had a farm and a wood business but gave up his interests in them after he found that a prophet was not without honor when his prophecies dealt in the storms and sunshine of the future.

CONNECTS RAW OYSTERS WITH TYPHOID FEVER

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Reasons why health officials here pointed an accusing finger at the oyster when a typhoid epidemic became apparent at the beginning of last month were outlined today by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, commissioner of health, in his weekly health report.

"The increase in typhoid cases began November 30 and abated early in January," he stated. "In all 125 cases and 20 deaths were reported—about four times as many as would have been expected under normal conditions during that period of time." He said the number of cases also increased in New York and other cities, indicating a common source of infection.

After considering the more usual sources of the disease the health experts eliminated all except oysters and one or two fresh vegetables, the report stated.

The report stated that "about three-quarters of the patients reported they had eaten raw oysters about two weeks before they came sick," and "the number who ate raw oysters was almost exactly equal to the number of cases reported in excess of the normal expectancy for that season of the year."

ANDERSON WILLING TO CRITICISE PAROLE LAW

Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Asserting his right to discuss any law on invitation of a legislative committee without violating his recent parole from Sing Sing prison, William H. Anderson, former head of the New York State Anti-Saloon League, announced today that he was willing to lay his criticisms of the parole law before a committee headed by Assembly Goodrich without waiting for formal consent of the parole board.

Mr. Anderson denied that he had any complaint to make about the application of the law to individual cases or that he harbored any grievance against prison or parole board officials. His purpose, he said, was to point out in the injustice inherent in the structure of the law and to make suggestions for its operation.

Moonshine, squeezed out of a burlap bag inside of which a full jug had been smashed, will be introduced as evidence against Jan Arson, a farmer from Tobacco street, Lebanon, in the police court this (Monday) morning. Arson will be charged with transporting liquor and since his arrest Saturday afternoon at 1.45 o'clock he has been out on a $500 bond furnished by Thomas Lucas of Chapman street, this city. Federal Prohibition Enforcement Chief William S. Congdon, his fellow officers, Stanton L. Briggs and County Detective William H. Jackson were just starting out in an automobile to do some raiding in Lebanon and vicinity when they met Arson coming from the opposite direction in a team. Arson had been in court for liquor offenses twice so the officers suspected him as guilty of a new source of liquor for the city. Arson was ordered to halt. Arson apparently had his programme preplanned. He reached back of the seat and threw a bag with force into the road. A jug filled with liquid smelling of moonshine was in the bag and was broken into pieces. Arson drove on a few yards and then stopped. The contents of the jug trickled into the snow and were being lost when one of the officers ran to a nearby house and secured a pail. The bag was given a thorough twisting and about a quart of the liquor was saved for evidence. The officers later continued their journey.

In Lebanon they took to the woods on foot and after a walk of several miles through deep snow, succeeded in locating a moonshine den, but the only evidence about consisted of signs that liquor had been manufactured there. This particular spot has been searched for at intervals dating back for five years. It is understood that large quantities of liquor have been made there in years past.

This gratifying report was backed by committee members who pledged their cooperation in securing the goal by renewal of membership. The Woman's Auxiliary served the supper and Dr. R. Bullock Jones led in the singing. Two-minute speakers were: John T. Ashton, Jr., one the boys' gymnasium class; G. L. Harrison, boys' grammar school learns; Charles Smith, junior basketball league; Morgan B. Sr. John, girls' gymnasium class; Wilson Wilworth, high school activities; Raymond C. Cadden, city basketball league; Italian music class, Alfred Lotas; business men's class, A. Wilson Greer; bowling alleys, C. Everett Harrington; dormitory, H. W. Greene; finances, Herbert W. Huber. Wheelock and the Masonic ritual was carried out. A delegation of Willimantic Lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., attended in a body. The services were largely attended. The bearers were six colored porters. In addition to the B. P. O. E. and the Masonic order a number of Knights of Pythias members attended in a body. Relatives and friends of the pupils attended. Acting Mayor George W. Hickey and wife were guests of honor. The recital for the children started at 7.30 o'clock and that of the adults at 9. The opening march was led by Doris Webster and Master Edward Bailey. The first part of the programme was devoted to modern ballroom dancing, intermingled with classical interpretation numbers. Mrs. Arline Dubreuil was at the piano. Sylvia Adams pleased with the Sailor's Hornpipe and was heartily applauded. The Classical Chrysler Waltz was charmingly interpreted by Betty Barber, Catherine Mara, Alice Jacobs and Josephine Heleski. Graceful and attractive an done of the most difficult numbers was La Lin Lara, music by Brahms, by Marion Bailey and Elizabeth Webster. This dance was cleverly executed and received with enthusiasm by the audience. Old Jim Crow was sung and danced by "the Tots," Helen Wood, Marion Adams and Dickie McDonald. Wooden Shoes, a Dutch dance, by Doris Webster and Edward Bailey, was also well received. Menuet de la Cour, a beautiful court dance by the class reproduced the stately grace of olden times. Howard Standstrom, Earle Potter, John Adams, Frank Barber, Francis Wood and Frank McDonald in The Tin Soldier, a humorous dance, caused much merriment. A pretty lighting effect was lent during the next number, a duet by the Mathieu twins, Ethel and Claire, Fire Flies. They responded to an encore with Moment Musical. The next number was Jazzamania, by Eleanor Conroy and was roundly applauded. The pupils wore costumes of varied and beautiful colors. They created a most attractive ensemble in a waltz to the music of the Chopin Waltz as they carried fairy wands of blue crepe paper. The final number was a Cotillon during which the class received favors of caps. The closing march was led by Betty and Frank Barber. During a fifteen minute intermission the children were served ice cream and cake by a committee including Edward Bailey, Guy Richmond and John Eleasser.

At nine o'clock the grand march for the adults was led by Mr. and Mrs. John Eleasser and was accurate and stately, the different figures being very cleverly formed. The Peerless orchestra, with Mrs. Dubreuil at the piano, played delightfully. The adults also closed with a Cotillon when they were given favors of multi-colored flowers. During the course of the evening Mrs. Racicot was presented a purse from her pupils of both classes. Mrs. Dubreuil, the pianist, was presented a corsage bouquet of violets. Mrs. Racicot's gift to her pianist was a silver vanity case.

BOSTON VISITORS VIEW ECLIPSE FROM MOUNTAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 26.—Ten thousand Willimantic residents and visitors including about one thousand from Boston and vicinity, became astronomers pro tem here Saturday morning and for one minute and forty-two seconds, beginning at 8.11.0 a. m., viewed the phenomenon of the century, a total eclipse of the sun. Details, incidental to the eclipse were, however, somewhat of a disappointment, to the sky-gazers in this section. The yellow paper, so widely advertised as creating a weird effect and the total darkness were not sharply felt and the most trying part of the performance appears to be the extremely cold weather. However, the period of totality, the appearance of the corona and the twinkling of the stars, did make a lasting impression and inspire sensations indelibly imprinted on the memory. With temperature around the zero mark, thousands began to seek vantage points as early as 8 o'clock. The first train from Boston arrived at 6.45 o'clock and the 944 passengers alighted at Bridge street from where Boy Scouts and police officers directed them to Hosmer Mountain, on which the Willimantic reservoir is situated. A second train from the Hub discharged 473 more Bostonians, who joined the thousands already gathered on the mountain top. With faces and ears muffled and hands pocketed, the mixed crowd of strangers and Thread Cityites marched slowly up the mountain. The sharpness of the cold discouraged active conversation and the groups paced slowly up the incline. One enthusiast dropped his precious piece of smoked glass, stepped on it and heard it smash into bits. He swore audibly, excused himself to the women within hearing and proceeded to the summit without his equipment. At the top, the owner of a hot-dog and coffee concession interrupted the hush with his raucous barking for business.

The sun had peeked over the horizon at 7.30 o'clock with an angry glare, disturbed over the fact that his daily program was given over to the chairmanship of the moon. He eyed with blinding intensity even after the moon began to nick at his edges. At 8.30 the ominous shadow was distinctively drawing a curtain over the orb of day and at 9 o'clock the watchers stood in a pale twilight. A few minutes later, a glimpse through smoked glass revealed the sun as a crescent, similar to the hunter's moon and at 9.12 an entire population forgot freezing hands and feet and with bated breath awaited the climax of the astronomical spectacle. It came one minute and twenty seconds later. The sun occupied a back seat. It was carefully tucked away behind the lunar body. Only its crown beautiful, the corona, peered over the edges of the disk. As the darkness became manifest a young man's arm stole mechanically around the waist of a young woman companion. The darkness failed to become as intense as that of night and after a nervous glance about on the part of the lovers the arm was withdrawn.

Little bands of shadows played fitfully on the snow. The phenomenon was held over when the first exclamations broke from the crowd. Someone called attention to the three stars —Jupiter, Venus and Mercury— standing in wide V-formation. The planets, Altair and Vega, hung on the horizon drove by recognition from the background and were noticed by many. Then, the sun, eager to return in all its glory, burst out with a fire and a fierceness that made the eye blink and the lid close. Nature's century show was over. Smoked glasses jingled merrily as they were cast off into the crusted snow. But few had the forethought to save them for their descendants.

The descent of the mountainside was on, and no time was lost in returning to heated homes. At 9.50 the first train for Boston left and the second followed at 10.05. Many of the visitors were college professors and students and a number of them returned with photographs, temperature readings and other data attending the great event.

At 10 o'clock many minds had turned back to earthly interests and talk of the end of the world quieted as if by magic. It was particularly interesting to note that animals seen during the eclipse failed to make note of its awe-inspiring preparations. Three dogs on the mountain continued to play on the snow. A cat taken on the mountain top for experimental purposes continued to respond to a petting with an audible purr.

The 2,600 hens at Connecticut Agricultural College failed to seek out their nests. Assistant Colvell, stated, however, that the birds did show definite signs of lethargy from which they did not recover until the return of sunlight.

Although the most popular place, Hosmer Mountain did not stand alone as a grandstand for spectators. Large family groups collected on a hundred and one hills and housetops about the city and each crowd had its own little incidents to relate.

LEO PAGEAU'S LEG BROKEN— STRUCK BY COASTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 26.—The first serious coasting accident of the new year happened on Summit street on Sunday afternoon about 4.30, when Leo Pageau, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pageau of Bridge street sustained a broken leg when struck by a speeding double-runner steered by Ernest Betker. The boy walked out of Oak street and started across Summit street. He was about halfway across when the sleigh came down the steep hill at a fast clip. The driver of the sled was unable to turn to either side and the child was struck and dragged quite a distance. He was picked up by Arthur Caisse and Art Grady and rushed to St. Joseph's hospital in an automobile.

In discussing the accident Chief of Police Allan MacArthur stated that coasting on city streets on Sunday is a violation of the law which has been made known each year through personal warning and through the newspaper. Just one week ago Sunday the injured boy's mother, Mrs. Henry Pageau got a fractured right forearm, near the elbow when she slipped and fell on ice, while walking to her home.

COVENTRY MAN ACCUSED OF NEW HAVEN FRAUD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 26.—State Policemen Heinold and Hulburt, of Stafford Springs barracks, placed under arrest Saturday Fred Boyer of Coventry, wanted by the New Haven authorities on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. It is alleged that Boyer was an accomplice to Robert Campbell, a timekeeper for the C. W. Blakeslee construction company of New Haven, arrested on a similar charge. Campbell is awaiting a hearing in New Haven and has confessed to part of his misdeeds. The pay cards of the employes were used, in a clever scheme to secure money and it is understood that Campbell frequently sent Boyer after the money for him. Detective James Derwin of New Haven came to this city Sunday and left for Stafford Spring by bus to take Boyer into custody.

WESTERLY

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Opie left Westerly Sunday evening on the Everglades Limited express for Daytona, Fla. At Daytona Mr. and Mrs. Opie will take an automobile for a 50-mile trip to Orange City, where Mr. Opie is interested in land development. A 10 weeks' visit in Florida will be broken only by a trip north for Mr. Opie to attend a meeting of the Dry Goods Alliance, of which he is a member, to return again to the south.

The Fernwood Five of New York city, crippled by accidents received the past week, were no match for the Armory Five in their game played Saturday night at the state armory on Dixon street. The final score of the one-sided encounter was 50 to 21.

The visitors were without the services of two of their star players. Smolleck, the former Celtics captain, was laid up with a broken leg received in a game last week, and Danes, their star forward, suffered a broken arch in a game at Gloucester Friday evening. One of their other players was also badly crippled, but he played the game here in order to fill the engagement.

After the game at Gloucester on Friday the Fernwood management tried to cancel the game here because of the injuries their players had received, but it was too late then to get a substitute team and they decided to play even with a patched-up lineup. It was through unfortunate accidents that the game was so one-sided, for with their complete strength the New York team would have made it tough going for the locals.

Morley of the Armory Five was the outstanding star of the game, while "Rheindeer" Swanson stood out among the visitors.

Local fans are assured a tight game next week when the Purple Collegians of Worcester will be here for another contest.

EDISON FAILED TO COME, BUT SON SAW ECLIPSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Jan. 26.—On eclipse day, Saturday, Westerly had a greater number of people within its borders than ever before. A conservative estimate places the number in excess of 25,000. The attraction was the one of a lifetime, the total eclipse of the sun. There was not a cloud to obscure the passing of the moon between the earth and the sun, unless it was the few clouds which became dissipated soon after the occultatic began, and the near-zero weather the only element which proved disagreeable. Even this did not daunt the 4,610 passengers from Boston, Attleboro and Providence who were conveyed to Westerly in the six "eclipse special" excursion trains of the New Haven railroad. The normal population of Westerly and Pawcatuck is about 15,000 and with the added 5,000 excursionists, together with 5,000 other Westerly visitors by other trains, automobiles and busses, the above total was gained.

The invitation of the Westerly Board of Trade that no effort would be spared to make the visit of relatives, friends or strangers within its gates an enjoyable one had been heralded abroad. In the vanguard came the newspaper reporters, photographers and special writers of metropolitan papers, together with railroad men to make plans for the handling of details connected with the gathering of the many people and to witness the phenomena for their own sakes as well as for the benefit of others. Hotel and inn accommodations were exhausted by Friday noon, so that private families had all spare rooms taken that were available. The Rhode Island hotel reported more than 80 guests beside regulars, and the Elm Tree inn in Pawcatuck counted 45, while the Alma inn, Martin house and other public hostelries reached capacity. On the evening before eclipse Providence college held a ball at the Rhode Island hotel, which was the central social attraction of the night before.

Zero weather was reported at daybreak and the sun rose in an almost cloudless sky. Hasty breakfasts were partaken and early crowds thronged the streets. Many went to the Westerly station to await the first "eclipse special" from Boston. There were gathered public and private automobiles of all descriptions, busses and trucks, some of which could seat 40 people. The first train was made up of ten coaches and carried 890 passengers, who boarded the various conveyances and were taken to the Foster farm ridge, just below the new Westerly hospital, on the Watch Hill road.

While this train went to Stonington to turn on the "Y" there, the second and third trains of ten coaches came in an about six-minute intervals, and proceeded to Stonington after discharging their passengers, who passed through the subway to emerge at the Westerly station, where they were met and directed by members with armbands of the reception committee of the Westerly Board of Trade. Acting as guides were Boy Scouts and special police, there being eight railroad policemen in uniform.

The fourth special had its engine cut off and sent to Stonington, while a spare engine backed down and pulled the train back, to be switched into the freight yard, north of the shelter, which had been cleared of its freight cars, even to the freight house siding.

Th fifth and sixth special trains were handled in this manner. The regular westbound accommodation due at 8.18 was held at Kingston for the specials to pass, and even this train arrived at the Westerly station in time for its passengers to be on watch when the period of totality began.

At Vose park, the old baseball field off Granite street, which had been cleared of snow by a plow, which passed over the field in widening circles, were many of the excursionists as well as town's people and guests conveyed there by automobiles or else following directions obtained by circular and diagrams distributed on the trains from the Westerly Board of Trade, had walked through Wilcox Park and up Granite street. Here was stationed the radio truck, "220291 U. S. A." in command of Captain Lawrence A. Clayton and radio sergeant from Fort Wright with four soldiers, Lieutenant Elliot R. Thorp, U. S. A. Recruiting service, a Westerly boy, being of the party. The sight of these people, many of them being young fur-coated girls and men streaming through Wilcox Park and up Quarry Hill was a sight not soon to be forgotten. Many stopped on the brow of the hill and even Wilcox park held a large quota of sun-gazers.

At Watch Hill were 300 or more, who from that lookout viewed the spectacle in air and on water being afforded a view of the U. S. dirigible Los Angeles, which held its quota of scientists. Here James M. Pendleton of the special eclipse committee with his guests, President Ellen Fitz Pendleton, of Wellesley college, and party viewed the eclipse. At the Oak inn, Dr. John Champlin had many of the Rhode Island Welfare commission as his guests on the ridge off the shore road. Pleasant View, Weekapaug Heights and Weekapaug had many sky-gazers.

On Hinckley Hill in Pawcatuck were gathered more than 200 although snow covered the fields here. It was from this point that the dirigible Los Angeles was first sighted, before 7.30 o'clock, away out over Long Island sound, in the range of Fishers Island, appearing first as a cloud and gradually increasing in size the airship rised back and forth in plain sight and ever increasing distance. Captain Amos E. Broadmeadow, of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station, reported the aircraft sighted from his observation tower shortly before 7.40.

In Westerly the roofs of business blocks and factories held their quota, to say nothing of countless windows in private homes.

On the roof of the Rhode Island hotel watching the eclipse stood Charles Edison, son of Thomas A. Edison, inventor and electrical wizard, who had been reported as a celebrated scientist coming to Westerly for the eclipse and who was unable to come, chairman of the Edison company, Mrs. Edison his wife, John V. Miller, private secretary to Thomas A. Edison; Mrs. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Humphrey and Miss Lucy Bogue of New York. This party was observed by The Bulletin correspondent, who viewed the eclipse from this point, to have no instruments but smoked glasses and cameras. With the group were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Stillman, the Edison man of Westerly and a few other members of the hotel force. In a short talk with Charles Edison Friday evening the correspondent learned that Mr. Edison's brother, who held a chair at Harvard, had first planned to meet his fiances, Miss Auterbaum, in Westerly, and that it had occurred later to the other members of the family to go there with a possibility of other reasons he could think of, "than to gum his act." Chairman Edison, who is about 45 is of quiet temperament and rather hard of hearing. He stated that the family party was interested in the eclipse also from the fact that there was "but one chance in a life time to see it." In reply to a question as to whether his distinguished father might possibly come, beyond the fact that he was "too busy" it was learned that Thomas A. Edison several years ago had perfected some instruments for measuring the heat of stars. With a group of scientists a visit was made several years ago to Montana to witness the transit of Venus. "The results were rather disappointing" said his son, "and since that time father has rather lost interest in eclipses."

From the Rhode Island House roof as the period of totality approached the three planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter, gleamed forth higher in the sky than expected, causing exclamations of surprise from the Edison group. Three groups of bewildered starlings, flittered across the roof between the chimney and a strange stillness prevailed, as looking off the outline of objects took a smoky gray appearance. The waving parallel lines were noted, chasing each other across the expanse of roof and as the sun flared forth the crowds gathered in Wilcox Park and about Westerly railroad station and massed about the special trains in the freight yard became sharply outlined.

Not waiting for the complete passage of the moon's obscuration of the sun's disc the crowds began their return to the Westerly station to entrain again for their return home. Under the direction of Trainmaster William J. Smith the specials in the station yard began their departure at 10 o'clock, as soon as their quota was on board. Two specials from Stonington came into the station and at 11 o'clock the sixth train had departed.

The management of traffic for the day on streets and thoroughfares was in charge of Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown assisted by all the regular and special members of the police force; members of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C., Captain John Dotson and Westerly Fire police with the assistance of a detachment of the Westerly Sanitary corps and Boy Scouts, New Haven Railroad executives being Division Superintendent E. E. Reegan, Assistant Superintendent R. M. Smith, and Train Master W. J. Smith, Providence Ticket Agent Thoradike and L. S. Pollitt, passenger traffic agent of Boston and Trainmaster William J. Smith of New London. Train reports were sent to the Bradford tower where they were telegraphed to officials and the operator of the Westerly signal tower gave full time to the care of the extra switching, necessitated by the extra and regular trains.

Members of the eclipse committee for reception of visitors named by the Westerly Board of Trade were Frank W. Coy, chairman, Arthur L. Percy, James M. Pendleton, Arthur N. Nash, and Daniel F. Larkin.

While the entire law enforcement official heads and guardians of the safety of Westerly people were assembled at the Westerly station consisting of Sheriff of Washington County Fred T. Mitchell, Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Fire Chief George E. Egger, fire alarm No. 42 was sounded unknown to them, for a chimney fire at the house of William Clark on Elm street at 10.15 o'clock, which was extinguished by the department with chemicals.

STONINGTON

People were able to view the eclipse on Saturday from all points of the borough. Many came over here from Mystic and Westerly. The end of the point gave an unobstructed view, as the borough was not hampered by very high buildings. Many viewed it from the school grounds on Orchard street. Blackened films and smoked glass were generally to protect the eyes.

At The Strand.

That the theatre goers of Norwich appreciate and patronize good, clean entertainment was again demonstrated last night at the Strand theatre. The brand of pictures offered by the Strand new management are of a character that please, judging from the well filled houses every day. Last night the performance was a very pleasing one consisting of two features, a comedy and a serial. "Unmarried Wives" featuring Mildred Harris is a throbbing and tense dramatic story told in a way that is bounded by realism and color. Many big climaxes are staged, among these are the torch dance, the burning of a big theatre, a wild auto ride, a fight for a woman to save her honor, the rescue of a woman from a burning building, the rescue of another woman from an auto train wreck which are truly remarkable. It is a picture that has a modern love story and will appeal to all lovers of good films. The companion feature was "Bill Cody" in "Miscousins" is an out-and-out western melodrama with a forty-five calibre punch—a whirlwind of thrills from start to finish, telling a story of a stranger who comes to a small western mining town to claim some land left to him by an uncle and falls into the hands of the town's gang of crooks who try to convince the stranger that the uncle left nothing but a lot of bad debts. "Miscousins" is a type of picture that will please those who are fond of outdoor pictures. The comedy "All Wet," was very funny, and the same programme will be repeated at the Strand today and Tuesday. Admission at the Strand is ten cents (any seat) at the matinee and at the evening performances, children ten and adults twenty cents. Matinee performance commence at at two o'clock and in the evening at seven.

Bread Theater

An exceedingly dramatic situation occurs in Fred Niblo's The Red Lily, the Metro-Goldwyn production which came to the Bread theater yesterday. They lose each other there, and are drawn into the underworld. Years later the man, now a thief sought by the police, is lured into the room of a woman of the streets. In her he recognizes the lost sweetheart of his youth. At the same instant she realizes that this disreputable caamin before her is the lost idol of her dreams.

This tense moment is superbly played by Ramon Novarro and Enid Bennett. The cast includes Wallace Beery, Rosemary Theby, Gaston Glass, Pat Hartt, Frank Currier and Mitchell Lewis. Bess Meredyth adapted the original Fred Niblo story for this luminous production, which is presented by Louis B. Mayer.

A new comedy titled The Fight, the first of the Van Bibber series by Richard Harding Davis the Pathe news and an Educational make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theatre.

The management has arranged a B. F. Keith vaudeville programme for the first half of this week that is certain to be the talk of the town. Without doubt it is the finest arranged programme that has ever been presented at that popular playhouse this season.

Every act is bound to please. Glance at the advertisement on another page in the paper and read the lineup. Here you will see comedy, dancing, singing, music, and novelty; all representing the very best of its kind in vaudeville.

And the photoplay sets off this show to perfection.

The Vicente Blasco Ibanez story, "Argentine Love," produced for Paramount by Allan Dwan with Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez featured was shown for the first time in Norwich yesterday at the Broadway theatre.

The story, an original for the screen, is the newest love-drama by the master of romance, the screen versions of whose novels have never known a failure. And "Argentine Love" is not an exception. Colorful hardly describes it.

And this one written especially for the screen!

The plot carries audiences from the Argentine to the United States and then back to South America again in a series of actionful scenes.

You'll enjoy "Argentine Love" as you've never enjoyed a picture before in your life.

Palace Theatre.

Colleen Moore—the Colleen of the purring, capricious flapper ways—has found a new metier in screen characterization. It is the portrayal of mother-love.

Colleen's newest vehicle, "So Big," which opened last night at the Palace theatre, gives her the first chance of her career to portray a mother.

It is in the more exceptional in that it presents her both as a young mother and in middle age.

As Selina Peake De Jong, Colleen's role in "So Big" covers the gamut of heartaches and sacrifices a mother makes in bringing her fledgling safely through to the harbor of serene manhood. These sacrifices are the structure by which the action of "So Big" is developed.

Supporting Miss Moore in her severe undertaking is a cast of character players of fine repute, such as John Bowers, Wallace Beery, Ford Sterling, Dot Farley, Jean Hersholt, Sam De Grasse, Gladys Brockwell, Rosemary Theriam, Henry Hebert, Baby Dorothy Brock and Frankie Darro. The part of her son is played by Ben Lyon.

Charles Brabin, whose reputation was gained in dramas of this type, directed the picture under the supervision of Earl Hudson, for First National.

"So Big" is an adaptation of the novel by Edna Ferber, one of the year's best sellers. It is woven around the growth of Chicago in its early history.

MAN ALIVE-GET ABOARD AND MAKE SOME MONEY!

This Is Going To Be A Frank, Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk With The Readers Of This Newspaper On The Subject Of Making Money WORK.

If you crave assurance of the comforts in old age that financial independence only can bring you—

If you esteem the respect and admiration of your friends and neighbors while you are alive and thereafter—

If you would leave your children the legacy of a memory worth while—

If, in short, YOU WOULD BE SOMEBODY in your community while you are on this earth—

You must succeed in a financial way as well as socially or politically or spiritually.

The Corporation about which this message is written was established in April, 1921, and is engaged in what is generally known as the Commercial Banking business. From a small beginning with a paid-in capital of $27,000, its assets have grown, as indicated by the certified audit of Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell & Company, as of December 31, 1924, to the healthy sum of $455,196.72.

More than 500 sound thinking, ambitious men and women in New England have bought its shares and receive generous dividends regularly, and have increased their holdings many, many times.

To all types of investors, both experienced and inexperienced, the first consideration should always be SAFETY, and the second consideration should be a demand for the FULL EARNING POWER of your money; in short, the highest rate of return that can be obtained consistent with SAFETY.

Money put at work where it brings a return limited to 4%, 5% or 6% and does not participate in the profits such money earns is merely rented and brings its owner no profits resulting from its employment.

Financial institutions and big coprorations rent money from the public at such interest rates, giving bonds, mortgages, and other evidences of their indebtedness carrying a limited income rate, only because the money so borrowed can be utilized to make for such institutions generous profits for their stockholders above the rental rate paid for the use of money.

The average earnings of industrial companies is 8%, showing a nice profit on borrowed money on bonds or other obligations at 5% or 6%. BUT only five industrial companies out of one hundred succeed; ninety-five do not. The average earnings shown by financial institutions are 25%, and ninety-nine out of every one hundred are successful, show big earnings, and pay big profits. This Corporation is one of the ninety-nine.

Which end of the deal would you rather have, the renter's end at 4%, 5% or 6% for your money, or the investor's end at the average rate of income financial institutions throughout the United States have shown for years?

Being a part owner of a business fundamentally sound in principle and proved absolutely safe in practice over a period of years assures the investor not only that imperative element —SAFETY—but likewise the return to him of the full amount his money earns.

Large Profits Do Not Jeopardize the Safety of An Investment

Some people think that large profits indicate a lack of safety and that an investment return of more than 6% is unsafe; if this were a fact, almost every successful bank—and banks are the safest institutions in America—would be unsafe, for most of them show earnings of from 15% to 90%, and some of them even more.

Considering that 6% well-secured is a good income, it must likewise be conceded that an investment actually earning from three to five times as much WITH the SECURITY UNCHANGED is a better investment.

Large Earnings Are An Indication of a Healthy Business

The security behind the investment of shareholders in this Corporation is identically the same as the security on which banks in the United States loans hundreds of millions of dollars annually. If the banks regard such security as safe — and it is — do you not believe it is safe security for you?

Don't envy the financial success of others, for you now have the same opportunity.

Hundreds of investors in shares of this Corporation have, in addition to receiving generous dividends continuously since the starting of this business, seen their shares appreciate in value 50% in less than four years, due to ever increasing surplus which belongs to them.

The history of this business is only a duplication of the history of hundreds of other financial institutions, but the novel feature involved is that this Corporation is NOT owned by a few wealthy men to the exclusion of men of modest means. This Corporation is owned by hundreds of people who have pooled modest sums of money together that the aggregate big sum may be big enough to enter the field of big finance and make the big profits for them that we all know result from the loaning of money amply secured.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Whoever has charge of the seating arrangements for the occasional total eclipses of the sun in this region assigned Danielson to the right field bleachers Saturday morning—and forgot to turn on the heat. Danielson people who did not happen to be particularly well placed did not see the eclipse, in all its features, nearly as well as did the people at Central Village, for instance, only six miles to the south. Considering all that happened in the heavens and with all the reports in as to how it looked to people in all the area of the totality belt within a score of miles of this place, it seems established that Danielson was too near the northern belt of totality to get the most out of an extraordinary occurrence.

It is not to be inferred from this that the show here was worth less than all the inconvenience and discomfort of viewing it so early on an arctic January morning. It was a gorgeous spectacle of the heavens, something to make a mere mortal sense in some degree his own insignificance in relation to his place in the stupendous cosmic scheme of things and to make one wonder what is the vast spaces upon which one looks out from the earth orders in an orderly way such an awe-inspiring spectacle as that of Saturday morning.

Even on the lower orders of life the eclipse had its effect. On a farm near Central Village cows that were in a field near the barn from which they had been released for a brief period of outing herded close together as the strange blue light enveloped the earth, just before the moment of total eclipse. There was a moment that anyone who saw the eclipse is not likely to forget. It was beautifully weird, neither moonlight nor dusk, not dark nor light, but such an atmosphere as one might imagine a wraith reveling in, on a visitation to earth from another life. There was something thrilling about it, something not seemingly associated with life here.

Over on Dark Lantern hill, four miles to the east of Danielson, something more than a score of people watched the great drama of the skies. They had selected the crest of the hill for the wide range of vision it afforded and hoped to be as favored as any viewing the eclipse in this region. They did get a wonderful view of a happening that likely none of them ever will see again, but it is evident from checkups made later that even on that vantage point they missed some of the spectacular effects that were to be seen at other points in this vicinity.

There was no rush of the great dark shadow to be seen at Dark Lantern hill, as the sun became totally eclipsed, though this phenomenon was included in the startling eclipse effects at Central Village and some other points in this neighborhood. Neither were the banded browns and blacks and purples so distinct over there as they were at points within the borough limits, this feature being so pronounced at the plant of the Larkin Reed company, where observers were on the roof as to make the watchers dizzy or nauseated. Similarly, the bonds were very distinct at various points in the town of Plainfield.

In all the area hereabouts the glorified flash of Baily's beads and the flaming forth of the corona left an impression that will remain in the memories of all who saw the amazing happening as long as life lasts. Totality here was not in excess of 35 seconds, for Danielson was on the northern rim of the totality band. But those 35 seconds were were worth years of wondering as to how a total eclipse of the sun might look and the 5 degree below zero temperature mean, at the time, nothing at all. And even after totality, over in the Darn Lantern hill region, the chasing about of the bands of shadowland, and the other enthralling features of the eclipse was something for one to cherish as a memory and to ponder over henceforth. Here was the really greatest show on earth—with admission free!

As had been predicted, hundreds—yes thousands, flocked into this territory from Massachusetts towns and cities. Hundreds of these people centered their gazing at the heavens in the town of Plainfield other observers went over to Hampton hill, others to Shepard hill near Waurecan and at many other vantage points through the territory. No one was disappointed. They saw a spectacle extraordinary. They reveled in it, happy to have made every effort and sacrifice entailed in the seeing of it.

Practically no business was transacted in Danielson at or near the period of totality. Yet not all saw the eclipse. Hundreds said afterwards that they hadn't heard about it, others that they did not care to see it, others, still, that they feared to look at it, reverting, one might say, to atavism.

It did not grow as dark in this immediate vicinity as many had been led to believe it might. It so happened that all for miles about Danielson saw the eclipse under ideal conditions as to absence of clouds or haze. It was as clear as the skies ever are about the sun at the time that the moon registered totality of eclipse. One with good eyes might have read a newspaper at any time during the eclipse.

Some radio enthusiasts here did not overlook their opportunity to participate in the tests being made during the eclipse period by various broadcasting stations. Among these was Earle Bassett, listening in with one of the very best sets in the territory. Mr. Bassett and those who were with him say that the reception over the set became at least a third louder and clearer in volume at the instant of total eclipse than had been the case prior to that time.

Three special trains running out of Massachusetts cities carried hundreds of college students and scientists and lay observers through Danielson to New London to view the eclipse. One of these trains, a solid string of Pullmans with two dining cars, had aboard students of Wellesley college and their friends. This train was routed through Danielson because of an accident in Massachusetts in which a large locomotive was derailed and blocked the line via Providence over which this train was originally routed.

Danielson may have been in the right field bleachers during the eclipse, but they were all good seats even in that quarter of the viewing area and extraordinary things were seen. In this town the eclipse was really worth while, though hardly up to the advertised "kick of a lifetime" predicted by one New York scientist.

Rev. Ignatius Kost officiated Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at a service for Evelinus Abel Stedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Stedman, who died in Goodyear Thursday. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery in Dayville. A large number attended the funeral and there were beautiful floral remembrances. Martin T. Purns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Rev. Francis T. Ledwith, M. S., engaged the greater part of each year in preaching missions in eastern states, was celebrant of the high mass at St. James' church Sunday and preached the sermon—on Prayer. It happened that Sunday marked the close of the octave of prayer conducted in Catholic churches throughout the world for the reunion of all Christian denominations.

In these days of fishing through the ice one hears various strange tales about fish and how to catch them. One seldom hears where. But at the week end there came to ear a story about a local professional man who caught a fish strange to country hereabouts. He was a member of a party that had many tilts out and that one of these tilts unexpectedly flew up. There was a race of the pair of fishermen to get to it first and the professional man won—as it was arranged that he should. He hauled on the line, to which considerable weight was attached, and at the end of the haul there was a snappy jerk and the "fish" flew out on the ice. Amazement for the angler. He had hooked a ninty green bottle, died on when he wasn't looking for his special benefit. And aside from the jokes involved it is interesting to learn that fishermen do still have their bait.

The club has comfortable and attractive quarters at Attawaugan. The clubhouse always is an interesting center of attraction. The outstanding feature of the entertainment program is the picture shows, given two or three nights each week under the direction of Abel L. Reeves, of Danielson.

PUTNAM

Five special trains passed through Putnam Saturday morning, carrying people to Westerly, R. I., or New Havenward, to view the eclipse. A B. & A. train from Wellesley had 710 aboard. Except that the totality continued a few seconds longer seventy-five miles south, Putnam was as good an observation point as anywhere within the line of the path.

Acting under the direction of Whitman Danielson and John H. Corbett, county secretary, a group of Y. M. C. A. boys located the northern boundary of the eclipse almost exactly. The line of the path was just one mile north of Bugbee's Corner, the center of the city, or one-third of a mile north of the calculated line.

Fifteen members of the Hi-Y club assisted Mr. Corbett and Mr. Danielson in taking the observations. Two of the boys were outside the line, the others were all within the totality area.

At the annual meeting of the Canada-American society held in St. Joseph hall, the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. David Beaudoin; vice president, Mrs. Vida Tetreault; financial secretary and treasurer, Origene Touchette; syndice first, Mrs. Laura Boursier; second, Mrs. Dora Belair; third, Mrs. Armand Bibeault; first guard, Mrs. James Barnes; second guard, Mrs. Alice Bonin; sentinel, Joseph Laflamme; deputy, Edmund Perreault; physician, Dr. P. PLAINFIELD

The dance at the Community house Saturday night was not very well attended as many of the local young men attended a dance in Pachaug.

Plumbers were busy Saturday as more than one house had frozen water pipes or burst pipes.

Hundreds of the village folks were out early Saturday morning with smoked glasses and negative films, watching the wonderful sight of the sun's eclipse. It was the sight of a life time and a hushed silence fell on the town as the great shadow sped on its way. There was not a breath of wind to disturb the smoke from the village houses. Many of the amateurs took pictures of the eclipse in its totality.

James Walker while taking a passenger to Moosup skidded off the road breaking the left front wheel of his car. The car was towed to a local garage for repairs early Saturday evening.

Thermometers registered three above, at eight o'clock Sunday morning.

The radio fans are having the time of their lives as it is reported that music is coming in perfect from the various stations, these frigid nights.

Cecelia Israel, local teacher, spent the week end with relatives in Willimantic.

Those persons who recently believed that the end of the world was to come Saturday were disappointed when everything went on its course as usual.

The many parties held in town Friday night were lively affairs.

MYSTIC

Some of the local places of business were closed Saturday during the eclipse.

Due to the fact that Rev. Henry W. Maier of New Britain is well known here, an item which appeared recently in a Hartford paper was of local interest. It stated that at the annual meeting of the First Congregational church held Thursday night resolutions were adopted electing Rev. Henry W. Maier, retiring pastor of the church, pastor emeritus. Rev. Mr. Maier was compelled to submit his resignation because of ill health.

A fine roast beef dinner was served by the women of the Congregational church Thursday evening in the parish house.

Seymour Stoddard was a business caller in Bridgeport the past week.

Mrs. John W. Chapman is confined to her home on West Mystic avenue by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Fowler of Westfield, Mass., have been guests of Mrs. H. Emeline Allyn.

On account of the meeting of the grand chapter, Order of Eastern Star, in Hartford Wednesday, the semi-monthly meeting of Charity chapter, No. 61, O. E. S., is to be held this (Monday) evening instead of Tuesday evening. Those from Charity chapter who will probably attend the grand chapter session are Mrs. W. E. Brown, Miss Ruth Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Stoddard, Miss Doris Raynor, Mrs. Alice Clarke, Noank; Miss Ethel Latham, Noank; Neil McPhail, Groton; Mrs. Inez Carville, Poquonnock; Mr. and Mrs. Chase, Poquonnock, and Mrs. M. L. Small, Groton.

Miss Emily Murphy spent a day in Providence recently.

Moses Wilcox has been confined to his home by illness.

Franklin King of New London is the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lamb.

Mrs. Earl S. Bavier was a visitor in Providence Wednesday.

Cards have been received here by friends of Mr. and Mrs. Truman A. Jewell stating that they have arrived in Pomona, Fla., and are located there at present.

Mrs. Philip Harris of Hartford has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. MacDonald.

The children have been making the most of the snowfall and all available sleds have been put into use. Skating also has furnished considerable diversion for the children.

Plans for the observance of Feb. 1 as Family Sunday were adopted in the January meeting of the Methodist official board. The services for the day will include the dedication of the Avery memorial font, baptism of children, reception of members and sermon by District Superintendent Rev. W. H. Bath of Norwich. The Willing Workers' class was elected a committee on invitations for that day. Superintendent Bath will hold the quarterly conference in the afternoon of the same day. Other events in the calendar adopted for the ensuing month are: Jan. 28, special church meeting for the election of a lay delegate to the New England Southern conference; Feb. 8, to be observed as Lincoln Sunday by the Sunday school; Feb. 8, Epworth league special service with native Chinese speaker; Feb. 10 mite box festival of W. H. M. S. The music committee reported the election of A. H. Board acting chairman for the remainder of the present conference year, and Mrs. Ruth McDougal musical director pro tem.

Sunday the Methodist Episcopal church held morning worship at 10:30, with solo by Miss Pauline Christie and sermon by Rev. J. Garfield Sallis on Every Day a Day of Judgment and Yourself the Judge. Sunday school followed the service. In the Epworth league meeting at 6.30 the topic was China's Women—1925 Model. Evening worship was at 7.30, with stereopticon lecture on The Life of Bishop Basnford.

A great flock of sea gulls which spend the winter days feeding along the Chemung river at Elmira, were fooled by the eclipse. As the moon blotted out the sun and darkness fell, the thousands of gulls rose from the river and started for Watkins, 22 miles distant, where they make their nightly roost.

TONIGHT'S CITY MEETING.

There is an importance attached to city meetings which should not be overlooked. When matters which must be disposed of in such a manner are brought before the voters of the city for action, there is good reason why there should be a representative gathering of the citizens for the purpose of passing judgment. It is not a task for a few, but for the many.

For that reason there should be a large number of the citizens at the special city meeting called for this evening to act upon several matters involving new appropriations, new work and dealing with certain questions which are of concern to the entire community.

It is a time when an appropriation is sought for the erection of the pumping station on Trading Cove brook, made necessary by the drought and the necessity of getting the water from this brook into the city mains. There is also sought an appropriation for the operation of this pumping station, and from the reading of the call it would appear that some of the money appropriated for the work of raising the Stony Brook dam may be devoted to one of these objects.

In addition there is the matter of placing the necessary covering over the Franklin street brook where it goes under the Sellas property, much the same as was done on property to the east of it.

The city meeting is also to be asked to stop the pumping of the Trading Cove brook water from the present location and for action that will direct the city officials to stop all negotiations for the sale of the gas and electrical plant.

Whatever your views may happen to be upon these propositions, it should be evident that the city meeting is the place for those who are interested, directly or indirectly. It is not a time for snap judgment but for the exercise of common sense by a representative gathering.

THE GULLIBLE PUBLIC.

Swindlers come and swindlers go. Some tarry just long enough to get away with a heavy swag while others insist on keeping at it with the result that they invariably get caught. And yet even though that is the usual outcome there are those who believe they are clever enough to escape detection and to avoid paying the penalty.

Every community has had its cases of gold bricks, of shell games and sleight of hand artists who gather in the money and give slips of paper in return. Likewise there have been those who have promised to pay enormous interest for the use of money. Even though it is known that there must be a flaw somewhere in connection with such operations there is an uncontrollable desire on the part of many to get some of that big profit. The result is of course of putting in their money and getting nothing.

There was Get-Rich-Quick Miller, there was Ponzi and now there is Turman. The last named began by borrowing a small sum of money. When it came time to pay up he borrowed some more and it developed a borrowing system in which he paid big money but took in many hundreds of thousands. Just when it got to going good the bubble burst. It is the repetition of the old story. It is possible to fool some of the people all of the time, all of the people some of the time but not all of the people all of the time.

Turman figured he could do the impossible. That may not seem so strange, but there were plenty of others who had faith in him. They didn't care how the profit was obtained so long as they got it. They didn't look to the security of their investment. Some may have been fortunate enough to plunge and get clear, but there were those who didn't. The revelation came in time and now there are those who think it strange that the scheme didn't pan out.

The fact of it is there was no reason to expect any other outcome. The inevitable happened. Gullibility is once more held up to public exhibition but there will be plenty of others to bite when the next operator appears.

DEBT CANCELLATION.

Whatever the impression gained by the debt adjustment talk between this country and France, the address last week in the French chamber of deputies made it evident that thought and pressure in behalf of debt cancellation by this country has not been abandoned. There appeared to have been a determined effort made to revive interest in such an arrangement and there seems to have been no question but what it was a move to get those entertaining such views under one banner.

Perhaps Senator Borah may have dwelt too strongly upon this address in the French chamber, but there is no getting away from the fact that he properly represented the country when he declared its opposition to any such thing as cancellation of the debt, and inasmuch as he felt called upon to set forth our attitude his decision not to delay it was proper.

There was nothing whatever in the attitude of this government to give any encouragement to Deputy Marin of France to speak as he did. It is not improbable that he represents only a minority view in France and of course does not speak for the government, but in view of the assurances that France would pay every dollar his words create an unsatisfactory impression.

Senator Borah did not attempt to hide what he had to say. It was a case of putting forth the bare facts, and as the head of the foreign relations committee he spoke promptly and to the point. When he reminded those seeking cancellation of the debt that this country stands in a decidedly different position than most of the others, inasmuch as it did not go into the war for conquest and did not come out of the war richer by hundreds of thousands of square miles of territory he touched on a point which Deputy Marin sidestepped.

It is unfortunate that the French deputy was unable to realize his disposition to urge debt cancellation in the way he did, but inasmuch as he did he must have expected a response and he must know now that such an idea has no sympathy on this side of the water. The situation would have been better without either speech.

DISCOURAGING CRIME.

In the sentencing of the Long Island young man, who turned bandit and held up a mail train from which he obtained $10,000 in an effort to "make good," to 25 years at Atlanta penitentiary, the judge pointed out that he had no alternative. He took occasion to say, however, that it was a case where "clemency might be exerted," and indicated that efforts might be made in time through seeking a presidential pardon. The basis for any such action would seem to lie solely in the fact that the young man had always had a good record and that this was his first offense, but it is impossible to overlook the seriousness of his crime and the effect that it will have upon others if the impression is gained that leniency is going to govern such deliberate violations of the law.

There have been judges who have indicated that others than those directly engaged in criminal activity were responsible for such. Those who have stolen from banks have been told that their acts were justified because they should have received more money. That simply means the encouragement of crime instead of seeking another job. It is made the more dangerous because the comment comes from such a source.

The Long Island judge made no such rash statement. He took occasion to say, "that under no circumstances does the need or fancied need of money justify the stealing of it. The way to get money is to earn it. If a youth wants something brave and hard to do let him determine to be a leader in business or in professional life. Here he will find needed not only all his courage and skill but will also find ample compensation in money and self respect."

That is advice that can be relied upon to have the best effect. It and the sentence imposed offer the right kind of discouragement to crime.

THE AMENDMENT PROSPECTS.

Straw votes are relied upon in many instances to tell how the wind is blowing relative to certain matters prominent in the public mind.

Through the sounding of the governors of the states there has been obtained a view that resembles a straw vote concerning the attitude in the various commonwealths on the so-called child labor amendment. That test was unfavorable to the amendment. But there is something better than he expressions gained from the governors; there is the action of a dozen or more states, and the indicated action of others.

As the matter now stands there are eleven states in which at least one branch of the legislature has acted. Arkansas, California and Arizona have declared for the amendment. Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina have refused to ratify and one branch of the legislature in Louisiana, South Dakota, Delaware, Kansas and Oklahoma have refused to ratify. Inasmuch as these refusals make ratification out of the question the legislative action thus far leaves the states with three in favor and eight against, or an expression which is admitted by Senator Shortridge of California to plainly indicate its failure.

Massachusetts' legislature has not acted but the overwhelming vote against it in the referendum shows the disposition of that state, and doubtless many others.

Inasmuch as it is necessary to have 36 states ratify to have it effective, the prospects are decidedly unfavorable.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The weatherman takes no heed of the fact that present day users of the highways have no use for snow.

Connecticut has now had a one-day governor and a two-hour holiday all in the opening month of the new year.

Connecticut is, or should be thankful. The weather conditions were ideal for the eclipse and it had an appreciative audience.

The man on the corner says: Those who didn't see the eclipse did have much chance to participate in the conversation for the past two days.

There are many auto owners who are not concerned just at present in the increased price of gasoline. Their interest will revive with the coming of spring.

Hundreds flocked to Westerly Saturday to see the solar eclipse lasting two hours, but for the most part were oblivious to the fact that the Westerly Sun was dark all day.

Those who wished the eclipse had been arranged for summer to avoid the cold of January simply balance those in midsummer who are always complaining of the unbearable heat.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Floors should be waxed with the grain of the wood.

Remove spots from oiled floors by sponging with turpentine.

Remember, fresh stains come out much more readily than old ones.

Don't use the largest burner on your gas stove when a smaller one will do the work.

If closets were emptied out, wiped clean and aired more often there would be less talk of moths.

Cornmeal and vinegar will remove fruit stains from the hands.

Try to have the heels of all your shoes about the same height.

Never serve roasts without first removing any skewers or strings that may be attached.

If you like the skin of roast pork to be crisp and crackled rub a little salt on the skin before placing it in the oven.

When boiling a cabbage or a cauliflower, tie up a crust of bread in a muslin bag and place it in the saucepan. This will prevent the smell from prevading the house.

Always empty the teakettle in the morning and put in fresh water before putting it on to boil for tea. It is unhealthy to use that which has stood all night.

A heavy tumbler ice cream container stuffed with cotton makes a splendid safe nest for the bottle of medicine in its journey through the mails.

A variation in cornstarch pudding is accomplished by adding a tablespoon or two of raspberry or currant jelly, just before setting it aside to cool. This not only adds to the appearance of the pudding, but improves the flavor.

A tablespoon of condensed milk added to a bowl of whipped cream and beaten into it thoroughly just before serving will add to the deliciousness of the cream and also increase the amount.

In baking potatoes, place them in the broiler instead of in the oven. They will cook much more quickly and the flavor will be much improved by the quick cooking. A saving in gas is also a result not to be scoffed at.

SELECTING VEAL

Veal should be of a close, firm grain, white in color, and the fat inclining to a pinkish tinge. Veal is sometimes coarse in the grain and redder in the flesh, not necessarily a mark of inferiority, but denoting the fact that the calf has been brought up in the open. In choosing veal, always examine the suet under the kidney. If this is clammy and soft, with a faint odor the meat is not good, and always reject any that has greenish or yellowish spots about it.

SOILED TILES

If you have an inexpensive mah jong set and the wooden tiles have become very soiled, wash them carefully with a soft cloth and white soap. Dry on a towel and give them a coat of varnish. They will look like new and the varnish will prevent their becoming soiled quickly. The quickest method of varnishing is to place the tiles in their trays, face up, and varnish a whole trayful at once.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Eye diseases such as pinkeye and trachoma, can be acquired by using towels, face cloths or handkerchiefs of a person thus bothered.

If you have an atomizer, spray throat and nose with a salt water solution or other suitable antiseptic fluid. Use dental floss to clean between the teeth, but be careful not to cut the gums.

From the time the teeth appear they should be cleaned daily. The child should have some exercise for them. Hard toast and bread are the natural foods for this time and the exercise he gets from chewing on hard rubber rings keeps the blood circulating healthfully in his gums.

A poor complexion is an outward and visible sign of some irregularity in one's internal economy. You may feel perfectly well now, but you are preparing future trouble for yourself by eating unwisely and sleeping too little. The pimples and enlarged pores are a warning that you should heed. Cultivate a taste for fresh fruit instead of sodas and pastries. Eat a pint of green vegetables and drink plenty of green vegetables and drink five or six glasses of water between meals. Avoid constipation. Exercise out-of-doors.

REDUCING EXERCISE

Here is a fine exercise for exercise for reducing those parts of the figure where excess fat usually accumulates:

Stand erect, arms raised over head, feet slightly apart. Keeping the knees stiff bend over from the waist letting the arms swing towards the floor. Touch right toe with the finger tips of both hands at the same time, then let the arms swing loosely in front for ten counts almost touching the floor. Next touch the left toe with the fingers. Raise the trunk and arms and head backward, swinging the hands back until they meet. Exhale on the downward movement and inhale on the upward one. Repeat 10 to 20 times. Feel your hip, thigh and shoulder muscles pulling as you bend.

A CLOCK MUFFLER

When one lives in a boarding house, one cannot permit friend alarm clock to get too noisy early in the morning. Yet we must get to work in time. Procure a heavy rubber band and snap it around the sides of the clock and the bell. It will muffle the bell enough to prevent it becoming a nuisance and yet permit enough noise to waken the sleeper.

ABOUT THE FEET

Don't wear high-heeled shoes for housework.

Get measured for each new pair of shoes. Every make of shoe is not alike as to size.

If your shoe allowance is small, don't be persuaded into buying unusual shades of shoes that require expensive stockings to match them.

Consider your ankles before you buy nude and other light-colored stockings to wear with dark shoes. Remember if they are inclined to be thick they will look their thickest in this setting.

NEW SPRING FROCK

Long lines will continue next spring but they will not be hard lines, at least on the thin. One simple but attractive frock just designed is of violet poplin with square neck line, long tight sleeves and a long wide frill, edged with fringe of the same color from the left shoulder to the right hem.

DICTATES OF FASHION

One sees the most adorable little coats for the 3-year old made of black velvet and collared with ermine or squirrel.

Different and attractive are bathrobes made of chintz or hand-blocked linens lined with turkish toweling.

Evening bags covered in whole or in part with curled ostrich feathers have almost taken the place of the ostrich fans. They have mirrors. Mirrors don't.

While embroidery is still used to a considerable extent, there is also a pronounced tendency to employ lace as a trimming for the new frocks for mid-season.

Bags to carry with the tailored suit are of black moire with intricate designs of silver beads. They are large square envelopes and contain the necessary fittings.

Few materials have more versatility than black velvet. It belongs to no any special occasion. It appears alike particular age nor is it reserved for any special occasion. It appears alike in the wardrobes of the young and the old.

English silk broadcloth, so popular in the last year for men's shirts, is being used for silk frocks in Roman stripes for porcelain blue, peach, orchid, green, crabapple red, dover gray, gold black, apricot and other delicate shades.

For evening there are few materials that give greater satisfaction, and black velvet evening frocks vary from simplest models to those whose intricate drapery is a marvel of the skill of a modiste.

Simplicity and sophistication are harmoniously blended in the new tailleurs. The lines are simple but the double breasted jackets with long lapels, fastened low with three large buttons, are the last word in smart tailoring as are the wrap-around skirts.

The most popular evening hair ornaments at present are narrow silver hair bands of hand-cut filigree. The designs are simple and the ornaments offer a distinct contrast to the wide, heavy bandeau of other seasons.

SKIRTS ARE FULLER

Are skirts fuller? They are. But not obviously so in the case of street costumes or those for daytime wear. The extra width is accomplished in a most subtle fashion by cleverly introduced godets and inserts by inverted pleats, and by tiny pleats in front only, leaving the back and sides flat and plain.

BLACK AND WHITE

Always smart and as a rule becoming, combinations of white with black or black with white are much in evidence in the midseason modes, especially those designed for the south. One frock of white lingerie has a wide hem of black tulle and is trimmed with fichu lace.

WORN LIKE CHOKER

In place of a fur neckpiece the smart woman often wears a choker scarf tied around her neck after the fashion of the old-time stock. An extremely smart scarf is of heavy white crepe with a wide border of black satin at each end.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Knitted silk underwear should be stretched, not ironed.

Vinegar in the rinse water will revive the color in blue flannel.

Table linen should be quite damp when ironed and should be ironed until absolutely dry. Then you will have pretty work.

Borax sprinkled on tea and coffee stains before placing in cold water usually hastens the removal of the stain.

Silk stockings should be washed in tepid water.

Colored handkerchiefs should be soaked in cold water containing a little salt before they are washed, to prevent fading.

White clothes should always be dried in strong sunlight.

Sponge the shiny serge suit with vinegar before pressing.

Never press a stained garment or it will make the stain permanent and impossible to remove without professional aid. Clean off all spots before pressing.

CLEANING BRASSES, JEWELRY AND STEEL

To clean a brass bird cage: Clean with a bit of flannel, wet with kerosene, then rub with preparation used for brasses. Leave it on for half an hour and polish with a dry flannel or chamois. Whiting and sweet oil will brighten it.

To clean jewelry with stones in it, wash it in suds, quite warm suds, of yellow soap and a few drops of ammonia. You will find that this makes the ornament brilliantly clean.

To clean a steel chain: Put it into a box three-quarters full of fine emery dust. Close the box and shake violently up and down and to and fro for several minutes. Now and then turn the box upside down and shake again, to leave no part of the chain untouched.

Brass bedstead, if it is pure brass, should be dusted daily with soft silk handkerchief, flannel or chamois skin, for polishing to a brilliant luster.

GLOVE SILK HOSIERY

Practically every woman has the same complaint to make concerning glove silk stockings—they wear out just above the shoe line. One woman cuts a triangular piece from the under side of the wide hem that is always found on glove silk hose and carefully appliques the piece over the worn part, making a pointed finish so popular nowadays. She claims the stockings wear twice as long.

STRIPED SLIP-COVERS

One may have tired of flowered furniture coverings of cretonne or chints and will therefore welcome the newer designs in vari-colored stripes. The shades are beautifully blended or contrasted and there are any number of different combinations of colors.

CROCHETED RAG RUG

In crocheting rag rugs almost any old cotton garment can be used. Make stripes three-quarters of an inch wide and join on sewing machine with a very fine stitch, then roll into balls. Make a chain 23 inches long and crochet around it. Widen by making an extra stitch, each side of the ends at the curve.

Ask the art department of any store for a wooden hook to crochet rag rugs. Crochet around 24 times. This makes a rug 24 by 44 inches.

A NIFTY DISH

If you have some cold boiled potatoes on hand, heat a little bacon fat in a frying pan, add to the fat and stir well. These can be seasoned to taste, browned on both sides and folded like an omelet.

CONCERNING WOMEN

In India, thousands of women are employed in the mines, in the building trades and in other forms of manual labor.

Mrs. Laura D. Harlow is the new Mayor of Troutdale, Ore.

Tampa, Fla., boasts of the only girls' football team in the south.

California claims to lead all the states in beneficial legislation for women workers.

Electric lamps with fancy shades are such a hobby with one St. Louis woman that she has more than 40 of the lights distributed about her home.

Nuneham College for women at Cambridge England, will celebrate its semi-centennial next October.

Policewomen to a total number of more than 100 are now employed in London and its immediate vicinity.

WHEN BEATING EGGS

The cooler eggs are the sooner they will whisk up to stiffness; so always beat them in the coolest possible place and throw in a pinch of salt, which will facilitate matters.

AIR IT THOROUGHLY

If the clothing is damp when removed, place it on a hanger and hang it in a current of air until thoroughly dry. It should never to put in the clothes closet while damp.

RECIPES

Pumpkin Pie: Cut up a small pumpkin, cook until done, then stew until little moisture is left, press through a sieve. Take four cups of pumpkin, one cup molasses, two cups sugar, two of cinnamon, two of flour, three pints of milk, a teaspoon of salt, five well-beaten eggs, mix all together thoroughly and bake with undercrust only.

Cauliflower Spanish Way: Prepare the cauliflower as for boiling and steam until soft. Separate the flowerets and pour over them the following sauce: Take one-half tablespoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons powdered sugar, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, six tablespoons vinegar, two tablespoons flour, the yolks of two eggs slightly beaten, one-fourth cup salad oil and two tablespoons butter. Cook the mixture over water in a double boiler until it thickens, stirring constantly. Remove from the fire and add two tablespoons of melted butter which has been cooking for three minutes with one teaspoon of finely chopped onion and a teaspoon of finely chopped parsley.

Loree Lost His Job

Equipped with education, and enthusiastic over the alluring possibilities of the railroad field, Leonor F. Loree grasped an opportunity to start at the bottom of his chosen calling and although he worked hard he was soon laid off.

Taken from his native Fulton City, to Rahway, N. J., while still a baby, Loree attended public school there. After he was graduated from Rutgers college at 19, he obtained a job as surveyor on a construction gang of the Pennsylvania railroad. His pay was $35 a month and his duties were hard, but he toiled hopefully for a few months. Then came a reduction of forces and he was out of work.

The next available job was as transitman in the United States Engineering Corps which lasted two years. By studying law at night he passed the bar examinations.

But the lure of the railroad was still strongest, and he went to Mexico, where at 23, he became head of a construction gang on the Mexican National Railway. Two years later the road was in financial trouble, and Loree again lost his job.

Next, as assistant engineer of the Indianapolis and Vincennes division of the Pennsylvania railroad, he introduced new ideas and at 3 was made engineer of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh division. His quick restoration of traffic after the Johnstown flood soon won for him the superintendency of the entire division.

Made general manager of the Pennsylvania Lines west of Pittsburgh, at 38, his plans, enthusiastically made, were withheld until he proved his ability. Then the Pennsylvania acquired the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and he was made its president. His resuscitation of that road made railroad history.

Accepting the fourth offer of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, he became its president. His plans caused a discussion that could not be settled, and he resigned within ten months. Now 46 and near a physical breakdown from overwork, he was again out of a position.

After a rest in Europe he was elected president of the Delaware & Hudson railroad, which he built to success. He has held that office more than 20 years, and is considered one of the world's greatest railroad men.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Bonuses and Pensions

Bonuses to employees constitute allowable deductions from gross income when such payments are made in good faith as additional compensation for services actually rendered, provided that when added to the stipulated salaries they do not exceed a reasonable compensation. Donations or gifts to employees which do not have in them the element of compensation, or are in excess of reasonable compensation for services, are not deductible from gross income.

Pensions paid retired employees, or their families or others dependent upon them, or on account of injuries received by employees, and lump-sum amounts paid or accrued as compensation for injuries are proper deductions as ordinary and necessary business expenses. Such deductions are limited to the amount not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. No deductions are allowed for contributions to a pension fund held by the corporation, the amount deductible being the actual amount paid to employes. When the amount of salary of an officer or employee is paid for a limited period after his death to his widow or heirs in recognition of the services rendered by the officer or employee, such payments may be deducted. Salaries paid employees who are absent in the military, naval, or other service of the government, but who intend to return at the conclusion of such services are allowed deductions.

Donations or gifts to employees which do not have in them the element of compensation for services rendered may not be deducted by the employer, and need not be included in the return of the recipient.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Athur Woods, who is mentioned to succeed Roy A. Haynes as United States Prohibition Commissioner, is best known to the public through his connection with the police department of New York City, first as deputy commissioner from 1907 to 1914, and from 1914 to 1914 as chief commissioner. Backed by Mayor Mitchell he wrought a great change in the methods and ideals of administration of the force; and he gave to it and to the men who made it a better conception of the part that education, character and specialized training should play in the police arm of government. In accomplishing this radical transformation, Mr. Woods disclosed his own unusual administrative ability, and his technique of getting results without fuss or friction. Mr. Woods is a native of Boston and a graduate of Harvard, and has had a varied experience as school teacher, journalist and business man. He represents a class of men with unusual resources on the cultural and pecuniary side, who from high patriotic motives of late years have been turning to politics in its higher phases.

Stories That Recall Others

He Did No Bootlegging.

He had gone to another city and took with him his portable typewriter. At the porter's appeal he turned over his luggage, including his typewriter.

The porter hesitated a minute and then said, "Don't you think you better keep this with you?" referring to the typewriter.

"Why, it's only my typewriter," explained the owner.

The porter smiled knowingly. "But don't you think you better carry it yourself?" he insisted.

To avoid further discussion he took the case from the porter. Afterward in relating the incident to a friend, he said: "I never had my typewriter treated with such respect."

The friend laughed and said: "That porter is well versed in the ways of prohibition. He thought that heavy little black case would hold but one thing, and he wasn't going to be caught with any liquor."

WOULD DECLARE SEAT OF SENATOR BROOKHART VACANT

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 25.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, for nearly three years the storm-center of Iowa politics, but of whom little has recently been said by even his most bitter opponents, tonight again was the political cynosure as a result of his official divorce from the republican party by the Iowa state central committee yesterday.

Yesterday the official representatives of republicans in Iowa moved to have the seat to which the senator was elected by a majority of 755 votes last November declared vacant on the grounds of alleged fraud and deceit.

The lengthy resolution adopted by the committee yesterday which gave the chronology of the Iowa republican party's support of President Coolidge and which ended in asserting that Senator Brookhart's disavowal of the candidates made his claim to the senatorship election on the republican ticket "a fraud and a deceit," came in most quarters as a distinct surprise.

GAS AND WATER TO BE SUBJECTS BEFORE SPECIAL CITY MEETING

Water and gas will furnish topics for the special city meeting called for this (Monday) evening in the town hall by Mayor Milo R. Waters that promises to make it one of the most interesting held for a long time and possibly one of the most hotly contested when the votes are taken on these questions.

An appropriation of $60,000 was voted previously for the work of raising the dam at Stony Brook reservoir. One part of this work was estimated by the city engineers to cost about $41,000, but it was done for about $21,000, and there is a balance of approximately $20,000 left over. It is proposed to ask the city to vote this balance to be used for the installation of the pumping station at Trading Cove brook that has been put in to insure the city an emergency supply of water. In addition to this there is money needed to be appropriated for the installation and maintenance of operation of the pumping station. The sum of $10,000 is asked for this purpose. It is impossible to say how many days in the year it would be necessary to operate the pumping station, but the amount is placed at what it is believed will be large enough to cover the possible time.

Another appropriation item is for $2,500 to pay the cost of covering over the Franklin street brook sewer where it runs under the new building that Peter Sellas is erecting on Franklin square at the corner of Main street and Rose place.

The real action and fight of the meeting is expected to come on the last two matters in the call. The first is to determine whether or not the meeting will vote to direct the water department to stop pumping water from Trading Cove brook. The vote on this question will show whether or not the citizens will decide to render futile what the water board has done to get an emergency supply of water.

As there is a group of citizens that has taken court action to prevent the use of Trading Cove brook water, it is expected they will be in the meeting to accomplish through a vote there what they were not able to do in court.

Another item on which much argument is expected calls for a vote as to whether or not the citizens will request the mayor and common council to cease all negotiations looking to the sale or lease of the city gas and electric plant. At the present time the city has an offer of $3,000,000 for the gas and electric plant from A. E. Pitkin & Co., a New York firm that has taken steps to secure a charter from the legislature in order to operate the plant if the citizens should decide to sell it.

SENTENCED FOR ASSAULT ON NORWICH MAN

For assaulting Joseph Menard of this city last Oct. 20 in Woonsocket, breaking his jaw and robbing him of his money, two Woonsocket men were sentenced to long terms in the Rhode Island state prison last week. They were before the court in Providence. Peter Garre, 24, was given a 12-year sentence and Oliver Beaubien, 23, a 10-year sentence.

These two men, with Oliver's young brother, Romeo Beaubien, admitted assaulting and robbing Menard. There was some question about Romeo's age, one report crediting him with 17 years, and he himself claiming but 16 years. His case was continued until Monday for sentence.

The three youths told the court that they were asked by Mr. Menard at Depot square, Woonsocket, for directions to a rooming house. The young men proceeded to lead the aged man around to a lot in the rear of West street where it is said they assaulted him and stole his money. Mr. Menard was taken to the Woonsocket hospital with a fractured jaw and other injuries.

The three youths were at first arrested and then indicted on charges of robbery, but these charges later were reduced on recommendation of Assistant Attorney General Oscar L. Hvitzen to charges of assault with intent to rob

WOMAN SLASHES THROAT IN ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

In an attempt at suicide Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Delia Thibeault, wife of Napoleon Thibeault of Taftville, slashed her throat with a butcher knife at their home on the Occum road and cut her windpipe but did not reach the jugular vein. She was hurried to the Backus hospital in the ambulance immediately afterwards and surgeons joined the severed windpipe. It is believed her chances for recovery are good.

The woman has six small children and has been sick for a long time. Becoming extremely despondent Sunday, she made the suicide attempt. Her husband summoned help and Mrs. Eugene Monty, a neighbor across the street, applied bandages to the woman's throat, checking the flow of blood as much as possible until the arrival of Dr. George Thompson, who cared for the patient until the ambulance arrived. Police headquarters at Norwich was notified and a call for the Backus hospital ambulance was sent from there.

SKIDDING ACCIDENT AT NORTH MAIN ST. CORNER

Grillis at 106 Liberty street, Pawcatuck, who was driving towards Taftville on North Main street, Sunday evening, skidded at the corner of Bishop street and struck the car of Joseph J. Fiber of 36 Dime street, Jewett City, who was driving south on North Main street. In the report made it was stated that a car coming out of Eighth street caused Grillis to put on his brakes and go into a skid. The Pawcatuck car sustained damages estimated at $90 and the damage to the Jewett City car was estimated at $75.

NORWICH SEES SUBLIME SPECTCLE IN SKIES

For about two hours Saturday morning practically every person in Norwich suspended his ordinary occupation and devoted himself to viewing a total eclipse of the sun which will not occur again in this territory for 109 years. Every hill point in the city and its suburbs and the roofs of tall buildings were utilized for viewpoints, while many with easterly windows viewed the sublime celestial spectacle in cosy comfort and commiserated with the thousands who stood outside in the biting cold of below zero, nearly the coldest morning of the winter. A Norwich group who viewed the eclipse from the top of Lantern Hill stated that the thermometer dropped 6 degrees during the totality period of the eclipse. As the moon shut out the light of the sun, the thermometer which they had with them stood at 2 above zero. In the two minutes of totality it dropped to 4 below zero.

The marvelous beauty of the pearly white radiance of the corona flashed into view as the moon completely covered the sun's face. The mysterious shadow bands were plainly seen flickering over the snow-covered ground before and after totality, but the widely heralded shadow which came rushing from the west at the rate of about 50 miles a minute was too fast for the amateur observers and there were few found who would positively claim that they saw it. The darkness of the totality period did not come up to the predictions made for it. A rather wan, sickly light filtered down through space as the moon gradually covered the sun, but at the totality period the illumination was considerably brighter than a moonlight night and there was no occasion to turn on street lights or automobile lights. One man claimed that his chickens made a regular stampede for their roosts when they suddenly found themselves out in the dim light of the two minutes of totality.

The planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter, were plainly seen almost on a line near the sun, Mercury in the middle and much fainter than the other two, while high up in another part of the sky was to be seen the star Altair.

Weather and atmospheric conditions were ideal, without a cloud in the sky and scarcely a breath of air stirring. Scientists had suggested that notice be taken whether any wind arose during the totality period. On the Laurel Hill road near the home of Walter F. Lester, which was a favorite spot for many automobile parties to view the eclipse, it was noticed that the atmosphere seemed undisturbed during the totality period and there seemed to be no wind.

OPENS KEREN HAYESOD CAMPAIGN IN NORWICH

The Norwich district Keren Hayesod campaign for $12,000 for the Palestine work was opened Sunday evening with a mass meeting in the Community house at which two fine addresses were delivered by Dr. Schmarya Levin of Palestine and Judge Jacob Asher of Worcester, following which $2,100 was raised for the Palestine work, of which $1,100 was in cash and $2,000 in pledges.

Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, chairman of the Norwich committee, opened the meeting and introduced Judge Asher who spoke earnestly of the obligation of the fortunate Jews in America to contribute to the restoration of Palestine as a national homeland to which the persecuted people of the Jewish race in other parts of the world. He spoke of the admirable record that Norwich has made in its support of Keren Hayesod and declared that the obligation to support them with liberal contributions the restoration of Palestine was peculiarly laid upon the Jews of America because they are the only ones who can help, and it is a sacred duty because of this ability.

Judge Asher was followed by Dr. Levin, who spoke of the latest developments in Palestine along economic, political and cultural lines, declaring that we are justified in feeling satisfied with the development that has been shown in all three directions. The national home for the Jews is now indeed a fact and about 2,500 immigrants are being sent in every month, mostly from Central Europe, these including working men, artisans, industrialists, and great numbers of agriculturalists. It is a selected immigration adapted to restore this devastated land which is a region for the work of pioneers. The limit of the work that can be done is the limit of the money that can be placed in the hands of the leaders of the movement and he appealed to the Jews of America to add yet many great sums to the $5,000,000 that has been used in the restoration of Palestine so far.

Dr. Levin has made his home in Palestine for several years past now, being located at Tel Aviv, a city about 16 or 17 years old with a present population of over 25,000.

NURMI WILL HAVE STRENUOUS SCHEDULE FOR THIS WEEK

New York, Jan. 25.—(By The A. P.)—Paavo Numri, who ran his total of indoor world's records up to 12 last night at the Brooklyn College games, has four races on his schedule this week, the most strenuous program he has undertaken since his three successive nights of racing recently at Chicago and New York.

The Finn will share the spotlight of the week, however, in all of these events with Hugo Frigerio, famous Italian Walker and Olympic champion who makes his American debut Tuesday night, the first night of the double-barrelled Millrose A. A. track and field Carnival at Madison Square Garden, which looms as the outstanding athletic event of the winter season.

Nurmis races on the first night of the Millrose meet over a distance of three-quarters of a mile promises to put the abo antelope to one of the severest tests of his American campaign. This distance is a trifle short for Paavo and will give his opponents including Joie Ray, Lloyd Hann, Leo Larraviee and Jimmy Connolly, a better chance to win than at any other mark. The Finn, however, is so confident of his ability to triumph that he has mapped out a schedule to break the two-thirds mile record as well as that for three-quarters.

On the second night, Nurmi will compete in a mile and a half race for the Rodman Wanamaker trophy, which has been won for the past seven successive years by Joie Ray. The little Chicagoan, who also holds the words record for the distance, will attempt to defend his honors, while the other opposition for the invader will include Leo Larlvee, Willie Goodwin, George Lermond and William Cox.

Frigerio will make his first start in a three-mile walk in which he will concede liberal handicaps to his opponents, George Goulding, famous Canadian walker and former world's champion, who is staging a come-back to meet Frigerio, is to star in another handicap feature on Tuesday night. On Wednesday, Frigerio, Goulding and Willie Plant, Premier American heel and toe star, are to meet in a special 5,000-metre event confined to these three international stars.

Nurmi and Frigerio are to make their other appearances of the week in the Morningside A. C. meet here Friday night and the Boston A. A. games and 3,000 metres in Boston.

The Millrose and Boston A. A. events rank among the most important of the indoor season, and their programs, with Nurmi and Frigerio as headliners, promise to witness spectacular competition. Schools, clubs and colleges from many parts of the country will be represented by an array of National, Olympic and college champions.

The Millrose games also will mark the first indoor appearance of Jackson Scholz, Olympic 200-metre champion and only American to capture a flat-racing title at Paris last summer. He will have keen competition from Loren Murchison, Frank Hussey and "Boots" Lever in a sprint series at 40, 50 and 60 yards.

BRITISH HOPE HAGEN WILL COME TO ENGLAND

London, Jan. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The British expected that their open golf course championship next June will be enlivened by the desire, but dreaded presence of several Americans. It is thought that Walter Hagen twice, winner of the title in three years, will defend it again this summer at Prestwick, with several of his compatriots banging away with woods and irons in the hope of grasping the torch should he let it go.

Trooping along with Hagen, the British expect to see, among others, MacDonald Smith, who finished near the front both in 1922 and 1923; Jim Barnes, Bobby Cruickshank and Cyril Walker.

It will hurt, of course, to see any of them win, but it will hurt most if Hagen does it again. There would be some consolation for the British if one of the others should come through, for they first learned the game on this side. Cruickshank is an Edinburgh product; Smith came from Carnoustie; and Barnes and Walker began their golf in England. But the strong-hearted Hagen is looked upon as "100 per cent American,' and when he gets hold of the trophy the British have no chance at all to run up the flag.

The ladies' open championship will be played at Troon this year, beginning May 18. British golfers understand that at least two feminine American stars, Miss Edith Cummings and Miss Glenna Collett, will cross the Atlantic to compete.

DARTMOUTH AND TIGERS TIED IN BASKETBALL

New York, Jan. 25.—(By The A. P.) The green of Dartmouth and the orange and Black of Princeton are dangling at levels on the halyards over the eastern collegiate basketball league. Dartmouth maintained its lead by winning its only game last week from Pennsylvania while the Tigers pulled up into a tie with the Hanover team by scoring two victories, one over Yale and the second over Cornell.

Pennsylvania, once a terror in intercollegiate basketball ranks is slipping into the ruck of the middle division with two victories and a similar number of defeats while Columbia has a single triumph in three starts.

Cornell, the 1924 champion, together with Yale, appears to be out of the running at an early stage of the race, the Ithacans, stung by the contaminating insect of graduation which sapped its veteran material, and left Coach Ortner holding a bag of green talent, have met defeat twice in two starts, while the Elis have met a similar fate in their three starts.

Picken of Dartmouth and Carmack of Pennsylvania are knotted at the top of the individual scoring column with 19 points, each having scored five field goals and nine foul goals. Baldwin of Columbia, and Hynson of Princeton are close behind with 18 points. Cleaves of Princeton is the leading field goal scorer with eight to his credit and foul goal honors are divided between the two leading scorers.

Princeton, as a team, has shown the greatest offensive strength, the Tigers having scored 82 points to but 45 points for their opponents. The efficiency of the Princeton defense is fittingly illustrated in the fact that in three games the Tigers' opponents have scored 15 points on each occasion. Yale, according to the figures, has the weakest defense.

The team scoring records follow:

BULKELEY LOSES TO HILLHOUSE AT NEW HAVEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New Haven, Jan. 25.—Fresh from their victory over Hartford High on Friday evening, New Haven Hillhouse High climaxed a two day stay for Bulkeley High of New London by routing their forces at the York Square gym floor to the tune of 34 to 13. Hillhouse showed consistent basketball playing throughout the afternoon, and forced the play from her end of the court to the visitors basket. The vistors from the Whaling City seemed to have lost their pep from the game of the night before when they put up a much better show against Commercial High.

Taking Hartford High into camp by an 18 to 9 score on the night before at the Capitol city, Hillhouse was momentarily stopped in her rush for the game with Bulkeley yesterday afternoon when the visitors brilliant and versatile forward ,Taylor dropped in the first counter of the afternoon. Those who expected good work from Taylor were not in the least disappointed, for his performance in the two days Bulkeley sojourned here, marked him as a forward of first class ability.

If Bulkeley was in the lead by a single basket, the rush the locals made upon the Whaling city basket snowed under the attempts of the visitors. As the whistle blew signifying the end of the first half, Hillhouse was leading by the comfortable margin of 18 to 6. During that first half, besides the bewildering offense of the locals, the guard work was also manifest in their keeping of the visitors score down. Bulkeley showed a defect in one guard position, with her passing system was not so accurate a one would desire.

The second half found Hillhouse continuing her scoring by systematic teamwork with every one of the quintet lending his aid towards the victory which was to be with the Elm City quintet. An interjection of substitutes followed after the fourth quarter had been ushered in with the Hillhouse aggregation leading by a score of 31 to 8 at this time. Bulkeley gained ground with this new team in and threatened to make the game considerably closer than it was, but failed in her objective when the whistle intervened, ending the contest.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 25.—With B. Marenno, diminutive forward of the Hudson A. C. at the foul line mark, a number of Submarine Base supporters attempting by the sonorous outbursts of inarticulate chatter to distract his attention from the basket he was about to shoot, and with the score at 24 to 23 with the Base in the lead and the foul shooting Elm City forward to decide the contest one way of the other was the situation which faced the fans present at the state armory Satuday night. Only the fate of the gods which decreeded otherwise, took victory out of the hands of the Elm City five, for the foul B. Marenno was about to shoot, dropped inside the hoop and rolled about the hoop several times and the caromed off the hoop on to the backboard, the ball then falling harmlessly to the floor with the game won by the Submarine Base by a 24 to 23 score.

The visitors were in several respects better than the Submarine Base. However failure to play a close guarding game in the first quarter sealed their fate. They grew better in succeeding quarters, not only unloosing a fine offense which had the finishing touch of any big quintet, but close guarding was met by the sounding of the whistle and the missing of the foul goal by the Hudson A. C. forward entered themselves into the contest rather conspiciously.

The visitors flashed a forward of the dribbling type whose performance in this respect was never equalled in this city. This person was a short and stocky forward by the name of B. Marenno who immediately gained the admiration of the crowd by his wonderful control of the ball. With this form of play followed out by fine, fast pass work it was at times marred by the missing of the basket by a single hair. The visitors had a fine balanced team, but something was lacking in their play early in the game which returned to them as the contest neared the end.

It was a fast start to what later proved to be a difficult task which gave the Submarine Base 14 points in the first quarter, and practically decided the contest. The visitors were able to count but three points in that first period of play, but in the second half held the gobs on even terms each team scoring eight points. At half time the score stood 22 to 11 for the Base.

Opening the third quarter auspiciously, the visitors scored 7 points while all the tars could gather was 2. Close guarding and fine offense work were the combined elements of play in the last quarter and the Base was held without a score. Had B. Marenno made good on the try from the foul line the game would have been forced into an extra period.

De Lello led the attack of the visitors with three field goals and four foul goals, while Murphy at center for the gobs not only led his team in scoring but also tossed in the winning score, and incidently the only score which the Base made in the final half. The score:

DAY, FATHER OF GIANTS DIES AFTER SHOCK

Cliff Side, N. J., Jan. 25.—John B. Day, "father of the Giants," died here today following a paralytic shock. He was 77 years old. Mr. Day was responsible for the entry of New York into the National League, having with James Mutrie purchased the best players of the old Troy team and then organization the Giants who won the championship in 1888 and 1889.

Buck Ewing, Tim Keefe, Roger Connor, Mickey Welch, Pete Gillespie, John M. Ward, Jim O'Rourke and Amos Rusie are among the well known old-time players who were brought to New York in 1883 through the efforts of Mr. Day.

After his retirement as manager, Mr. Day was made inspector of the National league umpires, a post he held until failing health forced its relinquishment.

The funeral arrangements, which have not yet been announced, will probably be handled by the New York National league club and the National league.

A little more than three decades ago the name of John B. Day was one to conjure with in the baseball world, but of late years financial reverses and failing health took a heavy toll, and a little more that a year ago a benefit game for Day and his former manager, James Mutrie was played at the Pool grounds between the Giants and the Baltimore Orioles. The game netted a fund of $2,493 for the two veterans.

Day's loyalty to the National league in the Brotherhood war of 1890 was one of the main factors in holding the National league together, according to baseball leaders of those days who pointed out that the New York out of the National league the older organization could not have hoped to weather the storm.

The brotherhood war was really the beginning of Day's misfortunes, however, for he lost a small fortune because of it. A few years later Andrew Freedman became president of the New York club and he appointed Day his manager in the spring of 1899. There was friction between them, however and by the middle of the season Day resigned and Fred Hoey had been appointed manager.

The folowing year Day was appointed chief of umpires by the National league and continued to wield considerable influence for the elimination of rowdyism on the ball field. He has been in retirement for many years, his last indentification with the game being in 1909 when he became president of the Metropolitan baseball club, a fast semi-professional nine of Carlsbad, N. J.

AGGIES LOSE CLOSE GAME TO THE ARMY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, Jan. 25.—In a rough and tumble game of basketball played at West Point Saturday afternoon the Conn. Aggies lost to the Army by a one point decision. The score was 30 to 29 and the Army had to come from behind in the last few minutes of play to overcome the lead held by the Storrs quintet.

It was a game that was marked by loose officiating and much rough play in this respect the Connecticut team was playing at a great disadvantage.

Captain Baylock banished from the game after the first ten minutes of play by Referee Murray for objecting to the way the game was being refereed. Makofsky, star guard, was lost to the team via the four personal foul route, which weakened the team still further.

The Army team went into the lead at the start piling up the points and at half time led the Aggies 19 to 15. The Storrs team, always used to strict officiating was unable to show its real power due to the pushing and holding tactics of the army five. After the first ten minutes of play Captain Baylock called time out and remonstrated with Referee Murray of the looseness of the officiating, and followed a heated argument the Aggies' captain was banished.

In the second half the Storrs men threw up a five man defense that the cadets were unable to penetrate, while the Aggies began to connect with the basket soon overcoming the Army lead. Makofski and Scofield featured at this point with basket shooting, carrying the Aggies out in front.

With the score 25 to 19 in the Aggies' favor and only five minutes to go the Army staged a desperate rally and long shots by Roosma from the middle of the floor enabled the cadets to pull the game out of the fire in its closing moments. The summary:

Army		Conn. Aggies
Roosma	Right Forward	Baylock
Barnett	Left Forward	Scofield
Stober	Center	Eddy
Kammerer	Right Guard	Makofski
Wood	Left Guard	Allard

Goals from field—Roosma, Barnett, Stober 3, Strickler, Scofield 5, Eddy 4, Makofski 2.

Goals from foul—Roosma 3, Anderson 3, Stober, Baylock, Scofield 2, Makofski 4.

Substitutions, Army—Barnett for Roosma, Anderson for Barnett, Scheppe for Anderson, Roosma for Barnett, Strickler for Kammerer, Gross for Strickler.

Aggies—O'Brien for Baylock, Bitgood for Makofski.

Time, halves of 20 minutes, referee, Murray; umpire, Brennan.

MASKED MARVELS CLASH WITH AETNA FIVE TONIGHT

The much heralded Masked Marvels, who have forsaken baseball for the bowling alleys, will clash with the Aetna Five this evening in what is expected to be a real game. The personnel of the Masked Marvels is unknown and the entire team will wear masks during the game. Some time ago a challenge was hurled at Mr. Fillmore's team which he readily accepted and the pins will fly tonight although Mr. Fillmore himself will be absent from the game.

CHAPMAN TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM MADISON

Madison, Jan. 25.—Chapman Tech quintet of New London, managed to nose out Madison High in a nip and tuck basketball contest played on the town court Saturday evening. After throwing a scare into the big Red and quintet, Madison hopes for a victory were eclipsed by the rapid basket shooting of Hicks and Andrews, who ultimately brought Tech out to the front at the final whistle. The score for the contest was 32 to 29 for Tech.

After piling up a lead of 14 points, while the locals were held scoreless, Chapman Tech grew rather lax in her defense system, and consequently before the vistors knew what was happening their total was matched by a similar total and three points thrown in for good measure, giving the Madison five the lead at half time by the score to 18 to 15. It was a spectacular rally for the locals, while the townspeople who turned out en-masse for the contest whooped exuberantly as the result of the unexpected turn of affairs.

But it was a far different Tech outfit which opened the second half. There was no more depending on the defense to carry it through, and with Hicks and Andrews finding the hoop regularly Tech began to draw away from her rival but the score which separated the two teams was in no way sufficiently comfortable to go back to purely defense methods. Tech was playing Madison off her feet, using three men to bring the ball down the court, and the five man defense when Madison had possession of the ball.

The fourth quarter found both teams on even terms, with Chapman Tech sending in two field baskets in rapid succession. From that point on there was little dobut that Tech would be the winner, but Madison to make things interesting continually trailed the Red and Black machine threatening to move out ahead at several times which gave the spectator something new to rejoice over. But Tech had a three point advantage when the whistle blew, ending a hotly contested game.

Hicks and Andrews played a fine game for Tech, with Hewitt's work consistent during the entire game. A Parker led Madison in scoring with 14 points.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Broker Poet

Some whim of fancy led me to peruse
This magazine which deals with things apart
From Wall Street life;—I foolishly confesse,
One vivid sentence plays upon my heart.

"And somewhere in the South a breeze sprang up—"
Aye, "somewhere in the South;" would I were there
Plucking the golden yellow buttercup,
Tasting the sweet magnolia-scented air.

My nature worship led me off away
To woods where I could see the wild folk roam;
Happy was I when idling half the day
Watching the gay young robin build his home.

The thing men call Ambition made me quit
The quiet village for the city's strife,
And, though I boss a business, I admit
That power and gold have cost the best of life.

Chained to my office with a chain so strong
That even Love cannot unforge the links,
I struggle for Success, a hallow song,
Success, at which the wise Minerva winks.

I crush my fellows, all inside the law,
And trade my soul for gold, while in my breast
I long to hear the crow's shrill warning "Caw!"
To watch the new-fledged bird within its nest.

My stifled voice emits but feeble sons;
Would I had strength to fight my greed and win,
Would I could leave this life I've lived so long
And sing with Robin of the joy within.

I'll stick to ticker tape for reading now
And win a few more thousands on the street;
Thoughts of the heaver past but make me bow
My suffering head to memories, bitter sweet.

—By Wilmer Benjamin.

Borrowed Plumes

She was a gentle mother
Who labored to make a home.
And then she lay down contented
Till all her dear babes had come.
And, when the day [illegible] they nestled,
So helpless and weak and small,
The world was enriched by a matchless love—
A love that surpasses all.

He was a radiant songster,
He jeweled the dark old tree;
He sang to his mate in rapture
A song of the sky and free:
No cloud marred his life's horizon,
He knew neither fear nor pain,
But only that day chases silvery night
And that sunshine succeeds cool rain.

She is a dainty lady,
In satin and rare old lace,
But her beautiful form and features
But mirror her soul's disgrace.
For over her fair white shoulders
Is hanging the mother's hide,
And the bright glossy wing in her burnished hair,
Was torn from the singer's side.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Just at this time of the year those of our feathered friends who stay with us throughout the twelve months of the year often find it difficult to get enough food in keep themselves alive. Sometimes, in the case of a big blizzard it is impossible for them to find food and they die off in large numbers. As long as the ground is bare the birds are able to find more or less food, but when the ground is covered with ice and snow, then they are in trouble.

Many people aid the birds by providing little houses for them to live in during the winter months. This is a great help as it gives them protection from the icy blasts and deep snow. But they must be able to find food and this is their chief occupation during the long winter months. One way in which boys and girls can help the birds get through the cold weather is to provide food for them, especially in stormy weather. This can be done by throwing crumbs, or grain in places where the birds will easily find them. Snow can be cleared away from a small spot on the farm or in the yard and crumbs and grain left there. A piece of suet tied in a tree will also be welcomed by the feathered folk.

Some people keep special feeding boards or shallow boxes in places frequented by birds and they provide food for them are more or less regular intervals. The birds soon learn where food is left for them and it spread the good news among their birds friends and acquaintances. Observation has shown that where one or two birds find scattered crumbs, etc., they quickly spread the tidings to other birds in some manner known only to themselves and it is not long before large numbers of hungry birds appear at the feeding place.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The Story of a Butterfly

Uncle Jed: Once I was a little caterpillar. Then my home was on an apple tree in the corner of an orchard.

No home could be prettier than was mine. The sun shone through the leaves and the soft wind rocked me to sleep. I had a queer looking body. It was brown with black spots on it. There was a large white spot on my back.

I did not breathe as boys and girls do but through little holes in my sides. I ate the leaves of the apple tree and grew very fast. I was soon too large for my skin.

What do you think happened then? My skin split open down the back and there was a bright new one underneath. I had four new dresses in this way. Each time the colors were different. Then I stopped eating.

By and by I fastened myself to a twig and shook myself out of my skin once more. This time instead of a new skin there was a queer hard shell over my body.

The tree rocked gently and I went to sleep. I think I must have slept a long time. When I awoke I made a little hole in the end of my shell and peeped out. I saw the green leaves and pretty blossoms.

I came out a little farther and looked around. There was the same old apple tree. The same bright sun was shining. I crawled out and stood on a brown twig. How strange I felt! I was not a crawling creeping thing any more, but a beautiful butterfly.

My wings are yellow and black. I have six legs and on my head are two long horns or feelers. I take in my food through a long tube which is curled up out of sight when I am not eating. I lead a very jolly life. Who would not be a gay butterfly?

A Vacation Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: During my summer vacation I went to visit my aunt and uncle in Hartford. And one day we took a trip over the Mohawk trail. It was a wonderful sight, the scenery was beautiful. We went over and back. We had two blowouts on the way home which made traveling rather slow. When we got back to Hartford it was about eleven o'clock. My uncle took me through the electric light plant. It was an interesting and unusual experience.

A Trip in the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a trip by cousin and I took in the woods last summer.

We took a lunch and after eating it went around picking flowers. We went up on a high hill picking some pinks. I touched a big black snake and I screamed and we both ran and jumped over a stone wall and a landed in a pig pen. We ran out very fast and did not jump over any more stone walls unless we knew what was on the other side.

We saw many caves and huts.

It was growing dark and we had to start to go home. We had many flowers. When we got home we were very tired. We shall never forget that because we had such a good time.

Wants to Be School Nurse

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you what I am going to be. I am going to be a nurse. I am going to looke after the children in school. Then I am going to tell them to wash their faces and brush their teeth. And when their hands are dirty, I am going to send them home. I'm going to tell them that they should have clean handkerchiefs.

JOSEPHINE LIPSKY, Age 10.

Why Voters Should Vote

Dear Uncle Jed: We had to write a composition in school entitled, Why Voters Should Vote. So I thought I would send it in to the Wide Awake Circle. Voters should vote because voting is an opportunity as well as a privilege. It is a privilege granted to every person in the United States when they become of age, or are made a citizen and it is the duty of every one to vote and use their influence to elect for president the man who is interested in the welfare of our country.

All the other offices on the tickets should be selected as carefully as for president. A man who has been spoken well of by his townsmen is considered a good citizen.

Voters should vote for a person who is able to fulfill the position and is loyal to his country and people.

OLIVE E. RATHBUN, Age 13.

Hot Weather

Dear Uncle Jed: Those words bring to my mind distasteful memories of some time spent last summer, weeding my onions. How hard I worked while old Sol sent burning rays down on my blistered back! The humidity of those days was the worst in many years. Perspiration was continually running down my forehead. The air was still, but once in a while a lazy bee would drone by. Everything looked red, and hot. How I longed for some clear, cold water, and a rest from that everlasting weeding.

FRANCIS J. SULLIVAN, Age 14.

Catching Colds

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story and hope I will succeed. The fall is the time when people catch cold. A cold is not always a mild ailment. Often it prepares the way for more serious troubles, such as influenza, pneumonia and tuberculosis. Sometimes it is the beginning of serious inflamations of the ears and nose. The common cold is caused by germs. It is, therefore, catching. Keep in good condition. Strong bodies are needed to fight off colds. Good, simple food, sufficient sleep and exercise always help.

Keep your living and sleeping rooms properly ventilated. Windows should be kept open at the top and bottom, especially at night. Wear clothing out of doors that fits the prevailing weather. If you suffer from colds every fall and winter, go to your doctor for examination. You may have enlarged tonsils, adenoids, or some other defect that needs attention. Go out into the open air and get hardened to winter weather.

Playing Indian

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer I went to my grandma's. My grandpa built us a wigwam to play in. My sister Doris and my brother Clayton were Indians. My sister Doris and I were white people. We went to see the Indians. They were kind Indians. They made bows and arrows. They would shoot at the hens. Then my father came up to my grandma's to cut down a big tree. When the tree fell we ran and got in the limbs and sang. It did not take long to cut the tree.

My Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a dog whose name is Tootsie. He can do many tricks, he can swim, jump, catch a ball and he fit with his paw.

When Tootsie and I play school he always barks and wags his tail when ever I ask him a question. When I bring in wood for the stove, he is right on the job, always willing to help.

Likes Radio Concerts

Dear Uncle Jed: I spent last week end with a girl friend. And I was entertained with the radio. I heard the bed time stories, speaches and selections from as far as Utah. I heard Providence, Chicago, Washington, D. C., Schenectady, New York city, Newark, Boston, and other stations.

There are many wonderful things in this world to make us happy, but I think the radio is the most wonderful of all.

Fell Off Sled

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am eight years old and in the third grade. I have a dog. His name is Ivan. Every time he wants to come in he scratches on the door. Thirteen Eggs, Fourteen Chicks

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a boy of thirteen years old and lived on a farm. My father had two cows, three calves, one horse, two cats, one dog and some chickens. I got a black hen for Christmas two years ago. She began laying eggs. By and by she wanted to set so I put thirteen eggs under her and got fourteen little chicks.

My Trip to Ashford

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you to tell you all about my journey from New York to Ashford Connecticut. One August the twenty ninth, our family moved to Connecticut. It was a very pleasant journey. We sailed on a steamboat the Richard Peck. Inside the boat were dining rooms, small staterooms, and lots of chairs and small tables.

The boat started at five P. M. and reached New London at two A. M. a long time. We [illegible]owe We were on the water nine hours, and on the train four hours.

Willimantic is fourteen miles from where the farm was located. The man on the farm came to the station in Willimantic for us, and took us home in his automobile.

For three months our well was dry, and now we have all the water we need. I am in the fifth grade, and I am trying very hard to get promoted in the sixth. The country school is much different than the city school. The city school is also much larger. Our teacher is working very hard to make our school one hundred per cent. We have lots of winter sports, and I am glad we came to live in the country.

Our Christmas at School

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about our Christmas at the Voluntown Center school. We had a tree and it had pictures of Santa Claus, and it had popcorn strung on it. We all got a present. I got a pencil tablet with a picture of a dog on it. After the tree we all got oranges and we broke pieces. We all had a very good time.

How the Parrot Settled It

Dear Uncle Jed: My father had a bird dog, a very handsome pointer and I must tell you how he was spoiled for hunting. It was so funny a circumstance that my father always laughed when he told the story although he was much vexed to lose so good a game dog.

My mother had a parrot given to her and the first time the dog came into the room where the bird was he stopped and pointed. The parrot slowly crossed the room and came up in front of the dog and looked him square in the eye and then after a moment said she, You're a rascal.

The dog was so much astonished to hear a bird speak that he dropped his tail between his legs wheeled about and ran away and from that day to this he has never been known to point at a bird.

Visited Devil's Hop Yard

Dear Uncle Jed: I received the book that I won, and was very much pleased with it. The book is very interesting to read and I will thank you very much for it. I will also write you a story about some of my adventures. Of course some parts of my story is just made up so as to make it interesting. The title of my story is Adventuring

One bright Sunday morning after breakfast I packed my dinner and started on an adventuring trip to a place called the Devil's Hop Yards in East Haddam. Of course not far from the place where I live now.

Well anyway I had a chance to explore places in East Haddam. After they had their dinners packed we started off. We walked and walked for about a mile and soon reached a lumber camp. We decided to start adventuring from this camp.

We began to climb a great ledge. On this ledge grew great hemlocks. As we were tramping about we found a path. We followed it and soon found it led to a den of a fox.

After a while we left the Hemlock ledge and clambered down to a wide rapid brook which was full of great rocks and stones. This brook we titled the Rocky Brook.

About this time we felt hungry. So we looked for a shady spot which we soon found. I kindled a fire and cut a nice fishing pole fixed on my line which I found in my pocket. By this time Dick and Andy got some fat worms and I sat down to fish. After catching a couple of fine trout I cleaned them and got them ready to broil. Thus we made a fine dinner which we enjoyed very much.

When we were satisfied we banked the fire and went on adventuring. We went to the Devils Swimming Hole and many other places.

What I Dreamed

Dear Uncle Jed: Last night I dreamed that I was among Indians. I did not have anyone with me so I was frightened. It was very dark and cold.

All of a sudden I heard a noise behind me and I thought it was an Indian so I began to run as fast as I could. When I had run a short ways I stopped and looked back, but there was nobody to be seen so I crept back very slowly. When I had gotten back to where I was at first I found out that nobody had chased me because I saw no tracks. I watched there a short time then I heard another noise. I looked to see what it was and I saw a large number of Indians after me.

Then I began to run as fast as I could. I kept ahead of them for a short time but all of a sudden my shoe came off so I stopped to put it on again, but the first thing I knew the Indians were upon me. One of them raised a large sword and was about to kill me when all of a sudden I awoke with a start and found myself in my bed. I was very glad of this for I did not want to get killed.

A Box of Apples

Dear Uncle Jed: One day mother sent sister and I to the store for a package of dried apples. On the way home sister and I started to eat the apples. Before we got home the box was half empty. When mother opened the box she found it was full of worms. Just think, Uncle Jed, sister and I ate half the apples, worms and all. That surely will teach me a lesson never to take anything again.

In Cold Countries

Dear Uncle Jed: It is fun for our boys and girls when winter comes, and the ground is white with snow. Then they can play with their sleds and build men and houses of snow. This is all very fell for a while, but how many boys and girls would like to live where it is winter nearly the whole year round?

There are such places. One is Greenland, so called, but very little green is to be found there, for the ground is cered with snow many many months covered with snow nearly every month in the year. The people of Greenland are called Eskimos. Many of them live in snow houses; these houses are quite warm, and are made warmer by have lamps in which fat is burned. The clothes of the Eskimo are made of the skins of animals. An Eskimo would look very queer to us, if we should see him dressed for cold weather, but his clothes are warm and that is what is needed in his country.

There are no horses in Greenland, so dogs are used in their stead. The Eskimo dog is a large, strong beast, and looks something like a wolf. About twelve of these dogs will draw a sled with a heavy load for many miles for days and days.

Eskimo children like to play as much as other children do, but their play is made a help to work. As the Eskimo man must know how to shoot, the Eskimo boys first toy is a bow and a bundle of arrows. As the man must drive dogs, the boys first playfellows are young dogs, which he drives before a little sled. In this way, before he grows to be a man, the boys lean to shoot and to dive.

One Summer Day in May

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you of a walk I had with two other girls in the woods one summer day in May. The flowers we are all in bloom and the birds were humming and the bees were buzzing. We stopped to listen to them and while we were waiting we heard someone call for help and we ran in the direction in which the call came from and when we got there we saw a little boy who had been swimming and got cramps and could swim no longer. We could not get him out so we called for help and a man passing by came and got him out. He thanks us and we finished our walk and went home very happy.

Her First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awakes and I am going to tell you what happened to me, and two other little girls, one day when we were coming home from school.

It was raining hard, and the sidewalks were very icy. After coming along alright, holding each others arm, one of us slipped, and we all tumbled into a big puddle of muddy water, near my gate. We got all wet, and quick.

A Kind Deed Is Rewarded

Dear Uncle Jed: Dora was a little girl who lived with her mother who was a widow. Her mother earned a living by sewing. One day Dora went shopping for her mother. Her mother gave he five cents to spend for herself. When she was coming home she met a man who had recently failed in business and didn't even have enough money for food. Dora noticed him and said, "Please take this money." The man accepted it and thought I will pay her back some day. In later years Dora's mother took sick and was taken to the hospital. The doctors had very little hope for her recovery. They told Dora to go to an orphan's home. Dora started out and came to a beautiful residential district. She went up to a beautiful house and asked if this was the orphans Home. The people said, no. She walked up the stairs and recognized the man to whom she had given her money to for food. The man started in business and was successful. He told Dora to come to live with him. Dora's mother did recover after all. She also went to spend her days with Dora and her friend.

My Trip to Bridgeport

Dear Uncle Jed: This summer my sister and brother-in-law came to visit us. When they were going to leave they asked me if I'd like to go down and stay with them for a week or so, Of course I said, "Yes."

We started on the next Saturday in their car. When we came into Willimantic we stopped at our friends house for a while. Every thing went well until we came to New Haven and there we had a blowout in the front tire. It took us about an hour and a half to fix it. In the meantime my sister and I had a light lunch. We arrived in Bridgeport about nine thirty. After having some supper we went to bed.

The next morning I arose and ate breakfast. In the afternoon we went to Pleasure Beach. At this place I saw one of the smallest locomotives that were ever made. It was there to carry people around the beach for ten cents. I took my niece for two or three rides. It was some difference from a large train.

In a weeks time it was time to go home. I took the train from Bridgeport to Hartford and then the jitney from there to Willimantic to Baltic home with a horse and buggy for six miles. There was one thing though. I was going home to my old home town.

A Poor Lame Boy

Dear Uncle Jed: Out for a motor trip one day. We called on friends in South Hadley Falls. There we met a poor lame boy. He is eight years old; but he cannot run about and play like other children. When a baby he had a dreadful fall one day and was so much hurt that he has never been able to walk a single step. He must always be a cripple. His father was killed in the war but he has a mother and a sister who do all that they can to make him happy. They live in a pretty cottage in the country. Climbing roses and morning glories and honeysuckles are trained over its porch and around the windows. There is a beautiful garden, too, in front of the house. He takes great comfort in sitting at the open window, and looking at the birds and the flowers. He has some pets for his amusement, one a pretty kitten back as a coal, another a bird. But he likes his dog Fritzo.

But in pleasant weather it is hard to keep Prince indoors. He soon makes his escape down the road. The boy watches him from the window; and his blue eyes sometimes fill with tears when he thinks he cannot go too. He bones so for a good run out of doors that he can hardly bear to sit still. Then the mother comes and gits by his side, and talks to him, and tells him stories until he brightens up again and forgets that he is lame.

Went Trapping

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I went into the woods and set my traps. At seven o'clock every morning I went around to look at them. For a long time they were just as I left them. Last Wednesday was bright, and sunny, and I could see from our back yard that one of my traps was empty. I ran as fast as I could. When I got there, I saw a dead skunk in one of the traps, and a muskrat in the other. I got one of my schoolmates to skin them. Then I sent them to New York and sold them. I gave the money to my mother and now I have a new pair of leather boots.

ARace

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my vacation. I told my brother I could beat him skating and he said I couldn't. So on New Year's day we had a race but he beat me. Then we went over across the pond and cut down a big tree. While we were working two of my schoolmates came along skating. I asked my brother if I could go with them. By the time I got my skates on they had gone home. My oldest brother, my sister, sister-in-law and little niece came over in the afternoon and I had a nice time playing. Then they went home and I filled up the woodbox.

Dear Uncle Jed; I am going to tell you about a glassblowing demonstration. Tuesday afternoon we were asked to bring a dime to help pay for the glass the man used. It was very interesting. I hope you will like my story.

Robinson Crusoe

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you a short story about Robinson Crusoe. At one time Crusoe built a boat because he wished to leave the island on which he had been shipwrecked. It took him twenty days to cut down a tree and fourteen more to hack off the branches. He spent a month in shaping the boat on the outside and three in scooping out the inside. When he was finished, he had a fine boat and he was very proud of it. But what do you think? The boat was so heavy that he could not get it into the water! This taught Crusoe such a good lesson that the time and hard work were not really wasted.

The Leaves

Dear Uncle Jed: I translated this from a poem from a Jewish Journal.

A storm wind arose in the forest. The leaves began to talk between themselves. "How hard it is to be torn off from the tree and be blown by the wind far away ahead of time. Yes, it also is not good to die later when the cold and frost comes. We know that the world goes this way. Why is it supposed to happen this way to us now? When the sun warms every blade of grass which lies on the earth to be trod upon by everyone."

The wind gradually began to increase. The tree hardly gave a sign of movement. The leaves said, "We are the first which the wind has shown his strength upon." A farmer who had come into the forest to pick some wood heard the leaves talking. He began to talk to them.

"Worried fools what you are, you ought to be proud, for the time you have your beautiful color. It seems you are willing to lose them ahead of time. Just the tree to be left untouched."

Mrs. Grouse Proves Herself a True Friend

Who willingly his aid doth lend
Thus proves himself in truth a friend.
—Peter Rabbit.

When Mrs. Grouse found just how long Peter had been kept a prisoner in the bramble-tangle, and how he really needed to get out in order to get something to eat, she promptly said that she would help him. You know Peter and Mrs. Grouse are old friends.

"But I don't see how you can help," said Peter.

"I can do it all right," replied Mrs. Grouse. "Just now there isn't any one watching excepting Reddy Fox.

Then out from that clump of hemlock trees stole Reddy Fox

After I have rested a while I will lead Reddy away. Then you will have a chance to use those long legs of yours."

So after a while Mrs. Grouse said that she was ready. "What are you going to do?" asked Peter.

"Watch me," replied Mrs. Grouse.

She walked out of the bramble-tangle right into the open. She walked just as if she didn't suspect that any one was watching her. Peter watched her. He saw that she took care to keep well away from a little clump of hemlock trees. She walked along as if she hadn't a care in the world, and she headed straight for two of three little hemlock trees with branches bent down by the snow. Under these she disappeared. Peter watched for her to come out on the other side, but she didn't.

Then out from that other clump of hemlock trees stole Reddy Fox. He moved quickly, but oh so carefully. His eyes were fixed on the place where Mrs. Grouse had disappeared. Peter's heart went into his mouth, or at least it seemed to. He wanted to warn Mrs. Grouse, but he couldn't. Reddy was halfway to where Mrs. Grouse disappeared when he stopped and crouched motionless. Then Peter saw Mrs. Grouse walking out from the other side of those little trees. She was still walking as if she didn't suspect danger anywhere near.

As soon as she was out of sight behind a tree Reddy Fox ran swiftly to the place where she had been, and Peter could see him crouching under those hemlock branches and watching in the direction of Mrs. Grouse. A moment later Mrs. Grouse appeared again. Every time she disappeared behind a tree Reddy Fox crouched forward silently and swiftly. At last Peter could see neither Mrs. Grouse nor Reddy Fox. They had disappeared among the trees.

Peter knew that now was his chance. He slipped out of the bramble-tangle and away he went in another direction as fast as his long legs could take him, flippety-flippety-flip. He understood just what Mrs. Grouse had been doing. She had been leading Reddy Fox away so as to give Peter that chance. But Peter was filled with a dreadful fear that Reddy Fox might get Mrs. Grouse after all. He couldn't get over that feeling. He felt that she was running a dreadful risk and doing it all for him.

At last, way off in the distance he heard a faint roar like distant thunder. Then Peter knew that Mrs. Grouse had taken to those stout wings of hers and that Reddy Fox had failed to catch her. Peter no longer need worry about this friend who had helped him in his time of trouble. Happily he hurried on.

My Trip to Florida

Dear Uncle Jed: I have had a very good time in Florida and now I have come back. I am going to tell you all about it. I started from New York city and I took the eight o'clock train. I liked to sit at the window and look at the scenery. We had lots of stops. But when we came to Washington we had to change cars.

After we changed trains, we had lots of stops and I thought we would never get to Jacksonville but at last we arrived.

As soon as we arrived, I went outside and I was surprised at seeing so many colored people, but I soon got used to them. We stayed in Jacksonville one year then we moved out to Tampa.

I could not drink the water in Tampa because it was salty.

There were lots of ants in Tampa, but I used to go swimming nearly every day. We stayed in Tampa two years, then we came back north.

GEO. FISCHER'S PAY ENVELOPE MYSTERY IN NEW LONDON DEATH

New London, Jan. 25.—George Fischer, about 50, employed at Zepp's bakery, 39 Main street, died suddenly Saturday morning at the Coffee Pot restaurant, 159 Main street, death resulting from heart trouble. The man's home is at Riverhead, N. Y., although he had resided at 417 East Fifth street and 147 First avenue, New York, prior to coming to New London a few months ago. Because of the circumstances surrounding the death of Fischer, Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman late Saturday afternoon performed an autopsy, but nothing criminal was found as a result of that action.

Fischer worked Friday night and shortly before 8 o'clock he was given his salary, $45, by his employer. The money was in a new pay envelope and a few minutes later Fischer left the place, presumably to go to his home. About 8.05 o'clock he entered the Coffee Pot restaurant and immediately collapsed, dying before a physician could be summoned. When Fischer's clothing was searched only $5 was found, this sum being in a worn paper envelope. Where Fischer was relieved of the balance of the $45 paid him by his employer has not been determined by the police.

Mrs. Richard Forsythe and infant son, of Thames street; Mrs. Max Marcus, Truman street; Mrs. Emma Matterson, West Coit street; Miss Veronica O'Connell, Montauk avenue anw. Miss Hazel Goyette, Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

The funeral of James Greenwood, formerly of New London, whose demise occurred at his home in Hartford several days ago, was held Saturday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wolfschlaeger. The bearers were Alfred Saindon, John Kenyon, George Stanton, Richard Morgan, Joseph Daley and A. E. Saindon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Joseph A. St. Germain has sold a building lot on Sherman street to P. Paul Cavanaugh.

Lieut. Merlin O'Neill, United States Coast Guard Academy, and Miss Esther Emeline Tuttle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elihue S. Tuttle, of 107 Federal street, were married Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the First Church of Christ. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the church.

Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan grand opera singer, who has been ill at her apartment at the Hotel Mohican for several days as a result of a sudden attack of stomach trouble, was able to board the 6.06 o'clock train for Boston Saturday evening, so rapidly had her condition improved in the past 48 hours. Miss Ponselle will return to New London February 13th and give the concert which she was compelled to postpone last Thursday because of her illness.

A young girl, about 12, residing in East street, was arrested Saturday noon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, who received complaint from the manager of the Woolworth Five and Ten Cent store that the girl was shoplifting. At the police station the girl was turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, the accused being a minor and later was ordered to her home. Instead of returning home, the girl went back to the five-and-ten-cent store where she again started to apply her talents, with the result that she was again detected stealing articles from one of the counters. The manager of the store took charge of the girl and communicated with the police. Sergeant Nelson Smith going to the store and taking the girl into custody again. The accused was again placed in the custody of the probation officer, but this time it was made certain that the girl went to her home. The manager of the store was somewhat angered because the girl was not locked up at the police station when first arrested, but he evidently was not familiar with the laws as regards juvenile arrests.

William Butler, of Niantic, a peddler of crash toweling, appeared at the police station Saturday night and made it known that he was the peddler complained of the day before by Duncan Sinclair, 26 Linden street, who informed the police that a peddler had been at the Sinclair home and had been found roaming in the attic. Butler declared that he did not visit the attic or any part of the Sinclair house, other than the entrance, where he offered for sale his merchandise.

Leno Bottinelli, 22 Reed street, reported to the police Saturday evening that his overcoat had been stolen from the pool room, 26 Bank street. Bottinelli declared that he left the garment suspended from a hanger while he went next door to have his shoes shined and while he absented himself the overcoat was stolen.

The probe of the special committee of the city council by a special committee, together with City Manager William A. Holt, appointed to determine the efficiency of the police department, will be resumed next Tuesday night when one or more newspapermen will be quizzed by the committee.

Mrs. Samuel Berkowitz and infant daughter, of Connecticut avenue; Mrs. Fredueck, Westerly; Max Apanashk, Harrison street, and Thomas Muscarello, Shaw street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

James Taylor was charged in the police court Saturday with a breach of the peace and an assault upon his step-son, Dennis Mahoney. Taylor had a beautiful jag that he said came from two drinks of booze. Taylor said he slapped Mahoney a couple of times and what James and his mother said left no doubt as to the assault. Dennis is about 31. His mother married Taylor and since then Dennis has been out of health. Recently he has undergone treatment for appendicitis. He could not do laborious work immediately after coming from the hospital. When James had a few squirts of booze in he did not take that fact into consideration, so Friday he insisted that Dennis should do his share toward the support of the house where Taylor and his wife reside. Dennis was feeling so indifferent that he did not want to eat supper Friday, and James was in no mood to tolerate that sort of thing, so he slapped Dennis to the extent that he made the blood flow. Then Dennis entered complaint at the police station and James was arrested.

He had no excuse to make, except that he lost his patience. That is not considered a valid defense for an assault and Judge Prince fined James $50, which fine took him to jail where he will stay the next 60 days or so to work out the fine and the costs. Mrs. Taylor was not averse to James going to jail. She said he did not work much and that her son was entitled to more sympathy than James was. She was quite willing to be deprived of the support that James gave her, if he should be committed to jail.

A break in one of the city's water mains on Main street, near John street, this morning, caused a quantity of water to enter the store of Richard Brater, 102. Brater communicated with the police and the latter notified the water and sewer department, resulting in repairs being made and the flod of water stopped.

An employe of the Sea Grill, 8 Golden street, reported to the police early this morning that he had found a young man in the restaurant when the place was opened for business and that the fellow had stolen money from the cash register. An investigation by the police resulted in George Kalogine, one of the proprietors, informing the police that he accused had been given permission to sleep in the restaurant Saturday night and that no money had been taken from the cash register.

C. L. Gordon, 238 Bank street, reported to the police Saturday evening that a broadcloth suit, with astrakhan collar, had been stolen from his automobile, earlier in the day and while his machine was parked on Pequot avenue, south of Maple avenue.

Martin M. Dray, Hempstead street, employed by the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, entered Lawrence hospital today and will undergo a surgical operation within a day or two.

Joseph Oddo, proprietor of a barber shop at 29 Shaw street, was arrested Saturday by Patrolman William Babcock on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, charging Oddo with violaton of the barber law in working as a barber without having obtained a certificate of registrations required by the general statutes, of 1913, Section 2971. The accused finished a surety on his bond of $50 in Giovanni Cascio for his appearance in the police court Monday morning.

The arrest of Oddo, it is understood, is the result of the accused having vacated his membership in the barbers' union and having opened an independent establishment, an act that has disgruntled the members of the union, so much that they lodged complaint against Oddo with the prosecuting attorney. Oddo has been employed for a number of years as a journeyman barber in various shops in the city and only recently left the union.

A break in the city's water main in front of the property, 670 Bank street, was discovered late this afternoon by Patrolman Augustus Ray. The break was reported to the water and sewer department and a force of workers were assigned to the task of making repairs.

A sequence to the battle at the union station several days ago when Sergeant Martin Kane of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad suffered a fractured nose and the loss of several teeth being attacked by a gang of sailors of the United States Coast Guard, took place last night and today when Henry L. Fairbanks and Henry A. Sullivan, sailors, who are alleged to have participated in the battle with the railroad police, and who escaped at the time were apprehended. Fairbanks was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman William Babcock on a warrant alleging breach of the peace and Sullivan was apprehended this forenoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman James McKenna. Both are being held in bonds of $300 for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Fairbanks obtained a surety on his bond, but Sullivan was locked up. It is claimed that Fairbanks and Sullivan made their escape while the fight was in progress fleeing when they observed the city police officers approaching to give aid to the railroad police.

A woman residing on Union street in passing through Crystal avenue early this evening and with her purse suspended from her wrist, was approached by a man, believed to be a foreigner, who inquired where she was going and how much money she had in the purse. The woman upbraided the man who disappeared when he observed several men approaching.

Thomas Jordan, employed by the American Railway Express company, is confined to his home, Hill street, by an attack of the grip.

Miss Patricia Cassidy, daughter of Policewoman Jane Cassidy, returned to her employment in New York this evening after having spent the week end with her mother in this city.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Episcopal church, is ill at his home, Hempstead street, having been a suffered from a severe attack of grip.

A woman passenger at the union station had a close call late Sunday afternoon, when she attempted to board a moving east bound passenger train. The woman, who arrived at the station late to board the 5.23 o'clock train for Boston, attempted to step to the train after it got into motion. Her act was observed by Special Agent Edward Montgomery, who rushed to the tracks and seized the woman, thereby preventing her from carrying out her intention and probably saving her the loss of a limb or possibly fatal injury.

LAWRENCE DE COURSEY DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 25.—Lawrence DeCoursey, 28, son of Mrs. Mary and the late Harry DeCoursey, died suddenly at his home, 50 Warren street, Saturday morning, death resulting of but a few hours' illness of acute asthma and cardiac dilation. Besides his mother, Mr. DeCoursey is survived by a brother, Harry DeCoursey, of New York, and by a sister, Mrs. Alfred E. Skalling, 95 Montauk avenue.

Mr. DeCoursey left his home Friday evening and went to the home of the Knights of Columbus, Huntington street. He remained there an hour or two, when he was taken ill and so serious did his condition become that Drs. Charles Kaufman and Charles Satti were summoned. After the man was prescribed for he was taken to his home. His condition did not improve, but became worse, and he expired about 6.30 o'clock.

JEWETT CITY

The eclipse was viewed by many in this section who all-but missed parts of the show while giving undivided attention to others. Some all-but lost the corona while looking in the west for the approaching shadow, while others nearly failed to see the display of plants which appeared for a time, close to the main picture, because of attention to the sun alone. Probably 300 climbed to the top of Taylor Hill, where the view was unsurpassed by any situation in this vicinity. The wonderful colors of the horizon before and during the eclipse and as the light began to brighten could not have been seen to better advantage. The approach of the shadow was scarcely noticeable, and the snow-covered ground made the atmosphere not so dark as many expected. But the interior of buildings was as dark as at night. Several said they saw the spectrum colors at the left of the sun and the shadow bands were plainly visible to many. The roofs of many buildings were occupied by observers, and not a cloud obscured the awe-inspiring phenomenon for almost the whole period.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilbert kept open house and served doughnuts and coffee to their friends, as a number went out toward Pachaug for the view. An automobile party from Northbridge, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Franklin of Southbridge, Mass., Morton Brown from Ashburnham, Mass., came to see the eclipse. Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Richardson entertained a party of six who came for this purpose. They were Miss Helen Hawkins, Charles and George Richardson of Lancaster, Mass., Harold French of Clinton, Mass., Allerton and Clara Cushman of Worcester, Mass.

William M. McNicol has left for a trip west. His office in Maynard bld. is always open for business callers.—adv.

One person in this vicinity celebrated his birthday Saturday, and that was H. T. Jeffers of Sylvandale.

Rooms, steam heated, modern improvements, at Mrs. A. Dufresne's, 23 Soule St.—adv.

The eclipse was not without its funny side, for people were seen about the streets with all sorts of smoked devices. One man had a pane of glass, 28x18, all shaded to taste. There were some who gained a fine view by smoking the tube end lense of an opera glass, thus gaining not only the diameter extension but the obscurity needed from the glare of the sun.

Mrs. E. M. Gray tells of seeing, without any preparation, one of the peculiar phases of the phenomenon. The keyhole of an inside hall door came just in line at one point during the coming up of the shadow with a southeastern window. Mrs. Gray, on passing through the room, noticed the beam of light as it streamed from the keyhole. Approaching, she was not a little astonished to see on the floor of the darkened hall the eclipse in miniature, slowly advancing along the carpet. Mr. Gray said Sunday that if he happened to be here when the next total eclipse took place he would have his house set on a pivot, so it could be turned with the sun, then his family wouldn't be obliged to go out and freeze as they did Saturday.

During the minutes of totality the morning train from Providence was standing still at the Oneco station. The conductor gave the "highball" signal to his engine driver with a lighted lantern.

O. E. S. entertainment com. are planning Valentine dance Feb. 13.—adv.

A Jewett City man who happened to be in Providence Saturday morning tried to buy a ticket for the Westerly special, which was running in seven sections. He was told that the tickets had been all sold early the day before and at that time, 6 a. m., the station was full of people, anxious and willing to pay any price for an opportunity to go on one of these trains. The fare, round trip, was $3.13 from Boston. Nine thousand went from there alone, with half as many more disappointed.

Old Cluey Watson says that something came to him, in the line of a peculiar experience, as he viewed the solar eclipse Saturday, alone, standing on the very topmost crag of Mt. Misery. He asked Sunday if anyone in this section was alone, with not a single living thing in sight, when true to some wonderful little understood schedule, the moon's shadow first began to obscure the face of the sun. The old man says he is glad he shall never see another eclipse, for never did he feel, he said, so peculiar before, and his hat is off to the man who could figure that it was due.

Andrew Bellevance has filled his new icehouse with 1,400 tons of 12 and 13-inch ice.

The Congregational Christian Endeavor society is planning a social for Thursday evening as a get-together time, with a program, games and refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Horned Lark are in town for their accustomed winter visit and have been seen in the road below Hopeville and near Fred Gilbert's. The male has blue wings, a grayish back and white throat and underparts, his head is crested and he has a band passing across the back of his head and down the sides of his neck. He is just down from Labrador and Newfoundland and though never having seen a total solar eclipse he has viewed many beautiful displays of the aurora borealis.

The Pachaug Ladies' Aid society is to meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parsonage.

NOANK

The Noank fishermen are complaining about the manoeuvers of the coast guard in connection with the war against rum-running. Harry E. Douglas, owner of the Lena D., while on the fishing grounds off Watch Hill, dragging his net for fish, was caused a great deal of trouble when hailed by the patrol boat CG-236 of the New London base. It came directly across his bow. It was a case of ramming the coast guard boat or allowing his net to foul. He did the latter and after the sailors left the boat his nets were all tangled up.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gowdy of Boston have been visiting Mrs. Gowdy's sister, Mrs. Jane Carson. Mrs. Gowdy expects to remain a week but Mr. Gowdy returned Saturday.

Samuel Z. Chesebro of Noank has leased part of the Pendleton brick building and wharf in Stonington for the establishment of an icing and fish-packing station.

Frank Lamphere of New London is visiting at the home of John Kelly.

The weekly whist was held at the fireroom for the Ladies' auxiliary. The prizes were won by Miss Josephine Shandoer and Rollin Rathburn, also to Mrs. Irving Thompson and Lewis Lamb. Refreshments were served.

The pool teams played the past week. Team D beat A and Team B beat Team C.

A few from the village helped serve the chicken pie supper which officers of Mystic Rebekah lodge provided for their brothers, I. O. O. F., at their 34th anniversary and roll call.

Frank Crane of Minnesota is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Anna Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown of Philadelphia were recent callers on friends in the village.

Mrs. Irving Thompson is entertaining relatives from Hartford.

The coldest weather for the winter prevailed in the village Friday, with the temperature at zero and below.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

TAFTVILLE

As the local stores and industries closed for the occasion, Taftville people had a fine opportunity to witness the eclipse Saturday morning. Hundreds of people climber the hills about the town where they could get a good view of the eclipse. With the aid of smoked glass, photographic plates and developed films, it was possible to watch the progress of the moon as it covered the sun. The great and much heralded shadow sweeping at enormous speed from the northwest failed to put in an appearance, and if there were wonderful fireworks and explosions around the sun as had been stated in previous reports, they were not visible to the naked eye. During totality it was possible to see the reddish light of the sun around the edges of the moon, the vivid hues such as had been described as being the corona, were missing. The planets and one of the major stars were visible, but the darkness was far from being the inky blackness as had been expected. The general people will not be interested in the total eclipse of the moon which is scheduled for February 5th.

SENATOR BRANDEGEE'S HOME REMODELLED INTO OFFICES

The late Senator Frank B. Brandegee's residence at 17th and Eye streets, in Washington, is being partially torn down and will be remodelled in an office building by President Smith of the District Title Insurance Co., who now owns it.

Wor has already started. All of the first floor and cellar windows have been torn open and the debris is piled on the aristocratic front lawn. The work has devastated every room on the first floor so far. The walls will remain standing as at present, so that the outward appearance of the building will not be greatly changed, it is said. It is expected that the proposed new office building will be ready for occupancy in about six months.

The once dignified old house looks much of a skeleton this week. The passer-by can look into it and through it. The late senator's private study on the first floor is stripped of wall paper, and generally ripped up, and open to the storms and winds. The same is true of the parlor, which is on the corner of 17th and Eye streets and which used to hold many handsome furnishings.

It was in this parlor, now bleak and windswept, that Frank B. Brandegee, a little over three months ago spent his last day in the house—the day he lay in his coffin and the President of the United States and other notables came in and paid him tribute.

Too many quarrels are picked before they are ripe.

COMPLETED 20.92 MILES OF ROAD IN NEW LONDON COUNTY IN 1924

Indicative of the activity of the Connecticut state highway department during the last six months of the year 1924, was the finishing and acceptance of 20.92 miles of road in New London county.

Further details compiled by the state highway department show that in Middlesex, Windham, Tolland and New Haven counties on roads largely used by the motorist residents in New London county, 33.63 miles were completed during this period. In New Haven and Middlesex counties particularly the mileage completed was mainly on the Boston Post Road, a direct line from New London to New Haven. These various roads involving 28 separate contracts, cost $2,661,649.-09. It will be understood of course, that not all of this money was paid during the last six months of 1924, as some of the contracts were started during the preceding fiscal year. The unusually open winter enabled the department and contractors to continue work until late in December, which resulted in the completion and acceptance of various contracts which otherwise would have been carried over into the spring of 1925.

The work in New London county represented an outlay of $1,012,337.43 and covered the construction of 1.93 miles of macadam, 9.59 miles of concrete.

Town	Type	Length Miles	Cost
East Lyme	Concrete	2.06	130,800.00
Waterford	Concrete	3.19	165,000.00
Old Lyme	Concrete	3.19	173,500.00
Salem	Macadam	5.89	195,500.00
Groton	Concrete	.32	116,500.00
N. London	Concrete	.53	53,500.00
Stonington	Macadam	.26	6,287.43
Groton	Macadam	3.71	119,500.00
Groton	Macadam	1.47	32,500.00
Groton	Concrete	.22	19,250.00

The mileage and cost of these roads, by counties, is as follows:

County	Length	Cost
Tolland	12.18 miles	$ 407,665.76
Windham	4.95 miles	185,124.07
N. London	20.94 miles	1,012,337.43
Middlesex	5.53 miles	329,578.17
New Haven	10.97 miles	726,943.66

The following statement will give a summary of the outstanding features of highway improvements in the southeastern part of Connecticut during the year 1924:

Groton

In Mystic on what is known as Baptist Hill there has been completed an improvement of a section of the Post road. This consists essentially of a concrete pavement 22 to 26 feet in width and 7 inches in thickness, laid on easy grades the maximum of which is less than 9 per cent. and with an alignment which provides good vision on the two long radius curves. This section of the Post Road in its new location replaces a route through narrow streets with two grades of 12 per cent. and four sharp corners. The new route provides a paving in distance of approximately 250 feet. To accomplish the grade reduction it was necessary to remove thousands of cubic yards of ledge, i. e., 4,600 from a point practically surrounded with buildings. In order to obtain the present layout it was necessary to acquire 14 pieces of property, demolish two houses, move three others and one barn and raise a business block six feet. The length of this section is 2,042 feet.

Beginning on Bank square in Mystic the section of road to West Mystic and Noank known as Water street has been improved with a concrete pavement 18 feet in width on which one bad corner has been eliminated. The length of this section is 1,187 linear feet.

Motorists going to the borough of Groton Long Point will find a native stone macadam roadway sixteen feet wide and 7,745 feet in length recently completed from Main street and Brook street, Noank, to the Groton Long Point entrance. Here, too, betterments have been made in grade and line.

An alternate route from the Thames River bridge to Mystic is now provided via Center Groton and Old Mystic by the completion of a section of macadam from Center Groton to the end of the improved road just south of Old Mystic. This section is 16 feet in width and 3.70 miles in length in the town of Groton. In order to obtain a satisfactory grade and alignment at one point 6,000 cubic yards of rock excavation was necessary. Heavy traffic can now use this route and avoid Fort Hill.

New London

From the junction of Montauk avenue and Bank street to the Waterford town line a concrete pavement has just been completed which gives to the traffic on the Post Road a concrete roadway of an average width of 45 feet and 2781 feet in length, entirely within the limits of the city of New London. The trolley track have been removed from this section of highway allowing full use to other traffic. This pavement is of reinforced concrete 8 inches in thickness throughout, and is paid for partly by the city of New London.

Waterford

The Post Road from the New London city line west a distance of 3.17 miles has been resurfaced with reinforced concrete 20 feet wide, 8 inches in depth, and at what is known as Spithead a bad condition has been corrected where there previously existed a sharp blind curve.

East Lyme

On the Post road a section of 20 foot reinforced concrete pavement 8 inches in depth and 2.08 miles long has been completed. This section extends from a point one-half miles west of Flanders to what is known as the Plant road. Here the curves have been made much easier and safer by relocation.

Old Lyme

The Post road through the town of Old Lyme from what is known as the Coon Club to a point on the street in Old Lyme village near the Art Gallery, a distance of 3.2 miles, is now improved with a new reinforced concrete pavement 20 feet in width. Near the east end of this section a decided change in location was made to eliminate two curves, one of which was very sharp and provided a view of only a short section of the road ahead. For the new location here the abandoned trolley right-of-way was acquired and road built for it.

To complete the surfacing with concrete of the Post Road between New London and Saybrook Bridge there remains three sections to reconstruct totalling 6.5 miles.

Another feature of the department's work was the placing of hard surfaces on earth shoulders of various roads thus increasing the width of various highways which resulted in eliminating some of the danger features which formerly existed then too a marked saving in maintenance has been effected by this type of work. Formerly maintaining of earth shoulders was one of recurrent effort and expenditures, resulting in nothing of a permanent or semi-permanent nature. With the new method of improving these shoulders there will be a material reduction in labor involved, with a consequent saving in the cost of up-keep.

THAMESVILLE RESIDENCE DAMAGED BY FIRE

The residence of Thomas Grieves, No. 151, West Thames street, was damaged by fire to the extent of $1,500 shortly before one o'clock Saturday afternoon. The fire department was called out by an alarm from Box 132, Newcomb and West Thames street. The fire had gained considerable headway in the upper story of the house when the department was called out, but several water and chemical lines kept the flames from spreading.

The flames crept under the eaves and broke out through the roof. The extreme cold made it difficult to fight the blaze and the water froze as soon as it hit the building. The fire originated in the upper part of the house near the chimney and was probably caused by soot in the chimney catching fire.

The recall was sounded about 1.00 o'clock.

CHARGED WITH EVADING ACCIDENT RESPONSIBILITY

Frank Levanto, 30, of 54 Lake street was arrested there early Sunday evening on the charge of violating responsibility after an automobile accident when the car he was driving was in collision with the machine of Michael John, proprietor of a small store on Main street just over the Preston bridge. John secured the number of the Levanto car and reported it to the police who learned from Hartford that the owner was Charles Lavanto. The arrest of Frank Levanto followed when it was learned that he was driving the car at the time of the collision.

Paid For Traffic Rule Violations.

Two out of town motor vehicle drivers paid the customary $5 Sunday at police headquarters in settlement for parking in restricted areas. One man came from Waterford and the other from Mystic.

1,215 MOTOR VEHICLES REGISTERED WITHOUT CHARGE

Motor vehicles registered by the state of Connecticut last year without charge to the owners reached a total of 1,215, an increase of 319 over the number of such registrations in the year 1923. The owners in all instances were municipalities which, under the state law, are not required to pay fees for the registration of cars. The state law provides that "no registration fee or operator's license fee shall be charged in respect to any motor vehicle owned by a municipality and used exclusively for the conduct of municipal business; or in respect to any motor vehicle belonging to a military department used exclusively for official business."

Less than one-third as many municipal operators were licensed as such during the year as there were municipal cars registered, this being due to the fact that many of those who drive public cars in connection with their official duties drive privately-owned cars at other hours. There were 381 strictly "municipal operators" licensed last year, as against 195 in the previous year, making an increase of 186.

Out of $3,908,881.46 received by the department in registration fees during 1924, $2,766,530.32 was for 180,188 so-called private owners' registrations and $1,047,278.19 for commercial car registrations. The average registration fee for privately owned cars was $15.35 and the average for commercial cars $31.71. There were slightly more than one-sixth as many commercial cars as private cars. Seventy-three more public service registrations were issued in 1924 than in 1923. This is the type of registration issued for taxicabs, and the total number registered was 2,564. Three hundred and forty-four jitney licenses were issued as compared to 326 in 1923. This is the type of licenses issued for buses.

FRED WILDEY ELECTED WOOLEN CO. PRESIDENT

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Mystic Woolen company and the Fabyan Woolen company of Stafford Springs, held in New York city, Fred Wildey, who has been general manager of the Fabyan company for several years past, was made the president and general manager of both companies, succeeding the late Herman Hawister in these offices. Mr. Hawister died last summer in Europe.

Mr. Wildey has made his home at Stafford since coming from New York city several years ago to take over the managership of the Fabyan company which comprises three factories.

ECLIPSE RESPONSIBLE FOR CALL FOR FIREMEN

A few minutes after 9 o'clock Saturday morning the fire department received and answered a telephone call for a supposed fire at No. 433 East Main street. The firemen could find no fire and it is thought that the person who sent in the call thought the house was on fire due to the weird light cast by the sun during the eclipse.

MOTOR VEHICLE DEPARTMENT RETURNS BAD CHECKS

Bad checks received by the state motor vehicle department for registrations issued to be effective January 1 were found Friday to have reached a total of $3,107.96. These have been returned to the 79 persons and firms by whom they were presented in payment of registration fees, with a demand for a certified checks or money order covering the amount of the original fees, with an additional charge of five dollars authorized by law in such cases.

The policy of the department is to recall the registration certificate and markers in cases of failure or refusal to comply with the requirement for settlement within eight days. Another fee is charged to cover the cost of collecting the plates and certificates whenever a person or firm refuses to surrender them voluntarily, but it is rarely necessary to charge this fee, as most offenders are anxious to retain their registrations and usually make prompt settlement for the bad check.

Department receipts for the past calendar year included $1,115 in five-dollar forfeits for giving bad checks.

The department follows the same procedure with regard to uncollectible checks given in payment of the fee for operators' licenses. Operators licenses for 1925 are now being issued at the department and at its branch offices in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and New London. The procedure for obtaining these licenses is much simpler than that necessary to secure registrations, mail appuications receiving prompt attention. The recommendation in Governor Bingham's inaugural message that legislation be adopted to require operators to show their licenses to uniformed policemen upon demand is expected to cause unprecedented increase in the number of operators' licenses issued this year.

THE CENTURION'S FAITH CITED BY FATHER GALVIN

Yesterday was the third Sunday after Epiphany. In all the Catholic churches throughout the world the epistle read in the various masses was Romans 12.16-21 and the gospel was Matthew 8. 1-13, the latter the narration of the healing of the centurion's servant. Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin considered the practical faith of the centurion as an example for all Catholics.

The Jews, God's own chosen people, far from showing humility in the great favors which the Almighhty had showered upon them, became puffed up, scorned all others as Gentiles, accepted God's gifts as due to their individual excellence. At this time the Roman centurion, a pagan, a Gentile, proud as were all Romans, was commanding a garrison in Palestine, a conquered land. Yet he could see in the Saviour some one supernatural; and although a man in authority, he did not command arbitrarily, as did Jairus under a similar condition, "Come down to my house." On the contrary, he besought Christ humbly, "I am not worthy that Thou shouldst enter under my roof: say but the word and my servant shall be healed." Even the Redeemer himself declared, "I have not found so great faith in all Israel."

Like the Jews, Catholics are God's chosen people; but it is not sufficient for them to have faith alone: it must be put into practical action in the service of God and of neighbor. This was the lesson which the preacher developed in his brief but convincing sermon.

Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass., in giving holy communion to the usual large number of penitents, following confession the previous day.

Bible Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

Moving pictures of great impressiveness were shown at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon. After the opening exercises of singing, prayer and scripture reading, and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder, the pictures were shown, including the building of the Ark of Noah, the going into the Ark of the beasts and fowl, etc., the terrible flood destroying man and beast over all the earth, the assuaging of the waters and the final ending of the flood so that it was safe for those in the Ark to come out again. The atempt to built the Tower of Bable was also shown on the screen. The pictures were very true to the Scripture account of these happenings.

Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill made brief remarks and among other things he spoke as follows. "It has ever been true that 'whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap,' and the same thing is true of nations and peoples; individuals have become apparently great and prosperous and nations the same, but oft times they have fallen and have been no more. God is a God of wonderful patience but he feels compelled to let his laws take their course even though it means destruction to individuals or nations. Noah was chosen by God to prepare the Ark for the salvation of enough of man and beat to again populate the earth and He gave to Noah the exact dimensions of the peculiar craft, and Noah faithfully wroght day by day, probably became a laughing stock of the people around him, but he stuck to his job until it was finished, Noah in his building was a fine example of faithfulness worthy of our imitation. After the terrible flood had accomplished the purpose God had for it, the waters were assuaged and once more the occupants stepped out on terra firma. How good God is if only we are at all willing to give Him a chance; He made a beautiful covenant with His people after they made their exit from the Ark, in placing the rainbow of many colors in the sky and he has so faithfully kept this covenant. It is sad to learn that after Noah had been so favored of God, that he could descend so deep in sin, and this reminds us of that significant passage of scripture, "Let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall." No one can thwart the plans and purposes of Almight God. How foolish were these people who attempted to build the tower to reach to Heaven. God had his way and he always will, notwithstanding the opposition of man. The pictures were unsually impressive, following as they did the story in the holy scriptures.

Next Sunday the story of Moses will be shown in moving pictures.

THINK SAUSAGE FACTORY FIRE WAS INCENDIARY

Timely discovery prevented the destruction by fire, thought to have been of incenlary origin, of the Norwich Provision Company's sausage facory at No. 202 Summit street about 12.30 o'clock Sunday morning. The fire was discovered by Harold Nichols of No. 71 Spring Garden avenue. Mr. Nichols, who was about to retire, heard a queer noise like someone breaking through the crust of frozen snow, and looking out of a rear window in the house saw the factory nearby on fire. He at once telephoned the fire department and Engine No. 6 and Squad A went out on the call.

Arriving on the scene the firemen found a good sized blaze and Mr. Nichols was requested to pull in box 132, Newcomb and West Thomas street, this calling out additional apparatus. Water and chemical lines held the blaze in check and it was soon extinguished. The fire started in the northeast corner of the story and a half frame building and had gained such headway that when the door was forced open the flames shot out. The damage is estimated at between $1,500 and $2,000. The damage was largely to the building although the stock suffered from smoke.

The firemen found that there was a second blaze in the refrigerator. This blaze could do but little damage as the doors were closed and there was no draught to spread the fire. The proprietor is Vincent Carlin. It was learned that Mr. Carlin left his home on Dunham street about noon time Saturday to go to Cloyes Falls and Springfield on business in connection with the purchase of a refrigerating plant for the factory.

His salesman, Tony Rotkowske, stated that he had driven his car in just before noon Saturday. There was no fire in the plant boiler, and no fire in the building. The indications are that the factory was set on fire.

SHROPSHIRE RAMS BITTEN BY DOGS AT LORD'S HILL

At Lord's Hill the other afternoon two dogs were discovered harassing a flock of Shropshire rams in a meadow near the railroad on the Lord's Hill farm. John W. Lord seized a double barreled shot gun and ran to the field. Four of the larger rams were already disabled and lay as if dead. The remainder were huddled in a corner and were being bitten. Watching for a favorable opportunity Mr. Lord put a charge of shot into the head of the foremost dog, which was an airedale, and another shot at the other dog as he started to run. Both dogs managed, however, to get away. It was difficult to get a good shot as the dogs and sheep were so mixed. Seven of the rams were bitten, several of them being in bad shape. All were valuable animals, being of the best blood in the country and registered.

Connecticut College

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hundreds thronged the campus of Connecticut college on Saturday, to view the much-heralded eclipse. At 8 in the morning, the crowds began to pour in from all about New London and its vicinity; some of the people were walking and others riding. Those riding came both by trolley and machine. A string of trolleys from New London conveyed the 750 visitors from their special trains which had brought them from Wellesley college, Walnut Hills school, Lasall Seminary, and Dana Hall. The machines varied from Fords to Pierce-Arrows.

Old and young were seen about the campus with bits of colored glass and old films, staring upward to note the changes in the heavens. One freshman from college following the advice of many eminent astronomers was noted being led about the ground by several friends because of the black bandage over her eyes. When questioned by a well-meaning, but uninformed, young person about how she had strained her eyes, she indignantly informed her that she wore the bandage so that her pupils might become dilated and she would thus be far better able to see the eclipse. Completely squelched, the curious person walked away.

New London hall was crowded; every recitation room was filled with excited crowds of visitors. From windows in all parts of the place heads were thrust forth to see how the eclipse was progressing and then the heads were quickly withdrawn again as the owners of them rushed to another and perhaps better vantage point.

The reservoir was one of the best places for a view of the eclipse from there could be seen the crowded campus, the people rushing to and fro, the surrounding countryside, and the eclipse itself. From there could be noticed the effect of the phenomena upon the people below.

As the time drew near for the sun to vanish from sight, an excited murmur ran through the crowd. Calls and shouts of, "It's going—oh look at our blurred shadows on the snow!" What is that wavering on the ground? It's the shadow of totality going thirty miles a second! Oh, oh, look at the sky—the clouds—why the stars are coming out!

And suddenly a silence fell upon the crowd, a long, lasting silence then a sigh slowdly crept forth from the hundreds who so quickly had become breathless, and they spoke in whispers alone. Voices were hushed as the miracle occurred, as if the Day of Judgment were at hand. The sun was hidden, the golden-white of the corona illuminated the sky; the three planets of Jupiter, Venus and Mercury bright shining near the sun.

The red and orange of the sky, the purple shadows on the hills, the merging of sunrise and set all about on the horizon was something all who saw will remember for life.

Then the sun came out once more, gradually the orange on the horizon faded, the purples of the hills receded and the campus was once more bustle and confusion; people calling, talking, and shouting to each other of the beauty of it all.

Then alone they suddenly remembered how cold it had been, and wondered that they had thought nothing of it. Then, too, the guides with the blue badges were eagerly sought by the visitors who desired to know where the library was. There hot coffee and doughnuts were served to all. There girls from college met the visitors for whom they had vainly been seeking in the throng. There rushed many, glad of the warmth and comfort of the place after the cold and excitement.

Gradually the crowds dispersed. Classes were resumed at 1:15 and the visitors slowly went off. Gradually the trolleys and machines left school and once more New London hall became a place of classes and classrooms.

The miracle of the eclipse was over.

BOY FRIENDS' TRIBUTE TO RAYMOND LA ROCHELLE

The six boys who were bearers at the funeral of Raymond Joseph La Rochelle last week, with six other friends of the dead boy, paid a touching tribute to his memory Sunday.

The twelve sat together at the 7.30 mass in St. Patrick's church, all receiving Holy Communion which they offered for the repose of his soul. They also contributed for spiritual bouquets, that is, requesting, instead of the customary funeral flowers, masses to be offered in his memory.

Young La Rochelle, who was 18, was fatally injured last week. He had started work in the hope of helping himself through college. All his teachers speak of him as a boy among a thousand worthy and manly in every way.

He was one of the eleven children of Mr. and Mrs. William C. La Rochelle of 66 Myers avenue.

Automobiles Collide.

Automobiles driven by Frank J. Prodell of 112 Smith avenue and Horace W. Main of Ledyard were in collision Sunday morning about 11 o'clock at the corner of North Main and Eighth street. The latter's machine, a coach, had a head light broken, the left rear mudguard and frame bent. The other car, which is a touring car belonging to Frank F. Prodell, had its left rear wheel broken and mud guard damaged.

Mrs. Maria De Chacon, the secretary of state of New Mexico, employs her husband as first assistant in her office.

POETRY

ABRAHAM DAVENPORT.

'Twas on a May-day of the far old year
Seventeen hundred eighty, that there fell
Over the bloom and sweet life of the Spring,
Over the fresh earth and the heaven of noon,
A horror of great darkness, like the night
In day of which the Norland ages tell—
The Twilight of the Gods.

Birds ceased to sing, and all the barnyard fowls
Roosted; the cattle at the pasture bars
Lowed, and looked homeward; bats on leathern wings
Flitted abroad; the sounds of labor died:
Men prayed, and women wept; all ears grew sharp
To hear the boom-blast of the trumpet shatter
The black sky, that the dreadful face of Christ
Might look from the rent clouds, not as He looked
A loving guest at Bethany, but stern
As Justice and inexorable Law.

Meanwhile in the old State House, dim as ghosts,
Sat the lawgivers of Connecticut,
Trembling beneath their legislative robes.
'It is the Lord's Great Day! Let us adjourn,"
Some said; and then, as if with one accord,
All eyes were turned to Abraham Davenport.
He rose, slow cleaving with his steady voice
The intolerable hush. "This well may be
The Day of Judgment which the world awaits;
But be it so or not, I only know
My present duty, and my Lord's command
To occupy till He come. So at the post
Where he hath set me in His providence
I choose, for one, to meet Him face to face—
No faithless servant frightened from my task,
But ready when the Lord of the harvest calls;
And therefore, with all reverence, I would say,
Let God do His work, we will see to ours.
Bring in the candles." And they brought them in.
—Whittier's "Dark Day" poem.

PEACE AND WAR.

The sleek sea, gorged and sated, basking lies;
The cruel creature fawns and blinks and purrs;
And almost for once her emerald-golden eyes
Though hapy on the morrow she shall rise
And summon her infernal ministers,
And charge her everlasting barriers,
With wild white fingers, snatching at the skies.

So, betwixt Peace and War, man's life is cast,
Yet hath he dreamed of perfect Peace at last.
Shepherding all the nations ev'n as sheep;
The inconstant, moody ocean shall as soon
At the cold dictates of the bloodless moon
Swear an eternity of halcyon sleep.
—William Watson.

A naturalist, just returned to Cairo from Arabia, describes a plant called the "laughing cactus." The plant gets its name from the fact that any one eating its seed gives way for some minutes afterward to immoderate laughter, frequently ending in nervous prostration. The natives of the district in which the plant flourishes dry the seeds and grind them into powder which they keep, and on suitable occasions, administer to those against whom they have a real or fancied grievance. An overdose may result intemporary loss of reason, following which the victim falls into a deep sleep, awakening with no memory of his curious conduct.—Washington Star.

PLANNING FOUR UNIFIED SYSTEMS OF RAILROADS

Proposals Made to Interstate Commerce Commission by Heads of New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Nickel Plate Railroads—Would Assemble Much of the Rail Mileage of the Northeastern Quarter of the United States.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Heads of the New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, and Nickel Plate railroad system laid out today to interstate commerce commissioners especially considering railroad consolidation projects, their joint plans for assembling much of the rail mileage of the northeastern quarter of the United States into four great unified systems of approximately equal size.

Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad and his subordinates, continued unwilling to accept the four system plan. No intimation of a stand on the subject was given by the commissioners.

J. J. Bernet, president of the Nickel Plate, and O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, whose negotiations for control of the Erie, Chesapeake and Ohio and other roads have already laid out the structure for one of the four great systems described; P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, described the four-system plan, going into the financial status, population served and operating conditions. In addition, tentative proposals by the Pennsylvania made at previous conferences were critically analyzed.

The emphasis of today's argument for the four system plan was that it proposed an equal division of eastern rail mileage, Atlantic port facilities, and terminal facilities, while it was argued the Pennsylvania plan proposed the creation around that road of a system which would be materially larger than any that might be built up for possible competitors after consolidation.

HEARING ON FURTHER GILPATRIC ENTANGLEMENTS

Hartford, Jan. 26.—Appearing at the meeting today on the reclamation petition for recovery of the interest in the coa and wood business in Putnam which had been hypothecated by his bankrupt son, former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, George W. Gilpatric informed Referee Yeomans that he did not know until the corporation papers were read at the April, 1921 he did not know until the corporation there of the stock and his son 449.

The long involved tangle took more than two hours of explanation.

G. Harold Gilpatric hypothecated the 449 shares with the City Bank and Trust company, of Hartford, as security on a promissory note for $6,000. The note was bought by the First National bank, of Putham. Mr. Gilpatric says he is willing to pay the $6,000 and the interest on it to have the shares of stock returned to him. Formally opposing the petition is Arthur E. Howard, Jr., trustees in bankruptcy, who is represented by his brother, Lawrence A. Howard, of Hartford. Josiah H. Peck, appears as lawyer for Mr. Gilpatric. Referee Yeomans today continued the prolonged case until Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

George W. Gilpatric entered into partnership with Hiram S. Whipple, of Putnam in 1916. Their business was a lumber and coal business. Mr. Gilpatric put $1,000 in the form of a note into the transaction, the business as owned previously by Whipple being valued at $3,800. By leaps and bounds, evidently the business grew. In April, 1921, the business was incorporated, the papers being drawn up by Lawyer John F. Carpenter of Putnam. At the surprise meeting, the corporation papers showed that 900 shares of stock, par value, $100 had been issued. Partner Whipple held 449, his brother, George W. Whipple, one; G. Harold Gilpatric 449 and his father, the original partner, one. However, the elder Gilpatric did not demur. He had faith in his son.

Hiram S. Whipple today said the ill health of his former partner, had led to a decision on the part of himself and G. Harold Gilpatric that incorporation should be made. The good faith of Whipple was unquestioned. Despite the transfer of control he had consulted George W. Gilpatric on all matters of importance. Mrs. Gilpatric appeared and also asserted to their unbounded confidence in Mr. Whipple.

LUTHER CABINET HAS DRAFTED NOTE TO ALLIES

Berlin, Jan. 26.—(By the A. P.)—A reply to the interim note of the allied powers on the issue growing out of the non-evacuation of the Cologne zone was drafted at a special session of Chancellor Luther's cabinet this evening. It will be handed to the entente envoys at noon tomorrow.

The joint note of Great Britain, France, Japan, Belgium and Italy was presented to Dr. Luther this morning. It was in reply to the German note of January 6 protesting against non-evacuation. It is the intention of the powers to submit another note with details to the German government at an early date.

The interim note merely reiterates that it is not the intention of the allied governments at present to discuss with the German government the subject of the Cologne zone. The text of this note was released for publication by the foreign office late tonight without comment, the original plan to make it public with a formal statement having been abandoned.

Today's allied note was apparently received with pronounced disfavor at government headquarters, which declined to discuss it beyond observing that "it was anything but pleasant."

GOOD NEWS FOR CHILD MOTION PICTURE FANS

New York, Jan. 26.—Will H. Hays had good news today for child motion picture fans throughout the country.

He announced from the offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, of which he is president, that 5500 reels of first class films of especial appeal to girls and boys will be shown, with the co-operation of theatre owners, on Saturday mornings during this year at an admission price of ten cents.

The announcement was made public at the annual meeting of the committee on public relations, comprising representatives of more than 60 national organizations having an approximate membership of 20,000,000.

Each program is to consist of a full length feature picture, one or two reel comedy and a one reel semi-educational subject, it was said. It was emphasized that these will not be of the "goody goody" films, but interest compelling features.

The proposed rate will be on a graduated scale based on a charge of $10 for each water faucet a year, or $4 more than the old charge. An increase of $13,000 a year is also asked in the charge for public fire protection service to the Mystic fire district and the borough of Stonington.

Colombo, Ceylon, Jan. 26.—One of the largest fires that ever occurred here broke out this morning in the warehouses belonging to Messrs. Bayley & Kenny and more than 1,200,000 pounds of fibre were destroyed. The damage is estimated at several hundred thousand rupees and will entail a shortage in the fibre market.

ACTION IN SENATE ON THE POSTAL BILL

Washington, Jan. 26.—Advancing its consideration of the postal pay and rate increase bill today, the senate approved a number of items, including one fixing a rate of one and one-fourth cents a pound on reading matter of all publications, but stopped work on the measure for the day upon reaching the controversial proposal for revision of zone rates on second class mail.

In fixing the reading matter rate at one and one-fourth cents, the senate approved a reduction of one-half cent a pound from the rate now paid by general publications and placed them on a parity with religious, scientific and educational periodicals, which already enjoy the lower rate. At the same time, it rejected a recommendation of the post office department that the rate for general publications be increased to two cents a pound.

A provision increasing the rate on private and souvenir post cards from one to two cents was approved, but proposals to advance the rate to one and one-half cent on postal cards and on letters mailed where free delivery is not established, as recommended by the department, were rejected.

A determined fight against the proposed advances on the advertising matter of publications subject to second class zone rates is in prospect. Several amendments designed to eliminate the recommended increases were introduced today, with others proposing decreases in the present rates.

Debate today showed three divisions of thought on the bill. Democrats, headed by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, and Swanson of Virginia, were ready to oppose any increases in second class rates. Senator Sterling, republican, of South Dakota, and Senator Willis, republican, Ohio on the other hand, would go further in most instances than reported by the committee and follow the higher recommendations of the post office department, while Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, in charge of the measure, led the fight for the committee bill.

Responsibility for failure of the postal salary increases, Senator Moses said, must rest directly on senators who prevent enactment of this bill "either by mutilation or by filibuster."

The zone rate section, as reported by the committee, proposes to combine the present eight zones into three, with rates of three cents on advertising matter in republicans to apply to the present first three zones; six cents to the present fourth, fifth and sixth zones, and eight cents to the seventh and eighth zones.

BARNARD HONOR STUDENT KILLED IN FALL FROM WINDOW

New York, Jan. 26.—Helen E. Vosburgh, 23 year old Barnard college honor student from South Norwalk, Conn., was killed in a plunge from the window of her eighth floor room in Brooks hall, a dormitory, today. It was not known whether the young woman, said to have been subject to religious delusions and somnambulism, committed suicide or accidentally fell to her death.

Her fall broken when she struck a ledge of the dormitory building, Miss Vosburgh was alive when her body was picked up. She was taken to Knickerbocker hospital, where she regained consciousness just before death and recognized a Columbia university medical man who had called.

At 2 o'clock this morning Miss Lorita Bates of Hazelton, Pa., was awakened by Miss Vosburgh, who invaded her dormitory room and quietly announced that she was "a daughter of a prophet," and walked out. Barnard college authorities said they believed her mind to have been unbalanced, although she was a brilliant student, and would have graduated in June, with honors.

Miss Vosburgh's fall was seen by scores of Barnard and Columbia students on their way to classes.

The young woman's father, George A. Vosburgh, is a South Norwalk attorney.

The parents of Miss Vosburgh will take the body to South Norwalk tomorrow morning for burial.

CLAIMS THAT HE SHOT HIS NEIGHBOR IN SELF DEFENSE

Eliot, Me., Jan. 26.—His face battered and scarred from a beating administered by his neighbor, Howard Spinney, Harlan C. Leibman appeared in district court at Kittery today and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of manslaughter in connection with Spinney's death. He declared that he shot his neighbor in self defense last night as the two fought in the road in front of Spinney's home, where he had gone to complain about a vicious dog. He was held in $3,000 bail for the May term of the York county supreme court at Alfred.

When he gave himself up to the police immediately after the shooting, Leibman said that Spinney had knocked him down twice before he drew his pistol, and then when he fired it was with the intention of disabling Spinney by wounding him in the leg.

Neighbors of the two men, who live in adjoining houses on Farmer road here, said that there had been many complaints about Spinney's dog, which yesterday attacked Leibman's little daughter, tearing her clothing. It was said that the authorities had ordered Spinney to muzzle the animal, but that he had not complied.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT UPON 8 YEAR OLD GIRL

Rockville, Conn., Jan. 26.—William Schmid, 60, and Joseph Rogers, 18, were each before a session of the city court today, charged with assault upon an 8 year old girl, the evidence in the two cases, offered separately, taking up the entire day. Schmid was held in $1,500 for the superior court and the lad in $1,000. The case has aroused much curiosity here because of the ages of the individuals concerned. Schmid, a widower, was a roomer and Rogers was a boarder in the home of the parents of the child.

Harvard Advertising Awards Announced

Jury Considered 5,000 Advertisements Submitted by 175 Agencies and Advertisers.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 26.—The Harvard advertising awards for 1924, under the gift of Edward W. Bok, carrying prizes totalling $10,500 were announced and presented by Dean Wallace B. Donham of the Harvard Business School at a dinner here tonight.

The jury made nine awards after considering 5,000 advertisements submitted by 175 agencies and advertisers. In its report the jury said:

"The Harvard advertising awards were founded in the belief that formal recognition of notable excellence in the planning and execution of advertising will stimulate improvement in advertising, thereby making it serve business and society more effectively."

The national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World was awarded the gold medal "given to the individual or organization deemed to merit recognition for distinguished contemporary services to advertising. Lou E. Holland of Kansas City, president of the Associated Advertising Club, responded for the committee.

In connection with this award, the jury said:

"The jury hopes to center attention upon probably the most important movement in advertising, the campaign to make advertising more useful and effective through emphasis upon truthfulness and credibility."

The other awards and winners follow:

J. Walter Thompson company, $1,500 prize for the national campaign advertising of a specific product.

Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Inc., $1,500 prize for national campaign of the institutional type and $1,500 prize for local advertising campaign.

J. Walter Thompson company and Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Inc., $1,500 each for scientific research in advertising the first for general value and the second in a specific campaign.

WARNS THAT JAZZ IS LEADING TO BARBARISM

Dayton, O., Jan. 26.—Jazz music, jazz pictures and jazz thinking are turning modern men, women and children back to the stages of barbarism, warned Prof. H. Augustine Smith, head of the department of fine arts in religion at Boston university, in a speech here today.

"Every way you turn," he said, "in the home, in the school, in the social halls, and even in the church, there is nothing but jazz," Professor Smith insisted. "Instead of leading us up and on through the finer thing of life, every indulgence seems to drag us lower into savage tendencies," he said.

"It's not the fault of our boys and girls. It is the death of leaders," he said.

"Youth loves adventure. He will risk almost everything for 'thrills.' At the present time, jazz is filling the bill."

He said the remedy for the situation is to substitute something positive for the degrading influence. "Introduce dramatization and pageantry into the churches and the Sunday school and let the people, young and old, get a 'kick' out of that," he suggested. "It is better to ruin a communion table than to lose a young girl, or better to ruin a million yards of church carpet than to lose a boy."

DISSEMINATION OF BRITISH NAVAL SECRETS IS CHARGED

London, Jan. 26 (By the A. P.).—W. P. O'Leary and J. D. McGough, who were arrested recently in connection with a plot to blow up British battleships and submarines, appeared in Bow street today on the technical charge of dissemination of naval secrets.

Rear Admiral Hotham, director of naval intelligence, testified that the information which had been found in the possession of the men was of particularly secret nature which might be useful to an enemy. The prosecution declared this information was so important that a private sitting of the court was requested in order that it might not be revealed.

Counsel declared the evidence indicated one of the defendants was an Irish republican army intelligence officer assigned to Great Britain and the other was an officer from the same organization assigned to what was called "No. 7 area."

One Man Killed And 12 Firemen Injured

At Fire in the Kendal Hotel, Farmingham, Mass—$40,000 Fire Damage.

Framingham, Mass., Jan. 26.—One man was killed and one woman and twelve firemen were injured in a fire which broke out tonight in the basement of the four-story brick building housing the Kendall hotel at Concord and Kendall streets, in the center of this town. Approximately $40,000 damage was done before the flames were brought under control.

Eight firemen and William Welch, emergency foreman of the Framingham water department, were plunged into the basement of the building when the flooring in an office on the first floor gave way. The firemen were rescued, but Welch was not missed until later. He was dead when rescue workers found him.

Four other firemen were overcome by smoke and suffered cuts and bruises. Mrs. Everett C. Johnson of Framingham fell to the street after climbing down two stories by rope ladder from the fourth floor window. Twenty-five or thirty guests who were in their rooms made their way to the street safely. It was said tonight that all of the injured would probably recover.

The cause of the fire was not determined. The flames were discovered in the basement of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company in a room where records were stored and had gained considerable headway before the fire department arrived.

With two exceptions, guests in the hotel found their way out of the building to safety. One spectacular rescue was effected, however, when three firemen lowered Capt. Edward F. Gardiner, retired United States navy paymaster, from the fourth floor, down a 60-foot ladder to the street. Captain Gardiner is 70 years old and weighs 250 pounds. He was unaware of the re until the corridors began to fill with smoke. He then attracted attention from his fourth floor rear window.

FOUR STEAMFITTERS DIE IN GAS FILLED SHAFT

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 26.—(By The A. P.)—A small gas filled shaft, 47 feet deep, within a caisson of the new American Insurance Union building here, claimed the lives of four men today. A fifth man, who went to the rescue of his friends in the shaft came through unscratched and a few hours later a movement was started fittingly to reward him for his heroism.

The dead: C. R. Bowe, 23, Greenwood, Ind. Jack Smith, New York city. John McCarthy, 43, New York city. John Peterson, 23, Columbus. All the men were steamfitters.

The cause of the accident is not clear. It is believed Bowen was in the shaft fitting pipes when he was overcome and fell to the bottom. Fellow workmen noticed that activity had ceased within the shaft. Then one of the victims climbed down to see what had happened. When neither appeared within a short time another went down the tube to investigate. Then McCarthy, the last of the victims, volunteered and he disappeared through the shaft, some 18 or 20 feet above street level.

All was quiet within the tube and workmen gathered about fearful that something was wrong. Ambulances and physicians were summoned.

Suddenly a huge crane swung high into the air from another part of the excavation. Dangling from its steel cable was a man. It swung around and deposited William V. (Big Bill) Martin, a structural steel worker, on top of the caisson. Fellow workmen remonstrated that three had gone down and had not come back.

"Big Bill" snapped his fingers, put his foot into the rope stirrup and signalled the crane engineer. Some one handed him as gas mask. The wrench screamed and he was dropped into the shaft.

Minutes seemd like hours to the watchers. The cable jerked. The crane moved upward and out of the mouth of the shaft came the limp form of a man, a rope around his waist. Three more times the cable was lowered and each time it brought to the surface a limp form.

A fifth time it was dropped into the shaft. The cable jerked again and out of the shaft came "Big Bill," his foot in the stirrup. He clung to the cable desperately. His face was white The gas mask was gone.

He had found the four dead men at the bottom of the shaft and had worked as fast as he could in getting them out. He took off his mask when it hampered him, he said.

MORE VOTERS THAN RESIDENTS IN MESOPOTAMIA?

Bagdad, Jan. 26 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Elections to the first Mesopotamian parliament were postponed owing to the peculiar circumstance that the election registration contained the names of ten million voters, whereas the entire population of the country is only three million.

According to the election ordinance, every male citizen over 20 years of age votes; every 250 men choose a secondary elector, and 80 of the electors choose a deputy, who thus represents 20,000 voters. Parliament must include at least four Christian and four Jewish members.

MEETING CALLED OF THE TEXTILE UNION LEADERS

They Are to Assemble in Boston Saturday to Determine What Attitude the United Textile Workers of America is to Take Regarding the 10 Per Cent Wage Cut Made by Cotton Manufacturers—President McMahon Declares the Union is in a Mood to Wage a Finish Fight.

New York, Jan. 26.—Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, announced late today that he had called an all day meeting of union leaders to be held in Boston on Saturday of this week to determine what attitude the organization is to take regarding the 10 per cent. wage cuts made by cotton manufacturers in the east. Mr. McMahon characterized the situation as "very acute."

The president said the union was in a mood to wage a finish fight "in any locality" where reports might show a satisfactory adjustment would not be made with the mill owners.

Mills in and around Utica, N. Y., were the principal "sore spots" at the present time, Mr. McMahon asserted. The workers, he continued, felt that the wage reductions were not justified because the manufacturers were getting an additional ten cents a pound this year, and were able to assign additional per capita machinery to the workers, all of which, he said, more than offset cost conditions on which the reductions were based.

The Saturday meeting, Mr. McMahon asserted, will be attended by international officers of the union, by John H. Powers of the union's emergency board, by all members of the executive board from New England, and by all district organizers from the territory affected.

Vice President James Starr of the emergency board is now in the south, the president added, engaged in research work, and it is expected that he will forward a report to the Boston meeting, which will be held in the Parker house.

COOLIDE TO CONTINUE PRESSURE FOR ECONOMY

Washington, Jan. 26.—The four years of administration upon which President Coolidge enters March 4, were dedicated by the executive tonight to a reduction of the tax burden, a decrease in federal expenditures, and "continuing pressure for economy," within the government.

Speaking before the regular semi-annual meeting of executive and administrative officials of the government, Mr. Coolidge declared that if congress sustained the current budget recommendations for expenditures, he would be able next fall to propose a further cut in taxes. The president expects a surplus of $373,000,000 in the fiscal year 1926 and on that basis, he asserted, further tax relief should be granted. He warned, however, that any new and unnecessary expenditures would upset the plans of the treasury now seemingly assured of success.

The president also told the officials that hereafter there must be a policy within the government of getting more work done with fewer workers. He said there could be no cut in the compensation of workers, and that the only hope of reducing a payroll that last year aggregated $1,640,000,000 was to reduce the number on that payroll.

An increase cost of government throughout natural expansion of the nation, the president regarded as obvious. He declared, however, that the increase in governmental cost must not advance "dollar for dollar" with the increasing revenues assumed to come from increased business, and emphasized that the increasing load of the government could not be used as the excuse for added expenditures except where absolutely necessary.

ASSERTS TURMAN MADE AND HID AWAY $250,000

New York, Jan. 26.—Far from being an "innocent blunderer" prodding nothing from his $2,000,000 financial bubble, Moe Turman actually made and hid away $250,000, Assistant District Attorney Richard C. Murphy said today.

The first intimation that the district attorney's office has not accepted Turman as the innocent victim of usurious interest rates followed a conference today between Mr. Murphy and Max N. Koven, Brooklyn attorney, who alleges that he lost $32,000 in Turman's schemes, and Morris J. Jounger, representing 33 creditors.

An analysis of Turman's several statements, Mr. Murphy said, revealed an apparent discrepancy of "at least $250,000 between the amount he admittedly received from investors in his schemes and the amount he paid out. I am convinced that this sum of money still is in the possession of Turman and this office will expend every effort to locate it."

NOMINATION OF STONE SENT BACK TO COMMITTEE

Washington, Jan. 26.—By unanimous consent, the senate today referred back to the judiciary committee the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a supreme court justice.

The action was taken in executive session and was at the request of Senator Curtis, of Kansas, one of the administration leaders who have conferred with President Coolidge and Mr. Stone.

The attorney general is expected to appear before the committee, probably next Wednesday, to make a statement concerning efforts of the department of justic to obtain in the District of Columbia a second indictment against Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

Mr. Stone's friends say that he will reply to charges in the senate that there is an attempt to "persecut" Senator Wheeler, and that the justice department is violating a fundamental principal of law by endeavoring to try the Montana senator here instead of in his own state, where an indictment already has been returned against him.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Consideration of the postal pay and increase bill again was taken up by the senate.

Attorney General Stone's supreme court nomination was sent back to the senate judiciary committee.

BLODGETT PLEADS FOR UNIFORMITY IN TAXATION

New Haven, Jan. 26.—Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, of Connecticut, termed the present state law whereby the assessing of the property taxes of mercantile and manufacturing establishments throughout the state is handled by local tax officials "a vicious law" and a situation that "breeds a school of falsehood" in many cases at a meeting of the board of directors of the Connecticut chamber of commerce here today. He added that local tax assessing conditions were "a fraud and a hedge of dishonor in altogether too many communities" at present and that it would "almost be better to have no taxation scheme at all than the present vicious conditions in many local communities of Connecticut."

Commissioner Blodgett added that the local tax assessing conditions were such in some cases that local officials "bartered with the sovereign power of the state." In his speech calling attention to various local tax evils, he cited the case of one concern which paid a tax on a valuation of only $48,000 whereas its true valuation was above $400,000. In contrast, he cited an organization in the same city which was obliged to pay a tax on its full valuation while the former concern was obliged to pay only 11 per cent. of its taxable valuation. He explained that the same unequal and unfair taxing conditions could be found in all the leading cities of Connecticut.

Commissioner Blodgett pleaded for the enactment of a new law which would bring taxation uniformity throughout the state.

Commissioner Blodgett pictured a condition in Connecticut wherein the general burden of taxation could be lightened if all taxable property were made to bear its fair share of the load whereas if there continued to be shirers here and there, some of the taxpayers would be burdened unfairly.

Over $70,000,000 is the amount received by local towns and by the state of Connecticut while the federal government takes $56,000,000 out of this state as taxes of various kinds, Mr. Blodgett told his audience. The state gets about $25,000,000 of these taxes. He predicted that bills introduced into the present legislature would call for appropriations in excess of $90,000,000 and that it would be necessary to pare these figures down to match the state income of $25,000,000 if Connecticut is to continue its "pay as you go" policy which was inaugurated several years ago.

He added that Connecticut stands alone in the pursuance of such a basically sound fiscal policy among all the states.

SENATORS AROUSED BY "LEAKS" TO NEWSPAPERS

Washington, Jan. 26.—The perennial row over newspaper publication of happenings in executive sessions of the senate was renewed today by an executive session held for the primary purpose of sending back to the judiciary committee the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a supreme court justice.

Aroused by publication of intimate details of what transpired in Saturday's executive session, some of the leaders put forward several tentative suggestions as to ways and means of stopping the leaks, but there was no definite action after an hour's discussion.

One proposal was that a rule be adopted to bar from the press gallery any correspondent who wrote about what had transpired after the doors were closed. This is said to have evoked considerable discussion.

During the debate, attention was called to an existing senate rule under which a senator is liable at least to expulsion for disclosing executive proceedings. This and other events apparently carried a deep impression, for when the doors were opened to the public there was an air at once of great secrecy and mystery.

WOODLOCK NOMINATED AS MEMBER OF THE I. C. C.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Thomas M. Woodlock, of New York, a financial writer, was nominated by President Coolidge today to succeed Mark W. Potter, of the same city, as a member of the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Potter has resigned.

The nomination of Mr. Woodlock was sent to the senate within a few hours after the president had received the resignation of Commissioner Potter, the executive, however, had been advised several weks ago of Mr. Potter's desire to retire to return to private business.

Mr. Woodlock had the endorsement of a number of New York businessmen, including Frank A. Munsey, the publisher, and Matthew C. Brush, shipbuilder and exporter.

He held his breath and waited to hear screams and the crushing of the two little bodies but by a miracle the two boys slid safely under the high-hung Cadillac and passed on to safety on the other side. A woman on the sidewalk witnessed the unusual escape and stood as if in a trance. Watson got out and between breaths warned the youngsters not to coast on a hill that was not protected by the police.

PHILADELPHIA VISITOR SUICIDES AT AMSTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 26.—Despondent, Frederick Waechter of Philadelphia, took his life by hanging, Sunday afternoon, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph S. Schmidt of Amston, where he had been visiting for the past month. The man had fastened a piece of clothesline to the bedstead in the room which had been designated for his use during his stay. The body was hanging beside the bed when discovered, about seven o'clock Sunday night, by Charles Schmidt, nephew of the deceased and postmaster of Amston. Medical Examiner Dr. Cyrus Pendleton of Colchester was summoned and upon pronouncing death due to suicide he gave permission for the removal of the body. Relatives of the man claim that although he had appeared to be suffering from despondency there had been no indication that he was contemplating suicide. It is believed that the deed was committed early in the afternoon. The dead man is survived by his wife, a resident of Philadelphia.

TWO HARTFORD FRUIT MEN GO OVER EMBANKMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 26.—Hartford fruit and vegetable dealers, Louis Stengel and Sale Weisenberg are thankful to fate that they escaped without serious injury when a Ford truck in which they were riding vaulted a five foot embankment on upper Jackson street, near Park Spring here at three o'clock Monday afternoon and landed with the four wheels spinning in the air. Louis Stengel, owner of the truck was operating the machine. He could not fully account for the cause of the accident, other than that the truck began to skid. He applied the brakes and the machine nosed into the bank. Being much excited he could not give an account of the antics of the truck as it hurled itself through the air. The bank edges the street and at the point of the mishap is cut off in a triangle bordering the yard of John Demasko. At the apex of the triangle the bank is surmounted by a round rock some two feet in diameter. The machine, as indicated by the tracks in the snow, mounted the bank on the right of the hill and leaped over the triangle, clearing the rock and landed bottom-side-up in the Demasko yard. The truck has a wooden top and although three of the occupants were [illegible] they held the car up just enough to prevent the passengers from being crushed. The men crawled out to safety. Stengel suffered a slight sprain of his right ankle. There were no other injuries. Other than a partly smashed top the machine was undamaged and was later righted and driven off under its own power. The men were on their way to Storrs to purchase a load of apples for market. The truck bore the Connecticut commercial registration numbers 32-064. Chief of Police Allan MacArthur investigated the accident, but found no grounds for an arrest.

JEWETT CITY

A farewell reception was tendered George S. Brown, retiring superintendend of the Ashland Cotton Co., at the Ashland club, Saturday night.

Mr. Brown has been superintendent at Ashland for the past five years and leaves Feb. 1st to become superintendent for the Cabot Manufacturing Co., at Brunswick, Maine.

The farewell reception was arranged by the Ashland club directors in order that the operatives of the company might say goodbye to Mr. Brown in a manner that would express their appreciation of his many courtesies and his fair dealings while here at Ashland.

The clubhouse was filled by the employes which in itself indicated their esteem for Mr. Brown.

The committee of arrangements, Eli Nichols, Odna Dugas and P. W. Chase won many compliments for making this one of the most successful events yet promoted by the Ashland club.

The evening's entertainment was furnished by the Granite City quartet, of Westerly, R. I., and Miss Mary A. Driscoll, also of Westerly, a dancer and monologuist of merit. Martin Spellman, tenor soloist, also of Westerly, sang several pleasing numbers. The quartet was made up of Dr. Harold Doyle, bass Chas. St. Onge, baritone; Edw. Butler, 2nd tenor, and Richard Lenihan, 1st tenor. Solo numbers by Messrs. Doyle, Butler and Lenihan were received with great favor as were two solor by Mr. Spellman with the quartet accompanying in the chorus. The program: Concert by the Hyperion orchestra; Kentucky Babe, quartet; There Is One Girl, Mr. Spellman and quartet; tenor solo, One More Day, Mr. Spellman; bass solo, The Big Bass Viol, Mr. Doyle; I I Love You Truly, quartet; At Dawning, quartet; toe dance, Silvia Ballet, Miss Driscoll; monologue and flat shoe dance, Miss Driscoll; tenor solo, My Dream Girl, Mr. Lenihan; Cotton Dolly, quartet; Doodle Doo, quartet.

At the close of the entertainment program Mr Chase, welfare supervisor, representing the Ashland club, presented Mr. Brown a beautiful bridge lamp, as a token of appreciation for the assistance given and interest he has shown in making the present standing of the club possible. Mr. Brown responded in a very cordial and able manner, showing his aptitude in arising to any occasion, a trait which has manifested itself many times while here at Ashland and which has built up high personal regard for him among the operatives.

At the conclusion of Mr. Brown's farewell message the quartet sang Auld Lang Syne in a touching manner.

At 9:30 the floor was clear and dancing to especially good music by the Hyperion orchestra was enjoyed until midnight.

An assemblage of 300 men were present Sunday evening in St. Mary's hall at the quarterly meeting of the Holy Name society of the parish. The speaker was Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church in Greeneville.

When the excellence of an address is to be determined, it is only necessary, in many cases to name the speaker. Those who are privileged once to listen to Father Keefe are always anxious to sit in his audience again. His remarks along the line of the outstanding advantages of the order and the many benefits which are derived from it, were listened to with interest.

He said that carefully completed figures show that at present there are 57,000,000 people who do not believe in anything.

He told of the thousands of children, who when the first believe anything, are convinced that their father is the leading personage on this planet. What happens if this father, with criminal instincts believes in nothing, and fears neither God nor man? The society of the Holy Name teaches right living belief in God and a reverence for His Holy Name.

Father Keefe is the county and diocesan director of the order.

The committee had arranged a pleasing program, which was presented with ability by those who gave it, and to the evident pleasure of those who listened.

Rev John J. McCabe, pastor of the church, presided during the evening. Following the Holy Name hymn there was a solo by Charles Harrington, The Pal that I Forgot. A violin solo by William Driscoll; Mighty Lak' a Rose, solo by Jerry Morey, A Voice with a Smile. The accompanist for the evening was the organist of the church, James Olsen. Singing of America in chorus, closed the enthusiastic meeting.

Cards were received Monday from E. F. Miller from St. Petersburg and Jacksonville, Florida.

Mrs. William E. Rocheleau and Miss elma Rocheleau, were visitors in the borough Sunday, the guests of their son and brother, respectively, George Rocheleau of Mathewson street.

E. M. Gray, secretary of the local A. O. U. W. has received notice of the death of William F. McKenzie of Springfield, which occurred last week. Mr. McKenzie was in charge of the dyeing at the W. A. Slater mills here in 1896, ten years after the great flood of '86. He succeeded the well remembered T. G. Honey who with his father, and brother John, were reckoned for long years, as the Slater color experts. Mr. McKenzie was a member of Mt. Vernon lodge No. 75, F. and A. M., and is well and favorably remembered in Jewett City.

Not long after he left Jewett City, the Slater mills here discontinued the manufacture of blue and brown denim, fancy plaids, ticking, "three and three" stripe and colored fancy cheviots.

Since the snowfall of one week ago the local meat markets have found an increased sale of suet, purchased by those who regularly feed the birds. One man came in every morning last week to buy a fresh piece, remarking that the birds up his way seemed considerably hungry, for they ate a pound, mostly in the night.

During the daytime his handout was only visited by woodpeckers and English starlings. During the night season, he thought, there must be an eagle come to where he had the suet nailed in a tree, or possibly, he said, a "roc" of Arabian Nights and cross-word puzzle fame Sunday night, as the reward of silent watching from a nearby attic window, he found that the bird possessed four legs and a long hairy tail, with a big round black head as big as a rock turnip. Monday, in connection with suet, the man also purchased arms and ammunition sufficient for a first line trench defense. Something is due to occur!

Mrs. Walter I. Johnson of Pachaug is confined to her home as the result of an accident. Her sister, Mrs. Amos G. Maine of Allyn's Point is staying with her for a few days.

Joseph Ashey who died Friday morning in the Rhode Island Hospital after a lingering illness, is survived by his wife and two sons Ovilla and Edward of Jewett City and a son, Joseph of Fiskville, R. I. The funeral was held Monday in St. Peter and Paul church in Phenix, R. I. Burial was in Arctic, R. I.

Mrs. George Toomey lies in a critical condition in Backus hospital. Her physician is undecided as to her illness until blood tests are returned, but the symptoms point to typhoid fever. Mr. Toomey is employed by the borough as assistant to the electric light superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. George Davis and two children of Boston are at Martin Davis' home for two weeks.

Mrs. Jacob Weschler has been entertaining her brother, Frank E. Gilbert and his fiancee, Miss Betty Motel of New York. Miss Motel has been a frequent visitor in this vicinity for several summers.

Only 62 votes were cast, out of 900, the voting list of the borough. This is the smallest vote in the borough's history for 30 years. Only three women voted. Only 7 per cent. of the legal electors visited the polls.

Matthew J. Geary, warden, and Ernest L. French and Edmond Jodoin, burgesses, were elected in 1924 for two years. It is well that The Bulletin has already published the borough reports in these columns, as the printed reports are in the hands of an exceedingly small per cent. of the voters and taxpayers, owing to non-attendance at the polls.

GALES FERRY

Shall We Adopt the Child Labor Amendment? was the subject of Rev. George Smith Brown's sermon in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, the text Matthew 18: 6, "But whoso shall offend one of these little ones, which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea." The offertory anthem was Secret Prayer (Gabriel). Notices for the week included the Epworth league social for Tuesday evening and the Thursday evening meeting, with the topic Bringing Up Father.

HOPKINTON

Work has been begun repairing and remodeling the building recently purchased for a parish house in connection with the First Hopkinton Baptist church.

The Needlecraft club met last Wednesday with Mrs. Alonzo P. Kenyon. Three quilts were tied. Refreshments were served. The amount received from fees was donated toward the new parish house.

The view of the eclipse was fine here and some saw the big dirigible, while others failed to locate it.

Rev. Everett P. Mathewson, representative in the Rhode Island general assembly, has been elected chairman of the house committee on education, also is a member of the committee on special legislation.

Three automobiles turned around twice Saturday on the icy hill near the residence of Lewis F. Randolph, only one of them being damaged, however. A wheel smashed and a ruptured gasoline tank was the fate of a Providence machine occupied by two women passengers.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Grieve of Norwich were guests at the home of Daniel E. Blake during the eclipse.

Walter F. Mills has filled his icehouse at Hopkinton City, also the Clark icehouse at Clark's Falls, with fine 10-inch ice. Charles E. Whiteley and Irving Rexroth completed filling the house of William H. Burdick during the snowstorm of Friday.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Up at Davis park trees are receiving attention this winter that concerns the removal of dead limbs, limbs that are not required for the beauty of the trees or are a handicap in development. The borders of the park are littered with the limbs that have been cut off, but the trees will be the better for the treatment during the spring and summer. The only fear is that by some unforeseen accident the trees on the south side of the park may be cut down, as the town unanimously voted they should be, that travel through the state highway bordering the south side of the park might be safer.

Firemen's ball, Jan. 30, Jewett City. Music, Sullivan Bros'. Singing Orch.—adv.

Fishermen here have visions of what wonderful fishing the Quinebaug and Assawaga rivers would afford—for pickerel, bass and pike as well as rainbow trout, if measures providing for the protection of such natural streams for pollution happened to be approved by the present legislature. If the rivers here are freed of the sewage and dyestuffs and other waste that gets into them and pollutes them, these streams will be heavily stocked with fishing, afford good sport for a great number of people and a fine article of food in liberal quantities.

When the walking became a bit sloppy Monday there was an increased chorus of complaint because of the fact that stretches of sidewalks in many sections of the borough have remained uncleaned since the snowstorm of a week ago today. It has been forcefully pointed out within a week that failure to clean walks can be made a cause of penalty for the negligent property owners by officials of the borough and that the borough has the legal right to order walks cleaned and assess the cost against the property owner. This has not been done, and it may not be necessary to do it, but the fact is that many sidewalks remain covered with snow and many are protesting about the matter. Nature is at work on the job of cleaning the walks just now, but is unhurried about the task, and is apt to decide at any time to lay off for a while and start in another freezing campaign.

Members of the Catholic Welfare council have plans for presenting a play on St. Patrick's night. The proposal was considered at a meeting of the organization Sunday.

With the opening of the trout fishing season only a little more than two months away, fishermen are concerned over the sort of fishing season the coming one is going to be. Low water practically all last summer, less water than usual all fall and a practically rainless winter makes conditions appear bad for the welfare of the trout. Thousands of fingerlings were distributed in brooks hereabouts last June following the close of the 1924 open season.

The new grand list, as completed by the assessors, will be available for inspection at the end of the present month. Where there have been increases that property owners feel should have further consideration, that privilege will be presented when the board of relief begins its sessions next week.

The eclipse of Saturday continued to hold first place in topics of conversation about town Monday. It would appear that the remarkable spectacle left a deep impression on a great number of people and gave birth to a desire to see another one like, a desire that will not be realized very probably except by a very few in this territory.

Excavators have found as much as three feet of frost in the ground at some points where digging has been necessary hereabouts. A review of the daily temperature records since Dec. 1, a period of nearly two months, establishes that this has been a winter of steady cold, though not always severe cold. However, the thawing days have been few and far between.

Of interest in this territory is the impending legislation in the Rhode Island legislature for the establishment of a state police department over there. It is proposed that the new department in Rhode Island will operate much after the lines of this state's department, patroling highways throughout Rhode Island. Danielson is interested because this town borders Rhode Island territory to the east.

No finding has as yet been announced in the case of Charles M. Letters by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, and may not be for several days.

The Well Child conference at the town hall this (Tuesday) afternoon is expected to bring out a large number of children.

Peter A. Simmons of Fall River returned to his home Monday after visiting for a few days with friends in Danielson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Danielson are at Haines City, Fla., where they expect to stay for the remainder of the winter.

Members of the Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church have a meeting scheduled to be held at the parish house Wednesday afternoon.

There was no session of the town court Monday morning, further evidence of a quiet week end. Lodgers continue to apply for a place to stay and numbers have been housed at the police station this month.

The two-apartment house being constructed for the Larkin Reed company on East Franklin street is expected to be ready for occupancy about March 1. It is being built for occupancy by families of employes of the firm.

Next Monday will be observed at St. James' church as the Feast of the Purification or Candlemas day. Candles used at the church during the year will be blessed on that day.

It is expected that bills will be introduced in the legislature this week providing for an increase in pay for the judge and the prosecuting attorney of the town court of Killingly.

Members of the Fortnightly club are to meet with Mrs. George M. Burroughs this afternoon.

Members of the board of directors of the Treble Clef club are to meet with Mrs. George F. Davignon this (Tuesday) evening.

The week end was marked by the further harvesting of ice at the Hygeia reservoir near East Killingly. The ice there is heavy and of the very finest quality.

Miss Albina Heroux is in the south for the remainder of the winter and expects to visit in Cuba before her return to Danielson.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said Monday afternoon that he will conduct his inquest relative to the death of Emilien Durand at West Thompson a few days ago on Saturday of this week. Mr. Durand died of injuries received when the automobile he was driving was struck by a train.

Howard A. Vincent of Pawtucket was in Danielson Monday on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Coulter are leaving here Thursday of this week to make their home in New Bedford, where Mr. Coulter is assistant treasurer of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company plant.

The membership drive of the Bohemian club is meeting with much success. About 15 applications have been received within the past few days.

Monday's thaw helped settle the snow on country highways in nearby territory and to make travel over them a bit less difficult than it has been for a week past.

In many of the schools at Monday's sessions pupils who observed the eclipse of Saturday had an opportunity to tell of what they saw in their own terms.

MISS THELMA KINDER WINS IN LIGHTING ESSAY CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Jan. 26.—Killingly High school students made a very commendable showing in the Home Lighting contest announced last fall and in which they submitted essays. The paper of Miss Thelma Kinder, member of the senior class, was judged the best in the district served by the Eastern Connecticut Power company and she was awarded a $35 wrist watch. For being the best essay submitted in the Danielson district, an additional award of $10 in gold was awarded Miss Kinder, and as the best essay from Killingly High school still another $5 in gold has been given Miss Kinder.

The judges who passed on the essays were Robert W. Perkins of Norwich, president of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, E. A. Harris, treasurer of the same corporation, and J. A. French, electrical engineer.

The district in which Miss Kinder competed included Putnam, Danielson, Plainfield and surrounding towns, not including the cities of Norwich and New London, nor Willimantic.

Awards of fountain pens were made other Killingly High school students who were contestants as follows: Miss Helen Havelas and Reuben Shekleton of the junior class, Miss Beatrice Pellett of the sophomore class, Miss Pauline Chartier of the freshman class. Each of these students received a fountain pen.

Monday morning at assembly William Sangster, manager here in Danielson for the Eastern Connecticut Power company, and James Barry, office manager here for the corporation, presented the awards on behalf of the company they represent.

PUTNAM

G. Lawrence Perkins, president of the Putnam Patriot Co., and John J. Whitehead, Jr., its editor and publisher are back in Putnam, the former after four months spent in China less the time that it takes to go and return, and Mr. Whitehead from a month in California.

Mr. Perkins, characteristically reticent in talking of matters that concern himself, but always interesting said that it was good to be back in America after experiencing the conditions that prevail in the Flowery Kingdom.

It is not revolution that is on over there, he said, or rebellion, but a series of little wars carried on for the financial benefit of the leaders of so-called armies or large guerilla bands. The men in control would engage in a war of spoliation on a city or a province, and divide the loot among themselves, with a pittance to their followers. Then another captain or general would place himself at the head of these same troops, given them a new name and slight change of insignia in their uniform and start another war to pillage and destroy. Mr. Perkins said that he had no solution to propose.

There were no services at the First Baptist church, Sunday. The engagement of Rev. John C. Stoddard, as pastor, terminated January 22. Next week Rev. Dr. Lockwood of Boston will begin his temporary pastorate which will continue until a permanent pastor is secured.

John Lynch, who has been confined to the house for ten days, is able to be out.

PUBLIC UTILITIES' DECISION AGAINST BUS FOR WOODSTOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Jan. 26.—The citizens of Woodstock are dissatisfied with the finding of the public utilities commission in not allowing the buses opreated between Providence and Springfield to take on or discharge passengers in this state. Practically all the residents of the northeastern section of the county and not a few Putnam people feel the same way. The inadequacy of trnasportation through this section is realized by everyone.

The attitude of the New Haven railroad is also understood to a degree, but according to the published statement of Mr. Russell, one of the vice presidents of the New Haven, the chief concern of the road is to serve the public. If this is correct, the query is why doesn't the New Haven company establish and operate bus lines through territories which private motor busses have been serving and apparently at a profit? A big corporation engaged in the transportation of pasesngers and freight could operate these lines, it would seem, more economically than private owners, more efficiently, and on a schedule that would accommodate the public.

There is need for a jitney line between Putnam and Quinebaug passing through the Woodstocks and an application for a license would be looked on favorably by the state commission. Between Putnam and Eastford and Ashford a similar need exists.

At a hearing in Putnam, December 17th last, before Commissioner C. C. Edwell, the proprietors of the bus line, Worcester men, and several other witnesses, undertook to prove that public convenience and necessity required the operation of such a bus service. Among the witnesses introduced were several Woodstock residents, who testified to the desirability of such a service from their point of view, since it would aid them in getting to and from Putnam and also in making occasional trips to Springfield.

Opposing the granting of the passenger right were the railroad committee, Putnam jitney men, and several citizens of the community. The railroad endeavored to show that its service between Putnam and Providence was entirely adequate and that the connection at Blackstone was very rarely missed. Officials of the company also believe that the service between Putnam and Springfield, and between Providence and Springfield is entirely ample.

Although the commission denies the application of the Farnum lines, it finds that public convenience and necessity exist for the establishment of a jitney service between Putnam and Quinebaug, whereby the people of Quinebaug, Woodstock and the points along the route would receive more convenient public transportation accessible to Putnam. There is no such application pending before the commission.

The application of Herbert Abbott of Danielson, for power to run a jitney between Putnam and Danielson, connecting with a Providence line which he already operates, was heard at the same time. The commission has also denied this. There are both trolley and train service between Putnam and Danielson. The best argument of Mr. Barnett was that his line would serve Attawaugan, a small community three miles south of Putnam, which is nearly a mile from the trolley.

The public utilities commission's report said in substance:

"In support of the application, testimony was introduced with regard to the inadequacy of public transportation from the villages of Quinebaug and Woodstock to Putnam and a number of witnesses residing in those communities testified to the need and convenience of more regular and frequent public transportation service. At the present time public transportation between these points is confined to a stage line operated between Woodstock and Putnam by the United States mail carrier who operates an auxiliary passenger service and makes two round trips daily. The hours of his service are rather inconvenient for public travel. In addition a number of taxi men operate frequently between Woodstock and Putnam, at evarying rates of fare.

"There were a few witnesses who expressed the opinion that existing train service between Putnam and Providence was not adequate. However, train service between Putnam and Providence, which is by a connection at Blackstone, consists of four trains daily each way, and affords reasonably ferquent service for the limited volume of travel flowing between these two points. The running time of the railroad train and jitney between Putnam and Providence, and the fare are the same: one hour and twenty minutes and $1.50 fare each. It appeared that the connection at Blackstone some time in the past was irregular, but at present the the service is operated with an average of more than 90 per cent. of the trains on scehdule time. There is also existing transportation facilities between Putnam and Providence, via Danielson, being by trolley between Putnam and Danielson and jitney between Danielson and Providence.

"From all the evidence presented at the hearing the commission is of the opinion and finds that public convenience and necessity do not require a jitney service along and over said route for the transportation of interstate passengers; that is, for the transportation of passengers to and from points in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, insofar as the inhabitants along said route within the borders of the state of Connecticut are affected, although to a very limited number of people in Woodstock and Quinebaug desiring to go to Springfield it would be a convenience.

"There is pending before us no application for a certificate to supply local service between Putnam and Quinebaug, excepting as incident to the through service between Massachusetts and Rhode Island as it passes through Connecticut.

"As stated before taking into consideration existing transportation facilities we find no public convenience and necessity for interstate or through travel between Connecticut and the adjoining states along and over said route as applied for in Connecticut.

Therefore, said application is denied, but without prejudice to an application for issuance of a certificate to operate a jitney between Putnam and Quinebaug."

SENATE OBSTRUCTIONISTS.

Nothing to the credit of the United States senate is to be found in the manner in which it is placing obstructions in the way of the confirmation of the president's nomination of Attorney General Stone as a justice of the United States supreme court.

It is another outbreak of those obstructing tactics that have characterized the present congress. There was hope that it would be ended after the verdict of the people expressed at the polls, but there are those who are insistent upon ignoring such a mandate and upon blocking the administration in the carrying out of its policies just because they happen to be in a position to do so.

The objections which have been raised against Mr. Stone have been without any justification. Those who are willing to listen to scandal, those who jump at the wildest of insinuations as facts and those who seem to want only an intimation of something to regard it as a fact fail to make a good impression before the country in such a role, when it is realized that they are members of the upper house of the national lawmaking body.

The latest objection raised to the naming of Attorney General Stone is that he was about to place facts before a Washington grand jury for the indictment of Senator Wheeler. The thought of taking any such action against a member of that body is too frightful to contemplate. It must be fought, whether or no there was a basis for such action and without finding out anything about it.

It was not so long ago that there were those in the senate who were taking action against members of the cabinet because of failure to measure up to responsibilities and without the courage to do their duty. Now it is a case where a member of the cabinet sees his duty clearly and is ready to meet it, even though it is necessary to proceed against a member of the senate. The action of the senate, or certain members thereof, in standing in the way of the advancement of such a man doesn't appear to be entirely consistent.

PEDESTRIAN TRAFFIC.

New York is one of the cities where there is the maximum of pedestrian traffic. Many people ride and have difficulty in getting about then, but many people walk for short distances and even what might be regarded as generous sidewalks at certain times are crowded to the congestion point at others. In order to relieve this situation, the suggestion has been put forth by one of the New Yorkers who has been studying the situation, that there should be one-way sidewalks the same as there are one-way streets.

That would mean that persons going north would use one side of the street and those going south would use the other. If you start north and want to go south later, it would be necessary to cross the street and join those going in your direction. There would be no such thing as half the walk for those going north and half for those going south.

Pedestrian traffic in certain localities is bound to be on the gain, but unless we are greatly mistaken it will be a long time before any such scheme is put into effect. Thus if a person coming out of a store on the side of the street where pedestrian traffic must go north and wanting to visit the store two doors to the south, he must go to the next corner, cross to the other side, go south for a complete block, cross back again and proceed north till he reaches the desired point. That would mean adding to the sidewalk congestion instead of relieving it.

There are those who make progress slowly and those who display speed on the sidewalks as well as in the streets. Sidewalk rights are quite as rudely disregarded in many instances as are the rules of the road, but the idea of forcing people to walk needless distances under the one-way sidewalk plan neither helps the traffic nor gives consideration to the individual. Perhaps in time there will be one-way sidewalks, but we don't expect it this year and we don't expect it as long as pedestrians are inclined to take the shortest distance between two points without acutally becoming jay walkers.

FIGHTING OPIUM.

Already it has been pretty clearly indicated what difficulties are being encountered in trying to get an agreement among the nations concerning the suppression of opium. The fight against opium has been underway for well along toward a score of years. Under the plan that has been proposed by this country in the international conference it is hoped to get the production under such control in the next ten years that there would be none available except for medicinal and scientific purposes. That means a marked change for some countries. It means the substitution of something else for the poppy. It means the dependence upon other crops for revenue, but with a gradual reduction each year for ten years the change could be brought about without detrimental effects.

What is needed is a general cooperation. And that is just what is so hard to obtain. There is as great a reluctance on the part of those countries which are getting so much from the growing of popies as has been experienced in the southern part of this country where a change from the one crop of cotton to a diversity has been persistently urged.

The situations are not exactly parallel, because cotton and opium do not stand in the same relative position to humanity. There is need of education in both instances. There must be a getting away from established customs. While the moral responsibility to the rest of the world to reduce the opium production is so clear to those countries where its demoralising effects are so fully appreciated, the task of bringing about abandonment of production is much like trying to discourage the person who profits so handsomely from selling the stuff.

The fact that it is an uphill fight simply calls for greater effort and continued persistence. Getting the nations into agreement will be only a beginning. The troubles connected with enforcement will then commence to loom on the horizon. Success can be obtained only through an international fight, and there is no small importance in making a start, even though it is not as big a one as desired.

AVOIDING EXTRAVAGANCE.

There are those who have not given their approval to the idea of a restricted inaugural parade. They would have all the pomp and extravagance that have featured some of the inaugurals of the past. They would let the parade extend to any length that might develop and urge the sending of as large state delegations as possible. They would let the expense amount as high as it might and there have been times when the sky seemed to be the limit.

But this doesn't fit in with the idea of President Coolidge. That it does not will be no surprise, for at no time has the president shown a disposition to rush into extravagance. The fact is of course that the president has put before the congress and the country a programme of economy and efficiency. He has put forth the reasons for it and he has made it evident that when he urged economy upon others he fully intended to put it into practice himself. His appeal was neither an empty one, nor a one-sided affair. What he sought of others he was anxious to participate in himself. This he has done and is doing. He has begun by giving advice and setting an example, and when he decides for a restricted inaugural parade it is only in keeping with his policies.

He thoroughly understands the wisdom of making the best possible use of the government's money. He doesn't see the wisdom of permitting others to spend money lavishly when there is such a cry for tax reduction. He, of course, stands on good ground and the country is with him.

REGISTRATION NEEDED.

When the president of the International Seaman's union states that half of those engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States have no right to be in this country under our immigration laws, he directs the attention of the house immigration committee to a condition that has long since indicated the need of a remedy.

Those who enter this country are entitled to do so only when they pass the requirements of the immigration laws. Seamen are permitted to land, however, and while it is expected that they will return to their ships the chance of avoiding the immigration laws is employed, and through such violation, and the lack of any requirement that would disclose this situation, they are able to get employment in coastwise shipping.

Beating the immigration laws is accomplished as a result of the study of the present requirements. Because we have put up the bars does not mean that many who want to come in and know the quotas are filled are going to accept the situation. As long as they can evade the law and are not forced to aid in checking up the aliens within the country, they can be expected to yield to the temptation and enter.

Some day when this country comes to its own protection through the establishment of an annual registration of aliens, it will be possible to put a stop to this sort of thing, or at least to so restrict it that there will be no such gross violation of laws which were established because there were considered necessary. A provision of that kind would be only a proper accompaniment of our present immigration laws.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—There is considerable speculation out here as to whether or not the house will follow the pace set by the senate and eliminate from its republican list of members entitled to committee recognition, such members of the republican party as led the bolt from Coolidge in the past congress and in the election of 1924.

There are a dozen to twenty such men in the house, mostly from Wisconsin and other insurgent states, led by Nelson of Wisconsin, who is LaFollette's right hand man on the floor of the house. Last year they bolted the regulars of the house and played in with the democrats. Now it is said to be doubtful if the democrats want to continue such a tie up, as it puts them under obligation to jump in and help pass some insurgent measures with which they are not in sympathy.

The question at this moment seems to be will the republicans relent, will the democrats continue a sort of coalition move, or will the insurgent LaFollette followers find themselves out in the cold and under the name of "third party," in which case they would lose their present committee positions and be relegated to the tail end of all committee appointments, in proportion to their ratio in the makeup of the 69th congress. And it is a question that up to date no one has had power to answer. The Longworth republicans seem inclined to adopt the same measures as did the senate, and put the insurgents out of the party pie-cutting, but whether or not that will be done when the time for action comes, cannot be safely predicted, though indications point strongly to such action being taken.

The situation is something like this: The republicans in the next congress will have a voting majority; the democrats cannot win by their own votes; yet they hesitate to tie up with the insurgent element of the majority party; they prefer to stand on their own feet. This is the case in both senate and house.

And that situation has led to another vexed question on the democratic side of the senate chamber. Shall Robinson of Arkansas continue to be floor leader after the incoming of the 69th congress? Robinson is able, keen and aggressive. And that is just the trouble. He is so aggressive that the is classed as "an irritant" by more conservative democrats. They express in private conversation that they believe the interests of their party would be better served by a man who is more conciliatory than the fiery Arkansan. They like Robinson personally and may relent when the time of electing a floor leader is actually at hand, but there is no gainsaying the fact that at this moment they wish they had as leader a man like Smith of South Carolina, Simmons of North Carolina, or Swanson of Virginia. Those men have each held a seat in the senate long before Robinson was heard of politically, but whether or not their following can unite on one man and whether or not the united effort will be made to oust Robinson, is, like the insurgent question, still beyond prediction. It's a matter of corridor talk and speculation un to date. But one hears it on all sides.

Over in the house if Longworth succeeds Gillett as speaker, Tilson of Connecticut is pretty likely to succeed Longworth as floor leader. Garrett and Garner will not be disturbed as democratic leaders. They do excellent team work and are personal favorites as well.

Owing to the immediate session of the senate after March 4th to confirm presidential nomination, senate changes must be made quickly, but the house will not meet till December, unless an unexpected session of congress is called by the president.

Competitive examination for appointment of cadets and cadet engineers in the United States Coast Guard will be held in Washington and 14 other large cities March 16, it was announced yesterday. Successful competitors will be sent to the Coast Guard academy at New London, Conn., where after graduation from three years of education and training they become officers of the line and engineer corps of the coast guard, ranking with commissioned officers of the army, navy and marines and receiving corresponding pay and allowances.

About 35 will be sent to the academy this year and there are already nearly 200 applications for the examination. Applicants for the line must be between 18 and 24 years and cadet engineers, 18 to 23 years. Mental and physical examinations are given and certificates that they have completed the equivalent of a four-year high school course are required.

Coast guard officials declare that while the Coast Guard academy can not be compared in size or equipment with the other two national schools, in standards of discipline and conduct it is second to none. Cadets receive instruction in seamanship, navigation, ordnance, marine engineering and other matters pertaining to the profession of a seagoing officer and also instruction in academic subjects.

One of the features of the course is the practical cruise aboard a coast guard cutter. This year the cadets will go to England, France, Morocco and Bermuda.

Someone recently called attention to the apparent trust and preference the president shows towards sons of clergymen. For instance, in making his appointments, Everett Sanders, the new secretary to the president, which is an office scarcely lower than that of a cabinet member, is the son of a minister; Edward T. Clark, the president's personal and confidential secretary, is likewise the son of a minister. William M. Butler, close friend of the president and his selection as chairman of the republican national committee is the son of a minister, and his closest friend and advisor, Frank W. Stearns, recognized as the power behind the white house throne is the brother of a minister, which is coming pretty close to a ministerial family. All of which goes to show the fallacy of the old adage that minister's sons came to naught.

Probably one thing that especially recommended Clark and Sanders to President Coolidge is their ability to do a day's work, with the same diligence that marks his own conception of cleaning up the desk before the sun goes down. "Do the day's work" is a slogan that nowadays applies to the entire white house force.

Congressman John Q. Tilson of New Haven will sail for Europe on the America March 10th to join his family and bring them back to New Haven after spending the winter abroad.

Colonel Tilson, so it is understood, will make a personal inspection of arsenals and ordnance while he is in Europe and report his findings to President Coolidge. Colonel Tilson was ordnance expert of the military affairs committee during the war and after the armistice went to France and Germany at the request of President Harding to look into certain conditions then said to be existing in which the United States was directly concerned. Tilson is now a colonel in the United States reserve corps and with his personal experience in the Spanish-American war, and on the Mexican border, as well as being the ordnance expert of the committee, is in a position to make thorough and accurate observations.

Senator Bingham has taken up with the Veterans Bureau the matter of possible abandonment of the Bridgeport bureau and learned from Director Hinds that the plan would not be carried out. Mr. Bingham had previously protested against the abandonment as had other members of the delegation.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Business Expenditures

Business expenditures are not always business expenses within the meaning of the income tax law. For example, a merchant may build an addition to his warehouse at a cost of $10,000. This is a capital expenditure for an addition to his assets. Capital expenditures are not deductible. Distinction is made between expenditures for an asset and expenditures in connection with an asset. If the merchant, during the year, should spend $500 for repairs to his warehouse, such as painting the roof or replacing broken windows, he may deduct such amount from gross income as a business expense, provided his plant or property account is not increased by this amount.

Medical, law or other professional books, machinery, tools, implements, or surgical instruments purchased by a taxpayer for his use in his business, trade, or profession which are of a permanent character are capital assets, and their cost is not allowable as a deduction. A farmer may not deduct the cost of a threshing machine or tractor, these being capital expenditures, but is allowed to deduct the cost of hoes, rakes, and small tools which are used up in the course of a year or two in farming operations.

The purchase price of an automobile, even when used wholly for business or professional purposes, is not deductible, but is regarded as an investment of capital. The cost of gasoline, repairs, and upkeep of an automobile is deductible if used wholly in business. If used partly for business, and partly for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer or his family, such cost may be apportioned. Only the proportion of such cost attributable to business purposes is deductible as a necessary expense.

DEVELOPING

"Oh, we're going to be awfully poor!" Teresa had laughed excitedly, telling the girls that she was engaged to the most splendid man in all the world, one Elliot James.

And the girls had laughed back and said it was thrilling and what were the bridesmaids gowns to be.

But she had not known it was going to be like this. When Elliot had told her about his present salary and the tiny scale on which they would have to begin—with no maid in the kitchenette, clothes for a year or so bought at bargain sales, evenings spent reading or at the movies instead of filled with expensive entertaining abroad and at home—all she had thought about was the delightful thickness of his hair and the color of his eyes, and she had assured him stanchly that she should not mind in the least, that it would be fun, getting meals for just two of them and that butlers bored her.

Teresa had been surprised when Elliott quite firmly vetoed her father's wish to continue her allowance.

"You see, Mr. Bascom," he had said, "it will be better for us to start out honestly living on what I can earn—we'll like ourselves better. I'll have a bigger income soon and Teresa says she can manage!"

That talk was months in the background, but Elliot had been just as serious this morning at breakfast when Teresa had announced sadly that she could not go to Lillian's lunch or Estelle's bridge because every rag she owned was a sight.

"We've gone more than we should anyhow," Elliott had pointed out to her. "We're obligated now to more entertaining than we can afford and keep out of debt? We just can't keep up with the old crowd, not for a time. I've hated to ask you to cut it out, but we've got to from now on! Poor people, that's what we are, ain't it awful?"

He had departed blithely, kissing the cheek that she had turned to him a bit resentfully.

Seated at the breakfast table she thought of the piled dinner dishes from last night still on the sink ledge, the dried-up muffin tin hastily shut in the gas stove oven, the debris swept beneath the kitchen table because she had been in a hurry to leave for Ruth's party! Like a procession there passed before her mind the undarned socks, the buttons that Elliott had twice asked her to sew on, the odd jobs calling from every corner of the little place. She was sick of it!

And there was no sense in it, just to feed Elliott's silly pride when her father stood ready and willing financially to make things perfect easy for them! Half mechanically she began tearing off the pert checked housegown and getting out her street clothes.

Teresa resolutely crammed back into her mind any thought of Elliott's disapproval of what she was about to do. It was time she considered herself a bit since he failed to do so. And she was sure she could pout and laugh him out of it! Still—she paused with her hat raised remembering the scorn in his eyes when they had talked of a certain man frankly living on his father-in-law's bounty. But surely this was different, a girl letting her father help her personally as she was about to do! Why on earth should she feel so suddenly confused about it? She had always secretly thought Elliott had strained a point, though she liked the way he looked when he demanded the right to stand on his own feet and that she should stand with him.

That was it—with Elliot, not by herself any more. No more could she consider herself as herself—her life and Elliott's were merged. What if that scorn were turned on her? Teresa shivered a trifle and stared at herself in the glass.

Suddenly over her shoulder she had an instant's glimpse of Elliott's fine, laughing face, his strong jaw line.

Just what did clothes—and parties—and all that jazz stuff amount to compared with the tenderness in his smile? Something flooded across Teresa's heart warmly and all unaware she took a big step forward in becoming the fine woman she was destined to become.

By the time she was back in the checked gingham and resolutely scouring the muffin tin, Teresa was singing below her breath. She had jolted herself back on the track and she meant to stick there!—Exchange.

Herrick, the Dinner Bell Peddler

Myron T. Herrick, the farmer boy, worked his way through college to be a lawyer, but later changed to the fields of finance and public life.

Born in a log cabin on his fathers farm near quiet Huntington, Ohio, he worked in the fields and attended the little district school, then the Huntington high school.

At 16 he determined to be a lawyer, and entered Oberlin College. At the beginning of the vacation period he bought a wagon and team on credit, and peddled dinner bells to farmers. At the end of summer he had funds to pay off his loan and go to college. Later he sold organs and lightning rods, and taught school in the country districts.

Next he attended Ohio Wesleyan University. After he was graduated he obtained a position in a law office at Cleveland, doing clerical work at $25 a month, while he read law.

Admitted to the bar at 24, he began the practice of law in Cleveland. Two years later he was married. His law practice grew, he successfully invested in land and became interested in building up more land business concerns. At 32 he was made secretary and treasurer of the Society for Savings of Cleveland, and gave up law. Eight years later he was elected president of the bank. His activity in business consolidation caused his fortune to grow large. First a presidential state elector at large, then a member of the republican state and national executive committees and on the Cleveland City council, he was elected governor of Ohio at 49 by a record-making majority. Although mentioned as a presidential possibility, he ran for governor later and was defeated.

After having declined five offers of appointment as foreign ambassador and three of presidential cabinet portfolios, he at 54 became ambassador to France, in order to study rural credit system in Europe. Then came the World War and the strenuous task of caring for interests of this and other countries in panic-stricken Paris until President Wilson appointed his successor. He was honored by the allied countries for his efforts and just before peace was declared Mrs. Herrick died from the effects of war work.

President Harding appointed him ambassador to France and today, at 69, Herrick is still popular and rich and has been honored by lawyers, bankers and diplomats.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Unceasingly Cousins

Relationship is not a bond
That always makes the heart grow fond.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was feeling better. He had filled his stomach with food, such as it was. He had seen nothing more of Reddy Fox or Terror the Goshawk, nor had he seen any one else of whom to be afraid. He knew that Mrs. Grouse had escaped Reddy Fox, so altogether Peter was feeling in good spirits.

"It is a long time since I have seen my cousin, Jumper the Hare," said Peter to himself. "I think I'll see if I can find him."

"My stars!" exclaimed Peter under his breath, "It's Shadow the weasel."

So Peter wandered about looking for his cousin, Jumper the Hare, but failing to find him. At last he found himself over near the Laughing Brook. The Laughing Brook was frozen. Peter could hear the water gurgling under the ice. Being tired, he sat down under a hemlock branch that was bent down with a load of snow. It made a cosy little cave, quite dark and just the place to keep out of sight and still be where he could see any one who might happen along.

Peter could see quite a way up the Laughing Brook. For a long time he didn't see a sign of life. He was beginning to doze and thinking about taking a nap when he caught sight of some one dressed in dark brown running along the bank of the Laughing Brook and coming toward him.

"Billy Mink!" exclaimed Peter under his breath. "I hope he won't take it into his head to look in here. These are hard times for almost every one, and I am afraid Billy might be tempted to try to get a Rabbit dinner. Billy is a great fish eater, but he likes fresh meat."

Very slim and trim was Billy Mink as he moved swiftly down the bank of the Laughing Brook, looking into every little hole, missing nothing. He was nearly opposite Peter's hiding place when he abruptly stopped, arched his back, showed his teeth and snarled. At first Peter couldn't understand what it meant. Then Peter saw a little black spot which moved. Peter's eyes looked as if they might pop out of his head. That black spot was the end of a tail. The owner of that tail was otherwise all in white. That was why Peter had not seen him before.

"My stars!" exclaimed Peter under his breath. "It's Shadow the Weasel!" And Peter began to tremble all over. There is no one he fears more than he does Shadow the Weasel.

Shadow also had his back arched high, and his wicked little eyes were red with rage. He was very much smaller than his cousin, Billy Mink, but he showed no signs of fear. There they were, two cousins, but you would never have known it from their actions. No more uncousinly cousins could be imagined.

"What are you doing here?" snarled Billy Mink. "The Laughing Brook is my hunting ground."

"It is mine if I choose to make it so," snarled Shadow the Weasel. "You don't own the Laughing Brook, and it is no business of yours what I am doing here."

"Then I'll make it my business!" was Billy Mink's snarling reply, and he sprang at Shadow.

Now Billy Mink can move almost like a flash, but Shadow can move even faster. He dodged his cousin, but he didn't run away. Shadow is no coward. For a few minutes they snarled at each other and called each other bad names, and it looked as if they might fight. Peter Rabbit hoped they would. You see he was sure that Billy Mink would get the best of it. But just as it looked as if they were going to fight, both disappeared so suddenly that Peter fairly blinked. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

PLEASANT VIEW WALKS HAVE COST $12,631.01

A summing up of the work done on the cement sidewalks at Pleasant View which were completed early last season shows that a total of 5,336 square walks were laid.

The cost per yard of laying the walks was $2.35, the total cost being $12,631.01. One-half of the expense for the construction of walks will be borne by the Pleasant View Beach fire district, to be paid out of the annual tax assessment. The other half will be paid by the abutting property owners, which will be $1.17 1-2 per square yard. For a 50-foot lot it is estimated that the cost to the property owner will be about $26.

CITY MEETING VOTES TO CONTINUE TRADING COVE PUMPING STATION; AGAINST SELLING G. & E. PLANT

Sentiment on the proposed sale of the municipal gas and electric plant was divided at the special city meeting Monday evening in the town hall, but those not in favor of the relinquishing of the city's plant to private interests were in the majority. This become evident when a resolution "enjoining the mayor and the court of common council from any further entertainment of bids or proposals that would in any way contemplate the sale or lease of the plant" was put to vote. It was adopted by an "aye" and "nay" vote.

The meeting authorized appropriation of the Trading Cove Brook pumping station, an appropriation of $2,500 for the repair of the Franklin St. brook sewer where it crosses the land owned by Peter Sellas southerly of Franklin square, approved a deed of a small strip of land in the neighborhood of Baltic street from the city to Mary K. Farrel and voted down a resolution presented by Warren Davis requesting the board of water commissioners to cease within 24 hours the pumping of water from Trading Cove brook into the city mains.

Fully 1,000 people attended the meeting, it being one of the largest attended city meetings in years. Two items in the warning were responsible for the large turnout, one being the proposal to silence the Trading Cove brook pumping station and the other the item, which according to the wording in the warning, called for action on a proposal requesting the mayor and court of common council to cease all negotiations contemplating the sale of the gas and electric plant and to "abrogate forthwith all arrangements or commitments either secret or otherwise, looking to the sale or lease" of the plant.

Asks Speakers to be Brief

The meeting was called to order at sharp 8 o'clock by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the warning was read by City Clerk Weston C. Pullen. Mayor Waters stated that there was considerable business to come before the meeting and requested the speakers to be as brief as possible. He said the item in the warning would be taken up in their order.

G. Warren Davis asked if the seventh item in the warning, (the proposal to order the pumping of water from Trading Cove brook stopped) could not be placed second in the list.

Mayor Waters ruled that the matters be taken up item by item as they appeared in the warning unless a motion authorizing a change was adopted.

Mr. Davis then moved that Paragraph 7 in the warning become Paragraph 2.

When the motion was put it was defeated by an overwhelming majority and then the meeting began the consideration of the first item in the list. This item was as follows:

To determine whether or not the court of common council of said city shall be authorized to appropriate and expend any balance of the specific appropriation of $60,000 heretofore authorized and made for the raising of the dam of Stony Brook reservoir and increasing the pondage of the same, which may not be needed for said purposes, for the payment of the expenses incurred by the board of water commissioners of the city in the installation of a pumping station on Trading Cove brook.

Money for Pumping Station

Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., presented a resolution authorising the expenditures of any balance of the $60,000 appropriation for the purpose above stated.

As a word of explanation the corporation counsel said: The situation is this: The pumping station was erected, it was necessary and the work had to be done in a hurry. The water commissioners could have paid for it out of their receipts, but if this is done, at the end of the fiscal year the city will have a deficit in its estimated receipts. About $20,000 of the $60,000 appropriation is not needed at Stony Brook. Mr. Shields moved that the clerk cast one ballot in favor of the resolution and the motion was carried.

Item two called for action on an appropriation of a sum not to exceed $10,000 for the expenses of installing and operating the pumping station during the the city's fiscal year.

Mr. Shields presented a resolution authorizing the appropriation.

In answer to a question as to whether $10,000 will be needed and as to the expense of the pumping station per day, Mayor Waters said the amount needed depends on the weather. When rains fill the reservoirs the pumping station will be closed. He said the cost of the pumping station is about $75 a day.

The corporation counsel said that only that part of the $10,000 appropriation needed will be used.

Cost of Pumping Station

G. Warren Davis inquired as to the cost of the Trading Cove pumping station.

John J. Corkery, president of the board of water commissioners answered the question. Mr. Corkery said that of the $60,000 appropriation originally authorized about $31,000 has been spent at Stony Brook and that there is still a little work to be done there. About $17,100 has been spent at Trading Cove pumping station. The expenditures there include the purchase of land, the construction of a reservoir to hold about 100,000 gallons of water, the construction of the building, and road, the installation of the pump and the installation of a 150 h. p. motor. There will be left about $20,000 of the Stony Brook appropriation.

Mr. Corkery said the cost of the work at Stony Brook will be about $40,000 and $30,000 will be necessary for the expense of the installation and operation of the Trading Cove brook pumping station until the end of the fiscal year. We intend to stop pumping as soon as we feel it is safe to do so, said Mr. Corkery. We will not spend any more money than we have to.

Vote Almost Unanimous

When the question was put the resolution was adopted by a practically unanimous vote, one lone "nay" being heard.

Item three called for action on the borrowing by the city of the money appropriated by the preceding resolution. Mr. Shields presented a resolution authorizing the borrowing of the money and moved that the clerk cast one ballot for the resolution. With the exception of one "no" the motion was unanimously carried.

For Franklin Street Brook

The matter of the $2,500 appropriation for the repair of the Franklin street brook sewer where it crosses the land of Peter Sellas southerly of Franklin square next came up for action. Mr. Shields introduced a resolution authorizing the appropriation after which he explained the appropriation asked for.

Mr. Shields said that when it became evident that the brook was in poor condition when the Franklin square building was pulled down; it was thought best to do the repair work now. I would mean a larger expense if the work was not done until the new building is erected over the brook. Mr. Shields moved that the clerk cast one ballot for the resolution and the motion was unanimously adopted.

The fifth item in the warning called for action on the borrowing by the city of the money appropriated in the preceding resolution. A resolution authorizing the borrowing of the money by the city was introduced by Mr. Shields and on motion of Mr. Shields the clerk was instructed to cast one ballot in favor of the resolution.

Approved Deed of Land

The next matter taken up was the item calling for action on a deed from the city to Mary K. Farrell of a small strip of land in the neighborhood of Baltic street. Mr. Shields presented a resolution approving the deed.

By way of explanation he said that this was a deed of a parcel of land about 200 feet by 50 feet situated in the rear of four houses that front on Baltic street. Mrs. Farrell and her three neighbors want to secure this parcel of land in order to increase the the depth of their premises. Mr. Shields said that the reason the entire strip was being deeded to Mrs. Farrell was to save the necessity of reading four identical deeds at the city meeting. Mrs. Farrell will in turn deed to her neighbors that part of the parcel of land that lies in the rear of their premises. Mr. Shields moved that the deed be approved and that the clerk be instructed to cast one ballot for the resolution. The motion prevailed.

Mr. Davis Talks on Water.

There was a ripple of excitement and the audience took a new and deeper interest in the proceedings as the city clerk read the next item, which called for action on the Trading Cove brook pumping station. G. Warren Davis immediately presented a resolution which if, adopted, would have called on the board of water commissioners to cease pumping water from Trading Cove brook into the city mains. Mr. Davis moved the adoption of the resolution.

In speaking for the support of his resolution Mr. Davis said it was not his purpose to inflict on the meeting a lengthy discourse on the matter. He said he thought most of those present were familiar with the matter. To clear myself of some criticism, I want to say that I am entitled to speak at this meeting, as I am a citizen of the city, Mr. Davis said.

The Trading Cove brook water is contaminated, he said. The board of water commissioners have done considerable work that has reduced the number of bacteria in the water. It has not cleared them all out by any means. Mr. Davis went on to explain how heat and cold affect the growth and multiplication of bacteria. The water is cold now and they are few, he said. The water will begin to warm up in about eight weeks and then they will multiply.

The chlorinating plant is killing some bacteria, but it is not killing all. We have had samples from an ordinary "tap" analyzed. After speaking at some length on the capabilities of the gentleman who analyzed the samples of water, Mr. Davis said the result showed the presence of bacteria. When you drink a glass of water, you are bound to take into your system bacteria to the number of 3,000.

He said the necessity for the pumping station does not exist with the recent rains. He called attention to the fact that Mr. Corkery on Dec. 15th said that we have 35 days' supply of city water if no rain ran into the reservoirs. He then went on to say that with the addition of water to the reservoir by recent rains the necessity for the operation of the pumping station does not exist.

Superintendent Corkery Explains.

Mayor Waters said that he would call on Mr. Corkery to clear the situation in view of the fact that "so many fallacious statements have been made by Mr. Davis regarding the amount of water in the reservoirs."

In responding to the mayor's request, Mr. Corkery said: "We had about 35 days' supply Dec. 15th. If we had not been pumping since Dec. 22d we would have about 550,000 gallons in the two reservoirs and not a single high place in the city would be receiving water. We have pumped to date about 65,000,000 gallons of water. There are about 120,000,000 gallons of water on hand today in the two reservoirs. We have had less than eight inches of precipitation in four months.

"We will stop the pumping just as soon as, in the opinion of the board of water commissioners, we feel it will be safe. We don't want to spend the taxpayers' money. I have sent samples of water away and never received one back that did not show bacteria. It is very fortunate for us that we have such a splendid supply of water as Trading Cove brook."

After Mr. Corkery had satisfactorily answered one or two questions from Mr. Davis regarding the present depth of water in the reservoirs, the resolution to stop the pumping from Trading Cove brook went to vote. It was lost by an overwhelming majority, scarcely a dozen "ayes" being heard in favor of it.

Gas and Electric Plant.

This matter disposed of, the meeting took up the final item in the warning—the proposed sale of the city's gas and electric plant. As soon as the item "to determine whether or not said meeting will request the mayor and court of common council to cease all negotiations contemplating the sale or lease of the gas and electrical plant, and to abrogate forthwith all arrangements, or commitments, either secret or otherwise, looking to the sale or lease of the plant" had been read Eugene H. Naife of Hedge avenue presented the following resolution:

Whereas, The gas and electrical plant, so-called, of the city of Norwich, Conn., has for a period of approximately 20 years yielded a profit to said city of Norwich and is therefore of great and growing value as a public utility, be it therefore, Resolved, That the mayor and court of common council be, and hereby are, enjoined from any further entertainment of bids or proposals that would in any way contemplate the sale or lease of the said gas and electrical plant, except they be authorized by a vote of the city of Norwich.

There is no reason why the city gas and electrical plant should be sold, said Mr. Naife. You have read in The Bulletin that the gas and electrical plant has been a failure under city management. That is not true. Mr. Naife went on to quote statistics from a report of the gas and electric commission showing that the plant made a net profit of $151,268.38 during the period covered by the report.

I think the management should be congratulated on the expert way in which they are running the plant, said Mr. Naife. He started to read a letter sent by the A. E. Fitkin Co. to citizens of Norwich, but Mayor Waters ruled that he was out of order in reading the letter. It went back into Mr. Naife's pocket as he went on to say that the Fitkin company would like to get the plant with the idea of selling it for more than they pay for it.

Mr. Naife said the local rates are reasonable and that the Fitkin company could go to the public utilities and if their foundation is good they could get an increase in the rates and th mayor and "common court of council," as he several times styled the common council, would have nothing to do with it.

Mr. Naife is the man who appeared as a witness in the hearing in the superior court over the Trading Cove brook pumping station. At that time a question put to Mr. Naife by an attorney revealed that he was so unfamiliar with Norwich that he didn't know where the Industrial building is.

Not Allowed to Read Letter.

Timothy C. Murphy, following up Mr. Naife's remarks, registered objection to the mayor's ruling against the reading of the Fitkin letter by Mr Naife. I think the people should know about it, said Mr. Murphy, and then he inquired if he had permission to read the letter.

I shall have to rule it out of order, said Mayor Waters, and the mayor requested to again read the item before the meeting for action.

I have ruled this lettef out of order, as it has nothing to do with this item, said the mayor, after the item had been read by the clerk.

Cries of "Yes, it has," "Read it," "We are taxpayers, we want it read," rang up and down the hall.

Are we going to sell this plant away? asked Mr. Murphy, when the hall quieted down. His answer came in a chorus of "noes" from the audience

We are told we need a new reservoir, said Mr. Murphy, but he hadn't got far along this line of thought before he was again ruled out of order by Mayor Waters.

Regarding a possible increase in the local rates if the Fitkin company purchase the plant, Mr. Murphy said that as soon as "they don't get a return on their $3,000,000 they will go to Hartford."

J. J. Desmond Speaks.

At the conclusion of Mr. Murphy's remarks, Jeremiah J. Desmond took the floor.

I was referred to by the last speaker as representing the A. E. Fitkin company, he said. That is true, ladies and gentlemen. I do represent the A. E. Fitkin company. I might suggest——"The democratic party can't hear" came an interruption from somewhere in the back of the hall, and Mr. Desmond promptly walked half way down the main aisle that his remarks might carry to all parts of the hall.

Mr. Desmond said that when the A. E. Fitkin company offered $3,000,000 for the plant it didn't strike him as "giving it away." He spoke at some length on municipal ownership. There is nothing magic about the term "government," he said, whether federal, state or city. That government is ourselves. "We want the resolution," interjected someone in the audience, and the mayor immediately rapped for order. Mr. Desmond went on to express the opinion that the meeting had no right to vote the resolution, thus depriving others who were not able to be present of the privilege of voting.

Mr. Murphy is not alone in his opinion and he has a right to his opinion, said Mr. Desmond. I can say that I am not alone in my opinion. Mr. Desmond quoted from the petition which has been sent to the state legislature, showing that the petition provides that either a ballot or a machine vote be taken at a city election be taken before the plant be disposed of.

The resolution (meaning the one introduced by Mr. Naife) isn't respectful to the court of common council, said Mr. Desmond. I don't know who the author is and don't care. It isn't decent or respectful.

Speaks For City Election Vote.

A Mr. Fullerton voiced the opinion that the matter should be decided at a city election. He said that if the resolution was voted on at the meeting there might be many present who are not legal voters.

Regarding Mr. Fullerton's suggestion that the matter be decided at a special city election, Mayor Waters said that that is just what has been provided for.

I am not in favor of selling the gas plant, said James P. Sheridan, but I am perfectly satisfied to see this matter threshed out in a decent manner. Let us stand back of our city government, he said. I hope this resolution does not prevail tonight. Let us thresh it out on the election machines.

Favors Retaining Plant.

Albert Boardman spoke in favor of the city retaining the plant. He said the plant has been a success. He said that if the meeting voted the resolution it would be very doubtful if the legislature would act favorably on the petition.

Is it your ruling that if this meeting votes this resolution the matter will go to the legislature anyway, asked T. C. Murphy of Mayor Waters. Mayor Waters said that was the legal opinion.

If the court of common council is bigger than a city meeting, I want to know it, said Mr. Murphy.

Opposes Sale of Plant.

I am absolutely opposed to the sale of the gas and electrical plant, said City Auditor Alexander Manes. The gas and electrical department has an income of three-quarters of a million. Is it any wonder that corporations are after it? It has assets they are paying $3,000,000. With the sale of the gas and electrical plant goes something that alone is worth $3,000,000—a monopoly. If that can be secured for money, $3,000,000 isn't much. Lets' stop it right now, before it goes any further. Let our slogan be "We will sell our gas and electrical plant when the United States sells its postoffice."

If the gas and electrical plant is worth $3,000,000 to a corporation it is worth that to the city of Norwich, said H. H. Gallup. I say let's stop this thing right now. Let the city own it a while longer.

Claims No Legal Effect.

As a final word Mr. Desmond said: The court of common council has already acted. Whatever action is taken here can have no legal effect. It will be a reflection on the mayor and court of common council.

Mayor Waters than put the question and the resolution was declared adopted by an "aye" and "nay" vote. As there was no other business to come before the meeting adjournment was taken about 9.30 o'clock.

NURMI EXPECTS TO MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF EVENTS IN MILLROSE A. C. GAMES

New York, Jan. 26.(By The A. P.)—Unperturbed by the first defeat of his American campigan in a handicap race Saturday, Paavo Nurmi today declared himself fit for the two races in which he will be a central figure tomorrow and Wednesday nights at Madison Square Garden, in the 18th annual track and field carnival of the Millrose A. A., the most pretentious indoor meet of the season.

Nurmi will be only one of an unusual galaxy of International stars competing but his races against Joie Ray at three-quarters of a mile tomorrow night and at a mile and a half Wednesday will attack outstanding interest.

Coming on top of Nurmi's unexpected setback at the hands of his countryman, 35-year-old Gunnar Nilson, who holds the American cross-country championship, the showing of the Phantom Finn this week will hold added interest. There was an expression among some critics after Saturday's meet that Nurmi was becoming stale and lacked the "kick" usual to his finishing sprint, but to offset this view was the fact that Paavo added two world'srecords to his string and actually was 99 yards better than Nilson over the whole route of the race, since the latter, starting with a handicap of 100 yards was able to break the tape first by only a stride.

Nurmi's race tomorrow will be at the shortest distance at which he has met any opponents here and critics are convinced it will prove his hardest. Besides Ray, the Finn will have such high class opposition as Jimmy Connolly and Lloyd Hahan, who helped push Paavo to a world's record in his first race in this country.

Rivalling Nurim's races in general interest will be the American debut of Ugo Frigerio, the Italian holder of the Olympic walking championship, and the come-back of George Goulding, famous Canadian heel and too veteran, who holds many world's records. Frigerio and Goulding will show thier prowess in separate handicap events tomorrow night in preparation for a three-cornered International 5,000 meter test Wednesday night in which Willie Plant, American walking ace, will be the remaining contender.

The series of sprints are other features of tomorrow's program, with Jackson Scholz, Olympic 200-meter champion, making his first indoor start against such competition as Loren Muchison, Frank Hussey and Harold (Boots) Lever, former Pennsylvania star.

Willie Ritola, crack distance performer, will not meet Nurmi during the Millrose Carnival but the sturdy Finn will show his wares in a three-mile race tomorrow night. Check-up of Ritola's performances at the Brooklyn college meet Saturday have revealed that he shattered five world's marks instead of three, as previously announced.

Ritola set record for two and one-quarter and two and one-half miles, in addition to two and three-quarters miles, three miles and 5,00 metres in his great race Saturday. Three of the standards he set eclipsed previously marks by Nurmi.

Alan Helffrich, Penn State distance ace, will attempt to carry off the Millrose "600" for the third straight year in another star event tomorrow night, but he will face keen opposition from Walter Mulvihill of Holy Cross and Jake Driscoll, Boston A. A. veteran.

Feature events and entries for the two-night Millrose A. A. track and field carnival tomorrow and Wednesday follow:

Tuesday: Sprints (40, 50, 60 yards):—Jackson Scholz, Frank Hussey, "Boozes" Lever and Loren Murchison.

Walking:—George Goulding, Canada, and Ugo Frigerio, Italy, in separate handicap events.

High jump:—Harold Osborn, Leroy Brown, R. L. Juday, Clarence Flahive and Tom Halloran.

Three quarters mile run—Paavo Nurmi, Joie Ray, J. J. Connolly, Lloyd Hahn and Leo Larrivee.

Millrose —"600"—Alan Helffrich, W. S. Mulvihill, Vinvent Lally, Jake Driscoll.

Three mile run—Willie Ritola, Verne Booth, Gunnar Nilson, John Bell, Charles Pores, Ilmar Prim, August Fager.

Wednesday: 60-yard Hurdles—Harold Osborn, Ivan Riley, Herb Meyer, Charles Moore, George Scattergood, Ray Wolf.

Two mile run—Ray Watson, Alan Helffrich, Lloyd Hahn, Jimmy Connolly.

Interscholastic relay — Mercersburg Academy, Lawrenceville, Huntington school of Boston and De La Salle Institue of New York.

5,000 meter walk—Ugo Frigerio, George Goulding, Willie Plant.

Rodman Wanamaker mile and a half—Paavo Nurmi, Joie Ray, Willie Goodwin, George Clermond, Leo Larrivee and William Cox.

300-yard special—Jackson Scholz: Loren Muchison, Joe Tierney.

STONINGTON PLAYS TECH AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 26.—Chapman Tech's squad of basketballers will face the invasion of Stonington High on this (Tuesday) evening at the school auditorium in the main event of two contests. In the preliminary, the Chapman Tech sophomores will stack up against Lyme High, from Lyme.

There seems to be no slacking up in the pace the Red and Black machine has set in the last few games, and although Stonington comes here with a fine record of victories, this record is expected to me marred tomorrow evening. Smooth sailing is predicted for the Tech five until the team opposes the Rhode Island State College freshmen at South Kingston on Saturday afternoon. Until that time the Tech staff of coaches will spend a good deal of their leisure time preparing the locals for the almost unstoppable offense of the frosh five.

In tackling Stonington on Tuesday night, the Red and Black five will oppose a team which is expected to give them competition. Stonington has gained easy victories at the expense of both South Kingston and Bacon Academy, while Chapman Tech had a tough time winning from Bacon academy, Stonington went to work and made short work of this quintet. An interesting basketball due, is expected to be result with the meeting of the two teams. The preliminary also should afford some good basketball, with Lyme High and Tech sophomores opposing each other.

DUNDEE WILL TRY TO WIN TITLE IN RING

New York, Jan. 26.—Johnny Dundee, veteran Italian lightweight and former world's featherweight champion, came back to the United States to enter the lightweight elimination tournament and not to reclaim the featherweight title, James J. Johnston, Dundee's manager said today.

Fear of prevoking the wrath of the state athletic commission prompted Johnston to issue a formal statement today clearly defining Dundee's position.

"Dundee never intended to reclaim the featherweight title which he voluntarily relinquished," Johnston said.

"We do intend, however ,to ask the state athletic commission to reinstate Dundee as a featherweight without weakening himself too much. Then Dundee will attempt to win back the title in the ring."

Johnston said he would go before the state athletic commission at its regular meeting tomorrow and seek reinstatement for Dundee as a featherweight and also to make plans for Dundee's entrance in the lightweight elimination tournament.

Members of the commission refused, today, to comemnt on the latest turn of affairs in the Dundee matter other than to say that official notification of Dundee's suspension by the French boxing federation has been received. Just what action would be taken against the veteran Italian could not be learned tonight but if the commission adheres to its agreement with the French Solons, Dundee will be blacklisted in this state until he fulfills his agreement to meet Fred Bretonel, French lightweight.

FRISCH AND SAND GIVE TESTIMONY IN BRIBERY CASE

New York, Jan. 26.—Frank Frisch, captain of the New York Giants, and J. H. "Heinie" Sand, Shortstop of the Philadelphia National baseball team, were examined by an assistant district attorney today as a preliminary to a proposed grand jury investigation of last fall's baseball scandal.

Assistant District Attorney Brothers, who has been placed in charge of the investigation by District Attorney Banton, did not divulge the results of his interview with the two players. Sand is the man whom Jimmy O'Connell, Giant outfielder, was alleged to have offered a $500 bribe if he "would not bear down too hard" in a game to the pennant-chasing Giants. Frisch was said by O'Connell to have been one of three Giant players who induced him to make the bribery proposal to Sand.

Mr. Brothers said that he had accepted the offer of Baseball Commissioner Landis to bring to this city any National League player the authorities may wish to question concerning the scandal.

District Attorney Banton announced last week that he planned to present the evidence to the grand jury under a state law which specifically provides for the prosecution of persons charged with bribery in connection with organized baseball.

BULKELEY-HARTFORD INDOOR MEET IS POSTPONED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 26.—Bulkeley's schedule dual track meet with Hartford Public High school set for Saturday, February 21 has been postponed in definitely. A confliction in dates is the cause of the postponement, which will probably make it impossible for the two teams meet in the future as the dates of the basketball teams of each school conflict with open dates with either school.

The announcement of the postponement of the meet has been received with a good deal of disappointment by those out for the track squad. Outside of the Yale meet, the indoor track meet at armory is likely to consist of the only events in which Bulkeley will take part in this year. The meet with Hartford was to test the ability of the Orange and Black track men.

Sullivan's Reply

Sporting Editor: In reply to Mr. O'Del's charges would state that the telegram from my star players that were unable to reach Colchester in time of the game Saturday night was shown to Manager Friedman of the Colchester Five previous to the game and that the same was to have been announced from the floor. Just why it was not announced is not known to the writer. I had no intentions to allbi my way out, as O'Del puts it, and repeat that had my players, who were Smith of Riverport, Jones and Spellman of the Providence Grays, been able to reach Colchester in time of the game, said history would have been a different story.

As for being absent minded, I had no such idea that such "Old Timers" as was shown by the All Richmond's lineup were able to play basketball and had I known I certainly would not have gone to the trouble and expense of acquiring out of town players. I suggest that the first game be played January 30th with Walter Coffey of Chesterfield as referee on a local floor.

In closing sincerely hope the eclipse did not effect Mr. O'Dels nerve.

Manager Sullivan.

VOGT LEADS BULKELEY TEAM IN SCORING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 26.—With the reaching of the one third mark in basketball, Bulkeley has failed to turn out the quintet which was expected. However this may be traced directly to the fact that this is the first year of basketball at the local institution in three years, and difficulty is always encountered in an effort to bring about a strong combination of basketballers in their first year together. Another noticeable element which partly accounts for the poor showing thus far, is the schedule Bulkeley has undertaken in her attempt to bring back basketball to its previous status. College freshmen, three leading high school fives in this state and the fast Springfield Commercial High five are only some of the strong fives which have been played by Bulkeley to date.

Bulkeley in reaching the one-third mark of the season, has won three games and lost five, with a steady improvement noticable in the playing of the team in general. It means that the quintet which was recently reinforced by Huck Taylor will give a much better account of itself in future games as was evidenced in the contests played in which Taylor participated in at New Haven last week. Bulkeley in her victory over Plainfield High, measures up to the requirement expected of the High school quintets in this section of the state, and her defeats have been at the hands of larger high school fives.

Bulkeley in her week end games did well considering the strong opposition which confronting er. In holding the New Haven Commercial High five to a 17 to 12 score, Bulkeley has accomplished a deed which is not so easy to duplicate. Twice champions of New England by virtue of their victories at the Tufts tourney, Commercial will be the first team since this tournament began to take honors in three consecutive years. McCarthy who defeated Bulkeley single handed on Friday night(dropped in two fouls in the Tufts tourney for the Commerce team to give his team a tie score in the deciding game of the tournament with Manchester, N. H., high. In the extra five minutes period he made good from the foul line once as the final whistle blew and again drew Commercial High to the front, the winner by a 20 to 19 score. In the contest with Hillhouse, Bulkeley was defeated 34 to 13. On the night before the Hillhouse-Bulkeley game, Hillhouse defeated Hartford High by an 18 to 9 score while Bulkeley was defeated by Hartford High by the score of 39 to 4. The improvement is noticable by comparison of the two games.

In the individual scoring records compiled for the first time this season, Vogt is the leader with 19 field goals and one foul. Vogt alternated at forward and center. Parisi is second on the list with 27 points, while Taylor who has played in only three games is tied for third place. He will be watched carefully, for he will undoubtedly surpass the present leader, Vogt in the next few games.

Bulkeley has managed to score but 56 field goals to 104 for her opponents, making the score tallied in this respect almost double to that of the Orange and Black.

The record follows:

WALTER JOHNSON MAY BECOME MOVIE IDOL

Washington, Jan. 26.—Following the example of a long line of athletes who have refused to let the pleasure of sport dim their business eye, Walter Johnson, the Washington pitching ace, now may soon be seen disporting himself before the moving picture camera, and at $2,000 a week.

Tom Moore, Washington picture promoters has made the offer, and he said today the pitcher had "tentavely" accepted. Moore, who is an old friend of Johnson, declared that if the deal went through, a six weeks' vaudeville tour was in prospect, after which Johnson would be placed "on location" for the pictures at Los Angeles. If Johnson finally agreeds to a long-term contract it means he will not accompany the world's champions to Tampa for spring training.

N. L. Billiard Matches

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 26.—In the two billiard matches played at the Y. M. C. A. this evening, only one match measured up to expectations. In the first match of the night, the double man team of E. H. Damon and Edward Nocery defeated E. A. Moules and Kenneth Shea by the core of 50 to 19. It was a crushing defeat for the team of Shea and Moules. In the second match ,the team of Williams Bush and William Brooks had a hard time in winning from the doubles combination of James Harkins and Joseph Watterson. The match was even until the two teams had reached a total of twenty each, and then the team of Brooks and Bush proved its superiority.

STAFFORD SPRINGS KACEYS OPPOSE ARMY-NAVY QUINTET THIS EVENING

The Stafford Springs Kaceys will make their initial appearance of the current season on the local court when they line up against the fast Army-Navy club in Parish Hall, Taftville, tonight. The Kaceys, who for many seasons past have been one of the keenest rivals of the Army-Navy five on the chalked court, boast of a stronger team this season and it is expected the fans will en masse this evening to get a glimpse of this aggregation in their annual classic with the local five.

The outfit from up-state retains in its lineup all the veterans of last year and a few new faces are seen on the squad. Sullivan leads the Kaceys this year and Cavorta at one of the forward berths with Pollanck as his running mate. The "Squirrel" needs no introduction to the local fans as the record he has made in this vicinity will live for many years. Whitney" Norris former Rec star of South Manchester will jump at center, while "Mat" Calchera with his brother Bob as a running mate was slated for duty on the back court.

Manager Murphy of the Army-Navy quintet insists that his crew of hoopsters will give the Kaceys one of the hardest tussel they have ever had the fortune or rather, the misfortune, to be in, and the local manager intimates that his boys will come off with the verdict if they are in form. Jimmy Murphy and Joe Belair are to team up in the forward positions. Harry Mills pastiming in his ninth year on the chalked court will do the hopping at center, while the Coleman brothers with Eddie Murphy will be the back court guardians.

The preliminary encounter will bring together the A-N Seconds and the Rovers for the junior championship of the club in a battle for blood

The management has made arrangements with a local orchestra to furnish the music and starting this evening dancing will follow the game every week. The game is called for 8:15 o'clock.

ARMY ATHLETICS MAY BECOME STRICTLY AMATEUR

New York, Jan. 26.—Preliminary approval of the Amateur Athletic Union has been granted to a plan submitted by United States Army Athletic authorities to place army athletics throughout the country on an amateur basis in conformance with A. A. U. regulations and eliminate cash prizes for soldier events.

Announcement of this was made today by Murray Hulbert, president of the A. A. U., after conferences with Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Johnson of the general staff, in charge of war department operations and training divisions. The plan, as laid before Mr. Hulbert by Colonel Johnson, has been approved by the legislation committee of the A. A. U. and shortly will be submitted the board of governors of the organization for a final decision.

The draft of the agreement reached, which would bring A. A. U. and Army athletics into close contract, also has been submitted to the army general staff for approval.

Two other New Yorkers, W. R. Coe and Harry F. Sinclair of the Rancocas stable, are second in the list, each with 14. In all, 268 eligible thoroughbreds have been entered for the classic.

Managers of Flowers and Walker today agreed to the match Walker stipulated, however, that the negro must make 160 pounds.

SPORTING NOTES

The Florida East Coast golf championship is carded for Palm Beach this week.

The fox chase, as practiced by sportmen in England and America, is prohibited in Denmark as cruel.

The major league record for home runs by one player in a single game is four. This mark was set by "Bobby" Lowe of the Boston Nationals in 1894, and equaled two years later by Ed Delehanty of the Philadelphia Nationals.

May 16 is the date fixed for the fifty-first running of the historic Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

The present legislature in Texas is expected to take favorable action on a measure to legalize boxing in that state.

Manager Ownie Bush has scheduled exhibition games for his Indianapolis Indians with five major league teams during the spring training season in Florida.

The municipal golf course in Houston, Texas, paid the initial cost of its construction, approximately $23,000, during the first year of its operation.

Nashua, Iowa, lays claim to having the champion basketball fan in the person of 13-year-old Willie Getsch, who walked nine miles through a snowstorm to attend a game.

Not long ago two players on a golf course at Bath, England, drove off at the same moment from tees a long way apart, and their balls, driven at right angles, collided in the air. The chances against such a thing happening are so many millions to one that they are almost beyond reckoning.

The annual football competition for the Association Cup is now approaching its climax in England. The glamor that surrounds these games has no parallel in other sporting contests in the British Isles, and the lure of this type of football seems to become greater year after year. Last season no fewer than 720,335 spectators paid upwards of $250,000 to see the first twenty-two matches, and it is expected that these figures will be surpassed this year.

A COUGH REMEDY WITHOUT OPIATES

Many cough preparations contain some one or more harmful drugs which are added to take the place of opiates. None of these narcotic substitutes have ever been used in Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. The name of every ingredient is plainly printed on every carton. You know what you are taking when you take Foley's. It clings to the throat. Good for old and young. You have a cough, why not try it? Refuse substitutes. Lee & Osgood Co.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL STARTS PLANS FOR $165,000 HARRIS LOT SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 26.—The city council this evening voted to secure the services of Architect A. Graham Creighton to make plans and specifications for a proposed school building on the so-called Harris lot, corner of Williams and Mercer street, the structure not to exceed $165,000 in cost. There was some discussion of the matter, but as far as it got was the obtaining of plans and specifications. The city is to reserve the right to purchase the plans if it so desires.

It was also decided that a foot path of a width of not less than 25 or 30 feet should be reserved on the east side of the lot adjoining the Bergen property with a view to having a walk from Williams street and that section to Mercer street. The city contracted with three dealing concerns for coal.

Fred Langdon was reelected a member of the planning board for five years.

An ordinance for the issuance of $200,000 of public improvement bonds and $225,000 of water bonds received its second reading.

An amendment to the city charter was proposed by Councilor Fox that will provide for meetings of the council once a fortnight, instead of once a week as at present. Councilor Fox declared that weekly meetings were by no means necessary.

Only one application for permission to build was presented to the council.

Miss Fannie Potter, of the Crocker House; August Mendell, 40 Meridian street; Mrs. William Anderson, Westerly; Char Beatrice, 39 Shaw street; Mrs. John Deheney, 20 Cottage street; Mrs. James Mahoney and infant daughter, 20 School street, and Walter Moshier, Noank, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Several sailors, attached to craft of the United State Navy dry fleet, stationed at the state pier, have contracted illness, principally tonsilitis, and this afternoon and this evening three of the men were removed to the Lawrence hospital.

John Curtiss, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Curtiss, 713 Montauk avenue, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, suffering from lacerations of the face and leg, sustained on Sunday when thrown from a sled while coasting on Alger street, when it struck a telephone pole. His injuries are such that he will be under treatment at the institution several days.

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kaplan, 44 Blackhall street, at Home Memorial hospital a few days ago, died at that institution Sunday. The funeral of the baby was held today with burial in the Hebrew cemetery, Waterford.

The oft continued case of George Hunt, of Center Groton, charged with breach of the peace, was disposed of by nolle in the Groton town court this morning because of insufficient evidence. The only witness of the alleged breach of peace cannot be located, so Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows recommended a nolle which was allowed. Hunt was arrested several weeks ago and the case has been continued half a dozen times.

The case of Milton Lamb, Walker Hill, was also continued a week. Lamb was arrested a week or more ago, at which time his case was continued until today. He is charged with violation of the hunting laws, in hunting game without having a license.

The case of Mrs. Grace Pheips, Poquonoc road, charged with prostitution, was again continued, this time for two weeks. Mrs. Pheips furnished a surety on her bond of $100 for her appearance at that time. She was arrested by state police several weeks ago, following a raid in a house in the former Groton park building section.

A child named McCarthy, residing with his parents on Tilley street, sustained a painful injury late this afternoon when the boy climbed aboard a cement mixer that was being towed by a motor truck owned by Lavole Brothers, and operated by Henry Leiter, of Waterford. The truck was passing the home of the youngster when he climbed to a portion of it. When he had ridden a short distance and unknown to the driver, the child fell off, landing in such a manner as to get a severe sprain of the ankle. The child was taken to its home by Leiper and attended by a physician.

Lawrence Gladhu, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Gladhu, died suddenly of convulsions at the home of his parents, 8 Cross street, Sunday. The child had been suffering from a cold, but no serious complications were anticipated. After having partaken of slight nourishment during the day the child suddenly was seized with convulsions and expired before a physician could be summoned. A physician had not treated the child for its cold was not considered serious, but when the boy expired Medical Examiner Charles B. Kaufman was summoned and rendered a decision of death resulting from natural causes.

Allen Main, of Clarke's Falls; Mrs. Albert Tiffany and infant son, Thames street, Groton; Giles Breer, U. S. S. Red Wing; Mrs. Frank Pisatelli, Truman street; Norman Lewis, Westerly; Mrs. Joseph Cash, Ocean avenue; Cora and Margaret Swift, Black Hall; Howard Reegan, Berkley avenue; Miss Marcia Eddy, Channing street, and John Lewis, Stonington, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Jacob Shendroff, a Colchester young man, who was fined $50 in the police court Friday, upon pleading guilty to assault upon Mendel Abell, 13 Archer court, was released from the county jail Sunday, when relatives of Shendroff paid the fine. Shendroff was penalized by Judge Victor Prince following Shendroff going to the Adell house and brutally beating Adell. Shendroff admitted his guilt and declared that he did so because Adell had induced Shendroff's mother to leave her husband and come to New London to reside with Adell.

The funeral of Bernard McCormick was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being sung by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were James Cleary, James Newman, Edward McInnis and George Dayton. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

When she returned to take possession of the bag she discovered that it had been stolen. Mrs. Hughes reported the theft to the police, but no trace of the thief was obtained.

Mrs. Mary Mahoney, 74, widow of Dennis Mahoney, was found dead Sunday at the residence of Dudley St. C. Donnelly, 58 Bellevue place, where Mrs. Mahoney had been employed as cook 17 years. Death was caused by heart trouble. Mrs. Mahoney was apparently as well as usual Saturday night and went to her room about 8 o'clock. Sunday forenoon when Mrs. Mahoney did not put in an appearance at the usual time Mr. Donnelly went to her room and not receiving an answer to his knock, he opened the door, to find that Mrs. Mahoney had not occupied her bed. Mr. Donnelly entered the room and found Mrs. Mahoney partially attired and lying upon the floor, dead, the woman apparently having been stricken as she prepared to retire. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was summoned and pronounced death due to heart disease.

The authorities have been unable to locate any relatives of George Fischer, baker, who dropped dead of heart disease in the Coffee Pot restaurant, 159 Main street, Saturday forenoon. It is understood that Fischer has two sisters residing in New York, but their addresses cannot be obtained.

Fire of mysterious origin was discovered in the Bacon block, State street early this morning. The fire was discovered about 2:45 o'clock by occupants of the building and an alarm was rung in from Box 312, corner of Green and Pearl streets. With the arrival of the firemen the fire was located beneath a stairway, leading from the second to the third floor and among a large quantity of refuse. A couple of streams of chemical were poured upon the flames, which were extinguished in a short time. The damage was slight.

Three or four days ago another blaze of mysterious origin was discovered in the building when rags that had been placed beneath a section of flooring were discovered ablaze. Occupants of the building discovered this blaze and also distinguished it. The building is owned by the estate of Morris Raices and besides housing several offices and club rooms is occupied on the ground floor by business houses.

John Timmens sought to cure a cold with aspirin and booze, but the two remedies knocked him out and he was found on Goshen street in a heap of snow. John said he went away from his boarding place at 109 Golden street, and feeling dizzy-headed, took to aspirin, that he might relieve a cough. He said he didn't realize that he absorbed so much of the booze and the quantity knocked him out. Residents near by where John lay down notified the police station and John was given a ride. He was compelled to pay for it in the police court this morning, when a fine of $5 was imposed upon him.

Joseph Oddo, a barber, who has worked at various shops in the city, started in business on his own account on Shaw street a fortnight ago. Joe has been a barber for several years, but he does not seem to be informed as to what the state requires in the way of certificates and licenses if he is to maintain a shop. So he opened up his business without going through the formality of getting a certificate of capability and of having an inspection of the place, that is demanded by law. The health officer of the city drove through Shaw street and was somewhat surprised to see business being done in a place which has been closed up some time ago. The health officer, Dr. Pennell, went in and inquired for the manager or proprietor, and was told by Oddo that he was not in the place. Then Oddo intimated that he was kidding Dr. Pennell and admitted that he was the owner. The health officer told Oddo that he must get the necessary papers to do business, or lock the door. Oddo promised, but forgot the promise when Dr. Pennell went away. Saturday Dr. Pennell finding that Oddo had not done as told gave the matter over to the prosecutor. Joseph pleaded guilty and was fined $25.

In the police court this forenoon Judge Clayton E. Smith on the bench, Henry A. Sullivan, a sailor who came here Thursday last under enlistment of a year to serve in the coast guard as the chaser of rum running vessels, was implicated in a disgraceful row that took place at the union station last week when Sergeant Martin Kane of the New Haven railroad police sustained a fractured nose and the loss of four teeth. Sullivan put up a pretty good defense, but he was fined $100 and that took him to jail to stay perhaps about four months.

Considerable interest was manifested here in the eclipse of the sun Saturday. Columbia Green is high ground and well located for the observance of such a phenomenon. The residents were not obliged to leave their homes, in most cases, to see the eclipse, and some could see it completely by looking through windows facing the southeast. A few, however, went to Post Hill, which is a very sightly locality, midway between Columbia and Bozrah, and had a magnificent view.

Is Your Tongue Sweet and Clean, or Is It Coated and "Fuzzy"?

Take your hand mirror, look at your tongue, for your tongue is the barometer of your health.

The common cause of coated tongue and offensive breath is bad digestion, biliousness and constipation. Take Beecham's Pills at once. Cottrell & Sons Co. plant, about 11 o'clock. The fire was in the garage of Fred W. Smith on the Pawcatuck river in the rear of the Maxson Hardware store on West Broad street. A can of lubricating oil which had been placed on a small stove to soften exploded and spreading the contents about, set fire to the ceiling and side walls when it became ignited. Little damage was done by the fire but large clouds of thick smoke were emitted before the firemen extinguished the blaze. Fire Engineer Pierre Morrison of Pawcatuck made a careful examination as to the cause after the fire. The building was owned by Henry Walton.

HIGH STREET WIDENING SUBJECT OF LIVELY HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Jan. 26.—The Westerly highway commissioners gave a hearing Monday evening in the council chambers in the Westerly town hall, when they listened to the views of the numerous property owners on the north side of High street concerning the widening of that street. Of the 19 owners of real estate, the absentees were Frances Ward, William H. Cottrell estate, Immaculate Conception church, Charles P. Crandall and Calvert B. Cottrell, 3d.

The speakers on the subject were D. H. Rogers, Wilfred B. Utter, Arthur E. Trotman, John Farnsworth, Louis J. Rossi, Samuel Nardone, George B. Utter, Michael D. G. Papalia, Dr. Thomas Robinson and Dr. Harold Kenyon.

The highway commissioners present were Charles Berry, Elihu Chesebrough, Engineer Adolph J. Lees and Clerk Peter J. Pisardi. Commissioner Charles Butler could not attend on account of serious illness. The proposition of the commissioners was to take 11 feet from the property of the residents on the north side of the highway, for a 50-foot street, from property line to property line. The present highway is 38 feet, or 31 feet from curb to curb.

Among the suggestions of the speakers, who uniformly were apparently not in favor, was to have Grove avenue care for the increased traffic or else have the layout down Pleasant street and Industrial Drive, to cross the Pawcatuck river, to Noyes avenue in Pawcatuck. The suggestion was made to take land on both sides of High street, if it was to be widened. Samuel Nardone, whose proposed erection of a business block at the corner of High and Canal streets had brought the matter up, offered to erect his building 10 or 12 feet back from the present line if the other property owners graded to the new building line at the same time. The highway commissioners learned that the proposition was not pleasing to the residents along that street.

STONINGTON

All Stonington had reserved seats, the best in the country, for the great eclipse of Saturday. All seats seemed to have been taken for from every vantage point people viewed the great event as the entertainment showed up on scheduled time. From shores, the point, the tower of the schoolhouse, Little Mountain, from roofs of dwellings and places of business, the east and south windows of hundreds of homes, the people viewed the spectacle and with anxious patience awaited the totality.

The temperature was zero in places and during the eclipse did not gradual tabone, but as soon as the sun shone forth it began to use moderately. There seemed to be a special dense blackness in the west and during a period of a few seconds before and after totality three stars were seen shining not far from the orbits in eclipse and one just at the zenith. These went from view hastily as the shadows of the moon began to leave the sun. The stars were as bright as at night. Through photo films the sparkling rays assumed all colors of the rainbow.

At 8 a. m. the railroad crossing tenders hums out the signal lights on the safety gates, but the darkness at no time was dense. The appearance of planets was the dramatic climax of the eclipse, as they shot forth all along the edge. They could be viewed by the naked eye. When the edge was uncovered one had to resort to the dark photo films or smoked glass to see the peaging of the moon. As the sun came out people who only had a couple hours off, returned to work. Many who were out of doors saw the dirigible Los Angeles as she sailed along and took station between Block Island and Montauk Point. She was well out to sea and visible with glasses from the shores.

The six special trains from the eastward to Westerly were run on the sidings here and in all there were about 50 cars standing between the Elm street crossing and the junction.

A group of people on one train went to Little Mountain, in the Marsh district and viewed the eclipse. One of the number, an astronomer, had his photo outfit. A large number of local people also went to that point. There was a large crowd at Stonington point where there was an unobstructed view of both the Los Angeles and the eclipse.

The Atwood Machine company's plant, with the exception of the foundry, was shut down for the day and the hands at the American Velvet Co. mill had good views. There was very little business done between 8 and 10 a. m. Children as well as their elders were all enthusiastic and could be seen squinting through various devices. About 200 students from the eastward took up a position on Ledwith's Island and a number of Rhode Island people came over and were stationed on Stonington Point. Birds and fowl in some cases remained on the branches of the trees and did not move till the eclipse was over. The big gulls, which are numerous here, had a lively time as the darkness came on, but after a little settled back on the water peacefully enough. The darkness was not as dense as had been predicted.

She struck bottom amidships and began to leak so the captain had to pump considerable to keep her afloat. With ice on the bay and harbor she will have to put up here for some days.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building operations in Norwich during the past week showed a decided falling off both in the matter of new building permits and in the matter of progress. The heavy snowfalls and the extreme cold weather were contributing causes to the retarding of building progress especially on outside work. In cases where the work was mostly on the inside and where heat could be furnished the work went on unhampered by the weather conditions.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton there were no building permits granted during the past week although two applications were received for permission to build. The month of January, which is always a slack month in the building line, is maintaining the normal average for the month and so far there have been 19 permits granted during the month.

Michael Ahearn, contractor, has made application for permission to erect a cottage house at the corner of Kenney avenue and Cahoon street. The house which will be 32x34 feet has already been started. The foundation is in and the frame work is up. The exterior finish of the building will be in clapboards and dipped cedar shingles. The interior will be finished in hard wood trim with oak flooring.

Simon Sleznak has applied or permission to build a barn off Tyler avenue and work will start in a short time. The barn will be of frame construction, 11x20 feet, with stone foundation.

New London

Arrangements for the occupancy of a store in the Lyric Hall building on State street have been completed and plans are now being made for alterations in the new location. New fixtures will be installed and other interior improvements made. The business is owned by John M. Callahan and Richard M. Jones. The building in which the present store of the Strickland Co. is located has been purchased by the S. S. Kresge Co., who plan to tear down the structure and erect a modern business building.

Changes to the building code provide stricter regulatoins regarding roof coverings are suggested in the annual report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters after a survey of conditions in New London. The report says that the present requirements are inadequate in this respect. Other suggestions embrace the purchase of an aerial ladder tuck; a fire-proof fire alarm headquarters and the appointment of an electrical inspector.

The Reyburn estate have taken the permit for a combined dwelling and garage on the Parkway. H. E. Marshall, 313 Bank street, has the contract for the work. The building will be 36x64 feet, and will cost about $6,000. It will be designed for servants' quarters with a garage underneath.

Building Permits

J. A. St. Germain, gasoline station, cor. Jefferson and Garfield ave. $800.

C. E. Beach, gasoline station, 125 Howard street $1,500.

Reyburn estate house and garage, Parkway, $6,090.

Number of permits issued for the week, 4; estimated cost of buildings, $9,300.

Danielson

St. Alban's church announced at the annual meeting that steps will be taken toward the erection of a parish house. Construction costs will be determined and a special meeting will be called shortly to launch a campaign for funds. It is expected that building operations will be started in the spring. The building committee consists of E. H. Keech, F. E. Stoner and E. L. Darbie.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 12 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week as compared to 10 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were ..67,425 and $19,500.

In New London during the past week there were 7 sales of real estate, three less than the number of sales for the week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $30,875 and $38,250.

BOZRAH

Miss Mildred Grandy, who has been ill at the home of Mrs. William Drake in Norwich, is somewhat improved.

There was no meeting of the grange this week because of the eclipse. At the next meeting, the first Wednesday of February, the officers will be installed.

The Woman's Missionary Society is to meet with Mrs. Leroy Lathrop of Fitchville, Saturday, Jan. 31, for an all-day sewing meeting. Dinner will be served at noon.

Rev. N. E. Webb, of the Center church preached a helpful sermon on Sunday morning on the topic, The Right Choice—Christ or Barrabas. Mr. Webb, who is a student at Hartford Theological Seminary, will be at home Monday and Tuesday for a two days' vacation between semesters.

Schools in town will close Friday so that the teachers may attend an institute at Elizabeth street school, in Norwich.

WEATHER BUREAU HAS DISCARDED FORECAST CARDS

Washington, Jan. 26.—The weather bureau has sent out its last daily forecast card. The ornament of postoffices, general stores and other offices since 1881 has succumbed to the competition of newspapers and the radio and to the stern economy program of the budget bureau. The last issue was mailed yesterday.

"The cards just naturally lost their popularity," it was said today at the weather bureau. "The bureau has been obtaining such complete service from the newspapers and radio stations that the little cards suffered from want of admirers. We felt sorry for them and decided to end their troubles. Besides, they have been costing the government a bit of money and the budget experts agreed that they might find better use for this sum."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, Jan. 26. — Stock prices fluctuated irregularly during the early part of today's trading and then broke sharply when the call money rate was advanced to 4 1-2 per cent: as a result of the heavy calling on loans which was estimated as high as $20,-600,000. Net losses in the active issues ranged from 1 to 5 points.

The calling of loans was due to the strengthening of bank reserves as a result of a decrease of nearly $28,000,-000 in surplus shown by Saturday's clearing house statement, temporary withdrawal of out of town funds from this center and preparations for heavy month-end requirements. Call money renewed at 3 per cent. and then advanced successfully to 3 1-2, 4 and 4 1-2, closing at the top. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

All the so-called pivotal industrial shares lost ground. United States Steel common closed 1 5-8 lower at 126 5-8 after selling as high as 128 3-4. American Can crossed 166 in the early afternoon and then slipped back to 163 7-8, off 5-8. Baldwin showed a net loss of 1 1-4 at 121 and Studebaker was 1-2 off at 42 1-2.

Oil shares were under accumulation most of the day as a result of the apparent turn for the better in the oil industry. While some of them declined sympathetically with the rest of the list in the late trading, net gains of from 1 to 3 points were recorded by the Pan-American B, Skelly and Tidewater. Panhandle producers and Refiners preferred jumped 7 points to 50.

Further weakness developed in the textile isues on reports that labor troubles were impending as a result of recent wage cuts. American Woolen common broke nearly 6 1-3 points to 85 1-3 and then rallied feebly. Associated Dry Goods fell back 2 1-2 points and Mallison Silk 1 7-8.

Several strong spots developed among the specialties. The Commercial Solvents issues continued their sensational gains, the A stock touching 159 and the B stock 158 1-2. Both reacted to 153 on profit taking, showing net gains of about 13 points on the day. Fidelity Phenix Insurance soared 10 points to 161, Laclede Gas jumped 7 3-4 to 134 1-2, and net gains of 3 to 5 points were recorded by Continental Insurance, National Cloak and Suit and Pacific Telephone.

Chief interest in the railroad group centered in the southwestern carriers. Frisco preferred closed 1 1-4 higher at 77 3-4 and "Katy" common showed a net gain of 3-8 at 32 7-8 after having sold as high as 34 3-8. Lehigh Valley was heavy, closing nearly two points lower at 74 5-8.

Coca Cola dropped about three points to 87 in reflection of speculative disappointment over the decision of the directors not to increase the regular dividend at this time. Other weak spots included General Electric, Radio Corporation, Allis Chalmers, Fisher Body, Manhattan Electric Supply, Postum Cereal, Pressed Steel Car, Stromberg Carburetor, United Drug and Worthington Pump all off 2 to 5 points. Nash Motors broke 19 3-4 points to 227.

Foreign exchange rates moved within narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling and French francs ruled slightly lower at $4.79 1-2 and 5.38 1-2 cents respectively.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 26. — Bond prices worked moderately higher today under the leadership of the oil issus, a number of which sold at the highest levels in more than a year. The advance in these liens kept pace with a rise in oil stocks based upon improved conditions in the industry and general price increases.

Considerable activity dveloped in the Sinclair Consolidated Oil issues, Skelly 6 1-4s and Pan-American Petroleum 6s, which moved up 1 to 2 points to new top prices.

Conflicting price movements marked trading in other groups, although a firm underlying position was maintained. "Katy" adjustment 5s displayed independent strength, attaining a new record high price, but St. Paul 4s of 1925 reacted on the announcement that the road's 1924 deficit would total about $1,800,000. New York Central 6s and Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s also worked lower. Chinese Hukung Railway 5s responded to the payment of interest which had been declared deferred since December 15.

In the industrial list, gains of 3 1-2 points by Virginia Carolina Chemical certificate 7s and a point or more by the Wilson issus were offset by the heaviness of Anaconda Copper and Wickwire Spencer Steel bonds.

Following the successful sale of $10,000,000 German General Electric debentures, public offering will be made tmorrow of a $10,000,000 loan for the Siemens group, manufacturers of electrical equipment in Germany and Austria. This will be divided into two equal sections, one of three year 7 per cent. notes and one of ten year 7 per cent. bonds at 96 1-2. A $3,500,000 issue of American Beet Sugar Company 10 year convertible six per cent. debentures will be offered at 96 to yield 6.55 per cent. Proceeds will be used in financing recent acquisitions. The government of Argentina is expected to float before long a dote issue of $20,000,000 or more to meet a maturing loan.

Details of a $10,000,000 bond issue for the Union Oil Company of California will be made public tomorrow by Dillon, Read and Company. The loan will take the form of ten year 5 percent debentures, price to net slightly under 5 1-2 percent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Although wheat rose to a new high level price record rose to a new high price record today, $1.97 1-8 per bushel May delivery, the market afterward averagd lower. An upturn in Liverpool quotations was a decided stimulus to fresh buying here, but heavy profit taking sales together with corn market weakness acted as a weight on values later. Wheat closd unsettled, ranging from 11 1-8 net decline to 1 1-8 net advance, May $1.96 3-8 to $1.96 1-2, and July $1.70 3-8 to $1.70 1-2. Corn finished 1 3-4 to 2 1-2 down and oats unchanged to 1 1-4 lower with provisions varying from 7 cents setback to a rise of five cents.

Wheat today showed its greatest strength here just subsequent to receipt of news that the Liverpool market had closed at 2 1-8@2 1-2 pence gain despite nearly 3,000,000 bushels increase in the amount of wheat on ocean passage. The fact that the rye market here had rached a new high price record for all deliveries tended also to lift wheat values. Part of the wheat selling which ensued, however, was in some quarters ascribed to leading holders and this circumstance did a good deal to contribute to the energy of later downturns in price.

Indications that room for more grain in elevators here is becoming scarce of weakness for corn and oats today and thus indirectly affected the wheat market.

On the other hand word that considerable export business had developed was an aid toward bringing about something of a rally in wheat at the last. Besides, it was reported that Russia had placed large orders for Canadian flour.

Liberal receipts, 655 cars, pulled support from under the corn market and led to the most drastic decline in several weeks.

Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions trade was light and prices about steady.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 26.—Confused price movements characterized the trading in today's curb market. Advances of 5 points each in Cities Service common and Magnolia Petroleum featured the oil group, other strong spots in which included Pennok, Prairie Oil and Gas old and new stock, Prairie Pipe and Southern Pipe Line, up from 1 to 2 points. Standard Oil of Nebraska broke 4 1-2 points and losses of a point or so took place in Standard Oil of Kentucky and Gulf of Pennsylvania.

Reactionary tendencies developed in the radio group. Rova crossed 14 to a record top and then reacted a point while net losses of a point or so were reacted by Freshman, Hazeltine and Freed-Eisemann. Revival of activity in Liberty was based on reports that the company was negotiating for additional stores.

Further liquidation of the new electric bond and share stock, which dropped about 2 1-2 points to 68 3-4 featured the public utility list. Commonwealth Power dropped 2 1-4 points to 130 1-4, but most of the other issues moved within fractional limits.

Speculative interest in the mining group was confined to a few penny stocks.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Before the days of the big ocean liners, farming machinery as we see it today and automobiles and other gasoline propelled vehicles, a movement was started in this country to pay large premiums for invention of such things. This movement was started in 1850 by the commissioner of patents.

News of interest taken in part from the Courier of January 1850 is as follows:

January 22, 1850—Elihu Burritt, known as the "learned blacksmith," lectures at the town hall on Wednesday evening. His theme will be of general interest to Norwich people and Mr. Burritt is well qualified to speak upon his subject, which will be, "Society of Nations, its Congruities and Incongruities."

Charles Spalding, agent for the H., T., W. and N. L. Counties Turnpike society has filed notice that proposals for leasing the turnpike gate situated in the town of Franklin, on the turnpike road of the Hartford, Tolland, Windham and New London Counties' Turnpike's society, would be received up to February next. The gate will be leased on favorable terms to the proper man and a privilege of renewal of lease for five years will be given.

A. A. Woodward, John H. Harris and Henry Bill, building committee for Preston have published notice for bids for building a school house in the second school district, second society, in Preston, sufficient to accomodate 200 pupils.

The following notice appearing in the Courier shows a novel way of notifying customers that they are wanted. The advertisement follows: Miss M—is hanny to inform her customers that their bills are ready for them.

Thursday, January 24, 1850 — The store of Mr. Mansfield, Buswell block, was damaged by fire yesterday, evidently started from an overheated stove. Mr. Mansfield was insured in the Norwich Fire Insurance office.

A committee in the Ohio legislature in scathing effect, rebukes those people of the state who presented a petition," that the Union be declared dissolved." In their report they recommend the adoption of the following resolution, that the memorialists have liberty to withdraw their memorial. Resolved, by the general assembly of the state of Ohio, that the secretary of state cause to be printed an edition of Washington's farewell address and be distributed in each school in each district in the state. The Courier and Norwich books the men in their report.

In the senate yesterday when southern senators failed to agree on the Wilmot proviso, even after the supreme court had rendered a verdict (this being proposed in case of the provision was voted) speeches were made that the north should be prepared to take up arms. This latter speech was made when one southern senator said that the Union had already been dissolved.

Saturday, January 26, 1850—The Courier is in receipt of a letter from a party signed as Viator. The writer condemns the New London and Willimantic railroad officials for violating God's holy day by allowing men to repair a washout in the road, between Norwich and New London on Sunday. The writer says also that the officials incur the displeasure of Heaven by sending out trains on Sunday and that people will soon see that railroads do not violate this day.

Daniel Roath of Preston was killed yesterday at Worcester when he was crushed between a couple of trains. His remains are being brought to this city for burial.

Father Mathew officiated at the Catholic church in Augusta, Ga., Sunday. He reached there Saturday and was escorted through the city by a torch light procession.

The commissioner on patents recommends national premiums for new discoveries on transcendent value, i. e., $10,000 for an invention whereby land can be worked without animals, by a locomotive plough, or plough and harrow combined; $20,000 for the first steam or other vessel that can make three trips across the Atlantic at an average speed of not less than 20 miles an hour; $25,000 for the first vessel to average 25 miles an hour and $100,000 for an invention which utilizes atmospheric pressure for propulsion or develops an explosive, economic as vapor of water, whose mechanism is less costly than that of the steam engine.

Two dies for twenty dollar gold pieces, which have been struck of this new coin, have been condemned, which will consequently cause some time to elapse before it comes into circulation.

EXTOLS SAMUEL GOMPERS AS A GREAT PATRIOT

Samuel Gompers, Organizer, Leader, Citizen, was the subject upon which Rev. Charles H. Ricketts spoke at the Richmond Radiator noon meeting, Monday, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

The following is a brief outline of the speaker's remarks:

It was Plato who said, "the proper study of mankind is man." One of our great American writers has said: "The best way to learn history is to know the men who make it." If this is true then the way to know what progress labor has made in the last 40 years in this country is to know Samuel Gompers.

On Jan. 27, 1850, a Jewish boy was born in very humble circumstances in London. His meagre schooling was followed by apprenticeship to a shoemaker, which was soon exchanged for that of cigar makers, the trade of his father. At the age of 13 he came to this country. Think of it, at 14 he was the leading spirit in the organization of the first cigar makers' union in New York, in which he kept his membership til his recent death. At 24 he was secretary of that union, and for six consecutive terms was its president.

His rise was very rapid. His ability as an organizer was such that in 1882 was made president of the newly-formed American Federation of Labor, and with the exception of one year, continued in that office.

As a leader he was as great as an organizer. It is to his eternal credit that he kept bolshevism, communism and the wilder socialism out of the ranks of organized labor. He led that body from strength to strength until it became a mighty Pan-American force.

The country will never forget his patriotism during the late war. He justly used his autocratic power in keeping organized labor true to the duties of citizenship and what he so powerfully said here and abroad for the cause of the allies gives him a place among the great patriots of this country.

Heaven can be but the dearer
For the added treasure there.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Pneumonia No Longer Troubles Lynn Man
Allen's Lung Healer Has Proven a Great Blessing to Him for Five Years.

Harry Folsom of Lynn had pneumonia several times, before he discovered the remarkable preventive qualities of this well known remedy. Read his letter:

"Allen's Lung Healer was recommended to me five years ago and I have been using it since then with splendid results. I had several attack of pneumonia previously and my lungs had become very susceptible to colds and pneumonia. I found that when I used the Lung Healer in the first stages of a cold it would break it up quickly. As a result I have not had pneumonia for several years. Last winter I neglected a cold too long and before I realized it I had all the symptoms of the dreaded disease. Having read your circular recommending your anti-congestol to be used externally in preventing pneumonia (with the Lung Healer) I used both and received almost instant relief. The congestion and soreness began to disappear and in a few days was entirely gone and I was as well as ever. Your two remedies not only prevented but cured pneumonia, and you can use this letter to prove it."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Strand.

One of the best picture entertainments seen in Norwich in a decade will be on the screen of the Strand today for the last time. Mildred Harris, who undoubtedly is one of the screen's foremost artists, has in Unmarried Wives, a vehicle which affords this talented young star plenty of opportunity to display her unlimited ability. It is a story of action in which passion, love and hate run a thrilling race. From a picture standpoint Unmarried Wives is a feature truly worth seeing. Bill Cody in Moccasing, the companion feature, is a story of western youth and bravery and in this picture fans will see some of the most daring riding ever screened. A Mirthquake comedy is the laugh feature and those seeking two and a half hours of real entertainment will be well paid for their visit at the Strand today.

The double feature program announced for Wednesday and Thursday at the Strand will be a Banner production titled Empty Hearts, featuring Clara Bow, John Bowers, Lillian Rich and Charles Murray. This quartet of stars should be sufficient to know that Empty Hearts is a picturization of the highest type. On the same program Wednesday and Thursday Edmund Cobb in A Rodeo Mixup, a rousing roundup of the roaring west will plenty of action and thrills. At all times the prices at the Strand will be for the matinee any seat ten cents, and at the evening performance, children ten cents, adults 20 cents.

Breed Theatre

Fred Niblo has done it again! The famous director of Thy Name is Woman, Stranger of the Night, The Three Musketeers and numerous others, has hit the high water mark of entertainment with The Red Lily, the Metro-Goldwyn picture, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow.

With a cast includes Ramon Novarro, Enid Bennett, Wallace Beery, Frank Currier, Rosemary Theby, Mitchell Lewis and a host of other favorites, and with a story, written by Niblo himself, that piles thrill on top of thrill until the spectator becomes cycle-eyed, The Red Lily bids fair to be one of the season's outstanding photoplays.

A new comedy titled The Fight the first of the Van Bibber series by Richard Harding Davis, the Pathe news and an Educational make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theater

Playing to a capacity houses both matinee and night the program as is being shown for the first of this week was the best ever in entertainment.

De Santo and Wolfe followed in a musical offering. Mr. De Santo is Europe's distinguished violin virtuoso and kept the audience enthralled. Mr. Wolfe assisted at the piano.

Young America is a condensed version of the full play and is handled very easily by the company of six clever artists. Comedy and pathos make the act stand out.

Lane and Volk in Who Is He make a hit with their line of comedy patter.

Koko, Sylvia and Co., in a song and dance revue closed the program. This act heads all of its kind.

Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez in Argentine Love proved to be a very entertaining Paramount picture.

A Real Musical Treat.

Music lovers of Norwich have a real musical treat in store for them Friday evening, Jan. 30th, when the Norwich Royal Italian Band will be heard in a grand concert with an entirely new programme. Under the personal direction of Prof. Puca it is expected to prove the most brilliant as well as the most popular arrangement of musical selections yet given by this superb musical organization.

Mr. Edward T. Connelly, the popular Irish tenor soloist, will be heard and will certainly make a strong appeal to music lovers generally. Mr. Connelly's voice is full, smooth and sympathetic and he uses it with good judgment. His correct enunciation is one of his charms.

Be at the Community House, Friday evening, Jan. 30, and enjoy a real musical treat.

POETRY

THE HOSTS.

It was the Western Hebrides,
Where haunted surges break,
Two troubled neighbors met at morn,
And these the words they spake:

"I heard the rushing of the hosts
Like wild birds in the night—"
"Forsooth, you did not hear—but I
Was lifted in their flight!"

"And gave they arrows to your hand,
To work their deadly will?
For he whom they have lifted so
Must strike— and strike to kill!"

"They arrows gave into my hand,
They bade me snap the bow;
But 'twas no human thing I shot,
But only a white doe.

"On yonder hill, beside the wood
Like snowdrift 'gainst the dark—"
"But that white doe was my young bride—"
"'Twas she you made your mark."

"The Fairy Folk—they changed her shape,
They drove her from my door;
And I, since the white doe is slain,
Shall see her never more!"

Still where the haunted surges break
Upon the Hebrides,
The Hosts and Fairy Folk (men say)
May work such harms as these.

TAFTVILLE

The Occwasin Camp Fire Girls met Friday evening in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church, in charge of the guardian, Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis and the assistant guardian, Mrs. John Volkman. A number of new members were received into the camp, and following the business session there was a social hour to observe the birthday of Miss Mary Greenhalgh one of the members.

Committees have been appointed by the Ladies' Benevolent society to take charge of a supper to be given in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church in the near future. The supper is to be followed by a free organ recital in the church, to be given by Professor Lester, of Norwich.

William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue spent a short time in Westerly, R. I., this week with his brother, Thomas Whitehead.

The Community Sewing class met Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Not a few superstitious people of the village thought that the end of creation was near, Saturday, when the eclipse was under way. When the moon had almost obscured the light of the sun, one old gentleman began to sob, "only five more minutes to live" and kept it up until the skies were bright again. Some women who had gone with the crowds to witness the spectacle became semi-hysterical and refused to look at the eclipse, although they were being urged by their friends and told that this was the chance of a life time. Another young lady said to her companion, "I'm shaking all over." The effect of the eclipse on animals was watched by some people. Horses did not seem to mind the change, as the darkness came on gradually and not with the great sweeping shadow that was supposed have come out of the northwest. Dogs acted differently, some howled dismally, and in some cases, where they had been shut in houses, they overturned furniture and tore up magazines and books. While the sight was interesting and instructive it was far from being the most gorgeous spectacle that nature has to offer. There have been sunsets a hundred times more gorgeous and beautiful.

A truck owned by a local business man and a trolley car were in collision Saturday evning at the corner of Providence street and North Second avenue. Both the truck and the trolley were damaged but no one was injured.

Rev. Edwin C. Crowdis and the choir of the Taftville Congregational church had charge of the service at th Sheltering Arms Norwich Town Sunday afternoon. Robert B. Schmidt was the leader of the meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor held Sunday evening at the church.

Some of the village sportsmen are providing food for game birds. It is pointed out that the heavy snow on a coating of ice make it difficult for the grouse and quail to find enough food on which to exist until spring. An unusually large number of grouse are wintering in the surrounding woods, close to the village limits.

Victor H. Davis, the superintendent, and Miss Isabelle Barritt, the secretary, have been appointed delegates to the meeting of the Church School Educational Association, which is to meet Wednesday evening at the Central Baptist church in Norwich.

George Kinder, Jr., of North Third avenue shot a large fox in Lisbon on Saturday morning and the animal has been on exhibition in the window of the store of George W. Weller on North Second avenue. This is the eighth fox bagged by Mr. Kinder this season.

Owners of unincorporated businesses have received their annual report blanks from the state. This tax provides for a payment of $1 on each $1,000 of gross business done by the merchant, with a minimum tax of $5.

Mrs. Albert Leathers and Claudo Leathers of Plainfield were visitors in the village Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis C. Murphy, Jr., Vernon, California, who are spending several weeks in town, the guests of Mr. Murphy's parents, Postmaster and Mrs. Dennis C. Murphy of South A street, have been spending some time this week in Boston, Mass.

There is no doubt but what the warm weather and thaw which struck the village Monday will add plenty of water to the surrounding streams and the reservoirs. Although all the snow disappeared from the main roads of the town, there was considerable "slush" and automobiles had a difficult time in climbing some of the hills of the village. It was no uncommon sight Monday to see cars get half way up Post Office hill, then stop, the back wheels spin, and then the machine slide back to the bottom.

FOUR SUITS FOR $25,700 DAMAGES BECAUSE OF AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Four suits for damages following the same automobile accident, in which a total of $25,700 in damages is sought, were filed Monday in the superior court clerk's office against Esther M. Heddup of West Hartford and Isaac Myers of the same place, the former being the owner and the latter the driver of the car which is blamed for the accident on July 17, 1924 at the corner of Jefferson avenue and Broad street, New London.

Ruth S. Lyon of Waterford who was driving an automobile belonging to Nelson J. Lyon, sues for $10,000 damages for the serious external and internal injuries she received. Mr. Lyon sues for $700 damages for the damages sustained by his car, having paid $304.46 for the repairs. Dorothy R. Lyon of Waterford, a minor, who was riding in the automobile, sues for $10,000 damages and claims to have a disfiguring scar over her left eye and other serious injuries from the accident. She brings suit through her father, Everett Lyon. The fourth suit is by Alice Damon of Waterford, also a passenger in the Lyon car, who seeks $5,000 damages for the injuries she received.

The plaintiffs allege that the Lyon car was proceeding along Jefferson avenue towards the corner of Broad street as Myers was driving the Herrup car on Broad street and that as Myers turned into Jefferson avenue he came on the left side of the street, striking the Lyon car. The alleged dangerous and reckless operation of the Herrup car by Myers is claimed to have been the cause of the accident and the consequnt injuries to the plaintiffs.

Three Divorce Suits.

Three divorce suits were also filed with the clerk of the court. Rosie Fortin Caron of Norwich seeks divorce from Fred Caron of Moosup whom she married Feb. 12, 1910 and who she alleged deserted her August 23, 1918. She asks the custody of two children, aged 8 and 6 years.

Divorce from George Habit of Willimantic, alias George Habel or Habeeb, is sought by Elizabeth Assad Habeed of Norwich who married him Feb. 2, 1918. She alleges infidelity at Norwich and Willimantic with one Bertha Kulos and with other unknown women between March 10, 1922 and Jan. 1, 1925. She asks the custody of two minor children.

On the ground of habitual intemperance for more than a year and intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1915, Lillian Rice Mitterer of this city seeks divorce from Frederick J. Mitterer of Norwich. They were married Feb. 5, 1914. She asks for change of name to Lillian E. Rice.

GRANTS DIVORCE TO MRS. CLARA O. SWANSON

Judge C. L. Avery of the superior court handed down a decision Monday granting divorce to Clara O. Swanson of Preston from Morris P. Swanson of North Stonington on the ground of intolerable cruelty. Mr. Swanson contested his wife's divorce suit and the case was heard before Judge Avery here last week. The couple was married April 22, 1922, the maiden name of the wife being Dombrowski.

Judge Avery's memorandum of decision says:

"From a careful consideration of the evidence it is found that defendant was guilty of intolerable cruelty to the petitioner.

"It is further found that the petitioner is a suitable person to have the custody and care of the minor child, Robert Morris Swanson, aged two years, issue of the marriage between the plaintiff and defendant.

"It is further found that the sum of four ($4.00) dollars per week is a suitable amount under all the circumstances to be contributed by the defendant to assist in the support of said child.

Judgment may be entered in favor of the plaintiff for divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty, and for the plaintiff to have the custody of the minor child, Robert Morris Swanson, the defendant to have the right to see the child at all reasonable times and that the defendant pay to the plaintiff weekly the sum of four ($4.00) dollars to assist in the support of said child."

NAV PAYMASTER IS TO FACE COURT MARTIAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 26.—T. J. Farrell, paymaster, U. S. N., attached to the dry navy fleet, stationed at this port and assigned to duty aboard the U. S. S. Red Wing, flagship of the fleet, is a navy prisoner, and is confined at the New London county jail, awaiting a court martial. The specific charge against Farrell was not given out this evening, but it is understood that he is short in his accounts with the government and it is reported that the shortage is as high as $8,000.

Farrell was delivered to the jail authorities a few days ago with the request that he be detained there until such time as the court martial takes place, which will be, it is understood, some time during the present week.

BURNS ARE FATAL TO MISS MABEL ROBBINS

Early Monday morning Miss Mabel B. Robbins, 21 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Robbins of No. 30 North Thames street, died as the result of burns received when her clothing caught fire last Friday afternoon. She was employed in the store at No. 13 North Thames street, conducted by James T. Fitzpatrick, and while sweeping stooped down to pick up something from the floor, her clothing caught fire from a nearby gas heater.

The girl was taken to the Backus hospital in a critical condition. She is survived by her parents.

Enjoying Florida Winter

Herbert W. Lucas of this city, who is spending the winter at Miami, writes from there last Thursday that the thermometer showed 82 that day and he was enjoying bathing in the ocean. They are having a fine winter in Florida so far. Friday evening the New England society, to which he belongs, was to broadcast to all New England and he expected to take part in this event.

GOODWIN FOREST TRIP WITH FORESTRY MEETING

The 30th annual meeting of the Connecticut Forestry association will be held at the Hotel Bond in Hartford, Saturday, January 31. An all day program has been arranged, starting with a field trip to Windsor in the morning.

Mayor Stevens of Hartford will open the afternoon session. The chief speakers will be Congressman John D. Clarke of New York, Major R. Y. Stuart, head of the forestry department of the state of Pennsylvania and Flavel Shurtleff, of the Russell Sage Foundation.

A luncheon and a dinner have been arranged to which members of the legislative committees on parks and reservations, agriculture and fish and game have been invited. Proposed forestry legislation will be discussed. Colonel T. S. Woolsey, Jr., of New Haven, a member of the state chamber of commerce forestry committee will preside.

The evening session will be a banquet in the Salon de dance of the Bond at 6.15. Provost Henry S. Graves of Yale University will preside. Senator Frederic C. Walcott, chairman of the state board of fisheries and game will respond to the toast Our Wild Life. Hon. Lucius Robinson, chairman of the state park board, will speak on Our State Parks, and Austin F. Hawes, state forester, will discuss our State Forests. Highway Commissioner McDonald will respond to the toast, Making Our Highways Beautiful, as Well as Useful.

At 10.30 a. m. there will be a field trip to the Goodwin Forest Windsor. The meeting place will be the lobby of the Hotel Bond. The route will be High street to Woodland street to Keney park to Windsor avenue, (State Route No. 10) through Windsor toward Poquonock, turning left at Elm Grove schoolhouse, then following road toward Griffin Station to Forest. All roads will be posted. Running time 30 minutes.

The Goodwin Forest is a 500-acre tract of large pine, hemlock and hardwoods. A damage cutting is being made, removing the dead and diseased trees and thus improving the remaining stand. All stages of the operation are to be seen, including felling, hauling and sawing up the trees into lumber. The tract is well supplied with roads and most of the operations can be seen from the automobiles. G. H. Hollister, of the department of parks, Hartford, the forester in charge, will act as guide. Return to Hartford will be in time for lunch.

At 4.30 p. m. an interesting series of moving pictures of forestry and wild life will be shown. These films are from the collection of the state forestry association, the Fish and Game Commission and the United States Forest Service. A special invitation to boy and girl scouts of Hartford has been issued and many are expected to attend.

NORWICH TOWN

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, preached a most helpful and inspiring sermon, In Behalf of the Child Labor Amendment. The text was Lamentations 5: 13, They took the young men to grind, and the children fell under the the wood.

The sermon, which was in support of the proposed twentieth amendment, was intensely interesting. Rev. Mr. Bailey having in proof valuable statistics for a number of years back, which enlightened many of his parishioners who were unfamiliar with real facts concerning the measure.

During the Sunday school period which followed the morning service Ralph H. Marsh read a missionary story entitled Happy Dan. There was an attendance of 63 at the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, when the leader was Miss Rose K. Durr. Christian Endeavor week, which is being observed all over the world, commenced Sunday evening. The chapel was decorated with C. E. flags. At this meeting a part of the program used by the United Society of Christian Endeavor of Boston was taken up, with many incidental questions and answers.

This C. E. society has voted to cooperate with the Girls' Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, in putting on an entertainment.

The mid-week prayer service of the Congregational church Thursday evening will have for its topic "What Do I Believe About the Bible?" Matthew 5: 17-20; Timothy 3: 14-17.

In his Sunday morning sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal church Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from Mark 10: 21. Then Jesus beholding him loved him and said unto him, One thing thou lackest, go thy way, sell whatsover thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, take up the cross, and follow Me.

Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached in the evening from Psalms 53: 1. The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. Corrupt are they, and have done abominable iniquity; there is none that doeth good.

The Methodist Young People's Christian Endeavor service was in charge of Edward Howe. The topic was Our Part in Our Denominational Program. Romans 12: 3-13.

In response to the appeal sent out for partly worn clothing by the Congregational Home Missionary society, people in this and nearby communities responded most liberally in contributing some very fine garments of all kinds, which were sent out the latter part of the week to Miss Ruth Beebe of Trinity school, Athens, Ala., and to Frederick J. Working at Atlanta university, Ga. There were six large burlap containers in all, three being sent to each place.

Misses Josephine and Mabel Rogers of West Town street entertained over the week end Miss Ruth Wilcox and Miss Amy Wilcox of Plainfield.

Miss Margaret Chapin, a student at Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass., who spent the week end at the home of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Chapin, of Town street, had as her guest her roommate, the two young women having come to Norwich to view the eclipse of the sun.

Mrs. Fitch L. Allen of Washington street left Saturday to pass some time in Leominster, Mass.

CIVIC ASSOCIATION MAKES BIG LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

A program which includes highway improvements, the Shantok state park, and an absentee voter bill was adopted for presentation before the legislature by the Eastern Connecticut Civic association at a meeting held at the Wauregan house Monday evening, following supper at 6.15. There was an attendance of 15.

President Valentine Murphy of Willimantic called the business meeting to order and Secretary John J. O'Rourke read the legislative program along highway lines that had been agreed upon at a previous meeting. This included the following:

Completion of trunk lines, Marlboro to Hebron and Scotland to Canterbury; resurfacing gravel highway, Norwich to Colchester and Yantic to Smith's Corners; new state highway, Chesterfield to Niantic; addition, Lyme to North Plain road; widening dangerous curve at Logger hill, Waterford; cutting brush at intersecting roads in Voluntown, near Pendleton hill, and at other places where needed to eliminate dangerous conditions; beacon or danger lights at Lisbon bridge; "hidden road" signs wherever needed.

Upon the motion of George L. Ingalls, it was voted to add to the programme a stretch or three and one-half miles of road from Mansfield Center to Warrenville.

Herbert P. Brancne, a member of the committee and of the United Commercial Travelers, spoke strongly in advocacy of adding to the program the elimination of two dangerous railroad crossings in the town of Plainfield, French's crossing and Bishop's crossing, and also the widening of the narrow bridge on the Mohegan trail at Central Village. He spoke of a near-collision which he had recently had on the bridge and mentioned the tragic and fatal accident to Moses J. Solomon at Moosup crossing last Friday. It was voted to add all three of these projects to the legislative program.

The meeting also voted in favor of the so-called northern route road in Windham county from Willington through Westford and in favor of finishing a three-mile piece of road from Voluntown over Pendleton hill.

On motion of H. M. Lerou it was voted to include the purchase of Shantok park on the Thames in the legislative program and A. L. Peale spoke in favor of having the state acquire this property as it is along the first turnpike built in America and will be the only Indian park in New England and can serve as a forest preserve.

Mr. Branche spoke of the absentee voting bill which is sponsored by the United Commercial Travelers and it was given endorsement by the Eastern Connecticut Civic association. The bill has been drawn along the line of the Massachusetts absentee voting law.

Mr. Branche was elected chairman of the committee to prepare the highway bills for presentation in the legislature this week, and he nominated ex-Senator H. J. Gibbs, J. J. O'Rourke, A. L. Peale and G. L. Ingalls to be associated with him on the committee.

The meeting adjourned until Feb. 9 at 6 p. m.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE

Mrs. Jessie Stanley, wife of Joseph Stanley, was seriously burned late Sunday afternoon at their home, 210 Franklin street, when her dress caught fire from the flame of an oil heater in her bedroom. She is a patient at the Backus hospital to which she was taken after the accident. Mr. Stanley suffered burns on his hands while trying to put out the fire.

Mrs. Stanley was using an oil heater in her room and had opened the top as she was turning the wick down. She was about to light a stove in another part of the room and as she turned her skirt swept into the flame of the heater and caught fire. In an instant she was almost enveloped in flames.

Her husband came running up from downstairs as he heard her screams, wrapped her in rugs and blankets and at the same time tore off the burning garments as much as he could, with the assistance of his mother. Dr. A. C. Freeman was summoned and at once had the young woman removed to the hospital.

D. A. R. WANTS GENEALOGIES AS AIDS IN RESEARCH

Mrs. Lars Anderson, of Washington, librarian general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has sent out a call for genealogies, military and family records dating back to the Revolutionary war, which are wanted because of their great value in the historical and genealogical research being conducted by that society.

Many of the records wanted are located in the west and middle west, and it has been found that the owners of such documents in numerous instances have been willing to surrender them to the D. A. R. when assured the papers will have a permanent home in Continental hall and become available for study by the general public.

After the French and Indian war many veterans pushed over into the Ohio valley and occupied lands vacated by the French. The close of the Revolution found other veterans trekking across the Alleghanies into Kentucky and Tennessee. After the war of 1812 other veterans extended this pioneering, and the close of the American Civil war witnessed an extension of these migrations to include the entire country.

Through land grants made by the government to ex-soldiers after the Civil war thousands of farms were established in the west, and gradually the lonely blue-uniformed soldier-farmers were surrounded by settlements. The history of these towns and family records carried into these new regions by new settlers are of considerable importance, as daughters and granddaughters of the pioneers are seeking membership in the D. A. R. and records of this sort are required to verify their application papers.

40 MILE WIND WITH HARD SNOWSTORM IN NEW YORK

Snow Drifted and Caused Inconvenience and Delayed Traffic—Throughout the State the Connecticut Company Had Men and Plows at Work Last Night Removing Snow to Keep the Trolley Lines Open—Highway Department is Keeping the Main Trunk Lines Open For Automobile Travel—Weather Bureau Reported That the Storm Was General Throughout the East.

New York, Jan. 27.—Another hard n wsterm blustered into New York today just as the street cleaning department was removing the remnants of last week's fall from busy downtown thoroughfares. Blown by a 40 mile northwest wind, the snow whirled into drifts, causing inconvenience and delay to traffic.

The weather bureau said the storm was general throughout the east and that it probably would continue well into the night. A sharp drop in temperature tomorrow was forecast.

At midnight the snowfall had increased to eight inches and the weather bureau officials said that it was possible that this amount might be doubled by tomorrow night. The temperature continued to fall during the night and was hovering around the zero point at midnight.

All the city's snow fighting equipment was pressed into service and it was said that the storm would cost the city $25,000. The trolley cars were still running at midnight but were having considerable trouble with the snow, especially in the outlying districts.

KEEPING HIGHWAYS AND TROLLEY LINES OPEN

New Haven, Jan. 27.—Following a warm day in which New Haven lost much of its last fall of snow, another snow storm descended upon this city today and tonight this section was covered by a new blanket of white. More than five inches of snow had fallen at 8 o'clock tonight and the wind, reaching a velocity of 30 miles or more an hour at times drifted the snow badly on the outskirts.

At the office of the local branch of the weather bureau, Director L. M. Parr said that indications were the storm would continue during the night and probably tomorrow.

The state highway department had its big plows out again tonight to keep the main trunk highways open for automobile travel. The Connecticut company, too, had men and plows at work tonight on the city and suburban runs removing the drifting snow which threatened to interrupt trolley service should it continue.

The telephone company and electric light company reported no trouble to speak of but were ready to send out emergency crews should the snow storm turn to sleet or rain.

At Belle Dock, the towing company officials reported water traffic at a standstill. Tugs that had brought coal barges to New Haven were obliged to remain tied up at docks while those that had planned to leave were unable to do so. Other sound boats engaged in shipping from New York east were obliged to come to anchor inside the New Haven breakwater where they were to remain until tomorrow.

The temperature, which registered 43 last night, had dropped to 23 at 8 o'clock this morning. It continued down to 19 at noon and at 8 o'clock tonight it was at 3, with indications pointing to a drop to zero before morning.

DRIFTS THREE TO FIVE FEET HIGH IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 27.—Philadelphia tonight was in the crip of the worst blizzard of the winter.

Driven by a high wind, snow which started to fall about noon, had piled in drifts from three to five feet high in many streets, seriously delaying trolley and motor traffic and making walking hazardous. With the storm came a sudden drop of 30 degrees in the temperature, which during the day had reached a maximum of 46 degrees. Tonight it had fallen to 16 above zero.

TEN RESCUES BY FIREMEN AND POLICEMEN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 27.—The brunt of the latest cold wave to descend on the northwest and middle west has been spent and warmer weather is anticipated tomorrow by the weather man, according to forecasts tonight.

While near-zero or sub-zero temperatures prevailed throughout most of the northwest state today the high wind which yesterday brought with it a swirling snowstorm had died down tonight.

In Chicago ten persons were rescued by firemen and policemen and carried into freezing temperatures when their homes burned.

WORST BLIZZARD OF YEARS IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 27.—What was described by pioneer settlers as the worst blizzard of years, raged over Manitoba today, delaying trains and snapping telephone and electric wires and making many roads impassable.

SEVEN PERSONS INJURED BY TRUCK IN BOSTON

Boston, Jan. 27.—Seven persons were injured, several seriously, and scores were thrown into a panic at the height of the home-going rush this evening when a large truck loaded with heavy rolls of newsprint got beyond the control of its driver and smashed into an entrance kiosk of the Park Street station of the subway.

The truck swerved at the corner of Park and Tremont streets, one of the busiest corners of the shopping district. As the rear of the truck collided with the structure, showering steel and glass upon the crowds descending to the subway level, one of the huge rolls of paper broke loose. It plunged down the stairway, carrying several persons with it. The ton-and-a-half missile came to rest by the coin boxes.

Eight persons were taken to the hospital, seven with injuries and one, a woman, suffering from hysteria. All were expected to recover. Those most seriously hurt included Miss Solatia M. Taylor, 63, of Cambridge, proprietor of a Boston stationery shop, who received a possible fracture of the pelvis; Miss Genevieve Pease of Cambridge, who, besides cuts on her arms and chest, possibly received fractures of several ribs; Miss Ruth Casey of Brookline, whose hand was crushed; Leo Hyroff of Roxbury, held for observation of injuries other than cuts about the legs which he suffered, and Joshua Cutting, 63, of Arlington, who sustained a severe shock.

Joseph A. McLoughlin of Charlestown, the driver of the truck, was arrested on the charge of drunkenness.

SPEAKERS AT MEETING OF MARKET GARDENERS

New Haven, Jan. 27.—A. C. Wilkenson, head of the vegetable department of the Connecticut Agricultural colleges at Storrs, and Raymond Clapp, county agent of the farm bureau of this city, were speakers at a meeting of market gardeners held tonight at the club rooms of the Sons of Italy here.

Mr. Wilkenson spoke on the selection of seeds and on soil fertilization. He asserted that the snow storms of the present winter will add materially to the fertilization of the soil on farms next summer.

The meeting was attended by scores of farmers and market gardeners from East Haven, Hamden, North Haven and other nearby towns.

HOUSE SENDS UNDERWOOD BILL TO CONFERENCE

Washington, Jan. 27.—The house late today, by a vote of 181 to 41, ordered the Underwood bill authorizing the sale of Muscle Shoals to private interests sent to conference with the senate, in an effort to adjust differences in time for final action at this session of congress. The appointment of house conferees put the matter again up to the senate, where the selection of managers to confer with those of the house is expected to precipitate considerable discussion.

OLD BUILDING BURNED ON BOSTON POST ROAD

Greenwich, Jan. 27.—The old Mongon Place, one of the oldest buildings in this section, formerly used as a cafe but more recently owned by Alfred Briggs and used as a restaurant, was burned to the ground tonight. The building, a two-story wooden structure, is on the Boston Post road just west of the Greenwich borough line. The loss was estimated at $25,000.

The fire is believed to have started in the basement of the building from an undetermined origin and spread rapidly through the building. The firemen, working in a snow storm, were forced to stretch lines of hose across the Boston Post road, blocking traffic on that thoroughfore. Autoists were forced to detour and found snow nearly up to the hubs of their machines on the back roads.

It was in the Mongon place that Arthur Doran, was shot by James Briggs several years ago.

STRIKE OF TAXICAB DRIVERS WAS OF SHORT DURATION

New Haven, Jan. 27.—New Haven was threatened today by a strike of taxicab drivers but according to taxi company officials tonight, the strike was but of brief duration. The short plan originated at Union station this morning when drivers of the so-called Yellow taxis decided to demand pay on a salary rather than on a commission basis.

At the offices of the Yellow Taxi company tonight it was said that the demands were not granted and that the places of eight of the men were filled by other men.

Other taxi company officials said tonight that the "strike" affected only the only company.

According to leaders among the drivers, New Haven is so overcrowded with taxicabs that even on a stormy day individuals drivers are not able to make a fair day's wage.

He pleaded guilty to the charge as read and was sentenced to serve a sentence of four months commencing today in the county jail.

Platt who is 26 years old and was recently married, resides in this city. He was listed at the post office as a substitute worker but had been given regular work for some time prior to his arrest by the fderal post office inspectors. He had charge of one of the city collection routes, it being his duty to gather mail from a number of outlying mail boxes each night. Complaints of mail being missed led to an investigation and his arrest.

NOME EXPERIENCING AN EPIDEMIC OF DIPHTHERIA

Nome, Alaska, Jan. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Nome has a diphtheria epidemic, and no anti-toxin. The nearest known supply of anti toxin is at Anchorage, 60 miles away, and must come by dog team. Several deaths have occurred.

There is only one physician here and new cases are appearing daily.

The United States public health service, in response to a request relayed by radio, cable and by land telegraph, has ordered 1,000,000 anti-toxin units dispatched from Seattle.

This must come by way of Seward and the Alaskan railroad to Nenana, 400 miles way, and then by dog team. This would take 50 days.

Dan Sutherland, delegate in congress from Alaska, has sent word that he is trying to get an airplane to fly from Fairbanks, Alaska and pick up the anti-toxin at Nenana. By this means it would take about a week to bring the life saving agent from Seattle.

The schools have been closed and Nome has been quarantined.

A large percentage of those afflicted are Eskimos.

CONTROVERSY OVER SCHOOL MATTERS IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 27.—The acuteness of the controversy in this city over school matters, because the board of education has been declared by a court decision to be independent in its action, was reflected today by a notice addressed to the school teachers of the city by the New Haven Register under the heading "Not the Teachers' Job"

The Register said: "By its decision to present a bill at Hartford for the purpose of making the board of education elective, the New Haven Teachers' league sticks a meddling finger into an affair which is none of its business. The teachers . . . are employed to teach the children of the city in accordance with the directions of the school authorities. It is not their business to try to dictate a method of school administration or to tell the legislators how to run the city of New Haven."

Against The Child Labor Amendment

Ohio Senate Votes 90 to 35 Against Ratification—Kansas Senate Votes 30 to 9.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 27.—Ohio today refused to ratify the child labor amendment when the house of representatives defeated the joint resolution proposing ratification. The vote was 35 for ratification to 90 opposed.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 27.—The Kansas state senate, by a vote of 30 to 9, late today adopted a house concurrent resolution rejecting the proposed federal child labor amendment. CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT HAS BEEN DEFEATED

Chicago, Jan. 27.—(By The A. P.)—Barring possible reconsideration, the child labor amendment to the constitution tonight had been defeated, the proposal having been defeated in either one or both houses of the legislatures or by referendum in thirteen states.

Under the constitution the amendment would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the 48 states, so that an adverse vote in the 13 states would make this impossible.

Oklahoma, Kansas and Oohio today were added to the list of states finally rejecting the amendment, while similar action was taken in the senate of North Dakota and Washington. In Washington, however, the senate sent to the house a bill which would submit endorsement to the people in a referendum in 1926.

Fifteen state legislatures have acted upon the congressional proposal to amend the constitution so that congress might legislate in regard to employment of children under 18 years of age, while in Massachusetts the proposed amendment was rejected by referendum last November.

California and Arkansas were the only states favoring the proposal while the amendment was rejected by one or both houses of the legislature in the following states: North and South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, North and South Dakota, Kansas, Ohio, Washington and Delaware.

Boston, Jan. 27.—The campaign of 1924 worked a veritable revolution in the political thinking process of the people, U. S. Senator William M. Butler said tonight in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the Republican club of Massachusetts. The November election was the greatest "thinking election" since the Civil war, the campaign of 1896 alone standing comparison, he added.

Messages of regret at their inability to attend were read from President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, vice president-elect, at the dinner, which was announced to be "in recognition of Senator Butler's service in connection with the nomination of President Coolidge, and, as chairman of the republican national committee, in securing the election of Coolidge and Dawes."

Congressman John F. Tilson of Connecticut, declaring that "to Chairman Butler belongs the credit beyond that which is due to anyone else for one of the finest, cleanest and most successful party campaigns ever carried on in the history of American politics," called for a fulfillment of the party pledge of tax reduction.

Mme. Taglione promised she would "get in touch with the pianist conductress, said the newspaper. But later she admitted her inability to get Miss Leginska to talk over the telephone, saying 'I am sorry. I was unable to do anything with her."

ARGUMENTS IN VETERANS' BUREAU CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Chicago, Jan. 27.—(By the A. P.)—James S. Easby-Smith, personal counsel of Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans Bureau, began his closing assument in the Veterans bureau conspiracy trial today with a renewed attack upon the testimony of Elias H. Mortimer, paid informer of the government and chief witness for the prosecution.

Easby-Smith's argument came after that of Randolph Laughlin, of St. Louis, and former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, counsel for J. W. Thompson, co-defendant with Forbes on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government through veterans' hospital contracts.

Laughlin characterized Mortimer as "a perjurer," Lewis told the jury he was "a poor, unhappy man, suffering from some sort of a mental aberation," and Easby-Smith said that "the record in this case, shows that he went to Washington just about the time of the passage of the second draft act, which made men of his age, 33, subject to call."

Upon agreement between counsel and with the consent of Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, the name of Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, sister of former President Harding was withdrawn from the record of the trial.

A formal stipulation between counsel exonerated her of any connection, even circumstantial, with the case on trial, or with any alleged irregularities in the Veterans' Bureau.

POSTAL BILL CONTINUES TO OCCUPY SENATE

Washington, Jan. 27.—The senate refused today to eliminate the present preferential mail rate allowed religious, educational, scientific and philanthropic publications, adopting by a vote of 51 to 23 an amendment to the postal pay and rate increase bill by Senator Butler, republican, Massachusetts, to obtain the present rate of 1 1-4c a pound on the advertising sections of such periodicals.

The vote had the effect of reversing the recommendations of the senate postoffice committee, which favored a uniform rate for all publications, including those in the special classifications.

At the conclusion of the day's debate on the bill, which centered about proposed changes in the zone rates flecting the dvertising sections of publications, Senator George, democrat, Georgia, urged elimination of all proposed increases in second class rates and a reducution to those in effect in the fiscal year 1919-1920. A vote on this proposal went over until tomorrow.

Elimination of the proposed increases in rates would mean ultimate rejection of the entire bill, providing also for postal salary advances, Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, declared during the debate, but Senator George argued that the reduction he proposed would tend to increase rather than reduce revenue from this service.

RECOVERY OF CHICAGO GUNMAN IS DOUBTFUL

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Johnny Torrio, uncrowned king of Chicago gangland since the assassination of Dio O'Bannion, two months ago, tonight wavered between life and death in the hospital to which he was taken last Saturday after four gunmen attempted to kill him in front of his home.

Doctors said it was doubtful if he would survive the night.

In the crisis the man who lived by the gun and appeared likely to die by it, revealed not a hint as to the identity of his assailants although the police are convinced that he knows who they are.

A special guard was provided today for Mrs. Torrio and Al Capone, a lieutenant of Torrio's after mysterious telephone messages were received at the the hospital where they were visiting Torrio.

DIRECT LEGISLATION ON CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

Senate Makes the Bill the Order of Day For Next Tuesday Without Going Through Committee—Action Precludes Hearings at Which Public Might Express Opinions—Of Multitude of Measures Presented in Both Branches the Outstanding Bill Deals With the So-Called Healing Act—Results of Windham County Caucus—Important Bills Introduced by Senator Robbins—Resolutions Provides For Annexation by Montville of a Part of Salem.

Hartford, Jan. 27.—To the surprise of many members of the general assembly the receipt by senate today of a copy of the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution was immediately followed by action sending it to the calendar to be the order of the day for next Tuesday, at noon. Governor Turmbull had transmitted a certified copy of the amendment as received rom the secretary of state at Washington.

Every member in he general assembly probably knew that the proposed amendment would be received, and many of them had received much literature as to the supposed benefits which would accrue if Connecticut followed some states and ratified it, and other members had been informed in about equal measure that Connecticut did not want the amendment. The committee on federal relations is said to have been looking upon the proposed amendment as an important bit of legislation upon which hearings would have to be held. Making the amendment the order of the day brings the matter directly before the general assembly without a committee stage. Inquiry showed that this action was not without precedent as proposed constitutional amendment which come along frequently have both been sent to the committees for hearings and also have been subject to direct action.

Thes parliamentary status of the proposed matter may give rise to questions next week as it is understood that some welfare organizations desire to be heard upon the subject which not possible if each branch acts directly and not on report of a joint committee. Many members it is understood, have been priming themselves for discussion of the subject of child labor before the federal relations committee.

TO ALLAY APPREHENSION OF CONTAMINATION OF SEA FOOD

New Haven, Jan. 27.—Franklin L. Homan, president of the Rhode Island Oyster Growers' association, whose home is in this city, today announced appointment of a committee "to secure co-operation among all fishing interests of the United States to combat what is alleged to be a growing misrepresentation of conditions surrounding the sea food interests."

The committee has been charged, according to Mr. Homan, with inquiry into the banning of shellfish by health officers in certain cities of the country "without, it is alleged, having sufficient facts to warrant their discriminations."

The oyster growers and the fishing interests claim, according to Mr. Homan, that western cities are suffering from impure water conditions due to droughts, and that many western cities empty sewage into rivers from which their drinking water supply is derived.

The committee consists of Franklin L. Homan of New Haven, Conn., as chairman; W. H. Ray and Sidney F. Mayo of Boston, Dr. T. H. Connelly and Benjamin F. Rooks of Warren, R. I.

DAUGHERTY TESTIFIED IN TRIAL OF MEANS

New York, Jan. 27. — Harry M. Daugherty, former United States attorney general, testifying today at the trial of Gaston B. Means and Thomas B. Felder, charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, indignantly denied that he had been "approached" by either of the defendants with bribe money.

He also denied any knowledge of an alleged attempt to "fix" certain federal officials, of which he, himself, was supposed to have been one, for the purpose of having indictments against officers of the Crager system on charges ofusing the mails to defraud, quashed.

The former cabinet members twice asked the court's permission to answer questions that had been ruled out, saying once that "during this period of upheaval, when some people are hellbound and some are spellbound, the public should have the truth."

However, in neither case was he permitted to answer the questions

WITNESSES TESTIFY THAT THOMAS KILLED YOUNG

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 27 (By the A. P.)—Declaring that nothing but personal religion can save Herrin, Rev. John Meeker, Presbyterian minister, late today said she last rites over Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas, two-gun leader of the anti-klan forces in the county, while the coroner's jury took up the task of unraveling Saturday night's shooting, which claimed the lives of Thomas, S. Glenn Young and two others.

All of the eleven witnesses today gave testimony which tended to support the version of the shooting related by Young's friends.

Those witnesses who saw the shooting asserted that Thomas fired first and that it was his bullet that killed Young. Another testified that Thomas earlier in the day, "appeared to have been drinking."

Witnesses near the hotel at the time testified that at least three shots were fired by persons outside of the hotel and that shots came from the upper windows of the hotel.

All of the witnesses who saw the shooting agreed that Thomas killed Young, while several added that Young killed Thomas after himself receiving a fatal wound. Opinions differed as to who killed Ed Forbes and all denied any knowledge of who killed Homer Warren, but all agreed that he must have been killed by bullets fired from the outside.

BERLIN NOTE TO THE ALLIES CONTENDS THAT GERMANY HAS REALLY DISARMED

Paris, Jan. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Germany's reply to the recent note of the allied ambassadors, which was handed to Lord DAber'non, the British ambassador, by Foreign Minister Stresemann in Berlin today, again protests against the refusal of the allies to give immediately a bill of particulars on Germany's alleged violations of the disarmament clauses in the treaty of Versailles. It also reasserts that Germany has really disarmed and is fully entitled to the evacuation of the Cologne area.

The Berlin communication reviews the note of the council of ambassadors, which was handed to Chancellor Luther yesterday, and which declined to examine the question of the non-evacuation with Germany or to go into further details regarding the reasons for maintaining the allied forces in the Cologne zone. The German note then says that the allies have given "merely a formal reply which in no sense advances an affair of such grave significance to Germany and European reconciliation."

The Stresemann communication continued: "The allied governments continue to keep the German government, as well as public opinion, in ignorance of the material facts on which they seek to base the decisions they took several weeks ago. The German people again find themselves accused of not having executed the treaty without being given the the possibility of defending themselves against these accusations. The allied governments draw from a unilateral judgment of facts the gravest consequences and in their last note, refuse in the most formal manner ever to examine the affair jointly with the German government."

The note adds that Germany cannot understand why she is reproached with misunderstanding articles 428 and 429 of the Versailles trety. In this connection it states:

"She has not contested and does not contest that these articles make the evacuation of the northern zone of the Rhineland on January 10, 1925, depend upon certain conditions. Her affirmation bears only on the point that these preliminary conditions have been executed. The fact of Germany's disarmament is too evident for the allied governments to justify nonfulfillment (of the evacuation clauses) by the present state of German disarmament.

The communication points out that the allies seem to consider that progressive evacuation under article 429 "represents a favorable advantage to Germany that depends upon their decision." That would be an evident contradiction to the text of the treaty, it is argued, which does not permit a doubt that the provisions or article 429 constitute a right "as imperative as that of article 428."

In conclusion, the note states. General interest in fruitful political collaboration does not permit an indefinite continuance of the present situation which leaves in uncertainty the fate of a great German territory and its population. The German government, therefore, assumed that the allied governments will, with the briefest delay, communicate the promised specifications, thereby establishing a condition necessary for an agreement designed to dispel the controversy that has arisen."

The note is signed by Foreign Minister Stresemann.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1141
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

Eleven members were listed as absentees at the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Y. M. C. A. building Tuesday noon. The lessened attendance was due to the snow storm which swept the city throughout the day. The meeting was given over to discussions and five minute speeches on the subject of Boys.

A communication from Acting Mayor George W. Hickey asking the club to name a committe e to co-operate with the municipal committee to emphasize boys' week was read, but action was deferred to a future meeting. Some interest was expressed in the fact that Tuesday night, February 10, the club and the Exchange club will hold another join meeting, at the Congregational church house. Pamphlets of an address delivered by Superintendent of the Schools Egbert A. Case before the Exchange club were distributed to the members, through the courtesy of the latter organization. A paper, The Cog Gang Rolls the Bones, a competition by the club correspondent was read by Secretary Hill.

The meeting was then turned over to the chairmanship of Louis A. Kingsbury. Lou proceeded to introduce his five-minute men who gave talks on the key proposition. Mayor George W. Hickey spoke on The Boy as a Citizen and stressed the need of giving examples worth of inspiration to the boys. He asked for a movement to overcome the common thought of the younger generation that the home town is without opportunity and closed with the statement that the responsibility of the future citizen lies with the men of today.

The Boy as a Worker was the subject discussed by Charles W. Hill. He classified the worker as of three types, the compulsory, the incorrigible and the boy who is out of his element in a school. Vocational and manual training schools, he said, offered a desirable remedy for the last named type of boy. James P. Mustard talked on The Boy as a Player. He urgently recommended supervised play, one that has system, teaches discipline and instills the spirit of fair play in the youthful mind. William A. Dawson handled the subject of the Boy at Home. He pointed out that books and a home were not the only essentials to manhood building. He went out to illustrate the possible effect of unconcerned social conditions on the mind of the boy.

Prof. Richard E. Dodge used figurative comparisons in his talk of The Boy as an Asset, stating that youth was a gilt-edge investment which represented face value. He pleaded with the members, as parents, not to live only for the boys, but with the boys. Albert B. Smith brought the five minute discussions to a close with a forceful talk on The Boy as a Liability. Outside influences, he said had a tendency to neutralize good parent influence and for this reason interest in the boy must be extended, not only to one, two or three, but to every single phase of his life and this must be done 365 days in the year. He strongly advocated a constructive program of united effort to keep the boys within view of guiding eyes at all times. He also stressed the danger of making sports so prominent in the mind of the boy that the honor roll in his studies, plays but a diminutive part in his life.

President Harry W. Standish closed the program with an explanation of the purposes, arrangements and ideals of the Boys' Week program. The first program of this nature was successfully carried out in New York city in 1916. In 1924 it had spread to 600 cities and in 1925 it has taken on international dimensions. The session adjourned at 1.40 o'clock.

WINDHAM GIRLS' CLUB NOTES TENTH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 27.—Nearly 100 members of the Windham Girls' club and their guests attended the tenth anniversary dinner given by the club at the chamber of commerce hall, on Tuesday evening. Decorations were in yellow and green with yellow paper caps and bock shirted green and yellow crepe paper dolls were favors.

Following the address of welcome the president, Miss Alice Peterson presented the speakers Acting Mayor George W. Hickey, Peter J. Hines, Charles W. Hill and Capt. Ellsalle Vickers and Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock. Alfred Roy sang The World is Waiting For the Sunrise and The Pal That I Loved Stole the Gal That I Loved. He was accompanied by Mrs. Edward Hochgville.

Mayor Hickey expressed appreciation of the Girls' club as a civic enterprise. A silver loving cup won by the Windham Girls' club for having the largest membership of any club in the state, was on exhibition. The cup was presented the club Sunday in Watertown to the local delegation, Miss Jane Ashton and Miss Grace Lincoln.

The speaker of the evening, Capt. E. Leslie Vickers of New York, spoke of the work of different groups of women in the world today. Captain Vickers spoke of the development of the mind of women of the group in the Fiji Islands, New Zealand, Australia and India and compared the treatment of women on the continent with those in America. It is not an uncommon thing in Belgium to see a woman and a dog together in the streets, pulling the cart from which milk is peddled from house to house. On the canals in France many of the heavily laden barges are towed by women harnessed like a horse, the husband occasionally sitting on the back of the barge and steering it on the way.

There are some economic values still to be adjusted. The continental countries are not to be blamed; that is the system that has grown up there. In this country we have inherited ideals and opportunities denied to people in other parts of the world. We have women at the heads of political organizations and filling almost every industrial position there is, with women governors in two of our states being looked to for real guidance, real help and real heart. The emancipation of the mind of woman is giving her the confidence to take the place made for her in the world and which is waiting for her to claim.

The menu served was:

Fruit Cocktail
Italian Salad.
Roast Turkey
Mashed Potatoes Turnips
Mint Jelly
Nuts Celery
Rolls
Ice Cream
Assorted Cakes Bonbons

The birthday cake was cut by Miss Peterson. Ten green candles in a silver candelabrum marked the tenth anniversary of the club.

PROPOSE STATE BOARD TO BAR QUACK HEALERS

Provision for a state board of medical regulation, to be composed of five members who are not "engaged in the practice of the healing art as a business, occupation or profession," to be appointed by the governor, and with the state commissioner of health "as its executive arm," is provided for in one of the revisions of the state medical practice act which will be introduced in the present session of the general assembly, it was learned this week.

Designed to remedy alleged loopholes in the present law, first brought to light two years ago when the legislature had under consideration a revised medical practice act, and later brought forcibly to the attention of the state in the diploma mill exposure the proposed law gives the board which it creates wide judicial and police powers. It provides "the said board shall have to make and amend general regulations having the force of law" and that the board "may also from time to time make specific order adapted to secure the proper execution and enforcement of its regulations, and this power may be exercised by properly authorized committees of the board when the board is not in session."

A practitioner of the healing art is defined in the proposed bill as anyone who "shall diagnose or attempt to offer to diagnose the nature or cause or condition or deleterious or traumatic or pathological state of functioning of the body or mind of another person whether actual, imaginary or hypothetical," or anyone who prescribes or advises treatment or advises or performs an operation of in any way practices obstetrics. Persons who use such words as "doctor" or "healer" in connection with their are also included.

Exemptions from the definition of practioner are: Licensed practitioners of another state in consultation with a licensed practioner here, United States medical officers, "scientifically educated" research workers under a duly licensed healer, licensed pharmacists, provided they refrain from all medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, dentists, nurses, midwives, barbers, chiropodists and optometrists in their normal practice. Masseurs are exempted if they refrain "from all representations and declarations and suggestions as to the effect of any methods or courses or kinds of treatments," or when they are acting under the supervision of a licensed practitioner.

The board, at first, is to be constituted of men who hold office respectively for two, three, four, five and six years, and vacancies are to be filled by appointment for a five year term. Members of the board are not to receive salaries.

Do you know how much nicer cooking fat is when it is really fresh?

Snowdrift is fresh—fresh, as you use the word to describe a new laid egg. It is sweet—what you mean when you say "sweet" cream. Many a woman has told us that she has used shortening of one kind or another all her life and never realized, until she tried Snowdrift, that fat could be so sweet and fresh.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The decisions of the public utilities commission as to applications to operate bus lines in this territory, as set forth in the Putnam news Tuesday morning, are of very general interest all through this territory. The people hereabouts have found such lines of transportation reliable and offering frequent service, facts that have made them popular with the public. Danielson finds this to be particularly true with its lines to Providence and Willimantic, traversing territory not served by the steam road.

The proposed new St. James' parochial school building will be one of the most imposing structures in the town of Killingly. Bids for its construction have been filed, but no announcement has been made as yet as to when building operations will begin, though this likely will be during the current year, if nothing foreseen develope.

The building programme will entail the moving of St. James' convent to a new location on the parish property on Franklin street, as the school building will be located partly on the present site of the convent, facing Franklin street between the church and the present school. The school building now in use was built nearly 40 years ago and a number of thousand pupils have studied there meanwhile. The parish has grown to such an extent that a new school has been found necessary and accumulation of funds for the building has been under way for the past two years. The new building and its equipment is expected to cost between $150,000 and $200,000. It will be of brick, two stories in height and with a basement providing for a gymnasium.

Rumors continue relative to a hotel syndicate negotiating for a certain piece of valuable real estate in Danielson for the establishment of a motor inn. While these rumors persist it has been impossible through any local source to definitely check up the story, which may or may not be true, though it is known definitely that efforts to purchase the property for hotel purpose were under way last fall.

The announcement in the Putnam news Tuesday morning that N. Waldo Kennedy, a supervising organizer for the Order of Moose, has been appointed to work in Rhode Island recalls that many years ago he started a newspaper in Dayville and published in that community for several years before removing his plant to Putnam, where it has since flourished. Mr. Kennedy has been out of newspaper work for a long term of years.

A renewal of the agitation for the removal of a row of shade trees on the south side of Davis park is to be undertaken in the near future with a view to have the town's favorable unanimous vote on removal put into execution. The subject has been under discussion for the past two or three years and in the selectmen's office the files show much correspondence with the state highway department relative to the subject. The trees are rated a menace to all who travel through the section of Reynolds street which they border and already have figured in several accidents, in one of which two men were seriously injured.

While there is agitation and strikes in many cotton centers in New England and New York state, all is peaceful in this immediate territory. Cotton mills in this territory are all operating and running, in the greater number of cases, on full time, though there are some exceptions. Conditions, as to operatin, are much better than during the greater part of 1924, and though the employes are now working on a reduced scale of wages, they appear for the most part to have full time employment at reduced compensation that half time with the old wage scale in force.

Following a winter custom of years, the annual pinochle tournament of the Bohemian club opened Tuesday evening with all the star players of the club engaged. The tournament will continue for several weeks, running incidental to the pool and billiard tournaments at the club.

Joseph Ernest Adelard Cusson, four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cusson, died Monday at their home in Ballouville.

Interest in the billiard tournament at the Bohemian club is well maintained and is affording diversions not only for the participants, but also for other members.

The survey of the proposed state high highway from Dayville Four Corners to the Connecticut-Rhode Island state line east of East Killingly takes the route over what is known as the old rocky path to Killingly Center. This old route will, of course, be widened and graded. Use of it will make the route more direct.

Several thousand motor car drivers in this section of eastern Connecticut would appreciate the innovation, if the state motor vehicle department would provide for the issuing of operators' licenses from the Danielson barracks, as is done at other points in the state, instead of obliging drivers here to send into Hartford for such licenses.

At Lyme Monday afternoon, Miss Dorothea Weidler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Weidler of that place, and Paul Zimmerman, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Maidon of the West side, were married. A number of Mr. Zimmerman's relatives from Danielson were present at the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman are to come to Danielson to make their home.

Seeing relief from snow-blocked roads in sight during the thawing weather of Monday, residents of country districts hereabouts were not at all pleased Tuesday morning when another snowstorm set in from the north and endured throughout the day, striving to again fill in the roads and to continue the difficult conditions that have marked travel on these highways since the first real snow of the winter, just over a week ago.

Mrs. Frank J. G. Bailey and baby daughter, Rosalin, are in Hartford this week with Mrs. Bailey's son, Francis, who is receiving medical treatment.

This is the last week before the end of the open season for fishing for pickerel through the ice. The closed season on these fish begins Sunday, February 1.

A. P. Woodward called attention during the snowstorm of Tuesday to the fact that there has been practically no sunshine since the total eclipse of the sun last Saturday morning.

Numbers of radio fans in Danielson had the interesting experience Monday evening of sitting comfortably at home while listening in to the broadcasting of President Coolidge's address to the business and executive officers of the government, at Washington.

John C. Sills of Manchester, N. H., was in Danielson Tuesday on business trip.

The Killingly High School basketball team will be at Stafford Springs Friday for a game with the high school team of that place.

Though regularly at business, Gaston A. Maindon is suffering from an injury to his side received when he slipped and fell on the ice, a few days since.

As the snow storm continued during Tuesday afternoon, the usual arrangements for keeping transportation lines open were put in effect and there need be little fear that traffic will be interrupted this morning.

Mills in this territory that are engaged with the manufacture of fine worsteds for the spring trade report an active demand for their product.

Promoter Frank Barber of the Casino A. C. has a great card of bouts planned for his next attraction, which will be staged during the coming week.

February 2 will be Neighbors' Night at the meeting of Killingly grange and members of Brooklyn grange will attend.

PUTNAM

Agnes and Rita LaFontaine, orphaned daughters of the late George LaFontaine, one time Putnam resident, who was killed in an accident at New London last summer, received compensation of $5,307.31 in a finding announced by Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue of Norwich. LaFontaine, well known in this section as a steeple and building worker, was employed in wrecking a building on State street, New London, last summer by the Schnare Construction company of Springfield, Mass. When the floor on which he was working suddenly collapsed he was killed. The compensation payment was made to Theodore Langlois of Woodstock, guardian of the two children.

Through the efforts of Putnam Chamber of Commerce, co-operating with the state police, a number of Putnam merchants who gave money to an advertising scheme attempted to be worked here some months ago may get their money back. A man came to the city with a plan to give certain publicity for merchants in the hope of attracting the trade of the mill employes and union workmen. The merchants' committee of the Chamber of Commerce learned of the scheme and branded it with their disapproval and th man left the city. Before leaving, however, he did not return all the money he had collected. It is not known that the scheme was fraudulent nor that there had been enough money subscribed to carry it through.

When the Chamber of Commerce received a communication from the state police department relative to a fake advertising scheme purporting to be supported by railroad men's organizations, and asking if any such scheme had been tried in Putnam, the department was informed of the plan that was tried and stopped by them. During the past week several who gave to the advertising campaign have been approached and assured the money would be refunded to them. Apparently the state police have been continuing their investigation.

With the resignation of G. Harold Gilpatric as a director of the State Chamber of Commerce it is believed that he has ended all relations as an officer of the many bodies, official or civil, of which he was a member. E. G. Buckland of New Haven, vice president of the New Haven railroad, was elected to take his place on the directorate of the State Chamber of Commerce.

Charles Berzuc has been taken to Brooklyn jail to begin his sentence of not less than three years and not more than four, and twelve other citizens, mostly of Polish extraction, are under probationary sentence. This will undoubtedly have a salutary effect on that particular kind of bootlegging.

Miss Fannie Phipps, 79, died at Southbridge Jan. 23 from infirmities of age. She was a former resident of Woodstock and for a time lived in Putnam. Her father was Edward Phipps of East Woodstock, one of the prominent residents of the town. He was a skilled mechanic and woodworker; also an undertaker. Miss Phipps was educated at Dudley academy and Framingham Normal school. In the early '70s the family moved to Hartford, where for 25 years she taught in the Brown school. After the death of her parents she returned to Woodstock and then moved to Southbridge. She had a brother, Henry Phipps, who died several years ago. They were beneficiaries under the will of their uncle, Erastus Henry, and each had the income from two annuities of $50,000.

The use of motor-driven cars on the Southbridge, Webster, East Thompson branch of the New Haven railroad is planned to start within 30 days, according to an announcement by officials of the railroad. One car will suffice for this branch, making several of the short runs in each direction daily. It will replace the regular passenger train now in use and perhaps the company will make an effort to improve the service, making connections at East Thompson, with more trains to and from Boston. Such a service increase would interest the people of Webster and Southbridge, since it is by this branch they reach East Thompson, where connection is made with the Boston-Hartford main line. The car planned for use on the East Thompson branch made a preliminary trip over that run last week. It is of the same type as the one that has replaced a train on the Putnam-New London portion of the New London division, seating 50 passengers and having a good sized baggage compartment.

In city court Tuesday morning Arthur LaBrie was found guilty of being drunk and was sentenced to jail for 30 days.

This will be his last time here as he completes the prescribed six years in March. The return of Rev. J. W. Carter as pastor was requested by the church. It was announced that the annual conference is to be held in Fall River and not in New Bedford as was expected, on account of uncompleted repairs to the church. The reports of all the societies were excellent, and that of the treasurer, A. C. Burdick, showed a balance in the treasury.

Don't forget the musicale tonight. Adults 50c, children 25c.—adv.

As a result of the action of the high temperature of Sunday and Monday, in the six-inch snow fall of Jan. 20th, the Quinebaug showed a rise of from 3 to 4 inches Tuesday. The river today should have a three-foot deep normal stream. Without the delivery from the big Aspinook turbines, the depth measures more than two feet below the usual January water. A small gain is showing in all local ponds and reservoirs. Superintendent A. A. Young explains that it is "run-off" water that is needed on the big sheds to raise the reservoir. Water that falls and soaks in on the hundreds of surrounding acres, gives no help to the supply lake. Conditions were ideal Tuesday evening for a future increase in the ponded supply. The earth is frozen hard, with snow piling up all day. Following the snow of Tuesday the first rain or rise in temperature, will send thousands of gallons of "run-off" water right where Jewett City needs it most.

The Pachaug Community club is to hold its January meeting Thursday evening.

Old Cluey Watson was over to the town Tuesday to buy a new snow shovel, to dig out his trap line for the first time this winter. Right here he is to be allowed to say, that every trap in all his four lines, set in the neighborhood around Wiley Brook and Mt. Misery, is a "dead fall." Animals he catches don't have to be under the painful necessity of gnawing their legs off as has been told about to get away. While sitting behind the stove down to Chapman and Tripp's, waiting for the storm to let up, Tuesday afternoon, the talk, by no means yet cold, was about the eclipse. The old man said that just twice in his life he remembers that tears came in his eyes. Once for a reason that he could understand and again actuated by an unknown cause.

Old Cluey never saw his father, and has no recollection of his mother.

Last Saturday, he says, while watching the eclipse there was for no reason he can explain, something the matter with his eyes. Again 40 years ago, while he was cook in a lumber camp on the West Branch, in Somerset county, Me., one evening he piled a lot of wood into the great oven of the camp stove, that it might dry for the next morning. In Morning came, very early morning; with no light. He had either forgotten to shut the oven door, or it had worked open during the night for he found it ajar. It had been pretty sharp outside, and invited by the warmth and comfort of the oven, a skunk had crawled in. Old Cluey reached in for the wood, and got hold of the sleeping lodger. "Then," said he, "I was moved to tears," but I knew why!

CAPT. R. L. FORD HAS SEEN A TOTAL ECLIPSE FOUR TIMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Jan. 27.—Mrs. P. A. Weaver, whose home is at the Jewett City water company's reservoir on Stone Hill, has given information relative to an eclipse story that is to say the least remarkable.

Her father, Jabez Brown, lives in Brooklyn, Conn. Near him there resides a friend of the family, a seafaring man, Capt. Roland L. Ford.

The captain, now around 60, has been, since his 18th year a steady follower of the sea. Reckoning from his 'teens, when he shipped as able seaman before the mast, until now when he holds a master's certificate, he has sailed the seven seas for forty years. Captain Ford is at present engaged in the coastal service, and is in command of a lumber vessel, the "Alhamaha," (Indian River) plying between New Foundland and South Carolina.

Capt. Ford tells the astonishing story, backed by absolute and unquestionable data, with latitude and longitude positions, that he had seen four total solar eclipses. Three of these were in the great, almost uncharted reaches of the South Pacific at points thousands of miles apart, and at dates separated by many years. One was in the lower southeastern latitudes of the Atlantic. His description of the sight, as witnessed hundreds of miles from land, on a trackless ocean, is something worth while.

Just now Captain Ford is in the south, so was unable to be home to view Saturday's eclipse.

HANDLING GOVERNMENT MONEY.

When President Coolidge spoke to the members of the newest organization, he addressed those who are directly concerned [illegible] handling of the government's money, but in addition to that he spoke to Congress and to the country. What he had to say was not so different from what he has been heard to say before. He was insistent upon economy in government and he stressed the importance of keeping down the expenditures that the saving thus effected without affecting the efficiency of the government might be employed for the reduction of taxation.

When he says [illegible] today he is most certainly on the firmest ground. He properly recognizes the situation of the present, the tendency of the past and sees a goal for the future that gives consideration to the getting away from the tax burdens as soon as possible.

With the good results obtained in cutting down the national debt, in piling up a surplus from year to year and economical administration, it would be easy to launch out into unwarranted expenditures. Should such a plan be followed [illegible] difficulty to picture where the government would land. It is certain that the much desired reduction of taxes would not be one of them. It is not unreasonable to believe that it would not only mean a continuance of present taxes but might easily bring about an increase in them.

Some time ago President Coolidge set forth the importance of common sense in government. There has been no indication that he has changed his mind upon that matter. In fact there have been repeated occasions when he has taken advantage of the opportunity to reinforce that view and to impress upon those who have anything to do with the making of appropriations or the handling of government funds, that they have a vital part to play in bringing it about.

The president gives most wholesome advice, and there is the added stimulus that he backs up what he urges upon others by personal action.

FIGHTING AUTO THIEVES.

Inasmuch as uniformity has become so generally recognized as a need in connection with much automobile regulation, it is only proper that there should be launched a nationwide campaign for the adoption of laws in all the states for licensing the auto chief.

The auto thieves [illegible] away with property that runs into big figures every year. There are points where they encounter less resistance than at others. There are states which have adopted better legislation dealing with them than others, but regardless of what is done recognition must be given to the fact that the desired success of such opposition will come through uniform action on the part of the states. That will prevent those who are blocked in one state from going to the adjoining one to dispose of stolen property. It will make it impossible to depend upon the absence of law in one state and make that, because of its lack of laws, the stamping ground for auto thieves.

In this connection it is to be noted that the motor vehicle department of Connecticut has urged action in this state for combatting the auto thief. It considers the best means of stopping the marketing of stolen autos to be a requirement that each car be examined when offered for registration. The very fact that this would be known in advance by those seeking registrations would be enough to deter thieves from making such application. But even then such examination, even if restricted as suggested to new registrations, would be open to the evasion of carrying stolen cars to other states for registration unless there was a uniformity. The auto thief chooses care where he disposes of the car so long as he gets the money. If he cannot dispose of stolen cars in one state he will take them elsewhere and the same comes when he must face the same difficulties in all states.

Fighting the auto thief deserves to be on unrestrained, but the merits of uniformity in state laws should not be disregarded.

SWIMMING.

What value is placed upon knowing how to swim can be gained to some extent from the fact that there are 23 colleges in which a knowledge of swimming is required of young women. It was regarded as a decided departure from the usual demands when swimming was added to the list of college requirements, but it hasn't taken long for the wisdom of such training to be realized. With colleges recognizing the need of certain physical training and possessing the facilities which make it possible to teach swimming, the insistence that students learn to swim is thoroughly justified.

Many already know how to swim. Many have wanted to learn but lacked the opportunity and many are not interested. Some who are taught may not be fond of the water and there may be no occasions when they can put such knowledge to use, but there is nothing detrimental involved to healthy individuals and it is far better that they should know how to swim and not have a chance to apply it than to be brought face to face with a serious emergency involving self or others and be helpless through the failure to learn how to swim.

There is no danger that this part of college work will prove detrimental. It is quite as important that girls and young women should know how to take care of themselves in the water as it is for boys and young men. Many of the drownings that occur every year would be prevented were there a greater understanding among the people in general about swimming.

Swimming is not something for the college graduates alone; it is desirable that everyone should know how. But stress may well be laid upon college students taking advantages of the opportunities which are provided for them. That is the view of the institutions and it is well that insistence is placed upon that part of the college work.

WINTER FIRES.

No one can be blamed for trying to keep warm, especially during the cold snaps which have punctuated the present winter, but those efforts must be based upon a careful consideration of just what is involved.

There is danger in forcing fires if stoves and pipes are to become overheated, and whether it is winter or any other time there should be no thought of using kerosene or gasoline on the quickening of a backward fire. Safety directs that a new one be started in preference to taking desperate chances which may lead to the loss of home and possibly life.

It is through the failure to exercise the proper care that many of the winter fires develop, and there is no worse time of the year to be driven from home or to expect the fire fighters to do effective work than in the winter, when the cold imposes a hardship upon all.

There are fires which cannot be included under the preventable. It is a fact, nevertheless, that a large percentage of those which occur could have been avoided had there been the exercise of a little forethought and a due regard for the inevitable consequences which accompany the throwing aside of care.

It is far preferable to use care rather than to invite trouble by using explosives for building or reviving a fire. It is better to give consideration to the effects of overheated heating apparatus than to disregard it and experience the troubles that go with fires. There is little chance of being too cautious about fires in the winter time.

HERRIN AGAIN.

Conditions in Herrin have been set before the country in such a fashion that no community can envy it. It has been the hotbed of trouble, the scene of many murders and the center of a county that has long since established a reputation.

It came into much prominence during the coal strike when human life was taken as if a war was in progress. There was neither respect for nor enforcement of law. Lawlessness was in control and what was done to correct the situation at that time doesn't appear to have had much effect.

While the conditions there did not develop within the past few years there is no prospect that they are going to end right away. Hope is held out that such will be the case because in the recent affair the leaders of the opposing forces were killed. But as is usual in such cases there are understudies and it will depend upon the attitude they take and the demand there is for revenge as to whether Herrin and Williamson county are going to reform.

Bad blood has existed there quite the same as in some of the southern feuds. It has failed to encounter discouragement, or at least not enough to bring about any change. Likewise it doesn't appear that the good influences of the state of Illinois have accomplished anything. It has been allowed to run its own affairs and it seems to be a case where it is being allowed to adopt its own methods and take its own time about cleaning house. Its conduct serves as very poor advertising and certainly no attraction for those of a peaceful turn of mind.

HERE'S YOUR RING

The cashier at the big Abernathy hotel looked up from a column of figures with her wholesome smile at young Corliss, cigar salesman. "I just saw your Uncle Nick breeze out the door," she said.

"Suffering Caesar!" breached young Corliss. "I thought I had him fixed for the night." Constance Murphy sobered in sympathy. Everyone at the Abernathy knew I. H. Corliss, business man of high standing, except for his periodical "ramiages." "He's got a big deal to pull off in the morning," explained his worried nephew, "but he'll lose out if he—well, he's pretty much under now. I'll bet that jane from lower Illinois street called him!"

"Maybe it wasn't him. Looked like his fuzzy overcoat—"

But a trip to his room proved that it had been Uncle Nick. The boyish face of young Corliss tightened, clouded—"and he's got those bonds on him I'll have to go after him," he said. "But listen. Constance — Miss Murphy;" he drew from his little finger a ring that was set with a large diamond "will you keep this in your cash drawer till I get back? It was my mother's and goodness knows where I'll have to go. I'll be back before you leave at 11."

Constance dropped the ring in the hollowed-out space reserved for gold pieces. Nice kid this young Corliss!

Nice to talk to and they always found so much to talk about—though Joe Brandon, Constance's steady, couldn't understand. Joe couldn't believe that young Corliss or any man could talk to her without making love. But Corliss brought her candy when as won it on the punch board, gave her complimentaries to shows, but he didn't ask her to go out, not since she had told him about Joe.

Joe was so jealous, so unreasonable. It seemed to Constance that she spent most of her time explaining, apologising, placating. The world that she had found straight and clean Joe considered rotten. She sighed as she balanced her cash.

The night cashier came on Constance hesitated about leaving the ring. Sometimes at night the bell boys made change out of the drawer. The safe for the valuables was locked and though the president had a duplicate key he was up at the hotel banquet. It would be better, safer, to wear it. It just fitted her fourth finger.

As she swung through the revolving door, Joe Brandon stepped up and taking her arm stopped her in the lighted. "I've got a surprise for you," he said and drew from his pocket a small square box and with conscious pride displayed the contents. "Guess this'll seal the bargain, huh? Keep those hotel cake-eaters away from my girl."

He reached for her hand for the fourth finger—then threw her hand hand from him violently.

"So! You thought you could two-time me?" His face, usually ruddy, grew livid. "You did have a date last night when you said you were taking your mother to the doctor. You—"

And he swore a vile oath as Constance started to speak. "Don't think you can pull that holy 'Love should be above suspicion' stuff on me again."

From a taxi at the curb, young Corliss helped out his unsteady uncle. But his eager smile for Constance vanished when his ears heard: "—and believe me, any bird that parted with a rock like that—"

Young Corliss loosened his hold on his uncle, but Constance stepped between him and Joe Brandon. "He isn't worth, it, she said and there was a look of grave repugnance in her eyes that bore out her words.

"Here's your ring," she said. "I was wearing it to keep it safe for you." Though her head was high, her lips trembled.

Joe Brandon looked at the two, then walked away. He tried to swagger, but the tone of it was cheap. Uncle Nick had gone to his room under the protection of an understanding bellboy.

"Say," said young Corliss, "I wish you'd keep this ring for me, Constance. Wear it for me till I come back next week anyway. Then if you decide you don't want it you can give it back."

Constance looked into his eyes—then replaced the ring very slowly. "I think I'd like — to keep your ring," she said.—Chicago News.

Barnard's Diet Rice and Milk

Although his genius was shown early in life, George Grey Barnard had to make his way through brutal hardships and bitter self denial.

Son of a minister of little Bellefonte, Pa., he was taken by the family to Chicago and at 12 to Muscantine, Iowa. There he modeled a bust of his sister, and his parents readily recognized his talent.

Savings accumulated during three years as a jewelry engraver supplied funds to take him to Chicago at 17 to study art. His application to Leonard Volk, the sculptor, to be taken as a pupil refused, he studied at the Art Institute for a year, living on his savings of $39.

Commissioned at 18 to make a bust of a child, he taught himself how to carve in marble, received $300 for the work and went to Paris where he studied at the Beaux-Arts.

Living in a meagre room in the Latin-Quarter, his struggles to exist were desperate. For months at a time his sole diet was rice and milk. While working on his great effort, The Boy, he protected the statue, under the leaking roof, with bedclothes, while he slept cold.

At 26 he sold The Boy, tied the 1500 francs in a handkerchief because of holes in his pockets, and ate his first square meal in months.

Five years later he sent The Two Natures and other pieces to the French Salon, and received highest honors. Against the advice of friends, he returned to America, won a prize at the Pan American Exposition at Buffalo, then had to wait eight years for general recognition.

Awarded the commission for 31 statues of heroic size for the Pennsylvania State Capitol at Harrisburg, he returned to Paris and enthusiastically began the work. Then came the graft building scandal remittances were stopped and Barnard had to find other work [illegible] for back pay to his assistants. A few years later payments were resumed and the work completed.

Today Barnard, at 66, is recognized as one of the greatest sculptors of his time, and his marbles and bronzes are in many leading cities of the world.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Depreciation

The revenue act of 1924 provides that in computing net income there may be deducted from gross income "a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear, and tear of property used in trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence." For convenience this allowance is usually referred to as "depreciation." The deduction is confined to property actually used in a business, trade, profession, or vocation. In general it applies to capital assets, the cost of which can not be deducted as an expense. For example, a lawyer or physician is not permitted to write off as a current expense the cost of his professional library, but may deduct an allowance for its depreciation.

Deductions are not allowed for depreciation of a taxpayer's home, the furnishings therein, his personal effects or clothing. Costumes used exclusively in the theatrical business, however, may be the subject of a depreciation allowance.

Depreciation in the value of land, whether improved or unimproved, can not be claimed.

No amount may be included for depreciation representing reduction in value of property due to changes in environment—for example, loss in rental due to a change in the social or business condition of the neighborhood. Neither is any change in the amount or rate of depreciation allowable on account of an increase or decrease in the market value of property. Fluctuation in the value of depreciable property has no bearing upon the rate or amount allowable for depreciation.

Intangibles, the use of which in trade or business is definitely limited in duration may be the subject of a depreciation allowance. Examples are patents, copyrights, licenses, and franchises.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Logansport's Municipal Light Plant.

Mr. Editor: Senator Watson of Indiana voted with the two-thirds majority to giving away Muscle Shoals to private exploitation, but just let him try to deprive Logansport, Indiana, of her 6-cent electric light rate and municipally owned power plant!

"At the present rates for electric current, the light department has so much money they don't know what to do with it. Isn't it shocking?" That's what the editor of one of Logansport's newspapers up and asks.

They have asked the State Public Debility Commission to please let them cut the rate, but those guys are so far away from the home base that they can't hear them."

From the profits—yes, profits at 6 cents—of the plant the city is erecting a magnificent city building and a consolidated fire station. Not only that, but the fathers found there was some money left over and are now planning a community building.

Householders who use under 100 kilowatts have the 6-cent rate. Users of 200 kilowatts get a 5 1-2 cent rate and so on down to 4 cents for 1,000 kilowatts.

Why let Logansport do it—alone?

Logansport, Ind., is a city of 22,630 population according to the 1920 census.

Evidently the management of their plant do not force competent men out who have been giving satisfaction for 10 to 15 years at $1,500 to $1,800 a year just to give place to a relative or friend of some one higher up and pay $2,400 a year, and its a ten to one shot they don't pay their manager $7,500 a year. If they did, they never would make the good showing they do.

Such a salary for such a job is enough to ruin any man's efficiency.

Laws and Violations.

Mr. Editor: All this talk about law enforcement of all kinds "breaking down," all the organization of local committees of prominent citizens to see that something is done in some way to prevent further law violations must certainly have some cause; must certainly come from some failure somewhere in law enforcement. But even at that, does it not allow a man or a body of men, no matter what their official standing, to themselves violate the law in order to stop what they think may be a violation?

The 18th amendment to the Constitution of the United States was one thing, the so-called Volstead act another and entirely different kind of a thing, and every man and woman of intelligence in the United States know it.

The enforcement of all law is necessary to the existence of the states and the United States. The alternative is anarchy. But all law must be constitutional, in accordance with the people's expressed will. When the law making machinery is itself a violator of the Constitution, the violation of its laws by the people is made certain.

When a prohibition agent makes a false affidavit in order to enter and search private premises, or when he invades a home without any warrant at all, he sets fire to the spirit of lawlessness. Citizens will quickly choose between the law that makes their homes sacred from invasion and the law of regulation that seeks to invade their homes. They will observe one and break the other.

When a grand juror signs his name to a search warrant complaint, he signs his name to these words, "The said grand juror, verily believes that within one month before the making of this said complaint as above appears, spirituous and intoxicating liquors have been sold in such building or a dependency thereof by the accused or by his consent in violation of the law" and then he is placed under oath before the justice signs the warrant.

One of two things is wrong right here at the start. If the grand juror's belief is without any evidence whatever, then the law that allows a man because he is a grand juror to sign a search warrant on his "guess so" is most certainly an invitation to anarchy, or the grand juror if he had evidence that his "guess so" was a fact should have already have done his sworn duty and seen that the law was not further violated by the party or parties in question.

In speaking of the matter, one of the most prominent temperance men in America said the other day: "It is an outrage upon public right and common sense to attempt to prevent a physician from prescribing medicinal liquor. This invasion of the people's rights, under color of law, inevitably brings about opposition to the prohibition law. Law abiding men have no scruples in violating the laws and regulations that would prevent them from obtaining liquor for medicinal or mechanical or other lawful use. They know that their natural right is a law more powerful in the long run than any law that congress can enact." The abuses of common sense are the rights of individuals which are committed in the name of the Volstead act, will have to be stopped before law is suspected.

The Constitution was so amended that all traffic in intoxicating beverages be stopped, nothing more, nothing less. When congress, following the lead of a lot of members in both houses, who first filled their cellars, then went further than the constitutional amendment, that congress under Volstead, started the wholesale violations of not only the Volstead law, but all laws.

To get started right, lets get back to the Constitution.

Gas and Electric Profits

Mr. Editor: As a taxpayer who has been watching the gas and electric plant since it was acquired by the city how it is that the department has been making a profit of $151,268.38 a year when by the charter only 8 per cent, is permitted on a valuation of $1,177,340?

Has the public been milked for the difference between about $90,000 and the $151,000?

Also what has the city lost in the shape of taxes for the past 20 years?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Roscoe Pound, who is mentioned for the presidency of the University of Wisconsin, is dean of the Harvard Law school and a jurist of international reputation. A native of Nebraska, a teacher of law in the University of Nebraska, then in Northwestern university, and then in the University of Chicago, he was called to Harvard in 1910 to be Story professor of law. Three years later he was made Carter professor of jurisprudence. In 1915 he was elected dean of the law school, and has since been its dominating individual factor. He is a man with a variety of encyclopedic knowledge not often equaled; as a jurist he is the exponent of a dynamic, not a static, conception of law. His sympathies today are with the reformers of judicial procedure and with those thinkers who would rid both the government and legal activities of much of their "legalism" and regard for tradition and form. In this campaign Dean Pound is a leader, through his prolific writings for the leading law journals of the world.

POETRY

STORM SONG

The clouds are scudding across the moon
A misty light is on the sea;
The wind in the shrouds has a wintry tune,
And the foam is flying free.

Brothers, a night of terror and gloom
Speaks in the cloud and [illegible] roar;
Thank God, He has given us broad sea-room,
A thousand miles from shore.

Down with the hatches on those who sleep!
The wind and whistling deck have we;
Good watch, my brothers, tonight we'll keep,
While the tempest is on the sea!

Though the rigging shriek in his terrible grip
And the naked spars be snapped away,
Lashed to the helm, we'll drive our ship
In the teeth of the whelming spray!

Hark! how the surges o'erleap the deck!
Hark! how the pitiless tempest raves!
Ah, daylight will look upon many a wreck
Drifting over the desert waves.

Yet, courage, brothers! we trust the wave,
With God above us, our guiding chart
So, whether to harbor or ocean grave,
Be it still with a cheery heart!

—Bayard Taylor.

THE HEART SHRINE.

If you could look within my heart
And see the pictures there,
You'd find your likeness smiling sweet
Reflected everywhere.

If you could hear the harmonies
That linger in its walls,
You'd hear your name in every note
That each refrain recalls.

If you could see, as none can see,
The altar-flame arise,
And every heart-beat throbbing out
Its crimson sacrifice,

You'd tremble lest the hand of Fate
Should mar that temple fair
Where your dear name is offered up
With every thought and prayer.

The greatest age known to have been attained by any woman since the beginning of the Christian era is 140 years, which historical authorities agree was the age of the celebrated countess of Desmond when she died in 1604. Electro-magnets of great power are used in new types of fuel-saving machinery to pick the clinkers out of the unburned coal. The principle underlying the new type of clinker separator depends on two simple facts: First, that clinkers and coal do not fuse together, and second, that practically all clinkers contain a little iron and are, therefore weakly magnetic. The new machines pass crushed furnace wastes under electro-magnetic drums, which lift out the magnetic clinker particles and permit the non-magnetic coal to pass on, to be returned to the bins.

Spread of plagues into regions as yet free from them is a danger that threatens with the increased use of airplanes in long distance traffic, according to Air Commodore David Munro, of the British air service. In his presidential address to the Society of Medical Officers of Health, Commodore Munro pointed out that though there is at present no yellow fever in India, the species of mosquito instrumental in its spread is abundant, and that it would require only one fever patient to start an epidemic there. Similarly, an airborne victim of sleeping sickness from Africa might start the disease in some other treated region at present uncivilized with this scourge. NO-PARKING IS ORDER AT NEW HAVEN STATION

Orders issued by R. M. Smith, assistant superintendent of the New London division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, prohibit parking on the New Haven road property at the local station. This is in accordance with orders issued six months ago by the New Haven road stopping parking on all of their property, as they claim they are paying taxes on the property but receive no revenue from that source. Passengers of the New Haven road are not included in the order. Several Norwich people have offered to lease the property for the purpose of selling parking space but no action has yet been taken on the offers.

Learning of the new order Tuesday, Mayor Mile R Waters and Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce started to look into the matter, but if the order is universal they say that no protest can be made.

Mr. Smith said Tuesday evening that he has instructed railroad officers to warn people that no parking is to be allowed there from now on, and that they have been instructed to be courteous to the drivers. Mr. Smith said he did not wish to cause trouble for anyone but that the order, which is a general one, affecting all railroad property, will be enforced. Signs will be put up carrying the no-parking order.

Mr. Smith said that Norwich is one of the last places on the system where the no-parking order has been put into effect. In some places where drivers have been in the habit of parking their cars there have been abuses of the privilege, but there have been but few complaints of this nature from the local station. Asked how many cars could park on the local station property, Mr. Smith said that sometimes there have been 80 or 90 machines there.

Regarding the situation in New London, Mr. Smith said that the railroad does not own any property beyond the sidewalk curb in front of the station there and therefore cannot regulate the parking in that particular place.

It was stated among automobile men here Tuesday that one person has made an offer of $3,200 for the right to control the parking privilege on the railroad property at the station. There is a big area along the curbs that has always been utilized by numbers of machines on every day of the week, and particularly on Saturday. With this big free parking space withdrawn and parking opportunities further restricted by the recent new traffic regulations of the city, the problem of finding a place to leave an automobile for any great length of time will be increasingly difficult.

On their return they will make their home with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lachapelle of Voluntown.

WILL ADVISE TRANSFERS TO TOWN FARMS

Hartford, Jan. 27.—Transfer of senile cases in the state hospitals for the insane to town farms in different sections of Connecticut and the transfer of World war veterans in these institutions to the Soldiers' home at Noroton, whenever conditions warrant it, will be recommended to the legislature tomorrow by the state board of finance in a letter transmitting its fifth biennial report.

FITKN CO. BEGINS EDUCATION CAMPAIGN WITH NORWICH PEOPLE

An education campaign with Norwich people to convince them of the desirability of selling the city gas and electric plant for the $3,000,000 bid which has been made by A. E. Fitkin & Co., of New York has been begun by this company. A number of Norwich citizens have just received from the Fitkin Co., a printed circular letter containing questions and answers that are intended for the enlightenment of the citizens.

The letter contains the following questions and answers:

Who are interested organizations proposing to purchase the property?

1. A. E. Fitkin & Company have been actively engaged in public utility operations for a great many years and enjoy a reputation of being one of the soundest, most aggressive and most successful organizations of its kind in the United States. A. E. Fitkin & Company at present own 34 individual public utility companies located in eight states with a valuation in excess of $40,000,000. Each and every one of these properties is growing substantially and considered by local citizens as a valuable asset to the prosperity of the community in which it is located.

Banking institutions interested in financing public utilities are liberal in their commendations of the methods applied and the class of the properties owned and operated by A. E. Fitkin & Company. This is evidenced by the fact upon every acquisition of a new property Fitkin & Company is solicited for the business by such banking houses as E. H. Rollins & Sons, Coffin & Burr, Eastman, Dillon & Company, Blythe, Witter & Company, H. M. Byllesby & Company, Inc., Hemphill, Noyes & Company, R. E. Wilsey & Company, Otis & Company, Stroud & Company, Federal Securities Corp., Frederick Pierce & Company, Hincks Brothers & Company, F. E. Kingston & Company.

Recently a group of these bankers, with Mr. Fitkin, inspected our holdings in the state of Florida and upon their return expressed most emphatically their satisfaction of our operations.

We refer to our standing and reputation among the bankers in such detail because any public utility organization must have unlimited financial resources to provide for the constant and necessary demands for additions, enlargements and extensions in any healthy and steady growing community such as Norwich and be in a position to anticipate them well in advance.

The General Engineering and Management Corporation, an organization owned by A. E. Fitkin & Company, is the vehicle through which all of the Fitkin properties are managed and operated. This organization consists of experienced and competent engineers, auditors, construction engineers, financial experts and others necessary to thoroughly and satisfactorily operate and manage public utilities and ranks high among its kind in the industry.

One of the most important phases of successful public utility operation is good public relations. A. E. Fitkin & Company point with pride to the fact that the relations with the public in all of the communities in which we operate are of the most cordial and satisfactory. This is fundamental and it is our constant endeavor to continue to improve this public good will by more and better service at a reasonable and equitable price.

In New Jersey, Mr. Joseph Autenrieth, public utility commissioner, has publicly commended our operations with the statement that during the past 10 years no just complaint has ever been presented to the commission by any of our customers.

The Price Offered

Has the highest price been offered for the property?

We believe we have offered the highest price possible for the city gas and electrical department consistent with sound judgment and a guarantee of good service. For six weeks prior to our offer to the mayor's special committee we thoroughly examined the city plant and property in every detail and from every angle necessary. We have not attempted to secure the property at a bargain price but on the contrary have offered the maximum price at which this property can be successfully operated and give good service. With the operating economies we see possible, plus an aggressive effort to secure new and additional business, we have fixed our price offered on an 8 per cent. basis. Surely nobody can complain of this being an excessive earning nor can anybody question our privilege of accepting a property on that earning basis.

Action by City Officials

Has the procedure in the matter by the city officials been clearly understood and for the best interests of the citizens?

We believe the court of common council and the mayor's special committee have proceeded in this matter in the most complete impartial and thorough manner possible under the existing conditions. Since last spring it has been known in the gas and electric industry that it might be possible to induce citizens of Norwich to listen to a proposition of selling their gas and electric department. Certainly for three months prior to the final report of the mayor's committee to the court of common council it had been widely advertised that such a committee had been appointed to review any and all offers made for the property. The details of just how this proposition would be handled by action of the court of common council, by legislative action and finally by referendum vote of the citizens was well known as the Norwich newspapers carried stories of all activities as they occurred from time to time and all interests involved must have been entirely familiar with the procedure. The conscientious efforts of the members of the city administration to handle this proposition in the most thorough and complete manner for the best interests of the city and its citizens must be deserving of the highest commendations and heartiest cooperation of every citizen of Norwich.

The citizens of Norwich are surely entitled to the privilege of deciding for themselves the disposition and future of their own property without petty interferences and obvious efforts to block machinery already in motion and designed to give them just that right and privilege.

Benefits to City

What benefits will be realized by the citizens and taxpayers if the property is sold to a private corporation?

The benefits to city and citizens by selling the property to a responsible organization at the price offered are manifest. For one thing, the present city indebtedness is $2,415,126 including the $400,000 bonds of the old Norwich Gas and Electric Company. With $3,000,000 the entire city indebtedness can be liquidated and a balance left of $584,874, which is considerable more than enough to retire all of the city's investment in the property since its acquisition. This would be an enviable condition and position for any city to be in—probably unparalleled any place in the entire country.

The effect of such a condition is obvious to the taxpayer and must be a source of pride to every citizen. For another thing, the tax revenues of the city would be increased annually by many thousands of dollars if the property were privately owned. This cannot fail to be recognized by every taxpayer as directly beneficial.

For another thing, the charter under which the city is operating its gas and electrical department and which cannot be amended in this respect, does not allow the city treasury to collect one cent cash revenue to be used for purposes other than for the additions and betterments of the gas and electric departments, excepting a 5 per cent. reserve set aside for depreciation of the physical property.

Under this condition it can be readily seen the taxpayer does not profit by any of the revenue included in the item net profits of the annual report of the gas and electrical departmen. Therefore, the big way in which the taxpayers can be benefited is through the sale of the property on a cash basis and the city to be in a position to clear up all city indebtedness if such is the desire.

A study of the great demand for public utility securities at this time which has attracted the great majority of banking interests to finance acquisitions on a scale and basis heretofore unheralded, will demonstrate the advisability of disposing of the property at what is general considered and admitted as a high price, one not conceived heretofore and one that may not be possible to offer in the unknown future.

Effect on Rate Schedule.

What effect will the sale to a private corporation have on the present rate schedule?

Naturally, one of the first things coming to the mind of the average citizen is—does the sale of the city property to a private corporation mean increased rates? We are on record with the mayor's committee, with the court of common council and by a public statement in the newspapers, that our offer does not include any consideration for raising any rate, that our offer was based on earnings and rates as they exist at the present time and that we are prepared to give any further assurances to that effect that the city and citizens may desire.

Citizens of Norwich are aware that on September 1st, 1924, a rate reduction was made that reduced the electric lighting bill of the average householder 17 per cent., for the average business house 18 per cent and for large light users as high as 25 per cent. The present rates in Norwich are fair and equitable considering the size of the property and the load conditions. In comparison with cities near the size of Norwich (list attached hereto) in the state of Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, you will note that the rate for the average household use in Norwich is [illegible] below the average for all of these cities and with one exception is as low and lower per K W. H. Our plans do include, however, an immediate reduction in the power rate by the addition of one or two lower steps to the present power rate schedule. This is prompted by our desire to not only protect present power users and encourage greater use of central station power, but also to attract prospective industrial organizations to locate in Norwich. We know from experience that one of the most important factors considered by such organizations is the availability of plenty of power and the price charged for it. This is part of our activity along the lines of energetically and persistently striving to help in the growth and prosperity of the communities in which we are interested.

Private vs Municipal Operation.

Does private operations provide greater and better benefits to cities and citizens than municipal operations?

Opinions will always vary as to the merits of municipal ownership versus private ownership and it is not our intention to enter into any debate on the subject. However, history and statistics do not prevaricate and we are herewith giving some extracts from the United States census annual report of 1921. They are so impressive that there can be but one conclusion.

What Statistics Show Regarding Municipal Ownership.

The majority of municipal plants are in towns of 1,000 population or less, where funds cannot be raised except by pledging public credit.

The municipal plants produce only 4 per cent of all the electricity generated in this country, and this percentage is constantly decreasing. (Census.)

Municipal plants have only 6 1-2 per cent of the total electrical gene-

BILL TO ANNEX PART OF SALEM TO MONTVILLE

Aroused by the way assessments have been increased by the town of Salem upon summer property at the southerly end of Gardner Lake, a bill was introduced in the house at Hartford Tuesday providing for the annexation of a part of the town of Montville. The bill was presented through Representative George C. Engler of this city. The section proposed for annexation includes the south shore of the lake.

One of the advocates of the proposed annexation describes the situation as follows:

"Norwich people who have shacks on the south shore of Gardners Lake are exasperated again at the attempt on the part of the assessors of the town of Salem to extort money from them because they are not residents of the town and apparently they think such people have no redress. Judging from the bill which is going into the legislature, the assessors will discover that there is some redress, and the owners of the shacks on Gardners Lake are going to have the matter thrashed out in the legislature, and that portion of the town of Salem is going to be cut away and annexed to the town of Montville where it has always been felt it properly belonged. The residents feel that they have been abused by the assessors of the town of Salem because they are continually raising the taxes on these shacks on the lake, and investigations show that there are no such rates as these made to other residents of the town of Salem.

"Some of the owners also talk of bringing suit against the assessors individually on the ground of vexatious and abusive authority. The vexatious suit feature is one which they feel will produce the best results. The Norwich owners have been continually annoyed by the raising of their taxes by the assessors and their being forced to appear before the board of relief to have them reduced in accordance with a common sense valuation.

"There are three widows who own shacks along the shore of the lake and the value which has been put upon their property by the Salem assessors would bring shame to the eyes of any fair-minded man.

"The Norwich tax-payers feel this particular property should be in the town of Montville where they can go and pay their taxes, and if necessary they can get to the board of relief without the inconvenience which they have suffered for the past years. Montville appears to be a town which exercises good judgment in the way it taxes the people who have shacks in their section at the lake. If Salem had shown as much decency in the treatment of non-resident tax-payers as the town of Montville has, this matter would never have to be brought before the legislature.

"The tax-payers say they will see that the town of Salem will spend $3 for every dollar that they attempt to collect in unjust taxation, so wrought up are they about the matter.

"Practically all the cottages along the shore have been broken into and have been rifled of their private property and clothing and everything else movable has been stolen from the shacks, and the town of Salem has done nothing to assist in bringing to justice the thieves. Three times within a year they have been broken into and Salem has done nothing except continue to try to raise the taxes.

"The residents in this section feel they want to be in a town where they can have some protection for their property, which they have not received in Salem. The breaks and robberies which have occurred there, and nothing having been done to assist them, have got them to the stage where they want to be put into a town where they can have some protection, as several hundred dollars worth of property has been stolen, and nobody has yet been apprehended, nor do they know that there has been even an attempt made by the town of Salem to apprehend them.

"It is only just and right and fair to Montville that any moneys which accrue from taxation should go to the town of Montville, which town is largely responsible for the roads leading to this lake, and it would be a convenience to the people in that section to have this portion of Salem annexed to Montville where it properly belongs.

"The legislative committee which will handle the matter it is year feel very friendly toward the proposition from all that can be learned as a bill similar to this was presented at a previous session of the legislature and later withdrawn with the understanding that there would be no such nonsense carried on by the Salem assessors, so it looks as though the matter will be more satisfactorily taken care of by this legislature from all that can be heard, and Salem will have a piece of her town taken from her so that she will be relieved of the trouble of annoying her out-of-town residents in the future. The personal suits which are contemplated will probably be an interesting feaure of the programme."

PICTURE EXHIBITION AT ELIZABETH ST. SCHOOL

Edward J. Graham, superintendent of public schools, makes the announcement to the public of Norwich that a rare exhibition of prints in color and photographs suitable for school and home decoration is now on exhibition in the auditorium of the Elizabeth street school. This exhibition of pictures has been assembled and is circulated by the American Federation of Arts under the auspices of the department of art education, Connecticut state board of education.

The American Federation of Arts has undertaken to show the public some of the great pictures of all ages and countries. The Federation has assembled this notable collection of a hundred prints and photographs representing various publishers, particularly the American publishers.

The primary purpose of this exhibition in Norwich is to make known to the pupils, teachers and public in general a great variety and quality of color prints within their reach. The exhibition is for educational purposes, to acquaint the pupils at an early age with what is good in art.

Arrangements will be made whereby all of the pupils of the upper grades in the public schools of the town will be enabled to visit and study the pictures.

The public is invited to visit the school and see the pictures. The building will be open to the public on each school day until Friday, Feb. 7, except Friday, Jan. 30. On this day an institute, under the direction of Mr. Reed, state supervisor of the rural schools of the towns adjacent to Norwich, will be held in the auditorium.

J. B. Stanton, supervising principal of the Elizabeth street school, has arranged the exhibit in the auditorium. He will gladly welcome visitors and answer any question in regard to the pictures.

Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the West Side Community club, Miss Mary G. Henderson, supervisor of art education in the public schools, will give a talk on the value of art in schools, and also explain the exhibit. It is hoped by the school authorities the public will avail themselves of this exceptional opportunity to see this splendid exhibit of pictures.

None of the pictures on exhibition are for sale, but should anyone wish to procure a copy of any picture in the collection, they may do so through Norwich dealers.

SNOW HANDLED BY CITY AND TROLLEY CREWS

Tuesday's all-day snowstorm that furnished from five to six inches by midnight meant special work for the street department and the trolley lines. Early in the evening and late into the night Street Commissioner John C. Donovan had a motor truck, fitted with a plow, covering the main streets downtown, while a horse-drawn plow cleared out the gutters and the crosswalks. The snowstorm caught the department with two of its trucks out of commission and two horses sick, but some energetic work with what means were available counted for a good deal in keeping the streets in condition.

The trolley company had two snowplows out over the line between Willimantic and New London, while two sweepers took care of the tracks through the city streets.

WORKMAN'S LEG BROKEN IN MONTVILLE MILL

Peter Mankalit of Hilltop, Montville, sustained a fracture of the right leg Tuesday morning when a roll of paper, weighing several hundred pounds rolled off a truck and knocked him to the ground. Mankalit, employed by the Robert Gair Co. was loading the rolls on the truck at 2 o'clock. During the operation he accidentally loosened a roll, and in trying to get away unloosened another. The momentum of the first roll was increased by the other, and Mankalit was caught.

Dr. J. J. Donohue, Jr., of Montville was summoned and reduced the fracture, and the man was taken to his home.

Named Appraiser in New York.

Michael F. Loughman, who is attached to the New York state tax commission, has been appointed appraiser of the New York estate left by the late Robert C. Johnson of 17 Broad street, this city, for the purpose of assessing whatever taxes, if any, may be due in New York under the inheritance laws.

The action of the New York surrogate was based upon a petition filed by Philip A. Johnson of No. 407 Washington street, Norwich Town, executor of the estate.

According to the petitioner, the deceased, a resident of Norwich, died on March 13, 1924, leaving a will which was probated there on March 24, 1924. The petition reads that the decedent's widow receives a life interest in the estate with the power to will the principal.

LEGION POST TALKS OF COMMUNITY SERVICE PLAN

The executive committee of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, held a luncheon meeting Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel in one of the private dining rooms. Commander Webster D. Copp presided at the meeting. The members of the committee took under consideration plans for aiding local ex-service men in finding positions.

Another matter discussed was that of community service. The state department of the American Legion and the various posts in the state have adopted a programme of providing one outstanding community service this year in each city and town where a post of the Legion is located. The theatrical committee reported that the cast for the coming show is nearly complete and that rehearsals will start this Wednesday evening. Samuel E. Weimer who will be director of the show, will arrive in Norwich today, Wednesday. The rehearsals will be in the Elks hall.

New York, Jan. 27.—The district attorney's investigation into the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal was continued today when Horace Ford, second baseman of the Philadelphia Nationals, was questioned as to his knowledge of the $500 bribe offered to Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop, by Jimmy O'Connell, New York outfielder, in a game here near the close of last season.

Ford, it was understood, told assistant District Attorney Brothers, in charge of the probe, that his first knowledge of the affair came when Sand took him into his confidence after the game. According to the testimony taken before Commissioner Landis, Ford advised Sand to "use his own judgment". Subsequently Sand related his story to Arthur Fletcher manager of the Phillies.

The examination of Ford followed interogation yesterday of two other figures in the scandal, Frank Frisch, captain of the Giants, and Sand.

Others will be interviewed during the next few days in an effort to uncover any basis for grand jury action and indictments. Fletcher was to have come here next Friday but his hearing has been postponed until Monday, Mr. Brothers announced. John Couch, Philadelphia pitcher, and George Kelly, Giant First Sacker, will arrive here the latter part of the week in response to requests for their appearance.

Dolan, now at his home in Oshkosh, Wis., and O'Connell, located in Sacramento, Calif., who have been banished from baseball for their alleged part in the scandal, have been asked to come here as early as possible to go over their stories once more.

Although Mr. Brothers declined to discuss the hearings he has held so far, it was intimated he had as yet uncovered no information affording new clues to a solution of the case.

MASCOT KNOCKS OUT FRUSH IN SECOND ROUND

Pari, Jan. 27.—(By The A. P.)—Edouard Mascart retained the featherweight championship of Europe tonight by knocking out Danny Frush in the second round of what was to have been a fifteen round bout.

The end came after one minute and 20 seconds of battling in the second round. The victory of Mascart is considered as giving him the right to challenge Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., for the world featherweight title.

In the first round Mascart attempted to box with the Englishman and was outpointed by a wide margin. Frush pumped his left into the Frenchman's face throughout, making good use of his longer reach.

Immediately the gong rang for the second round, Mascart, who evidently had realized the error in his tactics in the first, rushed out of his corner and began slugging furiously, unmindful of Frush's straight left.

Finally, the French boy maneuvered Grush into a neutral corner and sent a heavy left swing to the pit of the Englishman's stomach and crossed a short right to the jaw. The last blow was unnecessary, as Frush's legs already were quivering and he was sinking to the floor when the blow to the jaw landed. No count by the referee was necessary. Frush was out for several minutes.

Mascart will send a challenge to Kaplan throught the Internation Boxing Union. "Sparrow" Robertson, who is now in the United States, has authority to arrange the match. Ringside experts expressed the belief that Mascart tonight proved beyond doubt that he is the best featherweight in Europe.

Paul Fritsch defeated Fred Bretonnel on points after 12 hard rounds of batting. Bretonnel originally had been booked to meet Johnny Dundee but Dundee returned to the United States. Bretonnel had difficulty in making the weight tonight and announced that hereafter he will fight in the welterweight class. Frisch is now to meet Lucien Vinez, the European lightweight champion in an elimination contest to choose a man to send to the United States to compete in the tournament there to obtain two contenders to battle for the world championship made vacant by Benny Leonard relinquishing his crown.

He forwarded the signed contract of Steve O'Neill, catched obtained by the Yankees from the Boston Red Sox, together with a statement from O'Neill that he was entirely satisfied with the terms offered him and that he would start training immediately.

Two other veterans now in the field are Aaron Ward, second baseman, and Fred Hofmann, catcher. Other signed contracts returned include those of Osborn Gardner, left-handed pitcher of the University of Washington; Joseph E. Maley, right handed pitcher obtained from the Richmond club of the Virginia league; Martin Autrey, catcher; and Henry Cullop, pitcher, last season with the Omaha club of the Western league.

N. Y COMMISSION DEFERS ACTION ON DUNDEE CASE

New York, Jan. 27.—Action against Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion, who is alleged to have broken a contract to fight Fred Bretonnel in France, was deferred by the state athletic commission today pending a receipt of a letter from the French boxing federation detailing the charges for which Dundee was indefinitely suspended abroad. No action will be taken until this letter arrives and Dundee is given a hearing.

The only information received by the commission was a brief cabled notification from France of Dundee's indefinite suspension. The commission also has been advised that the national boxing association has definitely suspended Dundee as a result of the action taken against him in France.

The success of the lightweight elimination tournament is assured, Chairman Brower said, with the receipt of entries from France and England. The boxing association in each country notified the commission that one boxer would be nominated for a place in the tournament. The commission is now awaiting replies from cables to Italy, Germany, Australia and South American, inviting these to send representatives to the tournament. Pennsylvania has taken the lead among state boxing bodies in planning to cooperate.

"If four or more foreign boxers enter the tournament, we will divide the entries into two sections, American and foreign, and competition will be held in each section similar to the Davis cup tennis play," Chairman Brower said. "The final will be fought between the winner in each section.

George Larue, Syracuse boxer, who was disqualified for stalling in a match in Syracuse December 24, was reinstated.

Paddy Flynn, Brooklyn boxer, was indefinitely suspended in this state following similar action taken against him in Massachusetts.

JUDGE REFUSES MUNN APPLICATION AGAINST LEWIS

Independence, Mo., Jan. 27.—Wyne (Big) Munn, who recently defeated Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former heavyweight wrestling champion, lost his first legal bout with Lewis today when circuit Judge W. P. Hall declined to issue a temporary restraining order against Lewis. Munn charged that Lewis had interfered with his wrestling contracts, had slandered his title as champion, and had adopted a policy of threats and intimidations. He asked a temporary restraining order pending application of an injunction.

Judge Hall explained that his refusal was not absolute and asked Munn and his manager to show some authority for their action the court advised Munn to bring a damage suit based upon a specific act of interference and slander

CHAPMAN TECH BEATS STONINGTON IN OPENER

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 27.—In the opening game of the Eastern Connecticut Basketball league Chapman Tech found Stonington High a stubborn customer to put down and although leading throughout the entire game the Red and Black did not have victory assured until the final quarter.

Chapman Tech outplayed the visitors but found a team of endurance and speed opposing them. Breaking through the Stonington barrier for the largest score in the final quarter Chapman Tech was able to register its first victory in as many league starts by a 38 to 21 score.

It makes the sixth consecutive victory on the home court, the Red and Black five having yet to lose out on her home court this season. The opening quarter found both teams nip and tuck only a two point advantage being gained by Tech in this period. Stonington failing to hold Hewitt, the Tech pivot man in check found him to be the most troublesome of the Tech players. Tech scored a five point lead in the second quarter and increased her total to 18 points to 11 for

Hewitt featured in the contest with a total of 11 fields and four fouls, a total of 26 points. His presence in the Tech lineup, in this game as well as in all past games, had much to do do with the Tech wins to date. Hicks and Andrews also showed up to advantage and for Stonington McCaffery led in the scoring with 13 points.

In the preliminary game the Chapman Tech Sophs scored a 20 to 12 win over Old Lyme High school.

Celtics Win Easily

Although handicapped by playing amateur rules the Taftville Celtics, last year city champs, defeated the Y Emps at the local Y Saturday night by the score of 32-14. Both teams put up a fast game but the Celtics were more successful when it came to dropping the ball for points.

The playing of Gautaier at forward was hard to beat, he dropping basket after basket for a total of 12 points. Eccleston put up one of the best guarding games seen on the Y floor this season. The Celtics are fast rounding into the fastest team around these parts and would like nothing better than to get a crack at Plainfield Buddies for a game this Friday evening.

Connecticut College

Connecticut college is the first to attempt a course of lectures on The Vocation and Art of Living. This series, eight in all, is to be given in the college gymnasium from January to April. All members and friends of the college have been cordially invited to attend.

On Jan. 26, at 7 p. m., Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president-emeritus of Western Reserve university, Cleveland, O., delivered the second one in the series on The Family. He declared that the family was the unit of society and therefore the most important. Supreme love is the basis of marriage, which is the gateway of the home. Marriage itself is the perfecting life rather than the perfected. Marriage is a sacrament. Individuality is a great thing.

Two perils beset the family: (1) Thinking of marriage as a partnership makes it easily dissolved as such; (2) There are financial and domestic troubles.

The following are forces for preserving the families: There should be uniform and stricter divorce laws passed in all states, making them nation-wide. Thought should be given not only to the quantity of the family but to the quality, for the quality of the family is the capacity for spreading good influence.

College would bring to the home the richness which supports it and keeps it. The preservation of the home rests on the college graduate. The home cannot be made too religious. If the home is more holy, the family is nobler, the government better, and school and college nobler, too.

Dr. Thwing also spoke on Tuesday in the gymnasium at convocation about The Lamps of Education.

FANCY POULTRY SEEN AT NORWICH SHOW

A meritorious exhibition of 350 birds and 125 entries of pet stock made a highly successful opening at Pulaski hall Tuesday night for the first poultry show to be conducted by the Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock association. Quality in the entries was to be noticed on all sides and the officers of the association felt a justified pride in the showing that Norwich fanciers were making in this first attempt to hold a poultry show here.

Miss Florence Browning of Norwich Town had the best bird in the show and D. T. Lillibridge of Norwich Town scored with the best fantail pigeon and the best pigeon.

Besides the poultry, there was an interesting display of supplies. The Carter Feeder Co. of Boston brought directly from the Madison Square Garden show a large display of supplies, among which were Wishbone incubators and brooders, a new Moe incubator, and a complete line of galvanized iron utensils.

The show continues for two more days and will be well worth a visit from those interested in poultry and pet stock.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION

Washington, Jan. 27.—Creation of a federal co-operative marketing board to foster development of the cooperatives heads a list of new recommendations given to President Coolidge by his agricultural commission.

The president outlined to congressional leaders at breakfast today his views on the subject and later in the day the senate adopted a conference report on the Smith-Hoch resolution looking to a readjustment of freight rates.

Other recommendations in the commission's report, which the president is expected to transmit to congress tomorrow with a brief message urging expeditious action, dealt with the tariff increased financial aid for state agricultural experimental stations and truth in fabrics legislation. The commission reiterated its earlier suggestions for assisting the cattle men through existing financial agencies and a new public land grazing policy.

The federal co-operative marketing board, as proposed in the report, would enable co-operatives to develop "without governmental interference or domination," but would adopt a "fostering attitude" toward them. The commission said it had considered various proposed measures in congress dealing with cooperative marketing but found that no pending bill "presents a completely satisfactory progam."

NURMI SHATTERS ANOTHER RECORD IN GAMES AT MADISON SQUARE

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Paavo Nurmi demonstrated his ability tonight to vanquish America's greatest runners over any distance he choses when he raced the heart out of Joie Ray and three other stars in world's record time in a spectacular three-quarter event featurng the first half of the two night Millrose A. A. track and field carnival.

Flashing a dazzling sprint over the last lap that seemed to leave his other opponents standing still, the phantom Finn, glancing back over his shoulder, broke the tape ten yards in front of Ray, with Jimmy Connolly, Lloyd Hahn and Leo Larvlee, fighting gamely on but badly beated, trailing in that order.

Nurmi, whose time of 3.03 4-5 represented his 13th world's record performance in eight races, supplied the greatest thrill of one of the most sensational meets ever held in New York but he again was pressed for chief laurels by his sturdy countryman, Willie Ritola, who hung up four indoor marks in a three mile race in which he lapped Veron Boothe, former Johns Hopkins star and a half dozen other opponents.

Ritola eclipsed four of the five records he put on the books only three days ago, in the Brooklyn college games. His new marks and former records were: 2 1-4 miles, 10.33 2-5; former mark 10.36; two and one-half miles, 11.45 4-5 former mark 11.43; two and three-quarters' miles 13.01; three miles, 14.04; former mark 14.11 3-5.

Altogether six world's indoor marks were toppled in a startling exhibition of speed and stamina, Harold M. Osborn, famous all-around star of the Illinois Athletic club hanging up the other mark when he leaped to a new high jump record of six feet, six and one-quarter inches. Osborn broke the old record by an inch, defeating, among others, Leroy Brown, of the Colorado school of mines, who had held the former record jointly with R. W. Landon, New York A. C.

The hero of the night in point of popular fancy, was Ugo Frigerio, little Italian walking ace, who holds the Olympic championship.

Making his American debut, Frigerio, a lithe colorful personality, who stirred the crowd to unusual enthusiasm, walked easily to victory in a three mile race in which he conceded handicaps up to 3 seconds to his opponents.

Frigerio, who meets George Goulding of Canada and Willie Plant, American star, tomorrow night, was clocked in 22 12 3-5, nearly a minute and a half behind Goulding's world record of 20:49.4-5, made in Brooklyn in 1913.

WITNESS TELLS OF $7,000,000 FICTITIOUS ITEM

New York, Jan. 27.—A "fictitious item" of $3,780,000 was found in the books of the brokerage firm of E. D. Dier and company by H. S. Martin, assistant secretary of the New York stock exchange in 1920, Martin testified today at the trial of Dier, Charles A. Stoneham, and others, on charges of using the mails to defraud. It was the Dier firm to which Stoneham transferred the accounts of his customers in March 1921, a few months before the firm failed.

In 1920, Mr. Martin said, the exchange ordered an investigation of fifteen firms using exchange tickers, and among them was Hughes and Dier, which later became E. D. Dier and company. He testified that in this firm's books he had found an item of $3,780,000 and another of $100,000, which he wanted explained.

He was told, he said, by Fred Andrews, the manager of the firm and one of the defendants in the present trial, that these items were "fictitious and gotten up for forcing a balance." Andrews later admitted to him. Mr. Martin testified, that the firm made "a practice of going short about 70 per cent of our customers' securities." Meanwhile, the witness said, E. D. Dier, the head of the firm, had been asked by the exchange to explain the two "fictitious items" and had "stalled" so long that the exchange, impatient and suspicious, ordered its tickers taken out of the Dier office and its private telephones there disconnected. This was done in May, 1921. Mr. Martin said, or before the Stoneham transfer had been completed.

PROGRESS OF HOSTILITIES IN VICINITY OF SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Jan. 27 (By the A. P.)—The troops of General Chi Hsieh-Yuan partly evacuated Soochow today after sharp fighting with the forces of General Yu Yung-Hsiang. General Chi has returned to Shanghai and a large portion of his army is said to be retiring toward the city. All precautions have been taken by the foreign settlement in connection with the approach of these troops and no immediate danger is feared.

Despatches from Shanghai yesterday stated that General Chi, who recently took control of Shanghai in opposition to the Peking forces, had suffered a decisive defeat at Wusih, 30 miles west of Shanghai. His army was reported retreating along the line of the Shanghai-Nanking railway toward the city, leaving Wusih in the possession of the central government's Manchurian troops under General Lu. It was believed that the losses suffered by General Chi would mean that Shanghai would once more pass under the control of the present Peking government.

$50,000 DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST PHYSICIAN

Paterson, N. J., Jan. 27.—Charging Dr. William H. Jacob with having sewed a towel in her body while performing a caesarian operation on her on June 3, last, Mrs. Mark Van Lenten and her husband, Charles Van Lenten of this city, filed suit today against the physician for the recovery of $50,000 damages.

Dr. Jacob, in an interview, admitted that he performed the operation, but declared that the charge was false and he said that it simply impossible for him to have left the towel in Mrs. Van Lenten's body. He said he would contest the suit.

Mrs. Van Lenten charges that she was made ill repeatedly after the operation and was unable to understand the nature of her ailment until November of 1924, when at a second operation the towel was removed. The towel still bore the imprint of St. Joseph's hospital, where th efirst operation was performed by Dr. Jacob.

RADIO TESTS SHOWED NO CHANGE DURING ECLIPSE

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Radio tests conducted by the General Electric company during the period of the sun's eclipse disclose that there was no change in the signal strength on either long and short waves broadcast over the land of darkness, the company announced today.

A signal on a 50-meter wave with an antenna output of two kilowatts was transmitted from an experimental laboratory here before, during and after the eclipse. This was received at the radio corporation's station at Riverhead, L. I., on the opposite side of the belt of darkness and no change in the intensity was noticed even when the sun was totally eclipsed.

Long wave signals were received by engineers across the belt of darkness from WOR in Newark, which transmitted at 405 meters. No change in the intensity was noted at any time Saturday morning, it was said.

NEW LONDON NEWSPAPERMEN ARE QUIZZED IN POLICE PROBE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 27.—Another hearing of the special committee of the city council, Councilors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., Lucius E. Whiton and John F. Murray, together with City Manager William A. Holt, and Director of Law Frank L. McGuire, took place in the juvenile court room, municipal building, tonight. The witnesses were all newspapermen, excepting one, that witness being Councilor Albert C. Woodruff. The newspapermen to answer the interrogatives of the committee were Samuel T. F. Adams, Robert Morris and Harry H. Adams. The questions propounded were for the greater part, made with a view to obtaining such ideas as the witnesses might have as would tend, if adopted, to provide greater efficiency in the department, although it was apparent the committee had been informed of alleged happenings and incidents connected with the workings of the department by some of the members of the department.

The snow storm that fell from mid-day and throughout the night did not seriously hamper the operation of the trolley cars of the Connecticut company, cars on practically all lines were operated upon schedule. Particularly was this noticeable on the New London-Norwich line, those cars arriving at and departing from the State street terminal close to schedule. The company's powerful snowplow has been in constant operation since early this afternoon clearing snow from all lines and cars will be operated throughout the night to make positive that the several lines will be open for traffic Wednesday.

The annual minstrel performance of the Knights of Columbus was given tonight in the Lyceum theatre, the show being attended by a capacity audience. The performance is given by talented entertainers from among the membership of the organization and will net the treasury of the order a good sum.

An automobile owned and driven by Dr. H. P. Douglass, of Thames street, Groton, and a machine owned and operated by Harry F. Morse, of Alcorn street, were in collision this forenoon on the Thames river highway bridge. Neither car sustained serious damage, although Morse's car was driven into an opening in the bridge where a new roof is to be erected over the engine room. Dr. Douglass car was headed for New London and Morse's machine was travelling in the opposite direction. When the two machines reached a point where the bridge deck is removed, Morse applied his brakes so that the physician's car could pass. As the brakes were applied, Morse's machine skidded in front of Dr. Douglass' car, forcing the former automobile into the bridge opening. The Morse car was removed from the hole within a short time and was operated away under its own power.

Dr. S. C. Leonhardt, United States Coast Guard, stationed at the state pier, sustained a dislocated left knee this morning when he slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk. Dr. Leonhardt was on his way to the coast guard and destroyer base and in passing through Hallam street, slipped on the icy surface. He was taken to his apartment at a local hotel, where the injury was treated.

Mrs. Mary Dean, 210 Huntington street, has returned to her home after having spent several days in Boston.

Capt. William Durkee of the Central Vermont railroad freight steamer, City of New London, is in New York

The police did a good bit of business when they insisted that the only snow-covered walk on Montauk avenue should be cleared. It has been slushy for the past two days, and before that the snow lay several inches deep upon it. Then came the freeze-up and the walk was absolutely dangerous. The walk was the only one on the long stretch along the avenue that was uncleaned. Now that more snow has come, it is understood to be the intention of the police to rigidly enforce the ordinance pertaining to the clearing of sidewalks, so some appearances in the police court are to be looked for before the snow disappears.

Tug R. M. Waterman of the Thames Towboat company fleet is to be laid up for repairs now as the towing business is not brisk and the chance is afforded to put the craft in condition for the spring and summer.

It is said that there are more vacant tenements in New London at present than has been the case in many winters. The families of several railroad men have gone from this city because of a change in runs of the head of the house.

One of the policemen made the statement today that he never knew a time when electricity was so freely used as it is at present in this city. He declared that it is not an uncommon thing to see electric lights on in ten to twenty houses on his beat all night. Cellar lights are left burning frequently, and the officer does not think that condition is due to forgetfulness nor to carelessness.

Many of the New London stores closed at an early hour last evening, because of the storm. There were so few people moving about in the snow that the merchants took advantage of a chance to get away before darkness set in.

Mrs. Frederick Dawley of Moosup; Edward Dahl, Eighth street; Mrs. Abe Lahn, Maynard, Mass., and Mrs. Grant Edgar, Channing street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

A naval board of inquiry is in session at Portsmouth navy yard today for the purpose of ascertaining the facts which will reveal the manner and cause of the grounding on Nauset Beach, off the Massachusetts coast, ten days ago of submarine S-19, stationed at this port, and which was bound from Boston to New London when she grounded. The S-19 is still fast on the sandbar.

The funeral of Lawrence A. DeCoursey, son of Mrs. Mary DeCoursey, 60 Warren street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a representative number of members of the Knights of Columbus, of which order Mr. DeCoursey was a member. At the solemn mass of requiem Rev. Raymond O'Callahan was celebrant; Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, deacon, and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, sub-deacon. At the close of the service Edward Murray sang One Sweetly Solemn Thought. The bearers were Joseph P. Cranker, Patrick J. Flannery, John J. Daly, Cornelius D. Lynch, Eugene Glenn and Martin G. Turner, members of the Knights of Columbus. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Annie Fitzsimmons, about 55, widow of Patrick Fitzsimmons, died last night at her residence, 116 Howard street. Mrs. Fitzsimmons had been ill but about a week, having suffered a stroke. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Annie Allyn and Mrs. Rose Rothing, both of this city, and by five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Margaret Murphy, about 95, died this morning at her home, 23 Blackhall street, death ending an illness of many months. Mrs. Murphy was the widow of Patrick Murphy and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. James Daniels, and by two sons, James P. and Timothy J. Murphy, all of this city.

An automobile truck operated by Carl Burgess, 29 Henry street, was the cause of considerable excitement on Bank street, near Spring street, this afternoon, when the truck plunged down the incline and crashed into a pleasure car. The truck escaped damage but the touring car did not fare so well. Burgess had operated the truck to a point near Spring street, where the driver attended to some business. When he returned to the truck he was forced to crank the engine. In doing so the brakes were defective, for they became released and the heavy machine started. Before Burgess could get out of the path of the moving truck and board it the machine descended the grade and crashed against the pleasure car, the latter machine bearing registration 1073.

GROTON'S FINE NEW SCHOOL IS FORMALLY OPENED

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 27.—The dedicatory exercises attending the opening of the new Col. Ledyard school, Groton, took place this evening and in spite of the storm there was a large attendance of parents of pupils attending the school, as well as of borough officials and men and women interested in education of the children of Groton, who gathered in the building, listened to speakers and inspected the fine new structure.

Representative George W. Sisson, of New London, delivered the dedicatory address. Representative Sisson dwelt at length on the progress made in providing adequate school facilities in the borough and complimented the school officials in having obtained an appropriation whereby such a building as has been erected was achieved. During the evening A. Freeland Hodgdon, president of the Groton Parent-Teachers association on behalf of the association presented the school officials seven pictures, one each to be placed in the class rooms.

This forenoon Charles E. White of Groton made a personal presentation of a large picture. School officials were in attendance and besides the presentation speech of Mr. White, brief addresses were made by Charles M. Adams, chairman of the first school district, Miss Amanda Allen, principal of the Groton Heights school and James E. Griswold.

measures in both branches, and marked the beginning of the last week for introduction of new business. Outstanding as a controversial measure was the so-called healing art bill, declared by those who had a hand in its composition as a bill framed by the Connecticut chamber of commerce, and sponsored by the inquisitorial grand jury which inquired into the status of so many licensed medicinal practitioners because of revelations that "diploma mills" in the middle west had done an extensive business in Connecticut.

In the house about the same time the medical bill went in the senate, were read petitions from many persons who had had their rights as practicing physicians revoked by the state department of health. Just how many such petitions were received it was impossible to tell owing to the bulk of business.

Transportation matters came to the front also today when bills were offered to enable trolley companies to abandon non-paying lines, to extend their services by use of motor buses and to make receipts from such bus service non-taxable to has been the case with motor bus lines maintained by other interests during the last two years.

Appropriation bills, revenue measures, armory bills and scores of others amendming existing laws were read into the records in both branches as fast as the clerks could read them, for nearly an hour. New business must be in by Friday. It usually goes close to 1000 measures although pre-war figures often went over the 3,000 mark.

For Catarrh and Colds

To relieve catarrh or check a head cold, melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. Also put a little in each nostril and snuff well back up the head.

Another way is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh.

Millions of mothers find Vicks the ideal remedy for croup and children's colds because it not only brings quick relief but avoids dosing delicate little stomachs with so much medicine.

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

Here and there was a bill which later on will put humor into the proceedings. Legislaters have wrestled with the skunk and woodchuck problems, have been tied into parliamentary knots over the merits of use of ferrets in hunting rabbits but now comes a bill to require that cats shall be licensed. Last session a bill would have required each tabby to carry a bell around its neck so as to decrease its bird-catching abilities and this was laughed out of the house, but a licensing bill was said by members today to have "some merit."

So far not many of the cities have sent their controversies to the legislature to be threshed out, but New Haven living under home rule, is pouring in bills which promise o give everyone an insight into what is going on in the City of Elms. George L. Fox, educator of that city, will have bills in relation o school affairs in New Haven and the present dispute between the administration there and he board of education will be reviewed in many ways

The first committee hearing was held this morning by the judiciary committee and considered the nomination of Judge Ernest C. Simpson for the superior court which later was reported favorably and went through both branches.

Windham County Caucus.

The republican caucus of Windham county members elected A. L. Weatherhead, of Windham and N. J. Fournier (democrat), Plainfield, both representatives, county auditors and renominated E. H. Cortiss, to be county commissioner.

BILL TO ANNEX PART OF SALEM TO MONTVILLE

Hartford, Jan. 27.—A bill introduced by Representative Kent, of Norwalk in the house today provides that no license be issued to operate a motor vehicle unless there is liability insurance for $10,000 on the vehicle.

Highway bills, aside from various trunk line projects included the following:

Reimbursing of towns by the state for all money spent on highways and assumption by the state of interest on money borrowed by towns for highway work, appropriating $1,000,000 for graveling roads by the state and providing that trunk line and state aid roads shall be built and maintained by the state.

A bill introduced by Dr. Higgins of Coventry would abolish the legislative committee on excise, woman suffrage, sale of lands and new counties and county seats. Other bills provide for election by the alumni of two trustees of Connecticut Agricultural college, annexation of a part of Salem to Montville and changing the name of the Americanization department to the department of adult education.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, Jan. 28.—Stock prices again displayed considerable irregularity in today's market. Bear traders, taking advantage of the uncertainty regarding the United States Steel Corporation's dividend action and earnings, succeeded in unsettling the general list in the early trading, but persistent demand for the oil shares had a steadying effect and eventually brought about a rather general recovery.

The steel corporation's report for the fourth quarter, which was issued after the market closed, showed net earnings of $30,762,231, an increase of $43,816 over the preceding quarter owing to the fact that prices for fourth quarter delivery were lower than those of the preceding three months. The steel trade had looked for earnings of between $28,000,000 and $29,000,000. The regular dividend of $1.20 and the usual extra of 50 cents were declared, setting at rest rumors that the common stock would be placed on a flat $7 annual basis.

United States Steel common fluctuated within a range of about one point, closing 1-8 higher at 126 3-4. Most of the independent steels showed small fractional recessions. Pressed Steel Car dropped 1 1-2 points to 63 1-2 resumption of dividends on the preferred not being announced until after the market closed.

Further accumulation of the oils was stimulated by reports of another sharp drop in the output of the new Wortham pool, and additional gasoline price advance. Pacific Oil led the advance, closing 3 1-8 points higher at 62 1-2. Pan American issues each showed gains of 2 points with Texas Company, Maracaibo, Associated Oil, Houston and Standard Oil of California showing gains of a point or so. Simms Petroleum was heavy.

American Woolen, which has been under pressure most of the week, rallied two points to 52 3-8. The preferred jumped about 5 1-2 points and Nash Motors soared 9 1-2 on a few sales. Foundation Company moved up 2 1-2 points to a record top at 104 and Laclede gas showed a net gain of 4 1-2 points at 139.

A brisk demand for Norfolk and Western which closed two points higher at 129 after selling as high as 129 3-4, featured the railroad list. Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred dropped 3 5-8 points to 43 1-8, but most of the other issues in that group held relatively steady.

Call money opened at 4 per cent., the highest renewal rate since Jan. 5 and then dropped to 3 1-2, where it closed. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates stiffened slightly with business in increased volume. Demand sterling ruled about a quarter of a cent higher around $4.79 3-4 and French francs were again quoted above 5.40 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 27.—With bond trading market by narrow and irregular price fluctuations, new financing today captured most of the interest in investment circles. An unusually satisfactory response to offerings of more than $0,000,000 so far this week was followed by the announcement of several important issues to be sold tomorrow and by preparations on the part of bankers to speed up pending negotiations.

Heading the list of tomorrow's offerings will be an issue of $16,092,000 Chicago and Western Indiana 37 year first and refuding 5 1-2's which will be marketed by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan and Company. The bond will be priced at 97 to yield slightly less than 5.70 per cent. Proceeds will be used to retire a 7 1-2 per cent. loan floated in 1920 and to finance a construction program. Public offering will be made by Dillon, Read and Company of $10,000,000 Union Oil company of California ten year 5's at 96 to yield over 5 1-2 per cent.

Prompt subscriptions of $10,000,000 bond issues for the German General Electric company and the Siemens electrical group of Germany, it was indicated, would influence further offerings by both German and French industries. New French financing, which has been held back during the recent debt discussions, is scheduled to appear in the market before long. Negotiations for approximately $75,000,000 French municipal, railway and industrial loans are pending. The Canadian National Railways also is expected to market a $35,000,000 bond issue.

Price changes of listed bonds today were insignificant. Oil liens gave a fair demonstration of group strength, but other industrial and rail issues moved irregular fashion.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Successive waves of speculative buying forced the wheat market today up to within 1-4c of $2 a bushel, May delivery, a new price record. Fresh indications of world demand for wheat available to be delivered at once had much to do with stimulating to such an unusual extent the purchase of future contracts. Wheat closed unsettled at a range varying from 1 5-8c. Lower to 2 7-8c. Net advance, May 1.99 1-8 to 1.99 1-4 and July 1.70 1-2 to 1.70 5-8. Corn finished 1-2 to 3-4c up, oats unchanged to 1c higher, and provisions at 2c lower to 17c gain.

News that European countries which generally are exporters had become importers excited widespread attention among wheat traders today, especially in view of almost simultaneous reports that growers in Argentina were holding their wheat back for higher prices. A big advance in quotations at Buenos Aires, Liverpool and Winnipeg tended further to emphasize the buying side of the market here, and so too did word that good export business had developed today in the United States. On the first of today's price bulges here, however, heavy profit-taking sales suddenly swept May back from 1.98 to 1.96.

Floods of buying orders nevertheless came back with a rush.

Corn and oats were rallied by wheat strength and unfavorable weather but during the greater part of the day showed a tendency to sag owing to the large stock in sight.

Provisions were responsive to the action of grain.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 27.—Confused price movements took place in today's curb market, the oil shares displaying considerable irregularity and the general list showing pronounced reactionary tendencies. Announcement of the third gasoline price advance within the last two weeks brought fresh buying into Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania, Prairie Oil and Gas and Vacuum, which closed 1 to 2 points higher. Cities Service common rallied 3 points on reports that the stock will be split up on a five to one basis. South Penn. Oil broke 6 points to 187 1-2, Prairies Pipe yielded 3 3-4 to 120 1-4 and Southern Pipe Line dropped 7 1-2 to 100 1-2, most of the liquidation in these issues representing profit taking.

Radio shares were reactionary. Freed-Eisemann, Thermodyne, Ware and Music Master fell back a point or two and most of the others yielded fractionally.

Public utilities also lost ground. Commonwealth Power fell 3 1-4 points to 118 and American Light and Traction common and Lehigh Power securities each closed a point lower.

Weak spots in the industrial list included Grand Stores, Atlantic Fruit and Cudahy Packing, off 1 to 3 points.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Why the Cousins Ended Their Quarrel

When common danger doth attend
All private quarrels quickly end.
—Peter Rabbit.

The quarreling cousins, Billy Mink and Shadow the Weasel, had disappeared as if by magic. One instant they had been snarling at each other and looking as if at any second they might spring at each other's throat, and the next instant they had disappeared. It was almost unbelievable. Peter began to wonder if he had been asleep and dreamed that he saw those two cousins quarreling. He rubbed his eyes. And then, happening to look up, he saw Terror the Goshawk just disappearing over the tree tops.

Peter shivered a little and began to run faster

The banks of the Laughing Brook appeared as deserted as if no living thing had ever been there. It was still hard for Peter to believe that he had seen Billy Mink and Shadow the Weasel quarreling there. Then as suddenly as they had disappeared both appeared again. Billy Mink suddenly popped into view much nearer Peter than he had been. He seemed to have forgotten all about Shadow the Weasel, for he came running along the bank, looking into every little hole just as he had been doing when Peter first saw him.

Looking up the Laughing Brook Peter saw Shadow the Weasel going on his way just as if nothing had happened. Peter was thankful that Shadow was going up the Laughing Brook, for that was taking him further away. It was bad enough to have Billy Mink so near, but it would have been worse to have had Shadow in Billy Mink's place. Billy was more likely to keep to the Laughing Brook, and so to pass Peter's hiding place, which was a little way back of the Laughing Brook. In a few minutes both Billy and Shadow disappeared. Peter drew a long breath of relief.

"I guess this is no place for me," said Peter. "There is no telling when those fellows may come back. The sooner I get away from here the better. My, but I wish I could disappear the way they can! Of coure, with that white coat of his Shadow the Weasel would have no difficulty in getting out of sight. But how Billy Mink managed to hide so quickly I don't understand. Of course, he hid behind something or under something, but he did it so quickly that I didn't see him.

"It is no wonder those two fellows manage to keep out of trouble. In spite of their quarrel they saw Terror the Goshawk the instant he came in sight. Even in their anger they didn't forget to be on the watch for danger. I guess they are never absent-minded as I was the other day. If one is to live in the Great World he mustn't forget even for an instant the rule of safety first. I wish Terror had caught Shadow the Weasel. Yes, sir, I do. I have some enemies for whom I don't really wish any harm. But Shadow the Weasel is different. I don't know of one good thing about that fellow. His greatest pleasure in life seems to be to kill others. He kills just for the pleasure of killing."

Peter shivered a little and began to run faster: hipperty-hipperty-hip, hipperty-hipperty-hip he ran, and kept looking behind him as if he half expected to see Shadow the Weasel bounding along after him.

BOLTON

Luigi Tinto lost his house and barn including all of the contents which consisted of twenty head of stock, 35 tons of hay $1,700 worth of farming machinery and tools purchased last summer, all of his household furniture and clothing, by fire Tuesday night. Some after eleven o'clock one of the sons was awakened smelling smoke and he awoke the family. They found the barn and contents practically consumed by flames, and the ell of the house afire. The flames spread so rapidly nothing could be saved in the house. All that is left standing on the place that a week ago looked like a prosperous farm is a small garage, hen house and ice house. The place is well known for miles around as the Lenti Brothers peach farm, being the largest peach farm in town. It contains twenty-eight acres of peach orchards, and four acres of vineyards. Lenti Brothers sold the farm some years ago to Batista Ansaldi, he lost a large barn containing wagons and farm tools a year ago last summer, which necessitated Mr. Tinto stocking up with new equipment when he purchased the place last year.

Neighbors who were awakened were handicapped in fighting the fire as shovels, pails and all implements were in the burning building. The loss is considered about $12,000 over the insurance. The cause of the fire could not be determined. The barn which was burned was new about fifteen years ago and was built to replace one destroyed by lightning at that time.

The Center school was closed this week, but will be reopened Feb. second with a new teacher Miss Sarah Top.

A party of about 20 came from South Manchester to Bolton Center last week Friday on a straw ride, on reaching here they were served refreshments by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church.

Henry Massey, who was run into by an automobile on the Andover road two weeks ago and taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital has returned home. Peter Maneggia who was more seriously hurt, will not be able to leave that institution for sometime, having bones broken in his ankle.

Mrs. Myron M. Lee and small daughter have returned home from Manchester Memorial hospital.

Miss Helen I. Taylor of the city library Holyoke, spent the week end with her parents at the Center.

Charles N. Loomis, Jr., of Pawtucket, R. I., spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Charles N. Loomis.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Truman Young, who has been ill for some time, is not improved.

Stanley Place of Foster spent a part of Saturday with his cousin, Francis Coffey.

The chimney in A. E. Phillip's house caught fire Friday morning and but for the timely discovery of it by Mrs. Phillips the blaze might have caused much damage. Mrs. Phillips telephoned to some of her neighbors who assisted the family in getting the flames under control, little damage resulting.

Traveling on the cross-roads was so bad Wednesday that several of the school children were unable to attend school. Those living on the state road were more fortunate as the state crew kept that road open.

Jacob Spaulding cut a finger badly, while sawing wood Friday.

Harry Young and family of Danielson spent Wednesday evening at P. H. Coffey's.

Several local young people attended a dance in Sterling Saturday evening.

People here as elsewhere were much interested in the eclipse Saturday and were most fortunate in being in the direct path. Smoked glasses were much in demand and the changes were closely watched from the first appearance of the shadow until the sun was totally eclipsed and the light began to appear again.

ROCKVILLE

A good view was possible of the total eclipse of the sun Saturday morning in its various stages.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Lewis of Woody Hill were dinner guests Saturday of Rev. and Mrs. Paul S. Burdick.

Wilfred E. Barber was a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Hill at Ashaway.

Rev. Paul S. Burdick and Albert S. Babcock attended the Seventh Day Baptist missionary board meeting at Westerly Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hill of Ashaway were callers at Woodcrest Saturday afternoon.

A choir rehearsal was held at the home of the chorister, Mrs. Carlton Irish, Wednesday evening.

Miss Charlotte Woodmansee is reported ill with grip.

Clark Taber, who has been ill, is somewhat better, but is quite feeble.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Barber of Hope Valley have moved to the farm they purchased from Ignatz Freymuller.

Miss Elva Woodmansee is ill.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS
MORE IN NORWICH IN PAST YEAR

More births, more marriages and more deaths in Norwich in 1924 than in 1923 are shown in the vital statistics for the year on record at the office of the Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook.

The total of 829 births was 31 more than in 1923. The middle of summer seemed to be the favorite time for the stork to visit Norwich homes as July and August showed the greatest number of births, 82 in July and 80 in August. Three other months had 70 or more.

June, long regarded as the chosen month for wedding, had to surrender the palm last year to the fall season, including September, October and November. November apparently supplanted the month of roses in the regard of bridal couples as there were 37 weddings in November as compared with 34 in June. October had just as many weddings as June and September had but one less. The whole record for the year showed 286 which was three more than in 1923. Besides the marriages in the town, the clerk's office received notice of 37 marriages in other towns in which either bride or groom came from Norwich.

There were 525 deaths in the past year which was 23 more than in the preceding year. There were also 31 notices of deaths from other towns, which was 9 less than in 1923. March and April showed the most deaths of any months in the year, 61 in March and 58 in April.

The following are the Norwich vital statistics for 1924:

	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Still Births	Total
Jan.	.71	18	52	6	147
Feb.	.59	31	47	0	127
Mch.	.77	13	61	2	153

BROCKETTS IN SUIT OVER GIANT NECK CO.

An injunction against Walter D. Brockett of New Haven, damages of $12,000 and court orders to compel Brockett to restore certain sums to the treasury of the Giant Neck Land & Improvement Co., are sought by Clarence L. Brockett of East Lyme and Niantic in a suit brought in the superior court and returnable in February. Walter D. Brockett, David D. Brockett and the Giant Neck Land & Improvement Co. are named as defendants. The plaintiff holds one-third of the capital stock of the company and the defendants own two-thirds of the $75,000 of capital stock, all three being the only directors of the company.

It is alleged in the complaint that the plaintiff was ousted as secretary of the corporation on Sept. 1, 1924, and Charles F. Roberts, an attorney, who was not a director, was elected secretary. It is alleged that the directors wrongfully voted a payment of $3,000 to Walter Brockett at a meeting in May, 1923, and also voted that Walter Brockett should pay to himself from the corporation's treasury the sum of $50 a week from date of organization to the date of this meeting and should receive thereafter $50 a week as president and treasurer of the company. It is alleged also that Walter Brockett, without authority of necessity employed his daughter [illegible] the books as treasurer and has paid her approximately $[illegible] per week.

Since the meeting when Roberts was elected secretary in place of the plaintiff, it is alleged that Walter Brockett has paid the stenographer in Roberts' office in New Haven the sum of $[illegible] and intends to pay this clerk [illegible] from the assets of the company. All this, it is claimed, is a wilful misappropriation of the funds of the company.

The injunction is sought to stop Walter Brockett from paying any more money to himself or to Roberts' stenographer and orders are asked for the return to the improvement company's treasury of such amounts as have been paid out as already referred to. It is also asked that Walter Brockett render a complete account of all his doings as treasury of the company.

FORECLOSURE SUIT ON LAND IN SALEM

Foreclosure of a $3,000 mortgage in the town of Salem is sought by Judah Heilweil of Salem in a suit brought against George and Mary Lucas, alias Lorcas, now or formerly of Salem, Stanley Selugo of Jersey City and Bruno Sajerski of New York city. Four notes totalling $1,000 are still unpaid, it is claimed, the mortgage having been dated Jan. 12, 1921. Selugo claims a mortgage of $900 on the land and Sajerski an attachment lien of $750. The suit is returnable in the superior court here in February.

ASKS PARTITION OF LAND IN EAST LYME

Partition of two tracts of land in East Lyme and Niantic is sought in a suit brought in the superior court by Rosina M. Brockett of East Lyme and Niantic against Walter Brockett of New Haven. The plaintiff owns an undivided one-third interest and the defendant two-thirds, while there is a $6,500 mortgage on the plaintiff's one-third interest. The suit is returnable in February.

NUMBER FOUR

rating capacity of the country, the private companies having 93 per cent. (Census.)

The average rate of all municipal plants is more than twice as high as the average rate of all companies reported by the census.

In 1912 power was purchased by 8.7 per cent of the municipal plants. In 1917 power was purchased by 28.3 per cent, and there has been a great increase in the number of municipal plants which have shut down their generating plants since 1917. (Census.)

Many so-called "municipal electric plants" are merely digributing systems, and purchase their power from companies. Estimates based on the McGraw Electrical Directory show that in 1921 over 26 per cent of all municipal plants purchased power, and the trend during 1922 in that direction has been marked.

Of the population of the United States served with electricity the companies serve 93.8 per cent and the municipal plants 6.3 per cent. (McGraw.)

The population served by municipal plants has during twenty years increased 1,305,922, while that served by companies has increased 27,376,437. (McGraw.)

The 1,992 municipal plants listed in the McGraw Electrical Directory serve 2,031 communities. The companies listed serve 12,508 communities.

The inefficiency of municipal or political ownership and operation is shown by the fact that the municipal plants hired 10.3 per cent of all the electric light and power employes in the United States, and bought 10.3 per cent of all the fuel used in generating electricity, but produced only 4 per cent of the electricity sold in the country, according to the U. S. census.

Attempted Interference.

Will attempted interference in the present plans and procedure produce a better proposition for the city and citizens?

This is a tender subject, one that we hesitate to comment very much on for fear of a misunderstanding of our motives. However, a thorough and clear analysis of all of the methods and activities and intentions of your honorable mayor and court of common council, the straightforward and business-like manner in which we have conducted our proposals and selves, and the very evident desire of a great many of the citizens of Norwich for a satisfactory and profitable plan to sell the gas and electrical department, would indicate that the actions of your court of common council should not be interfered with in any manner, but on the contrary should receive the wholehearted support of every citizen of Norwich.

The actions and intentions of your council plainly indicate that the only logical way is being opened for the real owners of the gas and electrical department, the citizens, to decide definitely for themselves as to whether they wish to retain or sell their own property. Indirect obstruction and politics played before the voters are allowed to decide the matter will only confuse and irritate. We believe that public spirited organizations and citizens cannot fail to be enlightened as to the real issue in this proposition and see that the whole matter is carefully and completely presented and understood with all of its various ramifications.

TWO MEN BOUND OVER FOR ASSAULT ON GIRL

At Rockville, Monday, for alleged assault on an 8-years-old school girl, William Schmidt, 60, was bound over to the April term of the Tolland county superior court. Joseph Rogers, 18, formerly of New York, but recently a boarder at this girl's home, was also charged with assaulting her. He, too, was also bound over to the superior court. Because of the age of the child involved in the case, Prosecuting Attorney Dennis J. McCarthy suggested to Judge John E. Fisk that the court room be cleared of spectators which was done. Two sessions of the court were held before Judge Fisk finally decided upon the disposition of the case, the morning session being held at 9 o'clock and a second session in the afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. At the afternoon session Judge Fisk said, after hearing the recommendations of Prosecutor McCarthy, that it was best to bind both over to the superior court. Schmidt's bonds were fixed at $1,500 while the bonds for Rogers were fixed at $1,000. Both went to jail, in default of bonds.

TROLLEY CAR FIRE IN WASHINGTON SQUARE

Shortly after 10.15 o'clock Tuesday night the fire department was notified by telephone that one of the Connecticut company's trolley cars was on fire at Washington square. The West Side company, Squad A and the deputy chief responded. The fire, which was in a motor box beneath the car, was extinguished with two cans of chemical. The damage was small.

One way to unsettle a question is to argue about it.

The fame of its success for overcoming some of the most stubborn ailments of women spread far and wide until today the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., is said to be the largest user of roots and herbs in the world. It operates a large laboratory at Lynn, Mass., others at Cobourg, Canada; Mexico City, Mexico; Barcelona, Spain, and Paris, France.

GILPATRIC'S FATHER SEEKS TO RECOVER SHARES

A number of bankers were present Monday afternoon in Hartford as witnesses in a hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Edward M. Yeomans on a reclamation proceeding by George W. Gilpatric of Putnam to recover a half interest in a lumber and coal business which had been hypothecated by his son, G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer.

Mr. Gilparic, a white haired man, said he was the Adams Express agent in Putnam before he went into the lumber, coal and ice business with Hiram S. Whipple in 1910. They were in partnership known as Whipple and Gilpatric until 1921. When the business started it was a $3,800 business but it grew rapidly in the following decade. On April 13, 1921, the business was incorporated and 900 shares at $100 each were issued. Of this stock 449 shares were taken by Mr. Whipple and one share by his brother, J. W. Whipple, 449 shares were made out in the name of G. Harold Gilpatric and one share in the name of George W. Gilpatric. The elder man alleged that he had full confidence in his son and in good faith believed he would control the stock for his (the father's) benefit. Mr. Gilpatric said he was a half owner of the business at the time it was incorporated.

It appears that G. Harold Gilparic hypothecated the 449 shares with the City Bank & Trust company of Hartford, as security, on a promissory note for $6,000. Mr. Gilpatric says he believes this note was bought by the First National bank, of Putnam, and says he willing to pay the $6,000 and interest due on it to have the shares of stock turned over to him. Trustee in Bankruptcy Arthur E. Howard, Jr., is formally opposing the petition. He is represented by his brother, Lawrence A. Howard of Hartford. Josiah H. Peck appears as attorney for Mr. Gilpatric. Leon P. Broadhurst, of the Phoenix National, Nathan D. Prince, of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust, Frank F. Furlong, of the Hartford-Aetna, Arthur P. Day, of the Riverside Trust and Frank A. Hagarty, were among the bankers present.

SETS HEARING DATE ON THAMES RIVER CHANNEL

A letter received Monday by Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce from Major G. R. Young of the engineers corps, war department, gave the information that February 3 at 10 o'clock in the morning is the date set for the requested hearing in Washington on the proposed deeping of the Thames river channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich. The hearing will be before the rivers and harbors board of the United States army engineers. The project is backed by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, business firms, individuals and by steamship companies operating on the river.

At the hearing held in Washington in May, 1923, at which appeared Attorney E. W. Higgins, H. M. Lerou, H. F. Dawley, Lucius Briggs, L. M. Carpenter, J. C. Smith and J. J. O'Rourke an order for a survey of the river was obtained. Since then hearings have been held in Providence where the district engineer's office is located, and in New York, divisional headquarters of Col. H. C. Newcomer. Messrs. Higgins, Lerou and Briggs appeared before Colonel Newcomer at the New York hearing.

It is known that the district office is in favor of the project, but Colonel Newcomer has been disposed to oppose it.

It is not known yet who will make up the personnel of the local delegation to appear at the coming hearing. Those most vitally interested are hoping that Attorney Higgins may be able to go. He is thoroughly conversant with the subject and it was chiefly through his able and convincing presentation of the facts that the board in Washington in 1923 that a survey of the river was ordered.

RECOMMENDS MONEY FOR NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

Hartford, Jan. 27.—Appropriations aggregating $31,380,905.50 for the maintenance of state departments and institutions in the two fiscal years ending June 30, 1927, will be recommended to the general assembly tomorrow by the state board of finance in its fifth biennial report. If the legislature adopts a suggestion made by Governor Trumbull in his message of last week, these appropriations will constitute the preliminary state budget, to be supplemented later by further maintenance appropriations made necessary by changes in statutory requirements and extension of institutions.

Pared Down $2,000,000.

The board of finance pared $2,017,395.50 from the requests made by the several departments and institutions. The biggest cuts were $975,000 from the state park and forest commission, $380,000 from the highway department, $250,000 from the state treasury, $112,000 from the department of domestical animals, $100,000 from the board of control, $65,000 from the motor vehicle department, $94,590 from the state board of education, $62,000 from the department of state agencies and institutions, $36,000 from the labor department.

The state park and forest commission cut came chiefly in one place, a request for $750,000 for acquisition of land being disallowed, on the ground that it did not properly belong under the heading of maintenance. An item of development and expenses was cut an additional $165,000 and a $50,000 request for purchase of land was eliminated.

Quarter Million Cut.

The quarter-million dollar cut in the state treasury budget is in a request for $1,750,000 to pay interest on state bonds. In the highway department budget, a request for $500,000 for the elimination of dangerous conditions was cut to $400,000 and $270,000 was cut from an allowance of $870,000 asked for engineers and deputies. One hundred thousand dollars was taken from a request for $500,000 by the domestic animals department for herd tubercular test work. A $20,000 cut in an allowance for office expenses was made in the motor vehicle department and $40,000 more was taken from a request for an appropriation of $490,871 for clerks and stenographers.

For Norwich State Hospital.

The largest maintenance appropriation allowed for a state institution was one of $1,860,000 for the Connecticut state hospital for the insane at Middletown. The Norwich state hospital for the insane, came second with an appropriation of $1,400,000.

Trichenosis in Waterbury.

Under the heading "Trichenosis Again," Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, the state commissioner of health announces in the weekly bulletin of his department, three cases of the dread disease made their appearance in Waterbury last week. The bulletin adds this comforting comment:

"The disease is not common as only twelve cases were reported last year but it is so easily prevented that no person at all should become infected. Preventative measures consist simply as proper cooking of all pork consumed as food. The larvae of the trichinae are in the pork and are liberated by the digestive fluids when the pork is not properly cooked. If the larvae are killed by proper cooking there is no danger."

In the flower of her youth the widow is not discouraged by weeds.

HERRIOT'S OUTLINE OF FRANCE'S FOREIGN POLICY

In the Chamber of Deputies the Premier Drew a Dark Picture of Germany's Activities in Armaments—Words Were Taken as a Warning to the British Government Against the Evacuation of the Cologne Zone—M. Herriot Stated Positively That France Does Not Intend to Repudiate Her Debts—Expressed Gratitude to Americans Who Regarded the Debt Not as One of an Exclusively of Commercial Order.

Paris, Jan. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Security was the main theme of Premier Herriot's long awaited speech on France's foreign policy delivered before a great gathering in the chamber of deputies today. The premier drew up a vivid, but dark, picture of Germany's activities in armaments, while he disposed of the problem of inter-allied debts in a brief, but nevertheless emphatic manner.

Never before since he assumed power has M. Herriot spoken of Germany in the tones he used today, and, although he had the entire chamber, excepting the communists, enthusiastically applauding . . and cheering him, the general interpretation throughout parliament was that his purpose was deeper than merely catering to the right groups—that it was a warning to the British government against the evacuation of the Cologne zone.

On the subject of inter-allied debts, the premier said: "I come to the question of inter-allied debts. I shall speak very briefly thereon, for you have remarked how great is the susceptibility of our friends and allies on this subject, and you know how even the most mild words and best sentiments risk at times being interpreted in a regrettable way.

"What I can do is solemnly repeat what, M. Viviani has said—what M. Poincare has said—France intends not to repudiate her debts.

"It is not the government over which I preside, attached as it is to respect for treaties and conventions, that will disavow the principle of debts which France has contracted.

"That being said, we have the right, after the speech, filled with such useful figures, by M. DuSols, after M. Marin's, to appeal to the sentiments of solidarity of our allies and hands conversations with them have given us. It would be unscrupulous, unlawful, not to thank those who are taking part in these conversations.

"If it has been possible to cite words of an American senator which were unfavorable to France, it must not be forgotten how many are those in America who remember the common ordeal and intend to treat the problem not as one of an exclusively commercial or financial order, but almost as one of moral order. France can only say how she feels such words coming from far away and how they touch her at the moment she is searching her resources for her unfortunate devastated regions.

"It is only justice to state that M. Clemental and I have met with a spirit of sincere cordiality beyond reproach in Winston Churchill (British chancellor of the exchequer). His letter to M. Clemental recalled what he termed the terrible agony of war, agony suffered in common and he declared that we ought to approach the solution of the problem now posed also in common.

"Even from a commercial and practical viewpoint it is impossible that the allies cannot see the terrible difficulties there would be in asking loans to transfer to England and America sums, corresponding to their credit, these sums have not increased our means of action, while the loan of 800,000,000 gold marks provided by the Dawes plan—to which I continue to think we have done well in subscribing—has given Germany fresh economic force.

"The money lent us prevented us from perishing," but our substance is, nevertheless diminished. I hope as much good will be brought to this problem as we ourselves are putting in it. France has always been true to her word. She will be again here, as everywhere."

The above quotations from M. Herriot's speech on the subject of inter-allied debts were as set forth in the official stenographic report, and as revised by the speaker for publication. Before the deputies he said, among other things:

"We are still in the midst of discussions on this affair of debts, and anything I might say from the height of this tribune might open up a dress polemic to the varied interpretations which might be given my words, and that is the thing I wish at all costs to avoid."

From the chamber's rostrum he contented himself with reiterating solemnly that France would pay her debts.

Having paid a tribute to Mr. Churchill, M. Herriot declared: "Our relations with Great Britain were never more cordial," but he desired to make clear what the occupation of the Cologne bridgehead meant to France; France had no intention of remaining on the Rhine forever, but in the face of Germany's non-fulfillment of the disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty, particularly regarding military organization, reconstruction of the great German general staff, with extraordinarily perfected technique, and the fact that the old Prussian militaristic spirit still existed and was making preparations for an assault upon poor peoples who only wanted peace, M. Herriot declared: "I say to our allies and friends, to the English democracy, to Italy, that we want to be safe, that we must watch what is taking place over there."

The premier, after devoting some time to explaining how the Geneva protocol, if ratified, would contribute greatly to making France feel safe against unprovoked aggression, expressed regret that the "guarantee pact" had not been ratified by the United States and Great Britain.

Passing to the question of security, M. Herriot said: "Our presence on the Rhine is an essential guarantee—the last guarantee of our security."

He drew a picture of Germany's armaments, which stirred the house to excitement, and said: "I have no hatred for the Germans, but I must say that disarmament will never come until German militarism is suppressed."

The voyage of the Zeppelin ZR No. 3, constructed by the Germans for the United States and piloted last fall from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., M. Herriot recognized as a magnificent industrial and engineering feat, but, he added, it had been exploited by the Germans as a "hymn of hate" against France.

"Here is how they write in Germany about it," said the premier: "French peasants in Loire and Gironde bowed their heads and bent their spines as they saw the symbol of future German force pass above them."

The surprise of the session came when Ellas "Lish" Green, who had been expected to present a dramatic eye-witness account of the affair stated that he did not [illegible] He could not of his own knowledge say that either Young or Thomas had done any shooting.

Germany Making Financial Recovery

Revenue For the Past Nine Months Has Exceeded Estimates For Whole Year.

Berlin, Jan. 28 (By the A. P.)—Finance Minister Dr. Otto Von Schlieben, in a statement before the budget committee of the reichstag today, said that at last the government had succeeded in restoring order in the country's finances. The revenue for the past nine months, he stated, exceeded the estimates for the whole financial year which would probably conclude without a deficit.

The country's expenditures, nevertheless, still were very heavy, Dr. Von Schlieben explained, and talk about the reich "rolling in money" was utterly unjustified. He estimated that the state, during the year of 1925, would require 4,000,000,000 marks to cover all expenses including reparations, and by 1930 the expenditures would reach 4,900,000,000 marks which, in view of the possible taxable revenue, opened up a gloomy prospect.

"However," the finance minister added, "we have no grounds for pessimism if we manage the country's finances cautiously. But we have also none for excessive optimism."

DISPELS MYSTERY ABOUT ECLIPSE SHADOW-BANDS

New York, Jan. 28.—Flickering shadow-bands which pass over earth immediately prior to eclipses of the sun, and generally are described as unexplained phenom— really are no mystery at all, according to R. W. Wood, professor of experimental physics at Johns Hopkins university.

For twenty years it has been known, Doctor Wood [illegible] that the turbulence of earth's atmosphere, [illegible] and that these results in the density of [illegible] and that these results in the shadows when the moon [illegible] the sun is on last Saturday.

Shadow-bands can be seen whenever a distant searchlight is focused upon the wall of a white-nued building he said. Efforts to [illegible] such features of the eclipse with the Einstein theory of light-ray-bending were called by Doctor Wood "worse than nonsensical."

The great interest shown in the [illegible] in the so-called shadow-bands which were observed simultaneously on the snow or on a white sheet during the few minutes preceding totality of the sun's eclipse prompts one to make a few statements regarding them," he said.

"Contrary to the statements of many astronomers the cause of these bands is well known, and I have been surprised that eclipse programs are said arranged to include their observation.

"They are caused by irregularities of density in the atmosphere of the earth, which result from the turbulent mixing [illegible] currents, and [illegible] seen as a distant search light shines on the white wall of a building. The rays of light must be small and very bright, which explains why they are not seen in full sunlight, but only when the sun's disc has been reduced to a narrow crescent by the moon.

"That they have their origin in the earth's atmosphere is proven by the circumstances that their direction of motion is frequently observed to change suddenly with the wind."

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF PROHIBITION ACT

New London, Jan. 28.—United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at a hearing this afternoon of the [illegible] house here, held Captain Arthand Payzant, of the British schooner J. Duffy and the seven members of the crew for the United States district court on charges of violating the prohibition act. Payzant's bond was set at $1,500 while the members of the crew were held in $500 each.

The J. Duffy, with its cargo of liquor valued at $800,00, was seized during the last week in December off Cornfield Point gas and bell buoy, by the coast guard destroyed Downes.

Commissioner Mathewson discharged the members of the crew of the two masted fishing schooner Joppaite, which was seized Saturday by the coast guard destroyer Jouett, 16 miles off No Man's Land. The discharge was granted when it was shown that the seizure was made outside the 12-mile limit. The schooner, which had 300 cases of alleged liquor aboard, is being held Captain Jeremiah Flynn of Newport, R. I., was the master.

SENATE OPPOSITION WILL NOT DETER ATT'Y-GEN. STONE

Presidential Nominee For Supreme Court Bench Has Informed Senate Judiciary Committee That He Will Assume Full Responsibility For New Court Action Against Senator Wheeler—The Attorney General Submitted to Four Hours' Cross-Examination.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Assuming full personal responsibility for the institution of a new court action against Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, Attorney General Stone gave notice today to senators who are opposing his nomination to the supreme court in that connection that the proceedings would continue.

Appearing before the senate judiciary committee, Mr. Stone gave his reasons for initiating the case in the District of Columbia instead of in Montana, where an indictment against Senator Wheeler already is pending. He then submitted to a three hours' cross-examination, much of it conducted by Senator Walsh, democrat Montana, counsel for Wheeler and a member of the committee.

After Mr. Stone had been excused, the committeemen discussed the matter for nearly an hour without coming to any conclusion. Chairman Cummins announced there would be another meeting Monday to consider the nomination of Mr. Stone, recommitted by the senate last Monday after the Wheeler case had been brought into senate debate behind closed doors.

Facing Senator Wheeler as well as his counsel in the small and crowded committee room, Mr. Stone said evidence that was to be presented to a grand jury here next week indicated [illegible] conspiracy to defraud the government on oil and mineral lands and that testimony could not be taken without indicating that Senator Wheeler was involved" in the transaction.

Replying, indirectly, at least, to charges that Senator Wheeler is being "persecuted" in the effort to "drag" him 2,500 miles from his home on an action that could be brought in his own state, the attorney general announced that there was no intention on the part of the government to drop the proceedings in Montana, in which Senator Wheeler is charged with accepting a fee to represent Gordon Campbell before a government department in the matter of land permits after his election to the senate.

That case and the case to be presented to the grand jury impaneled today in the District of Columbia supreme court are entirely different, Mr. Stone said, the latter being based upon new evidence obtained in a wholly new investigation he had caused to be instituted after he came into office because of the "widespread publicity given to the indictment in Montana, and the charges and counter- charges growing out of it."

This new inquiry was conducted by Assistant Attorney General Donovan, who came into office last Aug. 15, and who, Mr. Stone said, had had no previous connection with the case.

Questioned by Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, about his connection with the litigation years ago between the J. Pierpont Morgan estate and James A. Ownbey of Colorado, Mr. Stone said he came into the case as counsel for the estate under a proceeding instituted in Delaware. He had no connection with a previous litigation in Colorado, he said, and had not even read the record of that case.

The Delaware case, said the attorney general, was an attachment of Ownbey's stock, which was sold to satisfy the judgment of the court. Asked who bought it, he said he "assumed" the buyer was a representative of the Morgan estate.

Senator Reed asked if Ownbey's bail was not fixed at such a figure that he could not meet it, and Mr. Stone replied:

"He could have moved to have it reduced, but no such motion was made."

Declaring the case against Senator Wheeler already had been investigated over and over, Senator Walsh asked the attorney general whether there was any charge against his colleague "except the matter of obtaining the Campbell permits."

"Yes," was the reply. "The case in Montana relates to Senator Wheeler's practicing before the department after his election. The other charge is based on different evidence."

Reverting to Mr. Stone's statement that the proceedings here had been ordered after an inquiry during the late summer and fall, Senator Walsh introduced letters in which it was said that William C. Dorsey of Omaha, Neb., a former special assistant attorney general, had declared at a New York during the democratic national convention in June and July that Wheeler was to be indicted in the District of Columbia on a conspiracy charge.

Mr. Stone could not recall Dorsey but said any such statement at that time was "unauthorized and without foundation."

Questioned by Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, Mr. Stone said the case to be prosecuted here is a "conspiracy case" and that "some of the acts took place in Montana."

"I don't deny that the case could be brought in Montana," he added.

The attorney general then said he had not limited the case to a conspiracy charge.

"I'm going to get a great deal more information than I have now," he said.

Some seventy witnesses, he said, have been summoned before the grand jury here, beginning Feb. 2.

Senator Reed developed that with the exception of a government official, who was not named, the men to be proceeded against here are the same as those indicted in Montana.

"I don't know of any principle of law which required that a defendant be tried in his own home town," said Mr. Stone.

"Not his home town, but in his vicinage," said Senator Reed. "If you don't know that principle, you had better read some Anglo-Saxon law."

Mr. Stone replied that the principle was one of trial in the vicinage of the offense, which in this case was the District of Columbia.

DOCUMENTS DISAPPEARED BY CONTRIVANCE OF MEANS

New York, Jan. 28. — Gaston B. Means identified today a statement bearing his sig[illegible] in which he admitted that he "contrived the disappearance of documents which he had previously submitted to the Wheeler-Brookhart senatorial committee, during its investigation of the department of justice, last year.

In the statement which, after its identification by Means, was admitted into evidence in the trial of Means and Thomas B. Felder, charged with conspiracy to bribe high government officials, say that Means had helped W. [illegible] ("Ducky") Duckstein and his wife of Washington, D. C., to frame their subsequent testimony before the committee in explanation of the disappearance of the documents.

COOLIDGE ASKS LEGISLATION ON AGRICULTURAL PROBLEMS

Washington, Jan. 28.—The legislative recommendations of the agricultural commission were transmitted to congress today by President Coolidge with a request for their enactment "at the earliest possible date."

In a brief message sent to both house and senate, the president not only urged prompt action but took occasion to express confidence in the commission and its findings.

No draft of legislation to carry out the recommendations accompanies the report, and it was indicated that this task would be left to the house and senate agriculture committees.

Chairman Haugen has called a meeting of the house committee Saturday to canvass the situation and it is regarded as likely that the senate committee also will determine its procedure before the week end. There are indications that the two committees may hold joint but brief hearings to expedite consideration of legislation.

Administrative leaders in both houses said they were confident congressional action could be completed on most of the commission's recommendations before March 4, adjournment, but Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee said he thought it improbable that anything could be done at this session toward complying with the general recommendation for better tariff protection for farm products.

As a step toward putting into law recommendations of the commission, Representative Williams, republican, Michigan, reintroduced his co-operative marketing bill after eliminating for the original measure, known as the Capper-Williams bill, provisions not recommended by the president's commission. He expressed the belief that his modified proposal carried out practically all the commission's suggestions.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR TO PRESENT CREDENTIALS FRIDAY

Washington, Jan. 28.—Emile Daeschner will present to President Coolidge on Friday his credentials as French ambassador to the United States to succeed Jules Jusserand. Arrangements for the presentation were concluded today, coincident with the departure of the retiring ambassador from New York for France.

Since the arrival of the ambassador-designate in Washington a general feeling has gained headway that the session will begin discussions here on the subject of the French war debt. In some quarters the statement made today by Louis Dubois in the French chamber of deputies, that he awaited "confidently the reply of the United States," was interpreted as giving color to that possibility.

However, it was said flatly by high officials today that M. Daeschner has not yet mentioned the debt question nor is he expected to do so until he actually takes over his post after his reception by President Coolidge Friday.

The French government had been informed before M. Daeschner sailed for the United States that the Clemenceau memorandum had been found unacceptable by the Washington government as a basis for a discussion of debt funding. In the light of this fact, it is regarded as more than possible that Premier Herriot, Finance Minister Clementel and M. Daeschner thoroughly survey the situation during their conference in Paris.

RUMANIA HAS RATIFIED CONVENTION WITH U. S.

Bucharest, Jan. 28.—The Rumanian senate today ratified the extraditions convention arranged last summer with the United States. The agreement does not grant extradition for political offices and, as in the Rumanian law there is no death penalty, a special clause was added to the effect that extradited persons, if found guilty should not be condemned to death. Although their offenses made them liable to the death penalty, in a note forming part of the convention the United States agrees not to exact the death penalty in the case of any person extradited from Rumania.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1191
Office Hours: 8:30 to 12 m. 1:30 to 6 p. m.

The meeting of Willimantic Exchange club Wednesday noon proved to be one of the most interesting of the daily sessions of that organization held in months. Twenty-three members attended. President George E. Wilcox was in charge of the meeting. There was one guest, Prof. E. G. Skinner of Storrs. The address was to have been delivered by Prof. E. W. Sinnott of Storrs, on The Interpretation of Life. Due to the inability of the speaker to be present, an eleventh hour announcement was made that the talk was to be postponed to next week. For a discussion the club took up business conditions. The talks were led by Rev. Frederick C. Williams, chairman of the entertainment committee, E. J. Donnelly, Dr. White and Dr. Harry Bailou. Singing for the day was led by Charles H. Caswell. The club will extend an invitation to a widely known orator to appear before the local organization and give a resume of the medical practice act introduced in the state legislature. Frank M. Lincoln and E. J. Donnelly were named a committee to meet with Acting Mayor George W. Hickey relative to the observance of Boys' Week in this city next spring. The Exchange club plans to co-operate to the fullest extent with other civic and social bodies in making the local movement a success this year. Adjournment was taken at two o'clock.

Following a twenty-four hour snow storm Old Man Winter laid his icy hand on Willimantic Wednesday, and the mercury slid to the lowest figures on the thermometers. Between 1 and 5:30 in the morning, cold snap records for this season were broken with readings of from ten to sixteen degrees below zero. Supt. Henry Chamberlain of the almshouse, located on West Main street, reported the sixteen below reading at 5:30 o'clock and a thermometer on the R. H. Remington garage, near Willimantic river, showed that the mercury had fallen to the uncomfortable depth of eleven below zero. Probably the coldest place in this section is at the pumping station in Mansfield where an exposed thermometer is said to have read twenty-two below at day-break. Supt. W. N. Bowen states that about ten o'clock in the forenoon the mercury was still under the zero mark.

This is how surrounding towns felt the cold snap: At Baker's store, Warrenville, 15 below at 6 a. m.; at Hanson's store, West Willington, 14 degrees below at 6 a. m.; at Green's store, Eagleville, 10 below at 6 and six a. m., rising to zero at 10 a. m.; at Storrs, 12 below zero at 6 a. m.

Pre. W. F. Kirkpatrick, in charge of the egg-laying contest at Connecticut Agricultural college said that the cold snap had some effect on the industrious hens, which number 1,400. There are 240 pens, ten hens to a pen and last week the average lay per pen was twenty-four eggs or 2.2-5 eggs per bird. This is an equivalent of a hen laying an egg every three days and is considered a poor showing.

Automobile owners Wednesday were driving through avenues of snow piled up three and four feet on either side of the highway. It is estimated that fourteen inches of snow fell during the storm and in locations where drifts had occurred passing was difficult except in sections where plows had cleared the way. Supt. John S. Sullivan had the employes of the street department on the job all day and much improvement was made in city traveling conditions. Throughout the Windhams, the roads were being cleared by the town's new motor tractor.

Willimantic is directly interested in a number of bills introduced along with hundreds of others in the legislature during the past few days. Topping the list of those pertaining to the local community is one calling for the release and discharge of a mortgage given by Bridget Casey of this city to the Dime Savings bank of Willimantic July 6, 1877, forty-eight years ago. Bridget Casey died many years ago and the Dime Savings bank failed thirty-five years ago. When the bank failed the receivers called in the mortgage. It had been paid, but never recorded at the town clerk's office. he heirs endeavored to dispose of the property covered by the mortgage and some time later were informed that this was impossible until the title was cleared so Attorney T. J. Kelley took the proper steps for a bill to the legislature.

Another bill is that calling for the expenditure of $5,000 for fire escapes on the Willimantic State Normal School and to make the central stairway of the building fireproof at a cost of $25,000. Those acquainted with conditions at the school strongly favor this bill. Of the several city charter changes discussed at public and committee hearings in this city one has been brought before the legislature as a bill asking for the incorporation of a firemen's pension fund for Willimantic. Another bill which it is expected will be introduced is one calling for the payment of $750 salary to Acting Mayor George W. Hickey.

A bill of outstanding interest is one introduced to amend the city charter relative to the appointment of the prosecuting attorney and his assistant. The legislature appoints the judges of the police court and of whatever political faith the appointee is he must appoint a prosecuting attorney or assistant from the opposite party. At present Judge Frank H. Foss and Deputy Judge Curtis Dean are republicans and Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey and his assistant prosecutor, Frank P. Fenton are democrats. The bill also provides that it will be necessary to name a lawyer for the office.

Jan Arson, Lebanon farmer, who was arrested for transporting liquor in his wagon last Saturday afternoon was found guilty of the charge in police court Wednesday morning and was fined $100 and costs, totalling $109.55, which was paid. The evidence was squeezed out by County Detective William E. Jackson and Federal Prohibition Officers William S Congdon and Stanton L. Brice, from a burlap bag which contained the pieces of a liquor jug broken on the ground by Arson. Arson entered a demurrer to the charge and was overruled by Judge Foss. Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey stated that Arson's act of throwing the jug out of the wagon was a fair sign of a guilty conscience.

By recommendation of the state board of finance of state grants for hospitals of Connecticut, St. Joseph's hospital of this city receives the sum of $17,000

With a solemn requiem mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock Wednesday morning the funeral of Michael E. Donovan was held from his home, 62 Lewiston avenue. The church was well filled with friends and relatives and there were beautiful floral forms. Rev. Henry E. Quinn, the rector, was the celebrant of the mass, Rev. Charles M. Kelley was deacon and Rev. Paul Bartlewski, sub-deacon. Mrs. Edmund Portelance was at the organ. The mass was sung by a quartet, Miss L. Monica McKeon, Mary McShea, Harry L. Lester and Arthur Roy. A delegation of Willimantic Lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., attended in a body. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Father Kelley. The bearers were Charles A. Gates, Jeremiah Haggerty, Louis J. Flynn, Robert Galligan, James S. Donohue, Sr., of this city and Michael F. Sullivan of Bridgeport. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey.

A reception for the members of Walter Caron's dancing class was held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin Monday evening with about forty couples in attendance. The dancing program was interspersed with pleasing entertainment numbers. Miss Eleanor Connors gave a fine exhibition of Frisco dancing, also an interpretative dance, "Night." Miss Mabel Taft accompanied on the piano. Arthur Roy sang two beautiful numbers, The Pal That I Love and Jealous, with Mrs. Arthur J. Dubreuil as accompanist. The dance music was by the Lakeside orchestra, G. Raymond Young leader. Favors of multi-colored balloons, paper caps and whistles were distributed.

The antics of a Chevrolet coupe parked on Main street Wednesday afternoon caused a good sized crowd to gather to watch the driver and the man with him attempt to get the car from the curb into the street. The snow was loose, heavy and deep and even with chains the rear wheels failed to take hold. The men dug away some of the snow, but without result. They tried the same stunt on the other side of the car with the same fruitless outcome. Then the man who had been putting sand on the street all the morning came along with his pail and made a liberal contribution of sand under both rear wheels. Bystanders offered to push, "she moved, she breathed—and she stopped." Then they tried to push the balky machine backwards. Nothing happened, except that a few more people gathered in nearby doorways to exclaim and to watch. Finally, by a prodigious effort and a vast deal of pushing, the machine got under way, nosed out through the snow and moved uncertainly down the street, with one wheel still refusing to rotate. Frozen brakes was given as the cause of the trouble. The machine is the property of B. Baruch Blumenthal of the Capitol Theatre Corp.

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up ever getting well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is." — Mrs. J. A. Jones, 217 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

The Treatment also includes a wonderful ointment for temporary use while the tablets are taking effect and a bowel regulator.

This System for the Cure of Piles is the result of twenty-five years' experience with every form of piles, carrying the endorsement of thousands who tell of the cure of pile cases. It goes further than a treatment prepared to give relief for the moment. Its purpose is to cure piles permanently by treating them from the inside instead of the outside.

Take the time now, forget all that you have tried or thought of trying—sign the coupon and prove the truth of these statements to yourself. Remember the treating of piles from the inside instead of the outside has been thoroughly proven. It heals. Read the letters on this page. Note the years that others have suffered and then found health and happiness. Many who followed this treatment twenty years ago still report not the slightest trace of returning piles. Many who have taken just the trial package have been healed. Note that a patient with a case of bleeding piles for 20 years is reported as completely healed after taking the Page Internal Treatment. Surely a remarkable case.

Letters come to us daily just like these you read on this page. We have enough of them in our offices to keep you reading for many days. Yet the proof is in what the Page Internal Treatment can do for you.

One Small Treatment Was Enough to Cure

Dear Sir: I sent for a small sized treatment of your Piles remedy and by the time I had used it all I was entirely well. Have had no symptoms of Piles since. This was in May, 1923, when I received the treatment. I cannot praise your remedy too highly. You may publish this if you wish.

Yours very truly,
H. S. HULL.

Doctors Recommended Operation

E. R. Page, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir: As your remedy has cured me after 15 years' suffering, as I tried all the doctors around here and all they wanted was to operate on me and I thought I would try your remedy and it proved all right. I am well now. You can use my name if that will be any good to you. I am very thankful for your remedy and I hope all Pile sufferers will try them, for it is a blessing.

Yours truly,

No Wonder She Is Thankful

E. R. Page, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir: I am glad to say your Pile treatment has cured me of this terrible disease. I have suffered agony for about three months and never was able to find anything that would relieve me. But now I can do any housework and can eat anything I want and I can just lay down and sleep all night. The most important part of the Page System for the cure of piles is the little Page Pile Tablet and you will enjoy chewing one or two after meals. This reaches the inside where the real trouble is. The Treatment also includes a wonderful ointment for temporary use while the tablets are taking effect and a bowel regulator.

This System for the Cure of Piles is the result of twenty-five years' experience with every form of piles, carrying the endorsement of thousands who tell of the cure of pile cases. It goes further than a treatment prepared to give relief for the moment. Its purpose is to cure piles permanently by treating them from the inside instead of the outside.

Take the time now, forget all that you have tried or thought of trying—sign the coupon and prove the truth of these statements to yourself. Remember the treating of piles from the inside instead of the outside has been thoroughly proven. It heals. Read the letters on this page. Note the years that others have suffered and then found health and happiness. Many who followed this treatment twenty years ago still report not the slightest trace of returning piles. Many who have taken just the trial package have been healed. Note that a patient with a case of bleeding piles for 20 years is reported as completely healed after taking the Page Internal Treatment. Surely a remarkable case.

Letters come to us daily just like these you read on this page. We have enough of them in our offices to keep you reading for many days. Yet the proof is in what the Page Internal Treatment can do for you.

CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT.

From the way in which the states have received the proposed child labor amendment its defeat was indicated some time ago. The action of the states, north as well as south, thus far taken confirms the belief that it would fail to get the needed support.

Most of the states are prepared to act this winter and of the 16 which have given expression in one or both branches of their legislature, or through a referendum, there are but three which have stood for ratification. Arkansas and California have ratified, and one branch of the Arizona legislature has indicated its approval.

In the states of Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Louisiana, Delaware, North Dakota, Texas, South Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma, Ohio and Washington either the legislature has refused to ratify, or one branch of it has, while in Massachusetts the referendum showed the people of that state to be overwhelmingly opposed to it. These 13 states are enough to prevent the addition of the amendment to the Constitution, but it neither appears that the states are through acting upon the amendment or that the opposition to it has all been disclosed.

There is displayed a strong dislike to the proposal to increase the centralization of such control in Washington. It is believed to be the duty of the respective states to look after their children. Because the conditions are not what they should be in some instances in certain states does not appeal to other states as justification for their placing themselves in a federal noose.

The opposition to the amendment on the ground that it invades state's rights has obtained much strength. But there is likewise much additional opposition to the idea of giving congress the authority to control the labor of individuals up to 18 years of age. The amendment has received the opposition of great numbers who are against child labor but who do not consider that the term of "child labor" should cover persons up to 18 years of age.

IOWA'S DILEMMA.

For months it has been evident that the people of Iowa are much dissatisfied with the election of Smith Wildman Brookhart to represent that state in the upper house of congress for the next six years. And this is so in spite of the fact that he obtained the nomination as a republican, to which party the Iowans have long been committed. The dissatisfaction comes from the fact that while Brookhart was regularly nominated he will take his place in the next senate as an opponent of the republican administration, which he denounced during the campaign when too late to remove him as a candidate, and as an open opponent of republican policies and party platform.

It is because of this and because Iowa deplores the position in which it has permitted itself to be placed that it has called upon the United States senate, through the state central committee, to have Brookhart kept out of his seat because through his misrepresentation he has deprived the state of its representation under the republican standard.

The chance for Iowa to act was on election day. It made a determined effort to elect a democrat rather than to permit Brookhart to be elected under false colors, but it failed by a very narrow margin, although fraud and deceit are charged as having obtained for him the majority of 755. In his resistance he of course makes counter charges.

But when Iowa asks to have Brookhart thrown out of the senate because Iowa failed to do it itself, unless it can be shown that there was fraud and deceit and that he was not fairly elected, it is asking much of the senate. If is urging it to establish a precedent which the senate may be unwilling to create, however much it sympathizes with Iowa and however much it might desire to get rid of Brookhart. The fact that he has been read out of the republican party along with others indicates the feeling in Washington as well as in Iowa.

HELPING PRISONERS.

Much has been done for prisoners and much will continue to be done, both while they are behind bars and after they are permitted their liberty under parole. It is figured, after much experience, that there is benefit to be obtained therefrom, both by the prisoners themselves and by the public.

But there are instances which go to show that while there may be much good in behalf of the parole system it is also subject to much criticism. Thus there cannot fail to be much interest in measures which are ready for the New York legislature dealing with this subject, inasmuch as recent action by the parole board of that state has created much comment of a most unfavorable nature.

New York's prison association has been studying the situation as it exists. It has had a chance to see where the work of the parole board could be improved, where some of the shortcomings lie and where handicaps to the desired efficiency of the board exist. With such at hand the bills have been prepared with the idea of bettering the situation. In one instance the proposed bill will remove the inequality that exists between the first term prisoner and the second termer, since at the present time the latter for some reason gets more consideration than the one who has received his first sentence, when in common justice it would appear that the first termer should be the recipient of the greater advantages.

Another proposed deals with the duties of the parole board and would require experts for the office and make it necessary for them to give all of their time to the work studying the various cases instead of part time as now, with reliance upon the statements of others in reaching their decisions.

The aim appears to be to make the parole board more responsible, to have their judgments based upon their own knowledge of conditions through their study of the cases, a history of the individuals and their conduct outside as well as inside of prison walls.

WEATHER POSTCARDS.

When the announcement was made by the weather bureau that it had abandoned the postcard report of weather conditions which had been circulated throughout the country for the past 44 years, it not only understood that there was a chance to save money but it unquestionably knew that it was a step that could be taken without depriving the public of something upon which it had come to depend.

Two score and four years is a considerable period for the maintenance of this service. In that time it is fair to presume that the bureau has seen a declination in interest and it is not unlikely that much of this has been due to the fact that such service as was rendered by the postcard weather reports in the early days has long since been furnished through the mediums of the daily papers, which not only carried as much and later information for those who depend much upon the weather but which go into much more detail.

When there is recognition of the fact that such a service has outlasted its value the thing to do is of course to stop it. The weather bureau in taking this course may arouse interest in other departments to see whether there are similar opportunities of removing deadwood that a saving may be effected or that increased effort may be put forth by government agencies in other and really needed directions.

In the past 44 years newspaper service has greatly increased. This and such other agencies as the radio can be expected to experience still greater development in the years to come.

THE DEBT TALK.

Much talk has been indulged in concerning the French debt, and the end is not yet. Although this country has endeavored to get an adjustment it has found it impossible to get France to act. Thus talk is about all that there is at the present time, although there have been assurances that France does not intend to repudiate the debt and that it intends to pay every cent.

But while the need for loans exists in France, by municipalities and by private corporations, it is inevitable that the talk which has been indulged in by some concerning the debt, cancellation and other things has not served to help the situation between those who want to borrow and those who have money to lend. Naturally those in France who seek loans look in this direction. Those in this country who are willing to loan their money are not obliged to get the approval of this government. Naturally they would not make loans that they knew would be displeasing to the government, but no interference in any such legitimate negotiations would be expected.

That some of the talk that has been indulged in concerning the debt adjustment would have its effect upon loans to France must be clearly understood. It has not revealed an attitude that would increase confidence in French credit, even though it should not shake it. It simply stimulates a feeling of caution and a desire to see a clearing up of the situation. This is one of the reasons why some of the things that have been said and the manner of saying them might better have been left unsaid.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

"C'mon!" cried the pixie girl who was always doing something. Here is a new cross-word puzzle made to look like an oriental rug! Let's do it!"

"Nope!" the desperate young man cried in a loud, firm voice. "When I work I work and when I play I do something light and restful that gives my brainworks a rest! I'm done those cross-word puzzles—they are good for your brain and that is quite sufficient to make me hasten away. I just naturally balk at being improved. Besides, they disrupt families!

"In the good old days father sat on one side of the evening lamp, comfortable in slippers and business, and mother darned the socks across from him and the cat slept on the hearth. Little Johnnie and Susie changed all this with the cross-word puzzle. Every five minutes or so one of them would want to know what was the name of a river in southeastern Africa of four letters or what was the word that meant 'Dread' in ten letters, or who won the Chicago football game in the third quarter two years back—nice little questions like that designed to irritate and finally threw one into a frenzy.

"Getting out a dictionary and the atlas from the neglected bookcase would reveal that mother had not dusted the books for the last six years. There is something psychological in the fact that being unable to find any southeastern African river of four letters turns a kind, loving husband and father into a roaring crank who snaps off heads and slams things around. It is an insult to his ability and intelligence and he has to take it out on somebody.

"The name of the football hero is just on the tops of the tongues of every member of the family and they all around getting reckless attempting to voice what they claim they know as well as they know the date of Christmas, only they can't [illegible] say it. Why I knew of one case [illegible] dishes went unwashed and [illegible] prospects [illegible] abandoned and telephone and doorbells unanswered while the Mingle family endeavored to find out what it was that Noah ate in four letters.

"They tried fish, milk, eggs, lard, meat, veal, salt, soup, peace, cake, meat, pies, nuts—why, they tried various nourishment to have sustained Noah for several hundred years, but not a single one of the words worked out right in connection with the vertical word that ran through it. The Mingles were desperate and it certainly looked as though, if enlightenment did not percolate, Noah would just naturally starve to death. They hunted in ancient tomes for obsolete eats and read volumes on agriculture in the dawn of the world and quarreled violently.

"They were sitting glowering at each other, giving vent every few seconds to sniffs and snorts of disdainful rage when their bright young college nephew happened in and with one voice they asked: 'What did Noah eat?' And the bright young nephew looked surprised and said why he supposed Noah ate food, didn't he? Yes, that was the word, just food. Four letters and everything. Perfectly simple!

"That is what takes the starch out of you and renders you a weak, maudlin, babbling idiot finding out how foolish you have been dashing all over the world for a word when all the time it was just a common garden variety of word that you use every day and have plenty of right at hand!

"And a friend of mine made up his mind to propose to a girl one evening and not himself in the right mental state and had his speech down pat. When he arrived [illegible] ready for the solemn occasion he found he tearing her hair over a cross-word puzzle and she greeted him with a wild demand to be told what was a penguin's cousin in seven letters and refused to be distracted.

"He has never successfully since in quite working himself up to the proposal pitch and I'll bet that foolish girl will die an old maid! All she'll have to comfort her is the thought that she knows what is a penguin's cousin in seven letters and if you ask me I call that poor comfort! So if you—"

"Oh, very well!" said the cute girl, sweetly, tearing up the cross-word puzzle and seating herself with an air of expectancy. "Now just what was it you had in [illegible] say this evening?"

Don't prove a girl for always taking one literally!" stuttered the desperate young man, who saw very plainly what he had got himself into by talking too much."—Exchange.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Property Deterioration

The basis for computing the amount deductible on account of depreciation and obsolescence upon property acquired after February 28, 1913, is, in general, the cost of such property. In the case of property acquired before March 1, 1913, the basis is the cost of the property, or its fair market value as of that date, whichever is greater. To compute the amount of depreciation which may be claimed, the taxpayer should determine the probable life of the property, then divide by the number of years it will be useful in the business in which employed. The result thus obtained will represent the amount which may be claimed as a deduction. For example, a frame building, the probable lifetime of which is 25 years, cost $10,000. Divide $10,000 by 25 and claim $400 each year as a deduction.

If a taxpayer claims the full amount of depreciation he can not claim as a deduction the cost of repairs to the property during the same year. Repairs in this connection means repairs in the nature of replacements to the extent that they arrest deterioration, such as a new flooring of roof.

When, in the course of years, the owner of the property has claimed its full cost, no further claim for depreciation will be allowed.

Reductions for depreciation must be made as a separate item of the taxpayers return, and must be explained by showing separately each class of property the cost estimated life, depreciation charged off for the taxable year and total depreciation charged off for all taxable years.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John F. Stevens, to whom the Engineering Foundation has awarded the John Fritz Gold Medal, which is the highest honor bestowed by the engineering profession in America, has a national reputation as a constructive engineer and a builder of public works, and also as a railway administrator. He is a native of Maine, but most of his life thus far has been spent in the western regions of the United States and Canada, with the exception of the period when he was in charge of the building of the Panama Canal, in 1905-07, and the years recently spent in and around New York city. From 1876 down to the time when he went to Panama as chief engineer, in 1905, he served either as assistant or chief engineer of railroad after railroad, during the time of their construction and first operation. For a time he was administrator of the Chinese Eastern Railway, and in 1917 he headed the American Railway Mission to Russia, in which post he contributed materially to the success of the allied cause in the war.

Cottingham, the Orphan

Left an orphan at [illegible] Walter H. Gottingham soon realized that he must make his way in the world. He determined that he would go into business for himself and his attainment of that object in life was beset with trouble.

Born in the village of Omemee, Canada, he was six when his mother died. Two years later his father passed away and the lad went to live with his sister. Soon after he began to make his way doing odd jobs and attending night school.

At 15 he obtained a position in Montreal as clerk in a hardware store, where the work was hard and the hours long. Determined since early boyhood to be a manufacturer, he saved his money and at 20 bought for $25 a formula for mixing gold paint. Anxious to perfect it that he might start in business, he experimented with it in his little room in his boarding house and the odor of the chemicals made him unpopular with his landlady.

After nearly a year of preparation he launched his business in a small room in a shed. With a small boy to help, he mixed the gold paint and also acted as sole manager. The business grew slowly and before he had assurance that it would succeed he married.

Soon he foresaw that there was a limit to the gold paint field. Buying a formula for a roller composition for printing presses, he made his rollers in a kettle and sold them. By adding other lines and working day and night he prospered. Within three years he owned two companies and was interested in others.

Made a representative and director of the Sherwin-Williams Company, paint manufacturers of Cleveland. He attended a directors' meeting filled with ideas then found he could not talk forcibly enough to get them across. Returning home chagrined and determined, he organized a Gift Toastmaster Club and in its meetings learned to debate.

At 32 he was elected president of the Sherwin-Williams Company which position he has held 25 years. He made the company a world-wide concern and increased its business until it is one of the largest of the kind today.

Stories That Recall Others

A Long, Long Way From Home

He was bustling, trim looking clerk, but the proprietor always found that at the end of the day's business cash register failed to show the amount of money that the printed figures called for.

He asked the clerk about it, and why there was the difference. "You see," said the clerk, "I always take out carfare."

To which the proprietor replied: "Well, you must live in Tipperary."

It Would Be Easier.

A woman who needed more air in her tires drove up to a filling station. The attendant is being busy she proceeded to inflate the tires. She removed the dust cap and applied the air; there was a rush of air and a hissing sound, but the tire did not seem to get any firmer. This process was repeated several times, but with no greater success. Finally a truck driver standing nearby, who had been an interested spectator, volunteered the much needed information: "Lady, if you want to pump up your tire you had better remove the cap."

The Unafraid

To me it always has been clear
'Tis silly to be ruled by fear.
—Shadow the Weasel.

Snowy white save for the end of his tail, which was black, Shadow the Weasel went on his way through the Green Forest. His coat so exactly matched the snow on which he ran that it was almost impossible for even the sharpest eyes to follow his movements. Had it not been for the

So because he isn't afraid Shadow goes wherever he pleases jerking motion of his tail he would seldom have been seen.

Now Shadow the Weasel is a very little fellow, a very little fellow indeed. Yet he many of the little folk who live in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows, he is feared more than is any one else. But he himself is not afraid. Shadow doesn't know the meaning of the word fear. He is so sure of himself and his ability to take care of himself that even when he comes face to face with some one big enough to kill him he is not afraid.

"Being afraid is useless," declares Shadow. "It never wins the respect of any one. If people see you are not afraid they will hesitate to bother you. Yes, sir, they will hesitate. There is nothing like showing you are not afraid."

So Shadow goes on his way without worrying. But, just the same, he is always on the watch for possible danger. He intends never to be taken by surprise. And, while he is always watching for enemies, he sees every possible hiding place, so if an enemy suddenly appears he doesn't have to look around for a place to hide. He knows just where the nearest and best place is.

When Shadow met his cousin, Billy Mink, on the bank of the Laughing Brook he was not afraid, although Billy was very, very much bigger. He promptly arched his back, and, had Billy really attacked him, Shadow would have fought back. More than once he had met Fowler the Bob Cat, or Reddy Fox, or Old Man Coyote, and had done the same thing to them that he had done to his cousin, Billy Mink. He had arched his back and snarled at them to show them that he wasn't afraid. And then when they had jumped for him he had disappeared as if by magic. That was because he can move so quickly and because he always knows just where he can get out of sight.

So because he isn't afraid Shadow goes wherever he pleases. He is very bold about it. He doesn't hesitate to visit Farmer Brown's henhouse right in broad daylight. It is because he has such a doubt that he is too smart for any one who may seek to do him harm.

The very thought that he may be near brings terror to many of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. But he himself never knows terror. He is always unafraid. And he hasn't a friend. No, he doesn't want friend. It is a dreadful thing to have no friends, though [illegible] seem to think so. He doesn't want friends. He lives just for himself alone.

THE VAGABOND.

Give me the life I love,
Let the love go by me,
Give the jolly heaven above
And the byway nigh me.
Bed in the bush with stars to see,
Bread I dip in the river—
There's the life of a man like me,
There's the life forever.

Let the blow fall soon or late
Let what will be o'er me,
Give the face of earth around
And the road before me.
Wealth I seek not, hope not, love,
Nor a friend to know me,
All I seek, the heaven above
And the road below me.

Or let autumn fall on me
Where amid I linger,
Silencing the bird on tree,
Biting the blue finger,
White as meal the frosty field—
Warm the fireside haven—
Not to autumn will I yield,
Nor to winter even!

Let the blow fall soon or late,
Let what will be o'er me,
Give the face of earth around
And the road before me.
Wealth I ask not, hope nor love,
Nor a friend to know me;
All I ask, the heaven above
And the road below me.

"A LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE."

A life on the ocean wave,
A home on the rolling deep,
Where the scattered waters rave
And the wind their revels keep!
Like an eagle caged, I pine
On this dull, unchanging shore;
Oh, give me the flashing brine,
The spray and the tempest's roar!

Once more on the deck I stand
Of my own swift-gliding craft;
Set sail! farewell to the land!
The gale follows fair abaft.
We shoot through the sparkling foam
Like an ocean-bird, set free—
Like the ocean-bird, our home
We'll find far out on the sea.

The land is no longer in view,
The clouds have begun to frown;
But with a stout vessel and crew
We'll say, Let the storm come down
And the song of our hearts shall be,
While the winds and the waters rave,
A home on the rolling sea,
A life on the ocean wave!

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain — the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary trouble and neuralgias the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

ROTARIANS HEAR PLANS FOR BOYS' WEEK

The weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel was devoted largely to business, there being an interesting report by Dr. R. R. Agnew, chairman of the boys' work committee, on the boys' week conference held at New Haven recently.

President Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting and Russell A. Clapp was the song leader. There were two reports on a meeting at Atlantic City by Charles R. Butts and Herbert B. Cary who were guests of the Atlantic City club recently.

The speaker on Current Events was Herbert J. Ferguson who spoke on the need of keeping up the navy to its peacetime strength. Mr. Ferguson spoke interestingly on the great work done by the navy in opening up commercial relations with foreign countries and said he thought that with a large mercantile navy it was wise to keep a proportionately large fighting navy. He also said that the personnel should be maintained at its recognized high standard.

M. V. O'Connel of the San Carlo Opera Co., which plays at the Palace theatre early next month, spoke to the club on the value of opera to the community and urged the Rotary club to support the company when it comes to Norwich.

Dr. R. R. Agnew made his report of the conference held at New Haven at which 32 of the 35 Rotary clubs in New England were represented. He said that Bill Butcher of New York widely known for his work among boys, was the principal speaker at the conference and that Mr. Butcher practically sold the boys week programme to everyone who attended the meeting. The boys week movement was started by six club in 1919 and in 1924 over 100 clubs participated in the movement. The purpose of Boys week is to put before the public that the boys of today will hold the reins of guidance in the future and these boys are the ones in whom we must develop character.

No club could carry out the programme as outlined by Rotary International, but to keep it within community conditions it is not the purpose of Rotary to run boys week but to get the entire community in back of the movement regardless of color or creed. The aim is to get all the organizations in the city in back of it the schools, church and everyone in the community. A committee is to be chosen of representative citizens and a selection of a leader, not necessarily a member of the Rotary club or any other business organization, but a man capable of conducting such a thing.

The tentative programme for boys week is as follows: Sunday, Boys in Church. Parents to be urged to accompany their boys to church on this day. Monday—Parents Day in School. The parents to go to the school and see their boy at his studies and learn how he is getting along with his instructors. Tuesday—Boys in Citizenship. Talks to boys on citizenship. It has been proposed to let the boys take charge of the city government for this day and conduct the affairs of the municipality. Wednesday—Boys in Industry. The boys to be taken through the various industries in the city. Thursday—Parade. This to be conducted by everyone or rather everyone to have a part in it. Friday—Boys in the open air. Saturday—The Boys in Sport. This day devoted to athletics at the various community playgrounds.

Boys' week comes in April and the Norwich Rotary club will endeavor to make some fitting observance probably along the lines outlined at the New Haven conference.

F. Russell Smith made a report on the sale of tickets for the Brown Musical club's concert at Slater hall, saying that approximately 350 tickets had been sold.

Chairman Herbert B. Cary, of the programme committee announced the February schedule as follows:

Feb. 4.—Current Topics, Charles A. Saxton. Meeting in charge of the club doctors, Campbell, Shenk, Agnew, Richards and Speer, assisted by Undertaker Gager. Song leader, Joseph W. Curtis.

Feb. 11.—Current topics, Willis Austin. Talk on Lincoln by Rev. A. N. Foster. Song leader, George L. Ingalls.

Feb. 18.—Current Topics, Alfred G. Umbridge. Anniversary week meeting in charge of the Educational committee, Lucius Briggs, William G. Park and Frank P. Welch. Song leader, Grosvenor Ely.

Feb. 25.—Current Topics, Charles J. Twist. Business meeting. Song leader, James L. Case.

BILLS BROUGHT TO LEGISLATURE THAT HAVE LOCAL APPLICATIONS

A number of bills were introduced in the legislature this week of particular interest in this city and vicinity.

The proposed act provides that "before entering upon or concluding the trial of any criminal case, the city court of the city of Norwich may adjourn the hearing or trial thereof from time to time but not for any larger period than one year. If his case is within the final jurisdiction of said city court, any bail bond taken should be payable to the treasurer of the city of Norwich.

There was also an act providing that in Norwich city elections the polls should be opened at 7 a. m. and close at 7 p. m.

There was also an act amending this action of the Pawcatuck fire district. It provides for a zoning committee of three members who shall be elected for three years. They may make by-laws and ordinances to be effective when approved by vote of the district; they may make certain localities strictly residential, regulate repairing or rebuilding of structures, order removal of buildings, grant manufacturing permits, regulate condition of sidewalks, levy assessments for construction of same, place liens which shall have precedence over all except tax claims.

The petition of A. E. Fitkin, J. J. Desmond and Angus Park was presented, they asking that they be granted a charter to acquire from the city of Norwich its gas and electrical department, including all its assets, buildings, real estate, machinery, exclusive of the $16,000 that is set aside for a sinking fund, on such terms and conditions as may be approved by the mayor and court of common council, subject to approval of a majority of the electors by ballot, as at an election for city officers, to sell gas and electricity in Norwich and adjoining towns, except Montville. The petition was accompanied by certificates of the action of the court of common council, the opinion of Judge Hinman that it was of an adversary nature and of publication of intention.

Resolutions were offered appointing Mahlon H. Geisler as judge and Archibald Macdonald deputy judge of the city court of Putnam, James H. Shea deputy judge of the town court of Griswold. Resolutions appointnig William A. Wilcox judge and James H. Stivers deputy judge of the town court of Stonington were taken from the calendar and sent to the judiciary committee.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND RABBITS ON EXHIBITION

Over 150 poultry fanciers of Norwich and vicinity are exhibiting some 500 birds and pet stock at the three day show being held at Pulaski hall under the auspices of the Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock association. The show which opened Tuesday is the first held by the association which was recently organized. The storm Tuesday cut down the attendance on the opening day but there was a good sized crowd at the show Wednesday with indications of an even lagrer crowd today (Thursday).

The entries of Rhode Island Reds, Barred Rocks, Wyandottes and Brahmas are attractively arranged in wire pens around the sides and through the center of the hall. The judging took place Wednesday the various awards being made during the day by the judges, C. R. Hicken, Sayville, N. Y., H. E. Beebe, Waterford and W. Grossbeck of Hartford.

In connection with the show are several booths exhibiting various poultry plant accessories. The Carter Feed Company of Massachusetts has a very attractive exhibit, featuring the Wishbone Automatic 400 egg incubator, which is attracting considerable attention. Preston Bros., are featuring the Buckeye Incubator and brooders. Egg carriers and other accessories are shown. The Fyler Chemical and Supply Company of Hartford is showing Red Mite Paint. This compound disinfected all pens, etc., in the hall before the show was opened. A significant statement is that "every man stood in his place" and this is what is needed in every phase of life today; in business, in politics and in religion. Wonderful things would happen if every man stood in his place. Cowards are like barnacles on a ship—they impede the progress and are in the way. It is not always to follow the crowd. Most men can develop leadership if they will. No man can develop the highest leadership unless he takes God into his consideration. The wise man will follow the leadership of Jesus Christ.

LESSONS FROM GIDEON IN Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY

At the weekly session of the Y. M. C. A. Bible class for men Wednesday evening, the topic of the study was Doing the Impossible, the Scripture used was the seventh chapter of Judges, Gideon being the hero of the study and discussion. The following points were brought out: The study of history reveals the fact that God always has his leader necessary for every crisis, for every emergency. The names of Savanorola, Roosevelt, Washington, Lincoln, Wilson and others were mentioned as examples of this. God is looking for men to lead in every community. The Israelites were terribly depressed because of the oppression by the Midianites, when God called Gideon to overcome them. The job Gideon had seemed an absolutely impossible task. He had but 32,000 men against 135,000 Midianites, and then God ordered Gideon to eliminate until but three hundred were left. This seemed ridiculous, but Gideon went forward. He had 300 100 per cent fighting men. God cannot use men who are afraid or cowardly. He wants those who are unafraid and who are willing to pay the price of victory. Gideon demonstrated his ability to lead and the three hundred gladly followed his leadership. Gideon's strategy was unusual but the trumpets and pitchers did the business, and the Midianites were absolutely beaten, though their numbers were so much larger than Gideon's few. A significant statement is that "every man stood in his place" and this is what is needed in every phase of life today; in business, in politics and in religion. Wonderful things would happen if every man stood in his place. Cowards are like barnacles on a ship—they impede the progress and are in the way. It is not always to follow the crowd. Most men can develop leadership if they will. No man can develop the highest leadership unless he takes God into his consideration. The wise man will follow the leadership of Jesus Christ.

CONNECTICUT FARM PRODUCTION IN 1924

The season of 1924 was quite unfavorable to some crops in Connecticut. Early spring rains and snows provided sufficient moisture to start plant growth, but cloudy, cold weather until midsummer hindered growth seriously. After that date, temperatures were seasonable but were accompanied by a severe drought which remained unbroken until early in August. Occasional rains during August and September brought moderate supplies of moisture for crops. Frequent and destructive hail storms caused extensive damage to tobacco during August, October and November were marked by further drought, which was too late to affect plant growth materially but seriously hampered the handling of tobacco.

Farm labor has been reasonably plentiful due to lessened industrial activity. Farm wages, however, have remained higher than most farmers believed they could afford to pay in light of the lower prices prevailing for farm products. Prices for milk, potatoes, tobacco and apples were all somewhat lower than a year ago.

The movement of farm population from the farms to the cities has continued somewhat accentuated in 1924 by the lower prices for farm products. The past few years in the United States have witnessed considerable improvement in farm organization, practices, and machinery causing notable increases in crops. Crop production for the nation as a whole, holds up to our consuming needs and in favorable seasons exceeds our needs in spite of a declining farm population.

Much of the Connecticut farmer's income is from the sale of dairy products. Fluid milk prices in 1924, although declining somewhat held up better in Connecticut than in any other New England state. Prices for grain which the Connecticut dairyman has to buy have risen sharply during 1924. As a result, 1924 returns from dairying in Connecticut have been less satisfactory although there has been some improvement in fluid milk prices in recent months.

The area devoted to the principal crops showed little change from 1923, and totalled 477,075 acres in 1924. The estimated value of the crops grown, however, was $34,944,868 compared with $43,014,258 in 1923, a decrease of 19.2 per cent. About 47 per cent of these values comes from crops which are mostly fed to livestock on the farm where grown.

Tobacco, Connecticut's leading cash crop in point of value, had a very unfavorable season. A survey of the acreage showed a total of 30,632 acres set in 1924 compared with 28,256 acres in 1923. Out of the total set in 1924, hail entirely destroyed 1,904 acres so that is was not harvested. For New England, as a whole, out of 40,308 acres of tobacco set it is estimated 13,410 acres or 33.3 per cent were damaged in varying degrees by hail and that 2,293 acres were entirely destroyed. This leaves as undamaged by hail, only 26,896 acres or 66.7 percent of the total acreage set in 1924. Drought reduced the yields of early planted crops seriously, while late planted crops made good yields considering the dry season. Upon the best available information, the preliminary estimate of average yield per acre is 3,315 pounds in Connecticut in 1924 compared with 1,388 pounds in 1923. This is subject to revision when better information becomes available. Considerably more than usual of the 1924 tobacco crop is of poor quality and hence the amount of wrapper and binder grades will be much less than usual. Prices for the 1924 crop, as a whole, seem likely to average considerably below those of the 1923 crop, which was much higher in quality.

Hay with 29.3 per cent of the total is the second crop in point of value in Connecticut and was grown on 320,000 acres or 67.1 per cent of the total crop acreage in 1924. This crop is almost wholly consumed by livestock on the farm where grown. Dry weather reduced the average yield per acre slightly below that of 1923. Prices were somewhat higher than in 1923. The total value of the tame hay crop in Connecticut was $10,400,000 compared with $10,104,000 a year ago.

Corn, an important crop to the Connecticut dairyman, was grown on 78,000 acres the same as in 1923. Grain corn yields were better than in 1923, while yields of silage corn were somewhat less than a year ago. These crops with a total of $5,342,870 had 15.3 per cent of the total crop values in Connecticut in 1924.

Potato acreage in Connecticut was increased from 22,000 acres in 1923 to 25,000 acres in 1924 as a result of the good prices obtained for the 1923 crop. The estimated average yield per acre was 137 bushels compared with 140 bushels a year ago. Drought cut the yields of early potatoes materially. Total production amounted to 3,425,000 bushels compared with 3,520,000 last year, a decrease of 2.7 per cent. Prices due to the large United States crop and the bumper crop in Maine have been much lower than in 1923. The total value of the Connecticut crop is $3,425,000 compared with $5,174,400 a year ago.

Apples, with a total of 1,700,000 bushels worth $2,363,000 compare with 1,600,000 bushels a year ago worth $2,400,000. Production was 6.3 per cent better than in 1923, while values were 1.5 per cent less than last season. Connecticut commercial apples totalled 260,000 barrels compared with 200,000 barrels in 1923. Peaches were a good crop, amounting to 250,000 bushels compared with 232,000 a year ago. Prices, however, were considerably lower than in 1923. Pears were an abundant crop and sold at low prices.

Small grains and maple products are of small importance in Connecticut and produced fair yields in 1924.

cannot hope ever to become strong and well again unless they have plenty of good, rich, red blood of the kind that organic iron—Nuxated Iron—helps make. Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings. Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach; it is an entirely different thing from ordinary, metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich, red blood, revitalize wornout, exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. Millions of people annually are using it. At all druggists. Beware of substitutes. BELIEVE DEFEAT OF CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT NOT FINAL

Washington, Jan. 28.—Rejection of the child labor amendment by a state legislature "is a temporary setback not a final defeat," said a statement tonight by the organizations associated for ratification of the child labor amendment commenting upon unfavorable action on the amendment in thirteen states.

Declaring that constitutional authorities agree that ratification of a constitutional amendment is final, but rejection is not, the statement said that organizations' answer to the campaign of misrepresentation which has hindered speedy ratification of the children's amendment, is an immediate speeding up of activity, with the object of securing ratification by the 23 states which have not yet acted and reconsideration in the states where one or both the houses have rejected.

"A sober second-thought will be the result where the real facts reach these legislatures," the statement asserted.

13 Star Flags Discovered

In Monongahela City, Pa., Harry J. Ashcraft, discovered two 13-star flags in an old building which he was tearing down. They were wrapped in paper on the shelf of a secret closet which had been covered with wall paper. The flags are 3 inches by 5 3-4 inches and are attached to small pine sticks.

Colossal Moving

A seven story structure in Chicago, which was carried a distance of 84 feet to a new site, is said to be the largest building ever moved. The task was accomplished with two horse teams which operated five capstans and pulled the load through 14,000 feet of steel cable.

New, Safe Way to Remove Hair Roots

EASTERN CONN. TWO-MAN TOURNEY OPENS ON NEXT MONDAY EVENING

The two man team bowling tournament of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling association will open Monday evening according to the decision made at the meeting of the directors of the association held on Wednesday afternoon. Five two-man teams will be entered in the league and each team will roll a schedule of 16 matches, meeting every other team four times during the tournament.

The teams entered are Chartier and MacKenzie of Moosup, Dugas and White of Taftville, Morin and Mike Aldi of the Palace, Fillmore and Foster of the Aetna and Bosworth and H. Sistare of the Peerless, New London. The schedule has not been drawn up and the tournament is still open to one more team in an effort to make it a six-team affair. It is hoped that Willimantic will enter the tournament thus rounding out a good working schedule. If there is no other team in the league the opening night will find Morin and Aldi at the Aetna against Fillmore and Foster, while Bosworth and H. Sistare will open the tournament against Chartier and McKenzie at the Moosup alleys. Dugas and White will not roll next week but will open up the following week.

At the meeting on Wednesday the following rules governing the league and the bowling game in general during tournaments were adopted. The intention of the rules is to keep the game as free from arguments as possible and from past experiences it is hoped that the following set of rules will settle many points that have been causing trouble.

Rule 1.—All two-man teams shall be conducted and the tournament held in accordance with the following regulations and all games shall be played in strict conformity with the following rules.

Rule 2.—This league shall be known as the Eastern Conn. two-man bowling tournament.

Rule 3.—There shall be — teams comprised of two men who shall bowl in every match rolled by his team unless prevented by sickness and then the captain of the team may substitute a player.

Rule 4.—Any player who withdraws from a team or who is released by his captain for reasons other than covered in rule 3 cannot re-enter the league except by the consent of the majority of the captains of the teams in the tournament.

Rule 5.—Any two men that start a match must finish said match except in case of emergency. There can be no substitutions during a match if the players are physically able to bowl.

Rule 6.—All teams must conform to league schedule as nearly as possible and each must give his opponent 24 hours notice if unable to bowl as called for by schedule, except in case of bad weather or any other act of God.

Rule 7.—Each team shall roll — matches, each match to consist of — strings.

Rule 8.—Each match shall be decided by total pinfall, the team having the highest pinfall winning the match. Each match won shall count one point for the winners. Each match lost shall count one point against the losers.

Rule 9.—Each string shall be rolled two frames at a time by each man and on completion of said two frames bowlers shall roll on alternate alleys, alternating throughout the match.

Rule 10.—In starting a match the visiting team shall have choice of alleys and abide by their decision.

Rule 11.—No ball with a greater diameter than four and three-quarters inches shall be used in this tournament. Any team found using a ball of greater diameter shall forfeit the match.

Rule 12.—In case of a tie match two extra frames shall be bowled by each man, one frame being rolled on one alley and the second on the other.

Rule 13.—In a string being rolled the bowler that holds the lead in that string shall have the privilege of deciding who shall roll first. In case the score is a tie the decision will be made by the toss of a coin.

Rule 14.—In delivering the ball the player must not permit any part of his foot, while any portion thereof is in contact with the alleys, to rest or extend on or beyond the foul line, nor shall any part of his person be permitted to come into contact with any part of the alleys beyond the foul line at any time before the delivered ball shall have reached the pins. A ball delivered contrary to the provisions of this rule shall be a foul ball and shall be so declared by the impire immediately.

Rule 15.—Each match shall be in sole charge of an umpire furnished by the home team. The umpire shall call all fouls and irregularities of the match and players must abide by his decisions.

Rule 16.—Should a player by mistake roll on the wrong alley or out of his turn, or be interfered with in his play by another bowler or spectator, or should any of the pins at which he is playing be displaced or knocked down in any manner before his ball shall come in contract with them, or should the ball strike any foreign obstacle on the alleys, then the ball so delivered by him shall be called a dead ball by the umpire and such ball shall not count and shall be immediately re-rolled by the player after the cause for declaring such dead ball has been removed.

Rule 17.—The umpire and scorers in a match shall be disinterested and not be permitted to be interested directly or indirectly in any bet or wager on the game.

Rule 18.—No appeal shall be allowed from the decision of the umpire except for a clear misinterpretation of the rules.

Rule 19.—The entrance fees for this tournament shall be $25 for each team, payable to the treasurer of the tournament on or before the 15th of February. No team shall be allowed to roll after the 15th unless the entrance fee has been paid.

Rule 20.—The prizes at the completion of the tournament shall be awarded as follows: $65 to winners of tournament, $35 to second place team; $15 to bowler having high individual average; $5 to player having high single string; $5 to player holding high match total.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE CLASHES WITH STAFFORD KACEY TONIGHT

Being obliged, for the second time in as many weeks, to call off the weekly encounter of the Army and Navy five, the management has made final arrangements to bring the fast Stafford Springs K. of C. to the Parish Hall tonight to meet the local quintet.

The Kaceys present practically the same lineup as last season and are in hopes of giving their keenest rival a severe setback. They will have Capt. Sullivan, flash of Dead Academy, high scorer and leader of his Alma Mater in points of valuable service, treading one of the forward positions. Squirrel Fallanck will be Sully's running mate. The Squirrel needs no introduction to the fans in this vicinity as the record he has made will live for many years. "Whitney" Norris, former Rec star of South Manchester will be in the center circle while "Bob" and "Mat" Calchera will do the guarding.

The Army and Navy five will be without the services of "Mondi" Normandin, owing to the fact that he was called to the bedside of his father who is dangerously ill. Jim Murphy, local athlete extraordinary, with Joe Belair will cavot in the forward berths; Harry Mills will do the jumping at center, with the Coleman Brothers and Eddie Murphy assigned for duty on the back court.

As it had been planned on Tuesday night dancing will follow the game and a large delegation of fans will be on hand to get a glimpse of the hoopsters from up state in their annual mellu with the local squad.

BASEBALL TO HELP INVESTIGATION IN EVERY WAY

New York, Jan. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Indications that baseball's official power will be employed to its utmost in aiding the New York district attorney's investigation into the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal was seen today in the arrival of Leslie M. O'Connor, secretary to Commissioner Landis.

O'Connor did not indicate that he had any new information bearing on the bribery deal but announced he was prepared to give all aid desired lay all the facts in his possession before the investigators and pledge the full support of commissioner's office

Others are expected here within a few days for hearings, including Jimmy O'Connell, George Kelly, Giants first baseman, and John Couch, Philadelphia pitcher, who will leave the pacific coast for New York Thursday or Friday. PLAINFIELD BEATS FAST NORTH ATTLEBORO HIGH

With a display of decided improvement, the Plainfield High school hoopsters overcame the flashy North Attleboro High five on Wednesday evening in the Plainfield gym. The Emery-coached aggregation were the aggressors throughout the contest, being the first to score in the first few moments of play. Peterson was the outstanding star, accounting for one-half of the winning score. At half time the score read 7 all. The Plainfield boys, however, soon stepped away from their opponents and established a lead which proved the downfall of the team from Massachusetts.

NEW LONDON HOPES DONOHUE WILL BE BOXING LEADER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 28.—Supervision of the state boxing game which consists of three members and a secretary, inaugurated in 1921 by Governor Lake will presably be molded as the result of the boxing bill which was issued yesterday from this city for presentation at today's session of the legislature by Representative C. E. (Chang) Wheeler of Stratford. If Representative C. E. Wheeler is successful in having the bill passed, the present regime of the boxing board will be abolished and in its stead will be established a new form of controling the ever popular gaining boxing game. The new bill provides for a supervisor of boxing who is to be appointed by the governor the same as the present board was selected. Working with the supervisor will be eight deputies.

The new change is expected to find the present chairman of the boxing commission being selected for the new position which will find Thomas E. Donohue at its head. The new bill has another strong point in its favor and to reimburse the supervisor and the eight deputies with a salary. At present the members of the commission serve without pay. It is through by supporters of the boxing game that this sport will be favored in extention throughout the entire state if this new form of boxing control in the state is accepted. At present, boxing is conducted under local option, which leaves it strictly up to various cities and towns in the state as to whether they want the sport. With eight deputies, scattered about the state, it is though that boxing will be encouraged.

The governing board of boxing which has been in control of the mitt game since 1921 consists of the following men, Thomas E. Donohue chosen chairman by the other two members and the secretary last year to this position and who is a resident of this city has for his helpmates, Frank J. Murphy of Hartford and Acly W. Castle of Waterbury. Dr. P. T. Keeley of Waterbury, is secretary of the commission and is the only salaried member.

Commissioner chairman Thomas E. Donohue's appointed term expires this year and whether he would have been reappointed is a matter for speculation. Mr. Donohue is the only member of the board besides Frank J. Murphy, which made up the first boxing commission started in 1921. On the same board served Mosey King who was then chariman. Last year when two appointments were necessary to give the commission its full strength, both Acly W. Castle, who was then serving as secretary, and Dr. P. T. Keeley were the new appointees.

Because of his active interest in all boxing affairs, Chairman Thomas E. Donohue is conceded to be the best possible choice for the new position if the bill calling for a supervisor and eight deputies is passed by the legislature body. At present he is staging war against amateur boxing in professional ranks and then returning to this state to encage in an amateur fight. Such an instance was evident only three weeks ago, when a popular fighter who is supposed to have confined his activities in the amateur ranks, fought as a pro in Boston and on the following night as an amateur in Waterbury.

New London will especially await further news regarding the proposed bill for considerable interest locally surrounds the new bill.

FLOWERS FORCES ROBSON TO QUIT IN EIGHTH

Boston, Jan. 28.—Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, Ga., won a technical knockout over Tommy Robson of Malden tonight when the referee stopped the fight early in the eighth round to save Robson from more of the punishment which he had taken from the first. The weights were: Flowers 169 pounds; Robson 168.

O'CONNELL WON'T TESTIFY UNLESS ASSURED IMMUNITY

San Francisco, Jan. 28.—Jimmy O'Connell, former New York National league outfielder, barred by baseball by Judge Landis, through an attorney today declared he would refuse to go to New York to testify before the district attorney unless he is given immunity.

O'Connell previously had said he would go east, in asking immunity for O'Connell, Joseph I. McInerney, attorney for him declared it was his intention to investigate all the facts and circumstances surrounding the connection of O'Connell with the attempted bribe of Heinie Sand, of the Philadelphia Nationals.

In a telegram today to District Attorney Benton of New York, Attorney McInerney said: "Wire immediately your guarantee as district attorney of New York that if O'Connell appears and testifies as requested, that no action will be instituted against O'Connell in the state of New York, and that such a testimony as given shall not be used in any prosecution or proceeding, civil or criminal, against O'Connell.

"O'Connell is desirous of making a complete statement in regard to all of the circumstances surrounding the incident, and he feels that the baseball public is entitled to know all of the facts. He feels, however, that it would be futile to go to New York unless it is the sincere intention of your office to thoroughly investigate the matter with a view to compel Dolan to relate all he knows concerning the matter."

The Dolan referred to is "Cozy" Dolan, former New York Giants' coach who was suspended with O'Connell in the bribery incident.

DOLAN SAYS HE IS WILLING TO TESTIFY

New York, Jan. 28.—Cozy Dolan, one of the principal figures in the O'Connell-Dolan baseball bribery scandal, arrived here tonight and telephoned District Attorney Brothers, who is investigating the charges, that he was ready at any time to tell his side of the case.

Mr. Brothers arranged to see Dolan at the district attorney's office tomorrow morning.

Informed that Jimmy O'Connell, the Giant outfielder whose confession caused his own and Dolan's suspension, would not come to New York to testify unless he was granted immunity, Mr. Brothers said that at the present stage of the investigation he could not think of granting immunity to O'Connell, notwithstanding the fact that the Giant player is beyond reach of his subpoena.

MARTIN ACCEPTS $30,000 OFFER TO FIGHT GENARO

New York, Jan. 28.—"Cannonball" Eddie Martin tonight accepted an offer of $30,000 to defend his bantamweight title in a fight with Frankie Genaro, America's flyweight titleholder.

The fight will probably be held in Madison square Garden either on March 20 or May 5.

At least half of the profits of the show will go to the Peoples' hospital.

Benny Leonard, who recently vacated the lightweight title, has consented to meet any worthy opponent in a six-round bout. He will fight without remuneration.

NURMI RACES TO ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD IN THE MILLROSE GAMES

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 28.—(By The A. P.)—Paavo Nurmi raced to hollow triumphs tonight in mile and a half race featuring the Millrose games in which Joie Ray veteran, dropped out after trailing in a field of five for four laps.

Nurmi led his nearest rival, Willis Goodwin of the New York A. C. to the finish by 68 yards and shattered Ray's world's record for the distance, making the fourteenth record performance the Finnish phantom has set in his nine American races. His time of 6:39 3-5 displaced the old mark of 6:41 4-5 set by Ray in 1923.

Nurmi was credited with a second world's mark in his race when he was clocked at the mile and a quarter mark in 5:39 1-5, dislodging another of Ray's records, 5:23 3-5, set in 1922. —The Finnish sensation ran his own race all the way, shaking off Goodwin early, distancing William Cox, Rochester schoolboy, and lapping the other finisher, George Lermond, Boston College.

Nurmi was off to the front at the start, with Ray trailing.

Just after finishing the fourth lap, Joie made a gesture of pain, stopped and left the track. He watched the rest of the race from the sidelines.

None of the remaining competitors was in Nurmi's class and the Aba Antelope, devoured space with his easy, rolling strides, stepped out alone to add to his spectacular streak of record breaking.

Plant walked away from his famous European rival to win by 110 yards in a race which lost its third entrant unexpectedly when George Goulding, Canadian veteran and Olympic champion of 1912, was forced to withdraw because of a breakdown.

Goulding, who had attempted a comeback particularly to meet Frigerio, suffered a heart attack after his losing handicap race last night, in which he sustained injuries in two falls, and announced that he was out of the competition for all time. Physicians, he said, told him that it would be suicide for him to attempt to race again and the veteran, heartbroken, was forced to sit in a box as he watched the contest between the two men he was to have opposed.

Frigerio, who himself was handicapped by the effects of a foot injury caused by a new shoe worn in his first American race last night, lacked his customary dash. The smile that had won him popular favor with the crowd last night was missing and he tried desperately but in vain to catch Plant, but after struggling gamely to the finish he brought a terrific cheer when he rushed over to his conquerer and kissed him on both cheeks.

Nurmi and Frigerio were the central figures in the closing Millrose drama, which altogether witnessed the shattering of four more world's indoor marks and the equalling of one other twice. The total for the two night program represented twelve world's record performances, with Nurmi holding three and his countryman, Willie Ritola, four.

The Georgetown University's crack two mile relay team lowered its own standard by covering the distance in 7:44, while the 60-yard low hurdle record of 6 1-5 seconds was equalled in a trial heat by Charles Moore, Penn State, and in the final be Herb Meyer, Newark A. C., who just nosed out Moore at the tape.

Enjoyable Breakfast

Breakfast is a splendid meal on rainy days, especially warm rainy days, when you can sit on the veranda and spend a long time eating marmalade on crisp hot toasted muffins. At such times there is little else to do but to eat. Breakfast, on a sunny day, when there's much to be accomplished, is a different matter. Even marmalade means little when there's a boat to be sailed on the lake or a kite to be flown.—Arnold Patrick in the Bookman.

Red Indians' Vocabulary

The Smithsonian institution states that the old idea that the vocabularies of uncivilized tribes, especially the Indian tribes, was very limited, has been disproven. They have every reason to believe that the vocabulary of such tribes was quite as large as that of modern languages and that such tribes were able to express the most complicated ideas.

Smoking in Church

Smoking is common in South American churches. A visitor to Peru records that at a church in Lima he noticed one of the congregation enjoying a cigar during service and the bishop indulging in the same luxury.

Flamingo a Nesting Bird

The flamingo is the only member of the stork tribe that builds a nest of mud. These birds, which live in large flocks, sleep standing on one leg.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

San Carlo Opera Company Coming.

An important announcement for all music lovers of Norwich and the many nearby communities was made yesterday by Manager Edward L. McEvoy of the Palace theatre, when he stated that Fortune Gallo's noted San Carlo Grand Opera company, which is heading eastward at the end of its trans-continental tour, would present Verdi's great opera, Il Trovatore, on Monday evening, Feb. 10, with an all-star cast of noted artists. The many patrons who were fortunate to hear the production of Madame Butterfly which this noted national company gave here last year will welcome the announcement.

The confirmation of the date and the opera came from Fortune Gallo, the impresario yesterday, and the latter is now arranging the complete list of the artists who will sing here and this will be announced as soon as the word comes from New York. It was assured, however, that the very finest of the San Carlo singers would be selected for this engagement and that the full complement of large chorus and the special San Carlo symphony orchestra, directed by Maestro Aldo Franchetti, would come to this city. In addition, all of the special scenery and lighting effects used by the organization during their extended New York season last fall will be sent here on the special opera train. A corps of stage technicians and electrical experts will come here in advance to arrange all details necessary to presenting such a large organization, or 100 artists and musicians.

Just a year ago the local patrons had their first opportunity to hear the San Carlo Grand Opera company. While the theatre was not filled to capacity at that time, those who heard the opera, Madame Butterfly, were considerably impressed by the presentation. Manager McEvoy gives indications that Fortune Gallo plans to make this city an annual stopping off place for the opera every season. It is possible also that by the evidence here already, encourages the belief that the city can support several performances of opera more than the single engagement will be offered next year. A special opera committee, on which will be the social and business leaders of the city, is being formed as a "civic opera committee" to insure the opera being an annual event.

John Bowers, Lillian Rich, and Charles Murray also are cast well and give excellent accounts of themselves in Empty Hearts. Edmond Cobb known on the screen as the daredevil of the screen is the companion feature titled A Rodeo Mixup. This feature is truly all that the name implies as it is a photoplay full of action from the first to the last flicker of film. In A Rodeo Mixup, Cobb performs many daring deeds the most sensational being a scene where he jumps from a fast moving horse to a train going [illegible] miles an hour and then from the train back to the horse. This is positively the first time this feat has ever been performed successfully by any screen star.

Joe Rock is a new comedy The Pot Roast is very funny and the popular Cross Word Puzzle film was enjoyed by all yesterday. The Supreme musical offering of this year is presented by Galla-Rini (in person) and Sisters. Mr. Galla Rini is the world's foremost accordeonist, maker of vocalion phonograph records, and with his sisters, presents vaudeville's most pretentious offering "Moments Musical." Jones and Rea, two great comedians for a continuous laugh in store for you.

"Fools in the Dark," Al Santell's latest production for F. O. B. opens at the Broadway theatre today for a run of three days. In line with the demand for feature comedies of true amusement value, "Fools in the Dark," was produced for the sole purpose of arousing mirth, and that it does so to the queen's taste has been attested by all those critics who have seen the picture. In addition to its laugh-provoking qualities it is packed with thrills and tense drama. Matt co-starred in this production and Moore and Patsy Ruth Miller are are supported by an excellent cast, including Tom Wilson, Bertram Grasby and Charles Belcher.

Bread Theatre.

Lincoln J. Carter, master-writer of thrillers, has taken his pen in hand again this year for William Fox and has turned out another melodrama called "The Cyclone Rider." Movie fans no doubt recall the two thrillers this writer and producer were responsible for last year: "The Eleventh Hour," and "The Arizona Express."

In "The Cyclone Rider," which comes to the Bread theatre for the remainder of the week Mr. Carter has crowded more thrills than were contained in either of his last year's works.

Reed Howes as Jim Kent, an automobile racer, has the male lead in the new picture and Alma Rubens, as Doris Howard, has the feminine lead. The plot centers around a demand by Doris' father that Jim show him $5,000 within ten days in order to get his consent to marry his daughter. In these ten days you will find enough thrills to last you ten years.

Others in the cast include Evelyn Brent, William Bailey, Margaret McQuade, Charles Conklin, Ben Deeley and Frank Beal. Tom Buckingham is responsible for both scenario and direction.

"Days of '49," views of the total eclipse, the Pathe News and a Monkey comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

SEVERAL EASTERN CONNECTICUT BILLS INTRODUCED IN HOUSE WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Jan. 28.—Smiling skies, but intense cold greeted the members of the assembly this morning, low temperature being reported from all sections.

In this city it was 6 degrees below at 7 o'clock; Windsor reported 12 degrees below and Colchester went it two better with 14 degrees below. A new record was established in the house yesterday by the introduction of 190 bills, bringing the total to date 318.

The senate has not received the usual number as yet. Among the bills received from the senate in the house was a petition by Senator Doty of Hartford, from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., for an amendment to their charter that would allow it to purchase the gas and electric department of the city of Norwich. Anti-pollution bills come to the front today when Mr. Wheeler of Stratford introduced three bills. One was the bill killed by Governor Templeton two years ago with a pocket veto. Another is the bill approved by the directors of the State Chamber of Commerce and the other is Mr. Wheeler's own bill, the same as that killed by Gov. Templeton, except that it provides for five commissioners instead of three, adding the state health commissioner and the attorney general to the group. While this question has been before the assembly at several sessions without results it is expected that a law will be enacted at this session.

The House.

The house was called to order at 11:15 by Speaker Darbie. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis.

Among the bills received from the senate, one repeals the tax on unincorporated business.

An act reimbursing holders of liquor licenses and providing that county commissioners may borrow money for the purpose of refunding same.

An act increasing salaries of chief justice to $12,500 and $12,000 for associate court judges.

Stivers, deputy judge of the town court of Stonington; Cornelius Costello, judge of the town court of Groton; C. Tyler Landphere, deputy judge of the town court of Groton; John T. Barry, judge of the town court of Griswold; Frank E. Robinson, deputy judge of the town court of Griswold.

An act providing that the first session of the first Monday in November quadrennially thereafter be a holiday.

An act providing that trespassing thereon may be punishable by a fine not to exceed twenty-five dollars.

A resolution of Representative Curtiss of Thompson, for suspension of the rules, appointing a commissioner for Windham county for four years. The resolution was transmitted to the senate.

An act providing that the closed season on woodcock, partridge, or ruffed grouse and male Mongolian, Chinese or ring-necked pheasant's, should be from the first day of October to October twenty-fifth inclusive.

A resolution providing an appropriation of [illegible] thousand dollars for two years to St. Joseph's hospital of Willimantic.

Resolutions appointing Ernest K. Bingham and Wm. H. Heald, deputy judge of the borough court of Stafford Springs.

An act proposed by Mr. Ketchin of [illegible] that provides for absentee voting.

An amendment to the charter of the borough of Groton provides that the judges shall receive a salary of one hundred dollars; deputy judge five dollars per day when serving. Prosecuting attorney one thousand dollars and assistant five dollars per day when serving.

At the 1923 session several bills were introduced abolishing the office of county commissioner, but all were rejected. The bill was again introduced today.

It was announced that there would be no Friday session next week. At 12:30 the house adjourned till Thursday at 11:15.

Notes

Judge John H. Barnes and Thomas M. Shields were visitors at the capitol today to attend a hearing before State Referee M. H. Holcomb.

The first scrap of the session took place in the senate today. Senator Tone of New Haven moved a reconsideration of the vote on the proposed 20th amendment for which had been made special business for Tuesday next. After discussion a roll call was demanded which eleven voted for reconsideration and twenty against.

The Tolland county caucus held today renominated Dr. Wm. L. Higgins for county commissioner for four years and Chas. H. Allen, republican of Rockville and Frank N. Newman of Tolland, democrat, for county auditors.

Ledyard Man Wants Fine Rearned

The committee on claims held its first hearing today. The claimant Henry T. Couchman of Ledyard was arrested in Norwich for violation of the motor vehicle law. Without counsel he pleaded guilty and was fined $200 in the city court. Seeking counsel, he was advised that he should not have so pleaded. Counsel asked that the case be reopened which was done and the plea of guilty was withdrawn and a demurrer entered. He was found guilty and was fined $50 and took an appeal to the court of common pleas where the judgment was affirmed. As he had paid the first fine imposed and the money had been paid over to the state he now asks that the $200 first paid be returned to him. Thomas M. Shields appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney General Healey for the state.

nations for two judges of the common pleas bench to fill vacancies, one created by Judge E. C. Simpson's promotion and the other because Judge J. P. Woodruff, of Litchfield county has resigned. The nominees are Walter M. Pickett, of New Haven and Elbert B. Hamlin, the latter apparently being practically unknown to members of the general assembly and unknown even to members of the bar. For this vacancy Howard P. Landon, of Salisbury had been endorsed by a group of Litchfield county lawyers. The nominee is a trial justice in Litchfield town and lives on South street there.

In the senate an effort was made through Senator Tone to get the proposed amendment to the federal constitution relating to child labor into the committee stage that it may have a hearing. Behind his were legislators who say they have felt that welfare workers should have a chance to be heard on the matter. Senator Ford supporting Senator Tone, after Senator Cronin had pointed out that it was not unusual to send such a matter to the calendar, said that many women voters would regard the action taken as close to an insult to them. Senator Ford had said he would not vote for ratification, but he did feel that fair play required placing the matter in committee stage and let those who desired have a chance to be heard. Senator Cronin was willing to permit the matter to go to a committee if anyone could point out a reason for that course.

Senator Cronin in objecting to Senator Tone's motion to reconsider action which placed the matter on the calendar for debate Tuesday pointed out that the sixteenth and seventeenth amendments—the former the income tax amendment—went to committees, and in one instance the committee tried to do what it could not do—that is amend it. The eighteenth and nineteenth amendments went to the calendar and when taken up were thoroughly discussed and disposed of. He claimed that every member of the general assembly knows how he or she will vote and nothing was to be gained by threshing it out elsewhere.

Several senators spoke including Mrs. Merritt, who made her first speech supporting Senator Tone. A roll call vote defeated the motion to reconsider 20 to 11.

One of the bills which went into new legislative ground was that offered by Senator Ford which would have all purchases of land and all buildings erected by the state paid for through bond issues placing on posterity a part of the burden for improvements from which they will benefit. The senator believes that park and forests lands should be paid for by bond issues of very long term as it will be the people of fifty and one hundred years hence who will get great benefits from such lands and meantime surrounding territory will be built up increasing the value of the reservations.

The bill of the New Haven Water company for right to establish a reservoir in Madison, Guilford, North Branford and Killingworth looks to impounding streams there which will make a big lake against the time when New Haven will need water available nowhere else.

FORMER PRISON OFFICIALS ARE UNDER INDICTMENT

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 28.—Two indictments were returned today by a federal grand jury in special sessions, one charging that A. E. Sartain, former warden of the federal penitentiary here, L. J. Fletcher, former deputy warden and a third man, not named, conspired to accept and receive bribes.

The second indictment, against Sartain alone, charged acceptance of a bribe.

The conspiracy indictment charged that Sartain, Fletcher and the third person conspired with Father Hayden, former chaplain at the prison, to accept and receive bribes of $1,500 each from seven prisoners in exchange for the officers' influence in obtaining easy work assignments and special privileges for prisoners. The negotiations are alleged to have taken place on March 25, 1924.

The indictment against Sartain charged that he accepted a bribe from C. Graham Baughn, on behalf of C. C. Tutten, July 3, 1924, in return for which Sartain was to appoint Tutten chauffeur for the prison physician.

No indictment was returned against the former chaplain.

Using an elevator and its attendant to carry out loot, five robbers took silks valued at $2,000 and $1,200 in New York.

SENATE TO HOLD NIGHT SESSIONS ON POSTAL BILL

Washington, Jan. 28.—A night session of the senate tomorrow to hasten action on the postal pay and rate increase bill was threatened today by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, in charge of the measure after the day's discussion had failed to bring a vote on any of the pending amendments.

During the discussion today, Senator Moses announced that a provision in the bill limiting books, catalogues, seeds, cutting bulbs, roots, scions and plants to four ounces for mailing in the third class should read eight ounces. Other third class mail, however, would be limited to four ounces.

A vote is in order tomorrow on the proposal of Senator George, democrat, Georgia, to reduce present second class rates on advertising sections of publications to those in effect before July 1, 1920. The bill provides for a slight increase in these rates.

Senator Moses contended today a reduction in these rates would result in a loss of $5,000,000 revenue to the government, whereas additional revenue was needed to pay the postal salary increases provided in the bill, but Senator George argued that lower rates would increase revenue by bringing additional pieces of mail into the service.

VITAGRAPH PICTURE CO. TO BECOME INDEPENDENT

New York, Jan. 28.—Vitagraph, Inc., the oldest motion picture company in existence, announced today through its president, Albert E. Smith, that on its 28th anniversary next February 1, it would withdraw from the organization of which Will H. Hays is "czar"—The Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.

Simultaneously with the withdrawal, which Mr. Smith described as "the first defection from the ranks of the Hays organization," notices will be published in motion picture trade magazines setting forth the reason for Vitagraph's action.

The reasons given in the notices for the company's session followed in part:

"Vitagraph withdraws because it does not believe that justice to the distributors and to the public and to those independent producers who are not theatre-owning exhibitors can be obtained through the labors of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America."

TO PROBE DEVELOPMENT OF COMMERCIAL FLYING

New York, Jan. 28.—Robert R. McCormick, Chicago publisher, sailed on the Paris today for London and Paris to become a reporter again. He said he wanted to find out what France and England are doing to develop commercial flying and to see if he couldn't stimulate the American people to "do something."

"Air mail service," Mr. McCormick said, "should be let out to individual companies. Nothing would help aviation so much as this. Then, too, there is no reason why we should not have it a road between London and Paris and Paris and other continental cities.

"We will never be able to develop aviation to any marked degree in the post office department so long as the government handles it, not because it will be efficient, but because it remains outside of public interest."

APPOINTMENT OF WOODLOCK CRITICISED IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 28.—The appointment by President Coolidge of Thomas M. Woodlock, of New York, to be a member of the interstate commerce commission was criticized today in the house by Representative Rayburn, democrat, Texas, who declared the law, or at least its spirit, providing for bi-partisan selections to certain commissions, was being violated.

Pointing out that Mr. Woodlock was nominated to succeed Commissioner Potter, a democrat, who is retiring, Mr. Rayburn declared Mr. Woodlock voted for Hughes in 1916 and for Coolidge in 1924, and certainly could not be classed as a democrat. He added that one of the qualifications Mr. Woodlock appears to have was that he is or was a director of two railroads.

STEAMER YANKTON HAS BEEN LIBELLED FOR $125,000

Boston, Jan. 28.—The steamer Yankton which has run the gamut of marine activities from private yacht to ship of war was libelled for $125,000 in federal court today by a salvage company. The bill is a sequel to the latest adventure of the historic vessel which ran aground last week at Nix's Mate Ledge in Boston harbor and remained on the rocks several days before she could be refloated.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

It was 10 below zero in Danielson Wednesday morning—the lowest record of the winter season. December produced one morning with a temperature of six below and January another with nine below. Wednesday's cold wave came on the heels of the snowstorm that sifted in out of the north all day Tuesday and left about six additional inches of snow on the fall of about a similar amount that came on Tuesday of last week. The latest snowfall was as light and feathery as the on that preceded it, so it impeded traffic very little, even out on the country roads. Transportation lines had practically no special difficulty in operating regularly Wednesday, for plows kept all lines practically clear of snow.

The bitter cold was something more difficult to contend with than the snow. Drivers who were out in the early morning suffered considerably and complained more about the weather hardship than at any time this winter.

However, Rural Carrier Arthur W. Logee, negotiating his route in a light touring car, brought a word of cheer for those who need one when he returned from covering his usual mileage and a little extra at the noon hour. He told of having seen, the day before, a pair of blue birds flying over territory in the vicinity of the Terwilliger place, near South Killingly. Mr. Logee well knows the difference between blue jays and blue birds and stressed the fact that it was blue birds that he saw. So there is encouragement that this tough old winter is not going to last forever.

Following are the, newly elected officers of the Danielson Building and Loan association, also the list of the new board of management and auditors: President, Dr. George M. Burroughs; vice presidents, Burdette C. Hopkins, N. Lorne Greig, D. E. Jette, Deborah Butler; treasurer, Ernest R. Warren; secretary, Clifford H. Starkweather; assistant secretary, J. F. Gardner, Jr.; board of management, W. Irving Bullard, James R. Walsh, Walter Anderson, A. M. Thompson, Harry E. Back, Elbert L. Darbie, John A. Gilbert, L. E. Young, Andrew E. Meech, Frank E. Kennedy, D. Fred Kenworthy, Frank T. Preston, Alfred L. Reed, Frederick E. Bilgood, Harry Brearley auditors, Charles E. Austin, Thomas A. Beckett, Lillian E. Bailey.

The board of management has a meeting planned for the third Tuesday in February. Up to the present time more than 200 shares of the 14th series, issued this month, have been subscribed. The annual reports of the association show it to be in splendid condition financially. There is always an excess of applications over funds available for investment in building operations in Danielson.

Another bit of evidence that fox hunters are still at work in spite of every effort to get them, was the finding of a fox dead beside the highway, in the vicinity of South Killingly and on the route leading from that place to North Sterling. Around the neck of the fox was the loop of wire, which the animal had managed to break in some manner and get loose, but without avail as to it future in this world. A man who discovered the fox lying beside the highway first believed, as sometimes happens in an isolated section that he had come upon a sleeping fox, but investigation established the animal as dead and the cause of its passing.

As experienced a hunter as there is in this region said Wednesday that the fate of the fox herein recorded is the fate of about two out of every three that gets into a snare, indicating the small percentage of success that comes to those who engage in such a barbarous practice as snaring, for the few paltry dollars they may get out of the venture. This hunter states that the foxes are often caught around the body, instead of the neck, and sometimes by the hindquarters or even by a single leg. More often then not they struggle and gnaw at the wire until they get release, only to die from the lacerations they have received. However, as likely as not a valuable dog will get into a snare, and cause a very considerable loss to the owner.

Sportsmen who are entitled to be called such are anxious that some evidence be obtained to cause the conviction of parties guilty of snaring. There is a $100 reward waiting for the one that produces it in the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of Joseph E. Cussen, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cussen of Ballouville, was held from their home in that place with a funeral service at St. Joseph's church in Danielson, Rev. Ignatius Yost officiating. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Royald Labelle, Ernest Labelle, William Harte and Nelson Haze. Leslie E. Kennedy was in charge of funeral arrangements.

If demands for additional homes are met in Danielson, there will be a building boom of some proportions in Danielson the coming spring. For the past ten years there has been a steady growth of the number of homes in Danielson, but the building has never kept pace with the demand. Even in this period of mid-wintert here is a lively demand for rents and practically no place available.

Children and other young people continue to risk their precious lives by coasting on hills and grades where automobiles are constantly passing. They not only do this, but one sees case after case where the coasters virtually try to force motor vehicles to give them the right away. Parents as a rule seem entirely complacent about their offspring accepting such grave risks. It is known that numbers of children slide where it is dangerous because of automobiles without any objection whatsoever from their parents. One cynic in commenting on this neglect of chidren by parents remarked Wednesday that "they probably have been insured.

The bills providing for increases in the salaries of the judge and prosecuting attorney of the town court of Killingly are now regularly introduced in the legislature and have been referred to the judiciary committee. In due time they will be reported back in the regular way and passed upon. It is considered very probable that the bills will be enacted into law as the present salaries are low for the work he court officials mentions are called upon to do.

Live wire youngsters looking for a change to make some money found their opportunity Wednesday in soliciting job of cleaning sidewalks in the borough of accumulations of snow.

Mrs. Sarah A. Hopkins, 85, died Tuesday at Hopkins Mills in the town of Foster, of which she was a native and where she had lived all her life. Mrs. Hopkins was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown and was of an old Foster family. She was the widow of Charles Allen Hopkins, for forty years a sheriff of the town of Foster. Mr. Hopkins died about a score of years ago. Mr. Hopkins leaves no relatives nearer than nephews and nieces.

Opening of the K. of C. carnival, Danielson Casino tonight and continuing Friday and Saturday evenings.—adv.

Measurements Wednesday morning indicated that the average snowfall in Danielson in the storm that ended during the early hours of the morning was about six inches.

Nelson Gauthier of Broad street performed a generous bit of public service Wednesday morning when he came out with a horse-drawn snow-plow and cleared sidewalks and paths along that thoroughfare.

Dr. M. P. Burns, of Boston, city superintendent for the board of missions is scheduled to speak at the Methodist church this (Thursday) evening.

William A. Ronsson of Worcester was here in the interests of his business Wednesday.

Sleighs appeared Wednesday in greater numbers than at any time during the present winter. If it is of any general interest, sleighing is very good just now.

Those who do not mind working through a foot of snow and from 12 to 18 inches of ice can have today, tomorrow and Saturday for ice fishing. After that the season will be closed on pickerel.

Section men of the New Haven road had special work to do Wednesday in clearing the snow away from switches in the local yard.

Miss Margaret McBride, who is at Bellcair, Fla., for the winter, writes that she is greatly enjoying her stay in the south.

Monday will be groundhog day and considering the weather of the past two months there will be a majority hoping that he sees his shadow and that he will decide the backbone of winter is broken.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Thomas Ryan was nominated at the republican caucus in Thompson, Tuesday evening as a candidate for representative to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frederick L. Hutchins. Mr. Ryan is one of the best known citizens of Thompson. He is a contractor and coal dealer, also has charge of the state highways in the section in which he lives. He served one term in the general assembly a few years ago.

At the democratic caucus held the evening before, no candidate was nominated, the town committee being given power to select a candidate if deemed best. The special election will be held February 17.

Harold Standish Corbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Corbin, of Putnam, and Miss Charlotte Mennen Hatterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hatterman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married Wednesday night at the Hotel Bossert in Brooklyn. Rev. George William Carter, Ph. D., secretary of the Bible Society of New York, officiated. A new Draper automatic loom has been ordered by the trade school to be installed in the textile department This will make six looms, including the jacquard, in use at the local school. The increasing demand both of students and type of work being done at the school requires this additional equipment. Fine qualities of shirting goods, oxford and madrases are being made very satisfactorily by the boys. Lots of cotton are being run through from the picker to the loom by individual students who are receiving all the related instruction in the work as it goes through the various machine processes. This is in line with the policy of the school for instruction under actual trade conditions.

The test of education is in performance, whether it be in a thorough understanding of the builders' art or in the larger training for citizenship.

The electrical department students have been carrying on a very satisfactory and highly instructive piece of electrical power and lighting installation for a local concern. This department is very well patronized at present.

The total enrollment of the school is something over 400, including evening classes and pre-vocational students. The regular day classes constitute about two-thirds of this total enrollment.

Other projects being carried on at present—inside finish and cabinet making in the carpentry department, house plans, tool designing, math and shop problems in the drafting department, machine tools and special machine work in the machine ship.

The home economics department has its usual number of students in the high school general and commercial courses together with a number of girls who have elected separate trade units for the year.

The evening classes at the school have held up remarkably well and those enrolled seem to be getting considerable valuable training from the courses.

It is planned later in the year for the school to have its annual "open night" at which time the public will be invited to inspect the work as in previous years.

Aime Champeau is a recent graduate from the electrical department. Herbert Erickson, of Woodstock, was graduated from the carpentry department January 28th.

The total number of student hours for December was 13811.

A special feature was the firefly dance by the Mathieu twins of Willimantic. They responded to an encore with Moments Musical. Jazzmania by Eleanor Connelly of Willimantic was a difficult number and was well done. A pretty effect was the dancing to a Chopin waltz, carrying blue crepe paper wands. The final number was a cotillion during which the children received favors. The closing march was led by Betty and Frank Barber. NEW LONDON STEAMBOAT CAPTAIN HAS HIS LICENSE SUSPENDED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 28.—The license of Capt. William Durkee, master of the Central Vermont railroad freight steamer City of New London, has been suspended 15 days by the United States steamboat inspectors, the suspension of the license resulting from recent accidents in which the freighter has been involved. The suspension of license dates from the 26th inst. Captain Durkee, who has been in St. Albans, Vt., and in New York several days conferring with officials of the railroad, returned to New London from New York today and will remain here until the date of his suspension expires. In the meantime the freighter is being manned by Pilot John Q. Wilcox.

The suspension of Captain Durkee's license resulted following the City of New London colliding with the barge Hartford in the lower harbor several weeks ago. Not only was the barge damaged, but the freighter also was damaged. The night was clear when the accident occurred and the responsibility for the accident was placed entirely upon the master of the freighter. Following the accident, the City of New London was taken to New York, where repairs were made, and the barge, which was coal-laden, and destined to Allyn's Point, was towed to that place, where her cargo was unloaded, after which the barge underwent repairs.

Captain Durkee is well and favorably known, especially among mariners, and has been in the employ of the Central Vermont line a number of years.

All furnished sureties on their respective bonds.

The craft was towed into port and is now tied up at the United States coast guard pier, with her cargo still aboard.

WESTERLY

Trainmaster William J. Smith of the New Haven road, stated while in Westerly Wednesday afternoon that the assistance furnished the train crews of the special eclipse trains at the Westerly station, Saturday last by the soldiers of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C., was most helpful to the railroad, and aided greatly in preventing any accident. The townspeople of Westerly who were at the station while the extra trains were in operation marveled at the expeditious manner with which the extra traffic was handled, for there was an absence of the facilities found at railroad terminals. The results and favorable comment of visitors and newspapers show that the preliminary planning of railroad officials went a long way to gain these ends. Westerly people regret that time did not permit the operation of additional trains for which there seemed to be a demand and that the visitors could not remain longer in town.

Tuesday's snowstorm, the eighth of this winter, continued well into Wednesday morning. The snow was light and drifted to a considerable extent with the strong wind. Engineer Adolph J. Leon of the Westerly highway commission had his force of men engaged in ploughing the streets and highways with the big motor truck most of the night. From the light weight of snow and heavy wind many of the streets had to be gone over several times; but early drivers in the center of the town found the highways well scraped. At 6 o'clock Wednesday morning the thermometer hovered near the zero mark. The clouds broke late, and by sunrise the sky was almost clear.

Westerly Police Patrolman George Madison began a tour of day duty on Wednesday morning, following the week's tour of day duty by Police Officer George H. Champlin, who now returns to the night beat.

In early life she joined the Seventh Day Baptist church of her home town, later transferring her letter to the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church of Westerly, March 18, 1890, she married Herbert T. Kenyon of Westerly. For a time they lived at 135 Main street, and later moved to the new home which Mr. Kenyon had erected on Park avenue. Mrs. Kenyon's interest in the welfare of others was constant. In time of sickness and distress she was always among the first to offer assistance. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Orrin F. Lamb of Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Carl O. Flint of Pittsfield, Mass., and the Misses Laura and Geneva Kenyon of Westerly.

Mr. Palmer traveled widely and had visited many sections of the country in his journeyings, the last ten years having been spent in California. He returned home last year by way of Mexico, arriving in Stonington last August.

Mr. Palmer was best known, probably, as a food specialist, this being a subject to which he gave much time and study. He was an ardent believer in the use of fruit and vegetables and his famous "Brown flour," as it was called, before it became more familiarly known as entire wheat flour. For many years, Mr. Palmer had this flour ground from personally selected wheat and furnished it to the dealers in order that those who adopted his diet might be able to procure the proper flour. He was always willing to explain his theories of diet to those who were ill and this without reward or compensation and many people have regained their health through following out his principles. Mr. Palmer spent much time out of doors and found delight in roaming through the woods and fields and over the country roads. His interests were varied and he was a collector of antiques and precious books and deeply interested in mineral and mining and well informed on these matters.

He was a typical Yankee of the old school; a delightful conversationalist, well read and well informed, rich or poor alike by all who had his acquaintance. He was the last of his family, his nearest kin being two nephews, William Palmer of Hingham, Mass., and Bert Palmer of Cleveland, Ohio.

RISE IN STOCK PRICES.

New York, Jan. 28.—Stock prices bounded upward today under the leadership of the oil shares, nearly all of which moved up one to three points to their highest prices in a year or more. Buying of the petroleum issues was stimulated by reports of another large decline in production in the New Wortham field and a further extension of gasoline and crude oil price advances.

Some heaviness was apparent at the opening in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation to place the common stock on a flat $7 annual dividend basis. All offerings were well absorbed, however, and the general market was soon headed upward with trading again in heavy volume.

Another sharp advance in wheat, which carried May futures as high as $2.05 a bushel, undoubtedly was the outstanding financial development of the day. While it probably caused some diversion of speculative interest from the stock of the grain market, stock traders construed it a bullish factor. Establishment of another seasonal record by car loadings and reports of further expansion in steel mill operations also had a cheerful effect on sentiment.

United States Steel common closed 5-8 higher at 127 3-8 after selling as low as 125 3-4. Baldwin showed a net gain of 1 point at 131 1-2, and American Can crossed 165 for a fractional gain.

Pacific was again the leader of the oil group, closing 3 3-8 higher at 64 1-2 on total transactions in excess of 100,000 shares. Tidewater Oil moved up 3 points and the Pan-American issues, Cordon, Phillips Petroleum, Pure Oil, Marland, Sinclair, Standard Oils of California and New Jersey, Texas Company and Union Oil of California were among the many isues to show net gains of a point or more.

Nash Motors scored a sensational advance of 37 1-3 points to 274 and then slipped back to 261. Jordan Motors and Mack Trucks showed net gains of 1 and 2 points respectively, but several other issues in the automotive group were heavy in reflection of the stiff competition in that industry.

The Commercial Solvents issues continued their spectacular advance, the A stock moving up 16 1-4 points to 175 and the B stock closing 18 1-4 points higher at 176 3-4.

Railroad shares reflected the marked improvement being shown in the preliminary 1924 earnings report now being published. Lehigh Valley advanced 3 1-4 points to 78, and net gains of a point or more were recorded by the three Erie issues, New York Central, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Wabash preferred A, Atlantic Coast Line, Colorado and Southern, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred and several others.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates held relatively firm. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.79 1-2 and French francs at 5.41 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 28. — A burst of strength by oil company bonds, which kept pace with a rise in the petroleum shares, featured today's bond trading. Other issues marked time, price changes mainly being fractional and insignificant.

Renewed buying of the oil obligations was prompted by advancing crude and gasoline prices, reports of decreased stocks and persistent rumors of preliminary merger negotiations by a number of the independent companies. Scoring gains of 1 to 2 points, Sinclair Consolidated, Skelly, Pan American and California Petroleum issues sold at the highest prices since 1923.

Although railroad bonds as a group failed to show much change, several issues developed independent strength. New York Central convertible sixes followed an advance in the stock by moving up 1 1-4 points, and Hudson and Manhattan income 5s jumped 1 3-8. "Katty" adjustment 5s crossed 85 to a new high. St. Paul liens, however, continued to work lower.

Few features of interest appeared in the foreign list, although a rise of 3 1-2 points in Polish sixes on a small turnover which linked with reports that bankers were preparing to float a loan for this country next month.

Today's offerings of $16,902,000 Chicago and Western Indiana and $10,000,000 Union Oil of California bonds brought the total of the week's net financing so far to above $100,000,000. Both issues were sold readily. Public offering will be made tomorrow of $5,000,000 Pacific Steamship Company first preferred Marine equipment 6 1-2s at prices to yield 5 to 6 3-4 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Wheat for May delivery went skyrocketing to $2.05 7-8 today, the highest price on record since 1868 with the exception of 1916-21. The ascension of the May delivery which was largely due to persistent strength in foreign markets and to reports of liberal export business in this country, carried other months upgrade, as well as corn and oats. At the finish wheat showed a net advance of 2 1-8 to 5 7-8c, with May $2.04 3-4 to $2.05 and July $1.72 3-4 to $1.72 7-8; corn scored a net gain of 1 1-8 to 1 7-8c and oats were unchanged to 1-4c up. Provisions were 12 to 37c off.

Today's price for May wheat surpassed the mark made during the Hutchison corner in 1888, when the outside figure was $2 and with the exception of the period of the world war the best previous top record was in 1868 when cash wheat sold at $2.20 in November. In May of the previous year cash wheat for May sold at 85c. The greatest activity centered about the May delivery, with heavy commission house buying a feature. This class of purchasing swept aside all apparent opposition and despite immense profit taking, prices steadily advanced from the opening with the highest levels maintained until just before the closing hour.

Foreign markets showed pronounced strength with Winnipeg leading the advance. Liverpool and Buenos Aires also were higher with bullish foreign news a factor. Speculative influences were reported as responsible or the upturn in South America. Individual operations or cable news, however, had little effect on May wheat here, and the defeared months worked higher in sympathy, the July delivery touching $1.34 1-2 a bushel, a new high record for the crop.

Corn and oats were influenced largely by the action of May wheat. Shorts bought freely which, with increased country buying, helped to make the upturn. Provisions were unsettled and averaged somewhat lower with a moderate trade.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 28.—Strength and activity of the oil shares, many of which attained new high levels on the current movement featured trading in today's curb market. Demand for the petroleum issues was stimulated by advancing crude oil and gasoline prices, reports of further decreases in crude oil stocks and production and rumors of merger negotiations between a number of independent companies.

Considerable activity developed in the standard oil group, where a number of substantial gains were recorded. Imperial Oil of Canada mounted 2 1-2 points to 130, while Prairie Oil and Gas, Standard Oils of Nebraska and Kansas and South Pennsylvania Oil advanced 3 to 5 points. Steady accumulation of Vacuum Oil lifted its price 2 3-8 points.

Conflicting price movements, however, marked trading in other sections of the list. Selling pressure was directed against a number of the radio issues. Thermiodyne yielding three points. Fractional recessions took place in a variety of other radio stocks.

Public utilities generally worked lower. Electric Bond and Share, which sold as high as 110 in the open market after segregation by General Electric Company, sold today at 66 3-4, a net loss of over two points. American Power and Light and American Super Power shares also lost ground.

WESTMINSTER

The January meeting of Buell union, Canterbury's W. C. T. U., was held Wednesday, the 14th, at the home of Mrs. Chauncey Frink at the Green, with whom Buell's secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Addie Bushnell, is spending the winter. Over 30 attended in spite of cold weather and glare ice on the roads, several coming from Brooklyn. It was one of the very popular all-day meetings and several tables had to be set for the abundant and delicious dinner served at noon. A literary program was carried out with Mrs. Ray Bliven, the president, in the chair, and the devotions in charge of Miss Baldwin, superintendent of evangelism. After the reports had been read and accepted, and singing, several of the guests spoke briefly, and the Mizpah benediction was repeated in unison at the close of the program.

God as depicted in nature, by Job, and by David in the Psalms, as well as in the eclipse, was theth eme for last Sunday at morning worship.

For the hour of prayer at home altars Wednesday, Jan. 28, Nehemiah, chap. 6: 16-19; 7: 1-5, 66-73, and chap. 8. "Persistent Faith Overcomes All Obstacles in Doing Work for God."

The change for the better in the condition of Mrs. William Veits (Hilda Grabbe), who had a very critical operation for appendicitis at the hospital, and seemed at death's door and nearly through it for several days, rejoices the many friends of the young couple, who have an infant not many weeks old, and are very well known in this part of the town.

At the adjourned meeting of the Ecclesiastical society, Albert Pellatt, chairman of the society's committee, continuing as moderator, it was decided not to buy other property, and to rebuild the parsonage on the old foundations.

Practically everyone was alert with smoked glass watching the little moon eclipse the majestic sun Saturday.

The zero weather of several days last week was succeeded Monday by milder temperature, producing deep slush.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve of Norwich, a former resident, has been spending several days with Mrs. L. H. Linderman.

Spencer Jordan, Max Bordon and Milton Perrin left Monday morning by automobile for Florida. They expected to make New Jersey the first day, staying over night with friends.

Daniel Dodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dodge, and Miss Helen Savage, a teacher in Pomfret, were married last Friday evening at the parsonage by Rev. H. D. Baker. They will reside for the present with the groom's parents. The bride is a native of Newport, Me. They were away on an automobile trip for the week end.

Many residents motored south last Saturday morning to view the eclipse, which in this section of the town was outside the totality. Some went to Putnam, Killingly, Jewett City, etc. Among the number were Dr. E. R. Pike and children, Pearl Cady, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Morse and sons, S. H. Peckham and sons, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Linderman and daughter Eleanor, Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. May, Alan and Ethel Upham, Rev. H. D. Baker and son Arthur.

Stewart Morse and Clara Baker accompanied the faculty of Woodstock academy to New Haven.

The deaths and the causes are as follows: Arterio sclerosis 5, tuberculosis 3, premature birth 4, indigestion 2, cerebral hemorrhage 7, pneumonia 4, dysteria 2, pleurisy 2, myocarditis 4, bronchitis 3, endocarditis 2, carcinoma of stomach 2, gastritis 2, cancer of stomach 1, diabetes 1, cardio vascular renal disease 1, chronic rheumatism 1, pernicious anemia 1, heart disease 1, total 43.

The January meeting of the American Legion was held in the legion hall Monday, Commander Prentice W. Chase presiding. Mr. Chase spoke at length on the good of the legion and what they were doing. After the usual business, the members and visitors were entertained by three good boxing bouts under the supervision of Edward Wyatt and John Potts, Jr.

The amateur night performance held at Finn's Tuesday night proved a big success and was highly appreciated by the audience, which turned out strong in spite of the storm to see their favorites. The first of the five acts presented was "The Four Mustateers," J. Burns, J. Johnson, Pat Mondor and J. Toper, who put on a lively singing and dancing sketch. Next came Theo. Raili in a series of acrobatic stunts, followed by the "Invincible Trio" in a singing act, Takmon, Juber and Golish. Rolland Guillette gave a good performance of athletic stunts which carried off first honors. Lastly came "Pop" Loranger in a little sketch entitled "Pop the Bad Man," assisted by John Kuman, which took second honors. The efficient announcer was "Sol" Musgovero, who kept the crowd interested by his witty remarks. The management plans to have another amateur night.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Shea left Wednesday evening for a month's trip to New Orleans. Arriving at the Crescent City, they will be guests of Mr. Shea's sister, Mrs. John J. Nelson.

Rev. E. P. Carter of East Hartford, a recent candidate for the pastorate of the Second Congregational church, Jewett City, has accepted a call to be assistant pastor of the Thompkins Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y. This church has a membership of over 4,000 and is one of the largest in the city.

Auction of household goods, 1 p. m. Sat., 12 Anthony St.—adv.

Associate Judge Frank E. Robinson of Griswold town court, for reasons best known to himself, does not wish to longer retain the office. The state legislature will appoint James H. Shea to succeed Mr. Robinson.

The new associate judge is the junior member of the firm of Shea Bros. He is a director of the Jewett City Trust company and has served a long term of years as first selectman of the town of Griswold, beside holding several other public offices. The bill was introduced in the house by Dr. G. H. Jennings, the republican representative.

Early this month the children saw the Abraham Lincoln picture at Finn's opera house. On returning to school the next day, they wrote the story. Through the courtesy of Mr. Barnett, passes were awarded the pupils who wrote the best stories of Abraham Lincoln as portrayed on the screen. The winners were: Fourth grades, Lucy Perint and Janet Wilcox; fifth grades, Aurore Despres and Mildred Gilbert; sixth grades, Arthur Gray and Irene Jaskiewicz; seventh grades, Lenora Petlika and Jennie Skaradowski; eighth grades, Pearl Rosenburg. These passes are for the Saturday matinees for two months.

The children have been writing the story of the eclipse as they saw it last Saturday. In drawing, this has been illustrated in color.

The local observant citizen said Wednesday, with the mercury at the cipher, that all the comforts of home were being used as laprobes in the flivver.

Now is the time to remember the borough's feathered friends. Brush the snow away and put them out a few pieces of bread and broken crackers. Their joy is worth while to see.

There is some sharp guessing in Jewett City nowadays as to whether the 9 a. m. train will be a steam conveyance or a gas wagon.

Inquiry was made Wednesday in this section of some of the leading farmers relative to the behaviour of their herds of stock during the eclipse of last Saturday.

One farmer said in reply if the eclipse of the 24th had occurred 50 years ago there would have been opportunity afforded to observe the cattle in the barnyards or at the cornbutt stack. Today, he said, Griswold's hundreds of cows are still in the warm stables at 10 a. m. The one-time buttstack that stood out of doors all winter, to which the cattle used to come and crowd and hook for their daily allowance, often thrown out on the snow, is a thing of the past. The modern silo is filled in the fall with the cornstalks, cut by machinery and salted to taste. Mrs. Cow will get a fine helping of ensilage with a side dish of meal or middlings, all served in her stanchion feedbox. Along toward noon she may be allowed to walk out a while to get a drink of water and lick her hide in places one would think it impossible for her to reach with her tongue. By standing on three legs, she is able to accomplish wonderful stunts, and scratch between her horns with her left hind hoof.

Consider the trials of the local R. F. D. man! Wednesday morning, over a 25-mile route, with six inches or more of snow and three and four-foot drifts with the mercury below zero. Then, if there is a move to increase his pay 2½ cents a week, a hundred big fat congressmen will nail it on sight.

The big state snowplow went over the main highway through this section before light Wednesday morning. The Aspinook company sent an early sidewalk plow over many streets, which is much appreciated by the hundreds who must go to work at an early hour.

Hundreds of Jewett City people first learned of the death of Daniel Daley when they read it in The Bulletin Wednesday morning. Mr. Daley was for many years a resident of Jewett City, where he and his family have many friends.

Whatsoever circle of the King's Daughters held its annual meeting in the Baptist church vestry Tuesday evening. The officers elected were: Leader, Miss Alice A. Brown; vice leader, Mrs. G. H. Prior; secretary, Mrs. C. F. Gardner; and treasurer, Mrs. E. M. Gray. Mrs. Prior, who has served as president for 15 years, declined re-election on account of so many other duties. A supper of baked beans, potato salad, rolls, brown bread, pickles, cake and coffee was served under the direction of Mrs. C. F. Gardner, Mrs. F. M. Gray, Mrs. C. P. Gardner, Mrs. Jennie Wild and Mrs. Nelbert Myott. The waitresses were Ellen Prior, Doris Carpenter, Florence Quimby, Lillian Barber and Ruby Thornton. A King's Daughters' crossword puzzle on the blackboard, original with Miss Alice Brown, was very clever. This supper is never advertised as public, but several outside the circle are invited to attend.

Mrs. Georgina Carpenter of Hartford is caring for her mother, Mrs. Francis Campbell, who has been ill for two weeks due to a general breakdown.

Monday evening District Deputy Grand Master Fred L. Avery, assisted by his staff, D. D. G. W. John Hersant, D. D. G. Secretary Walter Thomson, D. D. G. Treasurer William S. Tinker, D. D. G. M. Charles H. Beebe, D. D. G. Chaplain Charles M. Thomson, D. D. G. Louis B. Wilson, Kirk Wallen, organist, installed the officers-elect of Reliance lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F.: Ralph Wilbur, noble grand; Earl Gray, vice grand; recording secretary, Adelbert Babcock; financial secretary, Thomas Gray; treasurer, William McCluggage; warden, Robert McRea; conductor, A. D. Tripp; I. G., Frank Mell; O. G., Joseph Wharton; R. S. N. G., S. A. Thomson; L. S. N. G., David A. Bothwell; R. S. V. G., Fred Robinson; L. S. V. G., Solomon Wechsler; chaplain, A. Zegeer; R. S. S., Benjamin Schliefer; L. S. S., Hugh Davis; S. P. G., Irving Thornton. Addresses were made by the district deputy and staff, also by the noble grand and vice grand of the Rebekahs. Sandwiches and coffee were served and a smoker enjoyed. Games and dancing were a part of the evening's entertainment.

MRS. GEORGE TORMEY DIES FROM TYPHOID

Jewett City, Jan. 28.—Arlene Stannard, 17, wife of George Tormey, died at Backus hospital, Norwich, Wednesday evening after a week's illness with typhoid fever. She leaves her husband, an infant son and her parents. The young couple made their home with Mrs. Tormey's parents at Fort Point. Mr. Tormey is employed in Jewett City by the borough electric light commission, is popular with many friends, and all sympathize deeply with him in his sudden bereavement.

CHESTNUT HILL

Misses Cora and Mary Chappell entertained a party of young people at their home Saturday evening. Guests were present from Willimantic, Columbia and Lebanon. Candy-making games, etc., furnished enjoyable entertainment.

Mrs. Lovejoy and Mrs. Eaton of Willimantic visited Miss Annie Loomis one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Peckham and daughters, Gladys, Ella and Evelyn, also William Clark, all of Manchester, visited Mr. Peckham's parents here Sunday, Jan. 18th.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield and A. A. Boothby were callers here Monday afternoon. Miss Hattie Manley came from Hartford on the train and accompanied them to Lebanon,

The Thimble Club was entertained Wednesday evening by Mrs. Albert J. Aberg of North A street. After the sewing hour, refreshments were served by the hostess.

NORWICH TOWN

Under the/asupices of the Norwich Town Men's league, a travel talk, illustrated with stereoptican slides was given by Don Houghton, Wednesday evening, in the First Congregational chapel, before a large audience.

The lecture which was strictly informal lasted for over an hour, during which period Mr. Houghton, displaying some very fine pictures, spoke in a reminiscent way of the many trips he had taken during the past twenty years, while this valuable collection was being accumulated.

The travelogue incidental to which 250 slides were used, introduced views of Hartford, Springfield, over the Mohawk trail to Albany and Schenectady, N. Y., through the Adirondacks, across New York state to Ausable Chasm, from the last mentioned place crossing into Vermont, through the White Mountains, thence to Portland, Me., and St. George N. B. There were also several sea pictures. These views, originally camera snapshots, were made and colored by Mr. Houghton expressly for his own use, he having selected things of personal interest while touring with his family or on occasions when accompanied by friends. He estimated that thousands of miles have been covered during the past twenty years, by boat, by train, but mostly by automobile.

While Mr. Houghton started with only a few slides, he has each year added to his choice collection which on occasions like that of Wednesday evening has been shown in half of New England.

Troop No. 20 Boy Scouts of Norwich Town were the guests of the Men's league at the lecture and greatly enjoyed the talk.

TWO PASSENGERS SEEK $15,000 FOR TROLLEY ACCIDENT INJURIES

New suits returnable before the superior court in February were filed Wednesday as follows at the office of the clerk of the court, Judge George E. Parsons, in this city:

Two passengers in a trolley car in New London on Aug. 8, 1924, Anna M. Richardson and Lina Madison, a minor, both of New London, have brought suit against the Connecticut company for injuries they received in a collision between the car they were in and another going in the opposite direction.

The Richardson suit is for $10,000 damages and the Madison suit for $5,000. The claim is that about 6.50 p. m., the two trolley cars came together near the corner of Broad and Hempstead streets, and the back of the seat in front of the plaintiffs was broken off and thrown against the plaintiffs, inflicting severe injuries. Miss Madison claims that she was also hit in the face by a part of the money box that was broken off. This has resulted in a permanent impairment of her breathing capacity through the division and thickening of the cartilage of the nose and she also received a permanent scar on the nose.

$10,000 For Automobile Accident.

Laura C. Morgan of New London, owner of an automobile in which she was riding, with E. Frank Morgan driving on Aug. 21, 1924, sues Robert Smith of Saranac Lake, N. Y., for $10,000 damages for injuries she received when she claims her machine was run into and driven against a tree by a machine operated by Smith.

The accident happened on the Goshen Point road, Waterford, opposite the home of W. Ellery Allen, when the Smith car, it is claimed, was coming along behind the Morgan car at a dangerous rate of speed and suddenly ran into the left side of the Morgan car, throwing the latter against a tree on the right hand side of the road. Besides injuries to Mrs. Morgan's arm, face, legs and body, her jaw became infected because of the injuries, several teeth had to be removed and her jaw was locked for a long period of time. She had to spend a considerable sum for medical care and the damage to the automobile amounted to $600.

Foreclosure Suits.

Pawel Sablewski of Norwich brings foreclosure suit against John Dydo of Preston for a note and mortgage on land in Preston on the highway to Preston City. The mortgage is for $2,500, dated Aug. 19, 1924, with provision for monthly instalment payments of $50 of which it is claimed four have been defaulted.

The Bankers Trust Co. brings suit against Edna and Leopold Schaller, husband and wife, for foreclosure of a $7,500 mortgage on the property 171 Broadway, in this city, dated May 31, 1923. Party defendants named are Bessie M. Winship, Groton, claiming a $2,000 mortgage, James E. Moore Norwich, claiming a $4,200 mortgage S. Alpheus and Walter Gilbert, claiming $100 attachment lien.

Suits For Divorce.

Suit for divorce from J. Waterman Wilcox of Mystic has been brought by Janet G. Wilcox of that place, alleging intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1920. They were married Sept. 20, 1916. Mrs. Wilcox asks alimony and the custody of two children, aged 3 and 5 years.

Edwin Allen Kearney of Groton, who married Vivian Lincoln Aug. 5, 1924, seeks divorce, alleging she committed a statutory offense at New London and elsewhere with persons unknown, and that she has been intolerably cruel to him ever since their wedding day. The defendant, Vivian Lincoln Kearney, is now residing in Philadelphia.

Alleging a statutory offense committed at various times since Nov. 27, 1923, with persons unknown, Roy W. Benson of New London seeks divorce from Alice Maynard Benson of that city. They were married July 29, 1919.

Bank Sues on Note.

The Winthrop Trust Co. of New London sues James V. Pelton of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Andrew J. Maynard of New London on a four months note for $500, dated July 12, 1924.

Henry D. Barrows of New London brings a foreclosure suit against Mary Raymond of Waterford and Alward J. Huggard of Montville on two mortgages on land in Waterford. The first is for $2,300, dated Jan. 24, 1924, and the second for $650, dated June 18, 1924. A mortgage lien is claimed by Huggard, the party defendant.

SETTLEMENTS REACHED IN SCHWARTZ VS. SCHMAUK

Three separate civil cases revolving around the affairs of the Paty Schwartz Co. of New London, and those of its stockholders, Paty and Joseph Schwartz, who own 210 shares of stock in the company, and William A. Schmauk, former treasurer of the company and his wife, Ida R. Schmauk, who also own 210 shares, scheduled for trial Tuesday before Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London, have been settled out of court. Nothing has been given out regarding the terms of the settlement, but it is understood that an agreement was reached whereby the Schwartzes would buy out the interest of the Schmauks in the company. It also is reported that criminal proceedings that have been instituted against Schmauk by the Schwartzes in which they charge him with misappropriation of funds, falsification of books, checks, etc., will also be dropped in accordance with the agreement.

The civil cases which have been compromised include a suit brought by the Schwartzes against Schmauk for damages of $60,000; the application of Schwartz for a writ of mandamus compelling the Schmauks to permit him to inspect the books of the company, and also his petition for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the company.

Litigation revolving around the Schwartz company has been before the courts for the past year.

NEW HAVEN ROAD HAD SURPLUS OF $1,998,650

The New Haven railroad finished 1924 with a balance for its stock for the first time or any year since 1917. After all prior deductions the road's surplus for last year amounted to $1,998,650. This is equal to $1.91 a share on the $157,117,000 New Haven stock outstanding. For the twelve months ended December 21, 1923, there was a deficit of $2,917,100. So New Haven made in 1924 just what it lost in 1923. The gain last year as compared with 1923 amounted to $5,915,755.

Last year's relatively favorable results were accomplished in the face of considerable falling off in gross revenue. Total operating revenues for the year amounted to $127,213,698 compared with $133,940,586 in 1923, a decline of $6,736,888. The road was able to cut down its operating expenses in 1924 as compared with 1923 by $10,335,771. The road's operating ratio last year dropped from 80.6 in 1923 to 76.6 in 1924.

Maintenance expenses were somewhat less, decreasing from 36.3 per cent. of gross in 1923, to 34.2 per cent. in 1924. An important factor in the better showing of net earnings last year as compared with the year before was the decrease in equipment rents. This item in 1924 amounted to $1,049,596 red ink, against $3,710,626 in the previous year.

LORD'S HILL FARM WINS BEST FLINT CORN PRIZE

The two blue ribbons in the tenear classes of white flint corn were won by the Lord's Hill farm at the Connecticut winter exposition at Hartford last week.

These comprised the two awards on flint corn, one by the state board of agriculture for best ten ears of white flint and that of the Connecticut Fairs association for best flint corn, all varieties of flint competing in one class, the first prize money being $25.

In order to exhibit at Hartford in this latter class it was necessary to show previously at an incorporated fair in the state. This was done with the Lord's Hill corn at North Stonington grange fair in September, there winning first premium. This makes the sixth consecutive year that the Lord's Hill flint has won the blue ribbon at North Stonington grange fair and that of the state board at Hartford, and the third consecutive year to win the first prize given for the best flint corn grown in Connecticut by the Connecticut Fairs association at Hartford.

Harland, widow of my son, Henry Harland, and upon her death to pay over the principal thereof with accumulations or so much thereof as may then remain to my stepbrother, Charles V. Andrews, but if he shall not survive her, to pay the same upon her decease to the Second Unitarian Congregational Society of Brooklyn N. Y.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

RHODE ISLAND REDS LEADERS IN 12TH WEEK

The twelfth week of the laying contest at Storrs was not particularly eventful as can be seen from the records below. The thirteenth week, however, began with a combination of below zero temperatures and a total eclipse of the sun. The fact that the Storrs contest was rather near the northerly edge of the belt of totality and the further fact that the ground was well covered with snow meant that darkness during the period of totality was not so pronounced as had been anticipated. The hens did not go back to their perches as had been supposed. Instead, they gathered on the floor in small groups apparently in an effort not to miss a single ray of the fast fading sun. Although the birds quit scratching in the litter and huddled together, observers could detect no indication of fright. Egg production apparently was not affected in any way. Should it subsequently fall off a little it will probably be due to the extreme cold weather and not to the eclipse.

First place for the twelfth week was again won by D. Hart Horton's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Farmingdale, L. I., with 47 eggs. Ellen Day Ranken's pen of White Rocks from Huntington, L. I., were again in second place with 45 eggs. A pen of Leghorns owned by Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., were in third place for the week with 44 eggs. Fourth place for the week seemed to be in great demand as four pens tied for this. They were R. W. Davis & Sons' pen of Barred Rocks from Rockland, Me., Deer Brook Poultry Farm's pen of Reds from Short Falls, N. H., Hobart E. Rice's pen of White Leghorns from Barre, Mass., and Hillton Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Suffield, Conn. Each pen laid 42 eggs for the week. The total production for the week was 3371 eggs or a yield of over 36 per cent. This is 97 eggs less than last week and relatively 1,251 eggs less than for the corresponding week last year but is relatively 275 eggs more than the eight year average when no lights were used. The grand total to date is 35,158 eggs.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS DENY WORLD END PREDICTION

The telephone in the study of Rev. E. L. Cardey, president of the Southern New England Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, 51 Whitmore street, Hartford, which includes Connecticut and Rhode Island [illegible] territory, rang furiously the other evening, "Hello," said the pastor. "What was that?"

"Did you know that the world was coming to an end on February 6, asked the voice of a Hartford man excitedly. "I didn't," replied the pastor, "and it isn't." "Oh yes, it is, the" voice broke in. "You Seventh-day Adventists are teaching it, too."

Last night Mr. Cardey characterized the widely spread propaganda of the second coming of Christ on February 6, and the prophesied end of the world on the same date, as the work of apostates who had been cast from the church and who had disguished themselves under the name of the Seventh-day Adventists, perhaps in a spirit of revenge. He mentioned the name of a California doctor as the leader of the fanatical movement and said that either he was "touched in the head" or else he was originating a malicious scheme to coin money.

"There are always people to believe anything, you know," Mr. Cardey added. He said that the Seventh-day Adventists had been hurt by the malicious propaganda which has been charged against them unfairly, and added that they, like many other Christian sects believe in the second coming of Christ, but that they pretend no more than any other religion to prophesy the crowning miracle of all ages.

The Seventh-day Adventists have gone on record, according to C. S. Longacre, professor of Bible Exegesis at Washington, disavowing any connection whatsoever with the sponsors of a fanatical movement which has set February 6, 1925, as the day and the year in which Christ is to return the second time to this earth."

Professor Longacre said "that the Seventh-day Adventists never did and never will set a date for Christ's return. In common with many other Christian bodies they believe that His return is imminent and is the only solution for this world's ills and the bringing in of a better day which shall know neither war nor sin nor death."

But Seventh-day Adventists stand immovable upon Christ's own statement about His return, according to Professor Longacre. Quoting from His own words the Seventh-day Adventists repeat: "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but my Father only."

JUDGMENT IS GIVEN AGAINST TWO DEFENDANTS

The W. S. Hill Co., of New York city was awarded a judgment of $4,270.25 by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London Wednesday after testimony was heard in the suit brought by the plaintiff company against Arthur C. Sheridan, individually, the Sheriden Co., of New York. The judgment, which is against both defendants, represents the sum of $3,847 which was the amount of a bill for advertising services contracted my Sheriden and the defendent company some time ago, together with interest from the date of contract. Due to the fact that service was made on Sheriden in New London the suit was brought there. Former Lieut. Gov. Clifford B. Wilson of Bridgeport appeared for the plaintiff, and Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey represented the defendants.

Willimantic, Conn., Jan. 28.—A Buick Six roadster owned by Joseph Burke of this city and operated by Harry W. Naven of South Coventry was damaged to some extent [illegible] struck head-on into a telephone pole on lower Main street about 11 o'clock Wednesday night after sideswiping a Hupmobile touring car owned and driven by Ovide Constant of North Windham road.

Naven had just turned out from Jackson street onto Main and the Hupmobile came up the right thoroughfare from the right. The Buick skidded in the snow and struck the rear fender of the Constant machine. The impact caused Naven to lose control of his car and it shot to the left of the road and into the pole.

SUBMARINE ON ROCKS AT ENTRANCE PORTSMOUTH, N. H IN BLINDING SNOW STORM

Wind is Blowing a Full Gale, With Seas Running High—Two Coast Guard Crews Are Standing By, Unable to Get a Line Aboard—Opinion Expressed That Unless the Storm Increased the Vessel and Its Crew of About 35 Men Would Be Safe—Storms Are Working Hardships All Along the New England Coast.

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 29.—The navy submarine S-48 went on the rocks at Jeffreys Point near the entrance of Portsmouth harbor in a blinding snow storm tonight. With heavy seas running and full gale blowing, tugs sent out from the Portsmouth navy yard and two coast guard crews were standing by, unable to get a line aboard. The extent of the damage to the submarine was not known.

Lieutenant Commander S. E. Bray, commanding the submarine sent a message to Captain T. C. Owens, acting commandant of the navy yard here stating that unless the storm increased the vessel and its crew of about 35 men would be safe.

The accident occurred at about 7.30 o'clock as the S-48 and the S-51 convoyed by the tender Chewink enroute from New London, Conn., Ct., attempted to enter the harbor. The S-48 piled onto the rocks on the point on the north side of Portsmouth harbor, about 300 feet from Fort Stark.

LATE REPORTS SAY S-48 IN DANGEROUS POSITION

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 30.—The submarine S-48 piled onto the rocks of Jaffreys Point last night and early today was reported by the Portsmouth navy yard to be in "a dangerous position." It was believed that heavy seas had carried away her radio apparatus. No messages have been received since 11.51 and help sent to the vessel has been unable to reach her.

The submrine went shore in a heavy snow storm, driven by a full gale. Heavy seas prevented two tugs sent from the navy yard from reaching the submarine. Meanwhile coast guardsmen, aided by United States troops from Fort Constitution struggled frantically to get a breeches buoy and mortar over seven miles of snow covered road to Fort Stark on Jaffrey's Point.

Fears for Safety of Crew

En route from New London, Conn., with the S-51 and the tender Chewink, the S-48 crashed on the point, a rocky ledge at the north of the harbor entrance. When S. O. S. calls faded out and suddenly stopped at just before midnight grave fears for the safety of the craft and her crew of 35 men were expressed.

S-48 COST $5,000,000 AND IS 240 FEET IN LENGTH

Boston, Jan. 30.—The U. S. submarine S-48 cost $5,000,000. It is 240 feet in length and 21 feet abeam.

Lieutenant Commander Stewart E. Bray, who commands the submarine, lives at 249 Montauk avenue, New London.

FROZEN TO DEATH WHILE WRAPPED IN BED CLOTHES

Houlton, Me., Jan. 29.—Charles Abernethy, 5, was frozen to death while close wrapped in bed clothing in the small house three miles rom here which he occupied alone. It was said that he had been dead or two days. Although he lived almost a hermit life, he was in comfortable circumstances and maintained a bank account in this city.

ANOTHER HEAVY FALL OF SNOW IN NEW YORK.

New York, Jan. 29.—While the city's snow troops labored today to clear the streets of the snowfall of yesterday, another storm, which the weather bureau predicted would continue through tomorrow and develop into one of the heaviest of the month, began to pelt their backs.

January, with a fall of 34.5 inches, preceding today's storm, has already smashed all existing records for the month. The city's bill for keeping its 350 miles of streets clear for traffic has mounted to millions—a silver lining in the snow for the 10,000 jobless men who have been kept almost continually busy aiding the regular street cleaning force of 6,000.

STORMS WORK HARDSHIPS ALONG NEW ENGLAND COAST

Washington, Jan. 29.—The recent extreme cold and storms along the New England coast have brought a number of calls for assistance to coastguard headquarters here from shore towns and communities in that region, with indications that some of them are wholly isolated, and the cutter Ossippee has been ordered to render air where it can.

Scores of the smaller harbors and landing places for the little communities are ice-locked, it is said, and a number probably are in distress because water transportation is their sole dependence for supplies of food and fuel and mail.

STONEHAM BROKERAGE DECLARED BUCKET SHOP

New York, Jan. 29.—For the first time in the history of his various encounters with the law, Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, today was declared to have conducted his brokerage business, which had offices in Chicago, Milwaukee, and New York, as a bucket shop.

John J. Delaney, for five years margin clerk for Stoneham's firm and at one time assistant office manager, testified in federal court that the Stoneham firm had bucketed 65 percent of its customers' orders up to the time the three branches were sold to the E. D. Dier company in March and May, 1921. He further testified that at the time of the sale the Stoneham firm did not deliver to Dier all of the stocks and securities listed in the sale. The government contends that Stoneham defrauded his customers through his alleged failure to deliver the stocks he supposedly held for them to the purchasing firm. Delaney testified that the Stoneham firm did not have all of the stock on hand.

Stoneham, Delaney said, owned seventy-five percent of the Stoneham firm; his brother, Horace A. Stoneham, owned fifteen percent and the third partner, Ross F. Robertson, had a ten percent interest. With this in the record, Victor House, government prosecuting attorney, asked Delaney if the Stoneham firm had executed all its customers' orders.

Delaney replied in the negative, and added:

"About thirty-five percent of the orders were executed. The remaining sixty-five percent were held so that if there was an advantage for the house in buying they would buy; if not, they would sell."

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD SHOPMEN END STRIKE

New Haven, Jan. 29.—The strike of New Haven railroad shopmen, called July 1, 1922, will end at midnight Jan. 31, it was announced after a meeting of the striking employes here tonight. The men received a letter from B. M. Jewell, president of the Shop Crafts union, stating that it was impossible to reach an agreement with the New Haven railroad officials.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF FLOUR IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Jan. 29.—Flour prices here today rose to the highest levels since November 1920, in reflection of the recent increase in wheat premiums.

Quotations on the best grade of family patents flour, today were boosted by mills here from 20 to 35 cents a barrel, making the range 10.60-10.75 a barrell when sold in carload lots.

DISAVOWS BELIEF OF END OF THE WORLD FEB. 6

Washington, Jan. 29.—Predictions that the world will come to an end on February 6 has stirred officials of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination, here, to a vigorous campaign to show that the church has disavowed any such belief.

The prediction was credited to Mrs. Margaret W. Rowen, of California, and some of her followers, despite church opposition, have disposed of their property, have quit work, and have been busy for several weeks preparing themselves for the end.

After a visit to church headquarters today, the Rev. Francis D. Nicol, of Mountain View, Calif., editor of one of the church publications declared the church was "disgusted" at the "wild prophecies."

Mr. Nicol challenged anyone to find in his files "where we have ever set a date for Christ to come," adding that the church had been wronged by having the prediction attributed to it.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT FUNERAL OF S. GLENN YOUNG

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 29.—(By the A. P.)—The funeral of S. Glenn Young, klan liquor raider, slain with Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas and two others in Williamson county's last outbreak Saturday night, was held here today. Tonight his body lies in its final resting place, a little hill in one corner of the Herrin City cemetery.

Close behind the funeral party as it moved to the cemetery came the cavalcade of automobile that have followed him in his trips about the county night and day for more than a year.

Immediately behind the hearse, which was surrounded by robed pallbearers, came his wife, his brothers and his children in Young's bullet-scarred car.

The crowd of 15,000 to 20,000 attending the funeral was smaller than had been expected, but the city could not have held many more.

Delegations attended the funeral from Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri.

SNOWATER BATH FOR THE STATUE OF DANIEL WEBSTER

Washington, Jan. 30.—The statue of Daniel Webster in Statuary hall at the capitol received an unexpected cold bath today.

Snow sliding from the dome of the hall punctured the roof and a stream of water ran down the inside of the dome, drenching the statue.

Statues of Charles Carroll of Maryland, Stephen F. Austin, of Texas, and Samuel Adams of Massachusetts, also were sprinkled.

Gen. Pershing in Brazil

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 29.—General John J. Pershing landed in Brazil this morning, at the coffee port of Santos, and was met by American Ambassador Edwin V. Ross. He will leave for Sao Paulo tonight and tomorrow will be the guest of the Sao Paulo state government.

FIRE DESTROYS THE HOTEL COOLIDGE IN WHITE RIVER JUNC'N

White River Junction, Vt., Jan. 29. Hotel Coolidge, the largest hostelry in this village, and the surrounding sections of Vermont, and New Hampshire, was burned to the ground tonight with an estimated loss of $300,000, by fire which, for a time, threatened to wipe out the business section. All of the guests are believed to have escaped. The hotel contained 340 roms.

The fire, which was said to have started in the dentist office of Dr. L. A. Brouillett in the hotel annex, spread rapidly although there was a considerable number of guests in the hotel at the time, all, it is believed, made their way out of the building in safety.

As the flames roared through the hotel which, since 1879 has been a landmark to travelers through Vermont and New Hampshire, firemen were forced to turn their efforts to saving nearby structures. The fronts of stores across the street from the blaze, were scorched by the heat and their plate glass windows broken. Only the absence of wind, it is believed, saved the village from destruction.

For more than an hour the offices of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company here were endangered to such an extent that telephone service was abandoned and the building emptied.

The hotel was damaged by fire about a year ago and since then had been extensively remodelled. The cause of the fire was undetermined tonight.

In the course of the blaze, the Lebanon, N. H., department, aiding the local fire fighters, was called back as the result of a fire in Lebanon.

The flames once leaped across the street and set the Wilmot garage on fire. Firemen, however, were able to check the spread in this building.

The hotel with the ten stores occupying the first floor stretched a full block in the center of the town. One of the heaviest losses, besides that suffered by thet hotel, was that of the Marshall Music company, wholesale dealers in pianos and other instruments, whose large stock was destroyed.

DEAD MAN IDENTIFIED AS 108 YEAR OLD SKIPPER

New York, Jan. 29.—"Age 55, hair black, occupation, seafaring," was the description broadcast by police in their efforts to identify the body of a man found last Monday morning, on a bench in Battery Park.

Two old salts identified the body today. They said it was that of their crony of more than half a century—Captain Myron Crozier, 108 year old skipper of the barge Empire, who since last Sunday has been missing from his pilot house.

The body was claimed by friends, and word was sent to descendants of the ancient mariner at Honesdale, a., where he was born on March 21, 1817.

Anecdotes with which Captain Crozier regaled white-haired youngsters of his circle encompassed an era when the map of the world and the book of knowledge underwent momentous revision.

The span of Captain Crozier's lifetime brought many changes to his country. To himself it brought two wives, 15 children, and 85 grandchildren. It brought him 40-odd years of adventure before the mast on the seven seas, and 50 years more of compartive placidity at the wheel of a barge in New York harbor.

Ten years ago he buried a son who was 80 years old. Five years ago, it was related, he engaged in fisticuffs with a skipper half his age, and sent the fellow to a hospital.

He imbibed "a ration of grog" on occasions, but he swore off tobacco in 1835, and to these two rules of conduct he attributed his long tenure on earth. His thick hair was black and he wore no spectacles.

His age, his knack for tales of adventure and his title of "Captain" made him chief raconteur of the little group of old time seamen with whom he cronied on Battery ark benches. Last Sunday night he didn't start home when the others did. Felt sleepy, he said.

Next morning, when his body was found, it was taken to the morgue, unclaimed. Captain Charles McGowan of Brooklyn and Frank G. Foote, barge owner of Bayonne, N. J., identified it today.

QUADRUPLE MONOPLANE BREAKS SPEED RECORD

Paris, Jan. 29.—A quadruple motorplane, carrying seven passenger and their luggage, today broke the speed record for passenger traffic between Paris and Brussels. The plane left Paris at 11.26 a. m., and arrived in Brussels at 12.30 p. m., negotiating the 17.38 miles in 1 hour and 11 minutes, an average hourly speed of about 145 miles.

The same plane left Brussels at 1.56 p. m., and arrived at Amsterdam at 2.45 p. m., making a grand average speed between Paris and Amsterdam of approximately 142 miles an hour.

SESSION OF THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

New York, Jan. 29.—Abolition of war and the development of agencies of international peace and justice are inescapable responsibilities of the churches, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, said tonight at a dinner in his honor at the Yale club. Their efforts in that direction, he said, will furnish "the acid test of the churches as a federated social force."

George W. Wickersham presided.

Lengthy Session of Assembly Forecast

Bills Provide For Increasing Salaries in Every Branch of State Government.

Hartford, Jan. 29.—No member of the legislature after today's busy session, is thought to have entertained any idea that the 1925 session of the general assembly would be short, would lack business or would be uneventful. From every side, especially from towns and cities and members of the legal fraternity, bills and resolutions poured in. Tomorrow will be the last day for new business.

Game and fishing bills, departmental bills, hospital appropriations, items creating of commissions, automobile bills, and a grist of minor matters simply flowed upon the desks of the clerks until they were overladen. Like last session the number of bills to adjust salaries on a rising scale came from every branch of the state government. Duplicate measures may be counted by the score but there was only one civil service bill for state employes. Three bills to deal with pollution of streams were put in but it was said by authority that their provisions were almost identical. It was a prediction that a bill to stop in some measure the pollution of streams and inland waters would be adopted this session.

The motor vehicle department put in most of its proposed changes in motor laws in blank, that is, the right to put in the text is reserved for a later date. This procedure means that all measures will be gathered into one bundle by the committee on roads, river and bridges and a public hearing held to sound out sentiment in line with the announcement of Commissioner Stoeckel that he relied upon opinion of autoists as to what changes were desired in the laws.

The chief incidents in the way of legislation today were the confirmation of Judge W. M. Maltbie to be an associate justice of the supreme court of errors, and the adoption of a bill to provide the chief executive with an automobile without expense of maintenance.

A sporting bill was that which calls for two duly licensed judges at the ringside at boxing matches.

Many bills which are now in resurrect ideas of legislators who have served in previous sessions. One such is the appointment of state's attorneys by the governor.

More than 70 bills are thought to have been offered today bearing upon affairs of New Haven, West Haven and Milford. Hartford contributed many as did Waterbury.

The gatherings of members in the corridors found conversation chiefly directed to the coming contest over the healing arts bill and the factional lineup impending in the New Haven county republican delegation. The latter was supposed to nominate in caucus this afternoon a member of the state board of agriculture, a county commissioner and two auditors. Representative John Lynch, of West Haven, the caucus chairman, at the outset was met by a point of order from Representative Samuel Hoyt, of New Haven that members had not been duly notified of the business to be done, and when Mr. Lynch declared the point of order was not well taken Mr. Hoyt appealed. A rising vote showed that Mr. Hoyt was supported 24 to 13, and without anything to be done the gathering naturally broke up after Mr. Averill of Branford had suggested that the next meeting be at the call of the chairman.

That such a precipitate ending of a caucus has occurred before could not be recalled by veteran members. The statutes require that county meetings shall be held within a certain time for election of members of the state board of agriculture and county auditors, and it has generally been assumed that representatives know when their county caucuses and meetings will be held. A brief notice of the time and room is usually inserted in the legislative bulletin.

There is a contest over a county commissionership in New Haven county with the faction headed by Acting Lieutenant Governor Brainard and Representative Averill supporting a Branford man, while others in the county have their candidates. It has been anticipated that the New Haven town delegation was opposing the field, and after the vote supporting Mr. Hoyt became known it was predicted that the caucus when held will be interesting. The present New Haven county member of the board of agriculture is Charles R. Treat, of Orange.

Another subject of discussion outside the legislative chambers was the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution. Some literature had been distributed on the members' desks, and it was forecast that welfare organizations supporting the proposed amendment will be numerically well represented in the senate galleries on Tuesday when debate is opened upon the matter.

Means on a charge of conspiring to defeat the end of justice in connection with the Crager system glass casket case, returned a sealed verdict at 8.30 tonight. The jurors who retired at 3.05 o'clock took five hours and forty-five minutes to agree.

GUILTY OF MURDER OF HIS TWO HALF NIECES

Fredericton, N. B., Jan. 29.—After deliberating ten minutes, a jury today found Harry D. Williams guilty of the murder of his two half nieces, Cynthia and Necia Foster, 14 and 10 years old, at Fosterville, last Nov. 25. Justice Leblanc sentenced Williams to be hanged on April 23.

Efforts were made by counsel for Williams to establish insanity as a defense, but the jury last Monday decided thta he was sane. Williams, called yesterday as the last witness for the defense, refused to take the stand.

The two girls were found murdered in a cabin occupied by Williams at Fosterville, on the Maine-New Brunswick border, on the night of Nov. 25.

Discovery of the double murder was made by Ward Foster, father of the children, when they failed to return to their home. Williams had taken homestead rights on a tract of land adjoining Grand lake and it had been the girls' custom to go to his shack, about a mile from their home, to cook for him. They went to their half uncle's place as usual that day and in the evening when they did not come home their father went in search of them.

He found their bodies, each with a bullet wound in the head, one on the bed in the shanty, the other under the bed. Their hands had been tied behind their backs.

Foster and scores of villagers scoured the woods all night for Williams. He was discovered early the following morning hiding behind a barn near Fosterville. The posse surrounded the building and Williams surrendered. While awaiting the arrival of the sheriff from Fredericton, a guard of citizens was formed to protect Williams who was being threatened with lynching by the angry crowd.

MILITARY COURT TO PROBE WOMAN'S DEATH

Newport, R. I., Jan. 29.—Private George C. Cordy, who confessed today, according to the Providence police, that he killed Mary Gleason, Newport domestic, whose body was found last Sunday in a moat at Fort Adams, was turned over to the military authorities tonight after several hours of questioning by the Newport police authorities. He will appear before a military court named some days ago to investigate the circumstances of the woman's death on the reservation.

Cordy, who was brought back from Providence today by Chief Patrick L. Sweeney of the Newport police, was arrested as a result of an undated letter received by the chief yesterday.

"I threw Mary Gleason into the moat at Fort Adams last Tuesday night," the letter said. "That's all I care to tell at present and will give myself up to you in a day or two." The letter was signed "Private George C. Cordy, Fort Adams," and was postmarked at Providence Jan. 27. A postscript said:

"At present I am A. W. O. L. Have been for two weeks."

If Cordy's story is accepted by the military court he will be turned over to the federal authorities at Providence for trial, it was said. Miss Gleason was last seen alive at 6 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 19, when she left to keep an appointment on the fort reservation with Private George P. Henderson, her fiance.

TELESCOPE FOR YALE SOUTH AFRICAN STATION

New Haven, Jan. 29.—The telescope for the new Yale observing station in South Africa left New York yesterday, aboard the S. S. The work is expected to occupy from seven to ten years.

Dr. Frank Schlesinger, director of the Yale university observatory, is already on the way to Johannesburg and Bloemfontein where he will choose a site for the instrument in one of the two places and make the necessary preparations for its foundation and housing. The precious object glass of the telescope which is 26 inches in diameter, and with its cells and boxes weighed 200 pounds, was taken by Dr. Schlesinger as "personal baggage" so that he could oversee the transhipments at Southampton and Cape Town.

FINAL ACTION IMMINENT ON POSTAL PAY AND RATE BILL

With All Amendments Disposed of in the Senate an Early Vote is Expected on Passage—Senator Moses Estimated the Measure Would Raise $50,000,000 Additional Revenue and Provide For Additional Annual Expenditure of $68,000,000 For Increases in Postal Employes Salaries—Effort to Make Pay Increase Retroactive to Only Jan. 1, 1925, Instead of July 1, 1924. Was Defeated.

Washington, Jan. 29. — With all amendments apparently disposed of, final action on the postal pay and rate increase bill went over in the senate late today until tomorrow, when an early vote on passage is expected by leaders.

As it stands, the bill carries as a rider a corrupt practice act limiting expenditures of candidates for the house to $2,500 and for the senate to $10,000, with detailed periodical reports from every political committee and, under certain conditions, for individual contributions. The rider was offered by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, and was approved by an overwhelming vote.

Modifications in the rate increases were voted into the bill today, but the rate section as a whole withstood two separate attacks which would have eliminated it entirely and left the bill in the same form as that passed at the last session and vetoed by President Coolidge, providing only for salary increases.

A proposed one cent a pound increase on advertising matter of publications subject to first and second rates was eliminated, and Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, in charge of the bill, obtained the approval of the senate for withdrawal of proposed slight increases in fourth class mail.

An attempt by Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader, to make the salary increases retroactive only to January 1 of this year instead of July 1, 1924, as provided by the measure, was defeated by a close vote. Senator Curtis said a sum of $38,000,000 was involved, but opponents of the proposal insisted congress would not be keeping faith with postal employes if the effective date of the salary increases was changed.

Speakers on both sides of the chamber expressed the opinion that if the bill is finally passed it will be rejected by the house because of the rate increase which, they argue, violate the constitutional requirement that all revenue raising legislation originate in the house.

In this connection, the house ways and means committee, which has control over such legislation, met today to consider its stand on the question whether the senate had exceeded authority with respect to such legislation. A sub-committee was named to study the question.

In its present form, Senator Moses estimated the measure would raise $50,000,000 additional revenue and provide for an additional annual expenditure of $68,000,000 for increases in postal employes' salaries.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, asked how the president could be expected to sign this bill if he vetoed the pay increase measure because it would cause a deficit in postal revenue.

Senator Moses said President Coolidge, in his veto message, had declared a bill for postal salary increases should provide for the "approximate" amount of revenue necessary to meet the advances, and he asserted that the present bill came within that stipulation.

HOW HERRIOT'S SPEECH IS RECEIVED IN GERMANY

Berlin, Jan. 29 (By the A. P.)—Premier Herriot's speech in the chamber of deputies yesterday caused a tremendous sensation in German political and official circles which do not conceal their disappointment at hearing such "aggressive" words from the lips of a statesman who had been regarded as an advocate of conciliation and peace.

Chancellor Luther will not await the reassembling of the reichstag Tuesday to reply to the foreign premier, but proposes to make a statement to the foreign journalists tomorrow evening.

The Berlin newspapers comment bitterly on the Herriot address. Vorwaerts admits that the majority of the French people live under the illusion that Germany is secretly arming and may re-attack France. It declares, however, that this illusion is ludicrous, although adding that it cannot be got rid of by simply declaring it so. Some observers here fear that the Herriot speech may add many recruits to the ranks of the nationalists who assert that it is hopeless and impossible to come to an understanding with France.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS LEADERS TO BAR LAFOLLETTE SUPPORTERS FROM CAUCUS

Washington, Jan. 29.—Definite decision has been reached by republican house leaders to bar all outspoken LaFollette supporters from the caucus which will be held Feb. 27 to determine the republican candidate for speaker and the party's floor leader in the next congress.

Invitations to the meeting went out today, but none was sent to the ten republican members of the house from Wisconsin, nor to Representatives Sinclair, North Dakota, and Keller, Minnesota, who also showed open hostility to the republican national ticket.

Announcement of the action, which will affect the committee assignments of the barred representatives and deprive those holding chairmanships of their posst, was made on the house floor by Representative Wood of Indiana, who issued the caucus call. His authority to ignore any members re-elected as republicans was challenged by Representative King, republican, Illinois, nad there were indications that the issue would be the subject of future debate on the flour and probably in the caucus.

Mr. Wood assailed the Wisconsin delegation and others who openly supported the LaFollette-Wheeler presidential ticket and declared they sought to wipe out the republican organization plurality in the house by urging the election of democrats or socialists.

Mr. Wood, who was the target of questions from a dozen or more members, including democrats, launched into his attack on the insurgent group after Representative Frear of Wisconsin had defended his campaign activities on behalf of the LaFollette ticket. Mr. Frear explained later that he was not aware that steps had been taken to bar him and his Wisconsin colleagues from the organization caucus, but but had taken the floor to reply to a recent speech of Representative Longworth of Ohio, the republican leader, in which hagning of insurgents from party councils was advocated.

Mr. Longworth plans to reply tomorrow to Mr. Frers. He broke into the discussion today to inquire whether any of the Wisconsin representatives had, in addition to urging Senator LaFollette's election, advocated the defeat of "conservative" republican members of the house or senate, and Mr. Frear replied that so far as he knew their campaigning had not gone that far.

The Wisconsin representatives affected by the caucus call and Representatives Sinclair and Keller were re-elected as republicans. Another member of the insurgent group who lined up for the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket, Representative LaGuardia of New York, now is designated as a republican, but was certified by election officials as having been re-elected as a socialist.

Listing the barred insurgents as a part of the minority, the republican organization will have a working majority in the next house that should give it a safe margin on major issues.

This is the time when the city sparrows and the large flock of pigeons that make the city streets their feeding ground may well be remembered by bird-lovers. The Railroad street flock of pigeons has succeeded in maintaining a total of about fifty in spite of the ravages caused among their number by thoughtless automobile drivers. For many years the late Mayor Daniel P. Dunn fed these pigeons during the dull hours of his newsstand business. He spent considerable time and money for the welfare of the birds and it was not an uncommon sight to see them crowded about him on the sidewalk with one or more of the less timid members perched on his shoulders.

The fellow who said that it never rains but it pours forgot to mention that when it snows it keeps right on snowing. Snow is about all that has occupied the arctic atmosphere around here for the past three days. There was a let-up in the downfall Wednesday and Thursday up to four o'clock on the afternoon when the gray skies again started to sprinkle crystaline flakes. It was too cold during the midnight hours of Thursday morning to be comfortable. Thermometers along Main street about 12.30 a. m. read fifteen below and automobiles were freezing while in actual motion. At intervals the silence of the evening was broken by the explosion of a muffler and many a Ford owner cranked in desperation to get home from the shows and dances held in town.

The date of the fifth annual entertainment of the American Thread Athletic association has been set for next month and the committee has taken up the work of making arrangements to have the annual event surpass all its predecessors. On the programme there will be entertainment of six acts of first class Lyceum vaudeville, refreshments and dancing to Peerless music. The event is the biggest of its kind here annually.

Brought to the attention of the police court Thursday morning was the case of Henry Kucharski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kucharski of Pleasant street this city, whose father was charged with maliciously keeping the child from attending school. School Enumerator Jean B. Paulhus, who is also truant officer and Archibald W. Buchanan, agent for the state board of education testified that the child was ven years and a legal age to attend school. They stated that the boy was physically and mentally fit as far as they could determine and that the parents were financially able to have him attend school. Kucharski denied that the boy was seven. He attempted to prove that the boy was born in November of 1918 on a farm in the town of Lebanon. As further proof he stated that he was in the draft having registered from the town of Windham on June 5, 1917 and he produced a certificate to that effect. He said that he had resided in Willimantic all the year 1917 and he claimed that he did not understand the mistake on the baptismal certificate which showed that the child was born December 23, 1917 and baptised in Lebanon December 25, 1918. He insisted that the child was born in November, 1918, and said that it was baptized about two weeks later. The tangle of dates and certificates failed to clarify the way to justice for Judge Foss and he accepted the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey to have the case continued until next Tuesday morning when Kucharski will be asked to prove definitely just where he was residing and where employed during 1917 and 1918, also to state as to the whereabouts of his wife during those two years.

Award for the contract of U. S. mail messenger between Willimantic post office and the railroad station has been made to Roy Frederickson of South Coventry, according to the statement issued Thursday by Postmaster Walter R. Wilbur Hobby, of Mansfield, present mail messenger, will leave the position January 31st. Mr. Frederickson has been employed for some time as driver of one of the trucks of the American Thread Company.

WILLIAM J. BATTEY DIES WHILE DINING IN NEW YORK

Battey, president of Battey, Trull & Co., operators of the Pawcatuck Woolen Mills at Potter Hill, and a prominent member of the summer colony at Watch Hill, died suddenly Wednesday as a result of a heart attack while dining at the Manhattan club in New York. It was only last Monday that he was here on one of his numerous business trips. He was entertained at dinner that day by A. Mr. Battey was one of the best known figures in the woolen industry. He began his business life with Browning, Wood & Kingman in Boston, and in the late 80's, became associated with Rockefeller & Shepherd. His next position was as agent of the Broad Brook mill. Dec. 1, 1899, Mr. Battey organized the firm of W. J. Battey & Co., with Frank Trull and Thomas Foulkes as partners, handling first the output of the Dunn Worsted Mills and later, in 1920, of the Pawcatuck Woolen mills as well. In 1910 the firm of Battey, Foulkes & Trull was organized. With the retirement of Thomas Foulkes, the firm was succeeded by Battey, Trull & Co., under which name it has continued.

Mr. Battey was one of the founders of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers and for many years was active in the work of that organization. He also was active for years in the 23rd regiment of Brooklyn, with rank as captain.

The Colonial club, the Misquamicut Golf club and the Watch Hill Yacht club were among the local organizations in which Mr. Battey held membership. Officer Ryan of the Putnam police force a few days ago saw an old woman wandering aimlessly on South Main street. On her feet she had only rubbers, and about her head a shawl. The officer took her to the station house and for an hour she refused to tell who she was, but finally said she was Mabel Westcurt and had run away from Killingly town farm. An officer from Killingly took her back to the farm.

CAMP WOODSTOCK FUND RAISED EXCEPT FOR $4,500

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 29.—The money needed for the purchase of the forty acres or more of land at Camp Woodstock by the Y. M. C. A. of Windham, Hartford and Tolland counties for a permanent summer home has not been entirely raised, but there is no question but that it will be. Albert H. Williams of Woodstock, chairman of the subscription committee for Windham county, as well as treasurer of Woodstock Camp, Inc., expresses himself as assured of the successful outcome of the movement. The balance needed on the land purchased is $4,500. This was apportioned equally between the three counties. Windham has almost raised its quota and the committees for the other two counties are making satisfactory progress.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gladding of Thompson have pledged $2,000 for the erection of dormitories and other subscriptions for the same purpose are expected. Mrs. Hall, widow of Col. W. H. Hall of South Willington, has agreed to give $5,000 for a dining hall. Building operations will begin as soon as the weather will permit.

A woman may believe only half of what she hears, but she always hears twice as much as a man.

PUTNAM

As in past years, government officials will render assistance to residents of Putnam and vicinity who desire it in making out income tax returns. Leon T. Wilson of this city, who is attached to the New London division of federal income tax officials, is to be at the office of the city clerk in the municipal building, Church street, from Feb. 24 to Feb. 28, inclusive. On the last two days Francis T. Hickey of the Hartford division will be there also. Any person who needs help in filling out the income tax blanks may call on them for aid, which is to be given without charge.

William B. Whittemore, 79, for many years a resident of Putnam, a veteran of the Civil war, died Tuesday night at Webster, Mass. He had the unique distinction of being a member of the same regiment and same company as his father during part of his military service.

He was born in Thompson, Conn., Jan. 25, 1846. When 17 he enlisted at Plymouth in Company E, 58th Massachusetts Volunteer infantry. At the battle of Cold Harbor he and his father fought side by side. The younger Whittemore was wounded so seriously in this battle that he was discharged from the service.

He went to Norton, Mass., where he lived three years, and then came to Putnam in 1868. For a long period he drove the stage coach which made daily trips between Putnam and Eastford. He was a commander of A. G. Warner post, G. A. R., and for many years was the marshal of Memorial day parades.

Feb. 25, 1874, he married Lydia Baker of Phoenix, R. I. For the past seven years he had lived in Webster and during nearly all of that time he had suffered from an incurable disease. He had been unable to leave his bed-chair for the past six months.

He is survived by four children, Mrs. Harry Jackson of East Haven, Conn., George Whittemore and Mrs. Charles Madison of Putnam, Mrs. George Tracey of Mitineage, Mass.; two brothers, Daniel Whittemore and Press Clark Whittemore, and a sister, Mrs. Harriet Louise Moulton, who also live in Putnam. The body will be brought here for burial.

The Woodstock Congregational church needs only $63 to meet its assessment on the $1,400 of First National bank stock which it held when the bank closed last August. As with every other owner of bank stock, it meant the loss of the investment, the loss of the income and an assessment on the face value of the stock. Members of the church, former members who have moved away, and residents of Woodstock who are not affiliated with the church have contributed to meet the loss. More than one-third of the $1,400 needed was given by two prominent citizens of the town who are not connected with the church. And this contribution came under the classification of "he gives twice who gives quickly," for it was received soon after the church's loss was made public. It proved an inspiration for the members of the church. An organized campaign was begun, and the fund as announced by Albert H. Williams has reached $1,337.

At the social held by the Knights of Columbus at their rooms there were 20 tables of whist. Miss Maria Giraca won the first prize, a twin compact, and Irwin Tourtellotte the gentlemen's prize, a combination week end set. Mrs. Delorme was given the consolation award—a doll, and Fred Paul the men's consolation—a bag of marbles. During the evening refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lapiant and children of Putnam and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Racine and children of Mechanicsville attended the party at Webster in honor of the 50th birthday of Mrs. Joseph Pelland.

The pulpit of the Baptist church is to be occupied next Sunday by Rev. J. B. Lockwood, who will be permanent supply for the present.

Elmer H. Cortiss of Grosvenordale who has been re-elected county commissioner by the republican members of the general assembly from Windham county, will enter upon his seventh term next October. With the exception of one year and a half during the Baldwin administration, when there was a deadlock in the assembly, he has served continuously since 1897. His knowledge of the duties of the office and his business capacity make him a very valuable official. Mr. Cortiss is one of the substantial citizens of Thompson, a member of the school committee and for several years was town tax collector. He is

Jewett City people are familiar with the well known "Off agin—on agin—Brannigin," but it has nothing on the famous Griswold cider case, which after being on and off at frequent intervals for almost three years, is now "on agin." Dr. G. H. Jennings, Griswold's republican representative in the state legislature, has this week introduced a bill, upon the request of John Potter of Griswold, praying that the state reimburse Mr. Potter for the deterioration of his cider while it was stored in the town house at Jewett City, under the seal of the state authorities.

It is understood that Representative Jennings is not sponsoring the bill, which action on his part is not required, as the measure was introduced by request.

No civil case, to say nothing of the criminal procedure, ever caused more widespread interest than did the Connecticut cider trial. On the 3d day of July, 1923, the state police seized 129 barrels of cider in John Potter's cellar. He was held for trial and the cider was brought to Jewett City and stored in the basement of the town hall. The 16th of July Mr. Potter was granted a stay of proceedings for one week. The 17th of July Mr. Potter was brought to trial in the Griswold town court and, being found guilty, was fined by Judge Arthur M. Brown $50 for reputation, $200 for actual sale and $100 for keeping with intent to sell and exchange, in violation of the law. An appeal was taken.

Monday, the 24th day of July, 1922, the memorable civil case was tried before a jury of six men—Daniel L. Phillips, William Bitgood, L. D. Howe, George Frink, Henry Guile and J. W. Fayne. Attorney Thomas H. Shields of Norwich appeared for Mr. Potter, and the late Judge H. H. Burnham for the state. The court room was crowded all day. The case being to determine whether or not Mr. Potter should get his cider back. The case caused lively interest all over this end of Connecticut, somewhat because of the value of the cider, which before it was disturbed by the state officers was said to be $14,000.

After receiving the charge from Judge A. M. Brown, and following an hour's deliberation, the jury returned a verdict for the defendant, because of lack of evidence. The jury was largely composed of avowed prohibition men, men to whom a hinted consideration would have been an insult. An appeal was denied the plaintiff on the grounds that under the law no right to appeal by the plaintiff existed.

The cider was ordered returned to Mr. Potter's cellar.

Mr. Potter claimed that the value of his property had greatly depreciated due to its being moved to the Jewett City town house, several miles away.

The cider was finally sold by its owner to a Massachusetts firm for a price said to show an appreciable discount from its original value. Sergeant Flynn of the state constabulary force, who made the seizure, also Judge H. H. Burnham, who handled the case for the state, have died since the day of the trial.

It is not within the province of any citizen to bring suit against the state of Connecticut, hence the bill is introduced contemplating the recovery, in the line of damages, of around $2,000 for alleged depreciation of the cider while held in the state's possession.

Prosecuting Attorney Richard Dudkowski of Jewett City, on request from the house committee, furnished to them Thursday the complete data of the civil trial.

On account of a broken truck frame on one of the cars of a freight, in the Seven Mile curve, Thursday forenoon, traffic was held up about three hours. Forty school pupils attending the Norwich Academy and Plainfield High school lost the morning session. People with tickets for Boston, to go via the 9 a. m., though much inconvenienced, were obliged to give it up. A considerable number depending on the trolley service to reach Norwich for business engagements went by automobile. The southbound steam train due to leave at 11.15 got the block to Read's, 20 minutes late. Trolley service was normal after 1 p. m.

No winter of recent date has been marked by as many sharp changes in temperature as the present. At 10 p. m. Wednesday the mercury had dropped to 6 below, no wind, still and cold enough, as one man said, to freeze two dry rags together. At midnight the weather began to moderate, with a steady rising thermometer, until at 4.55 Thursday afternoon, with the reading at 33 degrees above, the ninth snowstorm of the season started in with a rush.

It was predicted by local weather sharps late Thursday night that this (Friday) morning would find snow enough in this section to solve any water shortage problem.

As there were some who seemed a little bit skeptical relative to the remarkable sight witnessed by Mrs. E. M. Gray at her home on Taylor Hill in connection with last Saturday's eclipse, the following from the state board of education is quoted:

When the sun is about half covered, hold up a piece of pasteboard not less than a foot square, having a smooth round hole in its center about the size of your finger. Then when held at the proper angle, if you let its shadow fall on something smooth you will see a perfect image of the partially eclipsed sun. Mrs. Gray had these conditions furnished ideally, by a southern window through which the sun's rays blazed down during the early stages of the shadow's coming on, then a keyhole in a hall door across the room did the focusing, and she saw the eclipse in miniature slowly advance along the floor. No such condition ever existed before and in her life never will again. The state astronomer says she saw what no one ever saw before through a keyhole. In real fact. The sight of a lifetime, and likely the strangest keyhole view on record, and there are some.

Rev. G. K. Gray, William Marshall, Mrs. J. W. Carter and Mrs. A. C. Burdick were in Norwich Wednesday evening as delegates from the Congregational and Methodist Sunday schools to attend the session of the New London County Council of Religious Education held at the Central Baptist church. Rev. E. E. Scates intended to be present, but mistook the hour of meeting, going to Norwich at noon instead of at night.

SEED SELECTIONS FOR HOME GARDEN

Are you going to have a home garden this year? If so, have you chosen the location, have you made a plan of your proposed garden, and last but most important, have you ordered the seed that you will need for planting this spring? It is very essential to buy seed from reliable sources. Many people know that they want sweet corn, but they may not know that golden bantam sweet corn is considered the sweetest and most palatable.

In selecting seed for a home garden, one should pick those varieties that will yield fairly well, but above all, those varieties that will yield the best quality. Of course, there are several varieties of each vegetable that will answer the above requirements. The following varieties of vegetables can be grown to advantage in this county.

Cabbage—Jersey wakefield, early; danish ball head or flat dutch, late.

Spinach — Victoria or Bloomsdale, for early; new zealand for summer.

Carrots—Early scarlet for very early carrots and danvers half long or chantenay for the main crop.

Beets—Early wonder for early bunch beets. Crosby egyptian or detroit dark red for the main crop.

Parsnips—Hollow crown or improved guerneey.

Lettuce—Bib Boston for early; new york for later; black seeded simpson for loose leaf lettuce.

Leek: Large flag.

Peas—Alaska, little marvel or nott's excelsior for early; for late, telephone or admiral dewey.

Radishes — Scarlet globe, french breakfast or white icicle.

Parsley—Champion moss curled.

Onions—Use sets rather than seed; yellow globe, danvers or red wethersfield.

Beans—Bush, green pod, stringless golden cluster wax.

Beans — Bush, green pod, singles green pod, yellow pod. Any of the rust proof garden wax.

Beans shell—Kidney, red; yellow eye improved and dwarf horticultural.

Tomatoes—Bonny best, john baer or dwarf stone.

Cucumbers—White spine, boston, pickling of davis perfect.

Yellow sweet corn—Golden bantam.

White sweet corn—Early crosby, mammoth white cory for extra large eared corn.

Peppers — Chinese giant, or large bell or bull nose.

Turnip—Snowball or white egg.

Rutabaga—American improved purple top yellow.

Squash—Giant summer crook neck for early; blue or green hubbard for late.

Cauliflower—Early snowball.

Melons—Honey dew; rocky ford.

Pumpkins—Connecticut field; winter luxury.

Celery—Giant pascal.

GETTING A SUPPLY OF BABY CHICKS

Poultrymen who are anticipating buying baby chicks should plan to contract at once with some breeder for their spring hatch. There are many reliable breeders in this county who hatch and sell several hundred or several thousand chicks each season. These men usually have nothing to sell during April and May as one finds that their hatches are all contracted for and that this source of high class poultry is effectively closed. Many of these breeders are at present contracting to hatch and deliver their next season's supply. It is very easy in the fall to appreciate the fact that the late hatched chickens are not so desirable as those from the early spring hatches; conversely, it is easy in the spring to persuade oneself that the late hatched chicks are almost as good as the early hatched, birds when it is discovered that practically all of the early hatches are already sold.

FEEDING COWS FOR ECONOMY

How do you feed your dairy cows? Are you feeding primarily to secure production, or are you feeding to cut costs? The rational method, of course, is to feed as cheaply as possible and still maintain production. How can this be done? Considering conditions from the standpoint of the average milk producer—he who sells his milk or cream wholesale — the following suggestions for general adoption are offered:

Cull out all non-producing or inefficient producting animals; feed home grown roughages; limit feed purchases to grain alone; substitute roughage for grain as much as possible; cut your board to fit the productive capacity of your farm.

Boarder cows always an expense. A few minutes a day keeping milk records of the individuals in your herd will ultimately disclose the poor producers. Get rid of these and lift a burden from your good cows.

Do you think your neighbors can grow hay and corn and sell it to you cheaper than you can raise it yourself? That is the logical conclusion to draw when you buy roughage for your cows, and if it is true, your farm operations need attention. It is an uneconomic transaction. Grain will probably have to be purchased, but let it be the only feed not produced on the farm. Up to certain limits, roughages can take the place of grain in the dairy cow's ration and can be substituted with a reduction of feed costs. This is a most important point when unit milk prices are low.

GREENHOUSE TOMATOES

Greenhouse tomatoes ripened on the vine are superior in flavor to those grown outdoors in warm sections, and picked unripe in order to get them to the distant consumer without undue loss, the United States department of agriculture finds in its study of greenhouse tomatoes, just issued as Farmers' Bulletin 1432. Tomatoes marketed during the winter and early spring months when prices are high are usually served as a salad or as in ingredient of a salad. Thus a comparatively small quantity is enough for several persons, making the tomato as economical to the housewife as other available salad crops.

The greenhouse owner must make a large investment in houses and equipment, and he must be prepared to spend large sums for the maintenance of conditions suitable for this exacting crop, says the department. On the other hand, a grower 2,000 or more miles from the markets must spend large sums for picking, packing, transportation, and handling before his crop can be realized upon. The products of properly located greenhouses ranges where fuel, labor, and other essentials can be obtained economically are usually able to compete successfully with tomatoes grown at distant points out of doors. The vegetable-forcing industry is increasing in importance, and the tomato is receiving its full share of attention.

PUREBREDS EXCELL IN TON LITTER CONTEST

In the Minnesota ton-litter contest for 1924 purebred pigs made the best showing, with grades and crossbreds also doing well. Of 43 farmers whose litters made a ton or more of pork in 180 days, not one had a scrub litter. In commenting on this result in a letter to the United States department of agriculture, H. G. Zavoral, livestock specialist of Minnesota, remarked, "The ton-litter contest demonstrated the value of well-bred pigs for pork production. It showed that purebred hogs are more highly developed machines to convert farm foods into pork."

Another advantage which Mr. Zavoral pointed out, in the interests of livestock improvement, is the greater maturity of well-bred stock. Most of the pigs in the litters that made the ton were ready for the market in from 5 to 5 1-2 months. This shorter time lessens the risk from disease. More than that, pigs crowded for the early market bring higher prices, on the average, than those marketed late when the markets are flooded.

The weights of the successful litters ranged from 2,003 to 3,102 pounds, with an average of 2,335.4 pounds. The average number of pigs in the litters "making the ton" was 10.8 and their average weight was 216.3 pounds.

POULTRY PLAGUE WARNING ISSUED

The European poultry plague is fatal when it gets a foothold in any poultry community. There is no way of controlling it in a flock. Within 24 hours or less it will generally kill off three-fourths or more of the birds, and it is best to kill and burn the others with the carcasses at once to prevent the possible spread to other flocks.

The following precautions are suggested: Allow no new birds to come into your poultry plant; allow no one but the attendant to go into the poultry house; do not go to other poultry plants; keep a pan of disinfectant near the door to step into before entering the plant. Keep the birds healthy by supplying green feeds etc.

WEED BURNING URGED.

Burning weed-infested roadsides in December will aid much in counteracting infestation of weeds during the summer, according to A. A. Hanseh, of the Purdue university department of agricultural extension.

Seeds from weeds growing along fence rows and roadsides are readily blown during the winter months across the snow crust into the nearby fields, in which they take root in the summer months.

Not only does weed burning destroy the weed seeds, but it eliminates the winter hibernation quarters of cinch bugs and other injurious insects. A few hours spent in burning roadside weeds in the winter may save hours of work for the farmer. The wind and snow crust are excellent media for scattering weed seeds to all parts of the farm.

ATTORNEY GENERAL STONE'S POSITION.

There is not much satisfaction to be gotten, by those in the senate who have been opposing the approval of the nomination of Attorney General Stone for a place on the United States supreme court bench, from the statement which has been made by the attorney general concerning the presentation of charges against Senator Wheeler before a grand jury in Washington.

As is often the case when such matters are under consideration, the charge that the attorney general is playing politics has been advanced. It is pointed out that he is pushing this matter in order to advance his chances of approval. That is of course just the wildest of guesses advanced by those who are disposed to attach a political tinge to everything that is undertaken by others.

When consideration is given to such a claim it requires but little serious thought to come to the realization that any such political move at a time like the present would be the worst thing that could happen. Anyone engaging in such would be putting his neck in a noose. A move of that kind would be the quickest means of defeating confirmation, instead of aiding it.

Attorney General Stone states clearly why the new indictment is being sought and why it is being brought to the attention of a Washington grand jury. He sets forth the matter clearly and convincingly and furthermore he makes it evident that he is responding to duty rather than to politics. Under the political method of the surest way of getting results would be to pigeonhole any such plan. Attorney General Stone is convinced there is ground for action and he is determined to go ahead with it regardless of the effect it may have upon his nomination.

That, it must be said, is the kind of an attorney general the country wants, the type of a man in whom it has confidence and one whose motives are deserving of support rather than opposition. The senate has been too tolerant of some who have sought to play horse with his nomination.

GUARANTEEING EUROPEAN BOUNDARIES.

While there are reasons for regarding it as a desirable end and the vehicle for smoothing out many European problems, there is no certainty that it will be possible to bring about an understanding between Germany, France and Belgium whereby the existing boundaries would be guaranteed.

There is interest that such an idea should be advanced by Germany, but in making it Germany must have pondered whether its proposal would be taken seriously.

Consideration of it is bound to bring up a review of the German attitude since the end of the war. It is inevitable that it should be pointed out that before the war Germany had promised to respect the neutrality of Belgium but when it came time to respect that promise the agreement proved to be no more than a scrap of paper. The guarantee amounted to nothing and Belgium suffered.

After the war there was a chance for Germany to show that it was through with such methods, but its conduct has not been such as to establish full confidence. Germany ducked, dodged and did everything possible to avoid the promises made under the Versailles treaty. Instead of doing its best it did its worst in trying to live up to the terms. It spared no expense to embarrass the allies, and now came to the present understanding under the Dawes plan after it had gotten to the length of its rope.

Had Germany acted differently the allies forces would have been moving away from the Rhine before now, and yet the idea of a guaranteed boundary between these countries is a worthy one. The big task that confronts Germany in presenting it is to convince the nations involved that it will show greater respect for a promise made now than it did for the neutrality of Belgium. What that means is thoroughly understood by Germany in the light of its own experiences. It is unfortunate that it has not made the most of its opportunities for the removal of such suspicions as its own conduct has created.

DEALING WITH LAW BREAKERS.

Some few instances have been noted of late where judges have indicated their recognition of the need of imposing stiffer sentences and getting away from the practice of using too much leniency in order to discourage those inclined to commit crime.

Five young men, averaging less than 25 years of age, were convicted of robbery in Indianapolis recently and they were sentenced to prison for terms ranging from 10 to 20 years. In his comment upon this action the Indianapolis News says, "This will do more to discourage the business of robbery than all the academic discussions of crime and the best methods of curbing criminals. . . There need be no sympathy wasted on men and women who habitually break the law. Practically all of them know the quality of their acts and are lawless from choice rather than because of heredity, lack of parental care, or because they are not mentally responsible for what they do. Law enforcement and plenty of it is the best medicine for what ails the community."

In this connection there is special interest in the letter which the motor vehicles registrar of Massachusetts has sent to the district attorney of Worcester asking for a heavy sentence in the case of a man charged with operating his car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He points out that the man has been arrested on this charge five times and despite his convictions has not served a day for his offenses, and directs attention also to the fact that since the first case he has been driving without a license.

This is one of the instances where projection of the public becomes a joke. Leniency repeated over and over again is interpreted as a license to do as he pleases by this individual, and it is the very same spirit that is encouraged when those who violate other laws are given to understand that no punishment can be expected. Punishment is employed to penalize and prevent. After a certain age the slap on the wrist and the shaking of a finger do not amount to much.

THE AMENDMENT'S FUTURE.

What is going to be the result of the adverse of a sufficient number of states to prevent the ratification of the proposed 20th amendment?

There is no reason to suppose that the states which have not acted will deny themselves an expression just because ratification is not possible now. It seems probable that they will act quite the same as they would have had the opposition to the amendment not developed so strong. They can be expected to want to go on record even as other states have.

That there is to be no discontinuance on the part of the advocates of the measure is not necessarily surprising. While it is impossible to obtain a sufficient number of ratifying states, unless some states about face, it can be expected that all possible pressure will be brought to bear in that direction. It gives promise of becoming a continuous performance until ratification is obtained. This means a fight in every state where the legislature has not ratified, even though it has refused to ratify, and the effort may continue for many years.

It is because of such possible prolongation that time limits have been fixed concerning the adoption of certain amendment, but when it becomes evident, as indications now promise, that there is such a strong opposition to the amendment among the states, there would seem to be furnished a good and sufficient referendum to congress as to how the states feel and thereby provide good reason for that body to withdraw the amendment and accept the verdict expressed.

For that reason the expression of all the states is desirable.

COLLECTING TOLL.

Connecticut has gotten rid of its tollbridges, and in other states there is opposition to such a method of collecting building and maintenance expense, but the time has not come when all states regard the idea as obsolete.

A large and costly new bridge connects Pennsylvania and New Jersey at Philadelphia. In the former state there has sprung up a desire to wipe out all toll propositions, whether roads or bridges. The state has acted with that object in view. But what suits the Keystone state in that respect does not meet the requirements of New Jersey. The bridge over the Delaware is a joint affair. New Jersey relies upon toll for the meeting of its part of the expense but Pennsylvania is opposed to it. It may be that it will be adjusted by those using the structure paying toll on the New Jersey half and crossing the Pennsylvania half free.

New Jersey figures that those to whom the bridge is an advantage should pay for the benefits which they derive from it. It is a proposition that has been advanced for many years and many cities and states have resorted to it. New Jersey figures that those in that state who may never see the bridge should not be burdened with taxation in order to provide accommodations for those who may never pay any tax in the state.

Perhaps it also figures that, while it considers it necessary to depend upon this source of income for the expense of construction and maintenance, the state of Pennsylvania is collecting enough to offset it from the consumers of anthracite coal without the state upon whom it saddles a tax for every ton. That is toll which New Jersey is unable to collect.

ON THEIR OWN FEET

Marina tried not to look envious as she listened to Grace chatter on.

"Mother says she's sorry Ted and I are to live with his family," Grace had said. "Something about young people being better off in their very own home. Mother is so dead serious! Why, I would be a perfect goose not to jump at the chance of our own suite of rooms in that huge Fifield place, six servants and myself free to go and come and enjoy living! Ted's people are just crazy to have us with them! Think of the parties I can give!"

"It will be lovely," Marina had said, suppressing that little jab of envy. "S'pose you'll ever come to see me in my little two-by-four bungalow where I wash my own dishes?"

"Don't be a goose, Grace reproved happily. She could afford to be honest from the heights where she was safely established. "Why, if we had to live on just Ted's salary I'd be in a three room flat scrubbing kitchen sinks myself! It just happens this way."

Afterward it turned out that Grace was very frequently at Marina's little house. They were cozier and more free that way than when Grace was the hostess and at home Grace had to run the gantlet of butler, maids and Ted's mother's guests, committee meetings and what-not.

"I never saw people have so much company!" Grace exclaimed somewhat peevishly as she ran in one morning in and Marina in the depths of cake and salad making. "I wanted to have two tables of bridge this week but Mother Fifield has two dinners on and her club besides and the maids won't stand any more company for a few days. You never imagine anything like the way we have to manage to keep them good-natured.

"Some advantage in being poor," Marina remarked cheerfully, beating frosting with vigor. You are your own boss, so long as you keep inside the salary check! Why don't you and Ted wander over Sunday afternoon and we'll sit out in the back yard and watch Jim cut the grass. We'll get tea together!"

"Wed love to!" Grace accepted promptly.

Marina thought about that prompt acceptance after her friend had rolled away in the luxurious sedan she was driving. Marina knew what Sunday afternoon were at the big Fifield home—old silver and a wonderful tea, crowds of people, much talk and gayety, but "crowds."

"They seem to have so much fun!" Grace exclaimed as she and Ted went home one night after a card game at Marina's. "And yet they don't have anything compared with us!"

They were entering the handsome front door of the Fifield house as she spoke. A sofa-footed maid intercepted them.

"Mrs. Fifield left word," she said "that Mr. Fifield is not feeling well and please not to make any noise as you go through the corridor."

"One of his sleepless spells," Ted whispered as they tiptoes to their rooms. "I wish you had a piano up here. I could read and smoke while you played!"

"When?" queried Grace a trifle frimly. They looked at each other in silence. Nearly always there was a headache, or insomnia, guests, demands from downstairs for their presence to enliven the evening, something to interfere with their time. Every luxury on earth was theirs except freedom to be a family—their own family.

"If we could just have Marina and Jim up here in our rooms informally!" Grace burst out once. "Whenever I mention wanting company your mother simply breaks her neck making a real party out of it with everything wonderfully perfect and refreshments to the end of the limit. Sometimes I think Jim and Marina don't like to come because they have to go to so much fuss dressing and everything. And then there are always others here because when you give a party you have to have more than two! If I could just make some sandwiches and let it go at that—weren't those good Marina had last night?"

Most of their friends though there must have been a family fuss when Ted and Grace left his beautiful home and set up housekeeping in a bungalow similar to that of their special friends. "Ted's folks seem friendly enough with them," ran the gossip. "There car is there most every day—but you can't tell us! No girl in her right mind is going to scrimp along and do her own work unless she has to when she has the chance to live in a place like the Fifield house, no sirree! Must-a been trouble of some kind!"

But Marina and Jim did not misunderstand. They knew there were different kinds of castles in the world. —Exchange.

Jefferson, the Barnstormer

Descendant of prominent actors, reared in the atmosphere of the theatre and "stage struck" at an early age, Joseph Jefferson endured the bitterest hardships.

Born in Philadelphia, his playground was amongst stage scenery. At three he took part in "Living Statues" and at four danced in blackface with Dan Rice, the minstrel.

After paying part of the fare by acting before the captain of an Erie canal boat, he "barnstormed" with his parents in "open wagons through the then "Wild West." Following his father's death he and his sister danced in a theatre at $6 a week and his mother ran a boarding house, which did not pay. In another company he failed, because of fright, to sing "The Star Spangled Banner" and was hissed off the stage.

Later by playing in hotel dining rooms the little family made its way to Matamoras and acted before United States soldiers during the Mexican war. The soldiers left, and Joe and a partner ran a lunch counter in a bar room until a murder aroused his disgust.

Grasping an opportunity to star in a stock company at Cumberland, Md., he quit to attend his mother's funeral in Philadelphia. When he sought a position there he was told he "looked more like an undertaker than a comedian," but argued his way into a job at $20 a week.

Then 20, he was married. Later he acted in the Chatham theatre, New York, and on the road. Next a stage manager, he was taken ill and went to Europe. With a partner he tried to manage a theatre, but failed.

Although scored as "a nervous young man who does not stick to his lines," he won recognition as a comedian in Laura's Kenn's theatre at New York. Then came the thought of being an individual star, and he toured in "Our American Cousin," "The Rivals" and "Rip Van Winkle," and prepared the other successes.

During a vacation he wrote a sketch, production in a bar. It was received indifferently. In London, after touring Australia and England, he had Dion Boucicault rewrite the sketch and it became his principal success.

Then came fame and fortune, and until the time of his death Joseph Jefferson was honored as America's most beloved comedian.

YOUR INCOME TAX

LOSSES

The revenue act of 1924 provides that losses not compensated for by insurance or otherwise are deductible if incurred in trade or business, in any transaction entered into for profit though not connected with the taxpayer's trade or business or if arising from "fires, storms (shipwreck or other casualty or from theft."

Losses connected with the purchase and sale of merchandise are ascertained by means of inventories, which are required whenever in the opinion of the commissioner of internal revenue their use is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer.

A manufacturer may be compelled to scrap machinery because it has become inadequate. He may deduct the loss sustained if he has sold or otherwise permanently abandoned the old machinery.

If a taxpayer demolishes a building used in his trade or business and replaces it, he may deduct the loss sustained. But if he acquires as the site of a new building, land upon which is located an old building, demolition of the old building is not considered a loss, therefore not deductible.

Losses connected with transactions "entered into for profit" not connected with the taxpayer's trade or business must conform closely to the wording of the statute to be allowed. For example, a lawyer may purchase an apartment with the object of deriving income from the rental. A physician buys shares of stock on which he hopes to make a profit. Both sustain losses upon a subsequent sale which are deductible. But if either should sell his residence, which at the time of purchase was bought without the intention of resale, the loss, if any, is not deductible, because it was not a transaction "entered into for profit." Similarly, a loss connected with the sale of an automobile bought for pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer can not be deducted.

CHILD TRAINING

Helen Grese Green

Ray's mother proudly showed the members of our Motherhood Club a handsome new pocketbook her son had sent her from college.

When it was handed to Ted Record's mother, a little woman with a face like an angel, tears filled her eyes.

"Oh, how lovely!" she exclaimed. "I'm afraid my Teddy isn't very thoughtful. He's a dear boy, but he never thinks to send me anything."

"Perhaps it's your fault," Ray's mother offered, "we always taught Ray how to spend money. I'll wager he's saved for months to get me this birthday gift."

"How to spend it!" Mrs. Record looked surprised. "Why, Anna! We taught Ted to save his allowance. You see, his father has given him a certain amount every two weeks every two weeks ever since he was a little fellow. And that money we taught Ted to put in the bank and save. He never has spent a cent of it. And now!" proudly, "he has nearly enough for his college education." And then, as if in answer to an unasked question, "You see, his father always bought him all his clothes and skates, and weekly movie ticket, and toys."

"Doesn't he have any just to spend?" someone wanted to know.

"Yes, occasionally, now that he's older and has learned to save," the mother answered. "But he usually puts the extra moonney into the bank, too."

"Well, my dear, I see your mistake, I think," Ray's mother spoke up, "and I'm going to tell you before it's too late. At this rate you'll make your boy into a [illegible]."

"Listen to her slang!" someone laughed.

"Well, it expresses just what I mean. Didn't Marannis say Teddy never bought her anything?"

The mother with the thoughtless son gave a little gasp.

"Pardon me, Marryannis," continued the little owner of the pocket, gently, "as you say Teddy is a dear boy, but he has been taught only one lesson with regard to the care of his money and, as I see it, not the most important one. We always gave Ray an allowance. From the first he was encouraged to save a definite part of it and to spend the rest thoughtfully, wisely and unselfishly. This he learned to do. Sometimes he bought things for himself but often his money went for something for someone else. He was given a good deal of freedom and he learned to be neither extravagant, nor close. He is grateful for this training now, for to know and be able to follow the 'happy medium' in spending is an accomplishment well worth while."

"Yes," said the other mother, thoughtfully, "it's a fine idea! I'm going home to talk it over with Father."

A few months later Mrs. Record came to our meeting, wearing dewy, pink roses. "From Ted," she smiled proudly.

The elevator man was asked, "Will you please tell us where Mr. Black's office is?" by two strangers.

"I don't know any Mr. Black," he replied. "Does he have an office in this building?"

"I can't say," answered one of the women. "He may have an office in the city some place."

"Well, then, what is his full name and what does he do?" asked the elevator man.

"Can't remember," was the rejoinder, "but he left our town 25 years ago and he was back once over night. As they left on the top floor to go to another office the elevator man heard one say to the other, "It certainly looks to me as if a fellow who is on his job would know where to find a man who has been living in his own town for 25 years."

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose around the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents a croupy attack.

If croup comes on without warning, an application of Vicks often brings relief in 15 minutes.

Vicks can be applied freely to little ones, even on the youngest baby with perfect safety.

SPECULATION IN WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE HALTED

Winnipeg, Jan. 29.—The speculative spirit long in evidence was pierced on the Winnipeg grain exchange today when, following after a weak opening, an avalanche of selling orders sent prices downward as rapidly as Wednesday's buoyant movement had sent them up. The day's record reached during the session showed a loss of approximately [illegible] cents.

The market was the wildest ever experienced in grain trading here, fluctuations were so rapid that it was impossible for brokers to execute orders at a figure near the asked price.

After the opening prices fell sharply, May future touching $2.10 before the selling wave could be arrested. The market met with good support on the break, and prices went back to $2.20 but weakened again with the closing prices showing a loss on the session for May at $2.14 1-8, and 7-8 cents for July at $2.13.

We did not do anything last year when the wheat prices were way lower than the cost production to prevent the prices from declining so why should we do anything this year to stop prices from going higher?" said W. DENIED REOPENING OF HIS COMPENSATION CLAIM

The motion of Hiram G. Williams, claimant, of No. 17 Haynes court, Willimantic, to reopen his case against the American Railway Express company has been denied by Compensation Commissioner Noonan. By a voluntary agreement on March 7, 1922, and a corrected agreement of October 4 of the same year the claiman was awarded a certain sum of total disability and a lump sum of $307.59 as compensation for permanent, partial loss of the use of his right foot. The claimant this week asked to have the case reopened that he might secure further medical treatment and further compensation for disability. The foot was found to have recovered long since from the injury received in February, 1923, and the claimant's present condition is not due to that injury. It was further decided that medical treatment which would have to be operative, might cause the loss of the foot or perhaps the claimant's death.

Little Trouble For Trolleys.

Although the trolley cars were running a few minutes late Thursday evening the snow, sleet and rain storm had but little effect on the trolley schedule. Late Thursday afternoon a car on the New London line went dead between Norwich and New London and tied up the schedule for a short while. The disabled car had to be towed into the barn for repairs.

Luck seldom comes when you expect it.

GERALD GRIFIN HAS SUNG AROUND WORLD

When Gerald Griffin, the internationally known tenor who is captivating his audiences at the Palace theatre this week fell into conversation with a priest sitting next to him at the Holy Name convention in Washington last fall, he had never heard of Norwich before. But it turned out that the clergyman he was talking to was Rev. W. A. Keefe of this city, a Connecticut delegate to the great convention, and Mr. Griffin found later on that he was booked for an appearance in Norwich he had pleasant anticipations of meeting Father Keefe.

In the fifteen years that Mr. Griffin has been on the stage professionally, he has sung his way around the world three times, including five tours in Australia, and has been through the South Sea Islands, the Orient and Europe. He began singing as a boy soprano in the choir of the Paulist fathers in Chicago and eventually ran away from home to join the minstrels. Now at 33 he has enviable place upon the concert stage and his beautiful tenor voice has given pleasure to thousands in every land and in many out of the way corners of the world.

Speaing of Australia Thursday, Mr. Griffin said that it is a wonderful country, but one full of many surprising things. The rivers flow backwards, the birds are without song and there are regions that are without rain for years. He was playing at Lithgow, a mining settlement, at one time, where there had been no rain for five years, but the unexpected happened while he was there and it started to rain and kpt it up for 48 hours with a flood from the skies that seemed as if the ocean had been let loose. Mr. Griffin married an Australian girl and is willing to bear witness that Australia is a land of beautiful and charming women. His accompanist is also an Australia, Bill Conwey, who adds some pleasing numbers to his concert programme.

Singing to the lepers in the colony at Tahiti was one of his most interesting experiences and privilege that he enjoyed in bringing some brightness into the lives of these isolated people, who yet are smiling and happy. During the World war, he was engaged as K. of C. secretary in the West, entering this service after he had three times been rejected for enlistment because of a physical disability. While in Washington before election with the party of actors who had breakfast with President Coolidge at the White House he wa sone of those who entertained the patients at the Walter Reed hospital.

Bag Snatcher at Work.

A woman on the West Side had a handbag snatched from her early Thursda evening by a man who ran away as soon as he had grabbed the bag, breaking the bag from the strap which was around her wrist. The police searched for the man, following footprints that led them for quite a distance.

Attended Nurses' Meeting.

Nurses attending the state league meeting held at the Hotel Bond, Hartford, Wednesday, were Miss Kathleen A. Dodd, supervisor of the training school of the W. W. Backus hospital, Miss Anna May Gorton, floor supervisor, and Miss Mildred Perkins, instructress of nurses.

Dr. Kernahan at Rochester

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan who his just concluded a visitation evangelism campaign with Norwich churches is now in ochester, N. York. He had campaigns in five cities in New England.

STORM PRODUCES HIGH TIDE IN THE THAMES

The heavy storm of Thursday night swelled the rivers and streams to flood heights early this (Friday) morning and pushed back by high winds the waters of the Thames river overflowed the banks completely covering the Central Vermont railroad tracks along the shores in this city to a depth of nearly two feet.

Although high tide was scheduled for about 10.54 o'clock Thursday night the river was still rising at 2 o'clock Friday morning and the heavy ice in the harbor was being pushed back against Central Wharf and the docks along the shore.

Shortly after 1 o'clock word was received from the Uncas Paper Board company that water was flooding over the wharf at that point of the river. The Thames was flooding the Central Vermont tracks along the west bank for a distance of several hundred feet beginning at a point just below the railroad station and continuing down the line as far as could be seen from the bridge. As far as could be learned there had been no washouts along this line.

The New Haven road had section men out along their tracks looking for washouts but none had been reported up to 2 o'clock. The track on the southerly side of the freight depot was under water, however, and the Shetucket river was flush with the lower platform of the city dock on Rose alley.

A part of Falls avenue, nearly up to the new voting booth was under water in the early morning and the tracks in the rear of Commerce street were being flooded. A large boat tied to the dock was riding almost on a level with the top of the dock at that point.

At 2 o'clock in the morning the rain had about stopped and unless more and heavier rain follows and the ice in the rivers above Norwich become jammed the waters would go down with the tide going out.

People who saw the high water Friday morning remarked that it was the highest they had seen in many years, the water at the Uncas Paper Board wharf being 6 feet above normal at 1 o'clock, and still rising.

At 2.45 o'clock Friday morning the watchman at the American Woolen Co. plant in Thamesville reported two feet of water on the tracks there and that the boiler fires had been put out by the water at the mill.

On the New Haven railroad just above Gales Ferry the water had reached a one-fot depth at 2.30 o'clock and was still rising slowly, pushed by a strong wind coming directly up the river.

First Map of the Atlantic

The first map in which the Atlantic ocean is depicted and given its proper name was published in the year 1508, and was the work of an Italian geographer, Marino Sanuto, of whom little is known.

It is learned in Danbury that the whiskey seized in a raid on a farm on the outskirts of that city last Friday night is now appraised at $270,144 instead of the originally estimated value of $143,000.

ARGUMENTS CONTINUE IN CASE AGAINST FORBES

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Assistant Attorney General John W. Crim completed the closing argument of the prosecution in the veterans' bureau conspiracy trial today with a four-hour review of the government's charges and evidence against former Director Charles R. Forbes and J. W. Thompson, co defendant, on charges of conspiracy to defraud. The jury will be instructed at the opening of court tomorrow.

Mr. Crim argued that the evidence had established beyond question that the defendants were parties to a conspiracy to allot hospital contracts to favored builders and that only "Forbes' inability to deliver" prevented its full consummation.

Mr. Crim charged that Forbes never had made more, than a pretense of awarding contracts on the basis of competitive bids and that even pretense was abandoned in the case of granting of the Northampton foundation contract to Thompson's Pontiac Construction Company.

"He got the vouchers for that job through the comptroller general's office," he asserted, "by certifying that the contract was awarded in an emergency."

The prosecutor brought the name of Charles F. Cramer, former general counsel of the veterans' bureau, into the trial again in arguing that the Pontiac contract was handled in accordince with Forbes' corrupt plans with Cramer's connivance.

The prosecutor also referred again to Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, sister of former President Harding and friend of Mrs. Mortimer at the time of the alleged conspiracy. He read to the jury a letter which he said was written by one of Thompson's associates in an effort to withhold from Mrs. Votaw certain facts regarding the movements of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer in relation to Forbes and the inspection party.

"When advantage of that sort is taken of the sister of the president of the United States," he said in conclusion, "it is time to call a halt to the rascality at Washington.

"Gentlemen of the jury, that is for you to say."

ACADEMY BASEBALL SCHEDULE IS BEST ARRANGED IN A NUMBER OF YEARS

Marty Gilman, manager of the 1925 Norwich Academy baseball team, has not been idle during the winter months and has arranged one of the strongest schedules played by an Academy baseball team since 1911 when the Academy was credited with being state high school baseball champions. The schedule arranged by Manager Gilman calls for 13 games, the team playing practically every Wednesday and Saturday from April 11th to June 10th. There are eleven games at home and seven out of town.

The schedule is arranged in anticipation of a strong team of which there is every pre-season indication. Coach Earl E. Brigham who will pilot the team this season is very much elated over the prospects of his charges and his team at the close of the season will be able to make a claim for state honors. There has been some good material entered in the freshman class which will bolster up the team to a considerable extent especially the pitching staff. Last year the team was woefully short on pitching material, Ellie Seigal being forced to bear the brunt of the mound duty wihtout relief.

Jarvis, a freshman, hailing from Jewett City is regarded as a real find. Jarvis played ball all last summer with the Ashland team and pitched some mighty fine games. Johnny Green is another recruit for the hurling corp, being a right flinger Jarvis throws from the port side. Greene is a product of the playground teams and was under the coaching of Mr. Brigham last summer.

The infield remains intact for another season with Burke at first, Tomlari at second, Capt. McGowan at third and Busch at short. Perry Hollander who caught last year and was one of the leading high school catchers in the league, will not be able to play until mid-season. It is probable that Jack Hinrichs will be pulled in from the outer defense and stuck behind the bat unless some very promising new material shows up.

There is every indication that the 1925 team will be the best in many years and even now there is talk of practice and an interest that has not been shown for some time. The call for candidates will be issued the latter part of next month and it is expected that indoor work will be started.

In glancing over the schedule it will be seen that many fast teams make their appearance on the slate. The Academy is not confining itself simply to eastern Conntcticut teams but is going after the bigger schools. On the schedule is Hartford High, LaSalle of Providence, one of the leading high schools in Rhode Island, Pomfret, Worcester Trade School and the Connecticut Aggie Freshmen. In these five teams together with Bulkeley the Academy is meeting the best there is and this renwed activity in baseball will be pleasing to the followers of Academy athletics. The schedule follows:

April 11—Alumni at Norwich.
April 15—Pomfret at Pomfret.
April 22—Old Saybrook at Norwich.
April 26—Bulkeley at New London.
April 29.—Stonington at Stonington.
May 2—LaSalle at Norwich.
May 6.—Chapman at New London.
May 9—Plainfield at Norwich.
May 13—LaSalle at Providence.
May 16—Bulkeley at Norwich.
May 20—Deep River at Norwich.
May 23—Westerly at Westerly.
May 23.—Hartford at Norwich.
May 27—Chapman at Norwich.
May 30—Conn. A. C. Freshmen at Norwich.
June 3—Stonington at Norwich.
June 6—Worcester Trade at Norwich.
June 10.—Westerly at Norwich.

MARANVILLE READY TO GO TO TRAINING CAMP

Chicago, Jan. 29.—"Rabbit" Maranville, captain of the Chicago Cubs and former Pirate second baseman, called at Cub headquarters today preparatory to leaving for training on Catalina Island, tomorrow morning. Maranville, whose hobby is fishing, will join Bill Killefer, manager, of the Cubs who is already on the island.

Little more than half of the cubs squad already have signed contracts, but President Veech said he expected to have all the players under contract before the train pulls out of Chicago on February 26.

HUGGINS SAYS SENATORS ONLY TEAM TO FEAR

New York, Jan. 29.—"Washington is the club we must beat if we win the American League pennant this year," Miller Huggins, Midget manager of the Yankees, made the above statement today upon his arrival here to talk training camp plans with his chief, Cononel Jacob Ruppert, and business Manager Edward G. Barrow.

Huggins said he considered the Senators the most formidable looking club, on paper. He also said that the Detroit team would be a barrier but that the Tigers still had some weaknesses which would have to be eliminated before they could be seriously considered as of championship caliber.

"Washington could never win again with the same pitching staff as last year but the acquisition of Coveleskie and Reuter gives the Senators the best all-around pitching material in either league and barring mishaps, which always play a prominent part in the game," he said. "Stanley Harris' club should come through if it can down the Yanks."

Huggins said he is satisfied with his team as it now stands but that he is still in the market for a utility infielder.

"I thought some of benching Everett Scott last season just to break the string of consecutive games in which he has played and remove the tension which I consider detrimental to his game, but he picked up and played good baseball, after I talked with him and I could see no good reason for such action," he said.

The Yankees' leader was particularly elated over the coming of Urban Shocker to New York. Shocker is overjoyed with the prospect of pitching for a club like New York, Huggins said, and expects to win many more games this year than he did last season.

The Yankee manager will remain in New York for two weeks after which he will go to St. Louis to attend the February meeting of the American league.

BULKELEY TO PLAY FORDHAM FRESHMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 29.—Two games over the week end, will climax a most unsuccessful basketball month for Bulkeley. On this (Friday) evening, Bulkeley will perform in Stamford, opposing Stamford High and the following day will journey to New York city where the Orange and Black will be the opponent of the Fordham freshmen in a preliminary contest before the Fordham-Holy Cross basketball contest at the Fordham gymnasium. The team will leave this afternoon at 1 o'clock, eight players with the coach and manager making the trip.

Stamford with a crackerjack outfit has been bowling over the leading high school teams in an daround New York state with a fine degree of success. In the first encounter of what will be a two day stay, Bulkeley will have a worthy opponent in the Lock City five. Bulkeley teams have been making an invasion of the Lock City teams on and off for a period of sixteen years with a varied degree of success. Only a victory in baseball in 1923 was the result of all the effort made by Bulkeley teams in all three branches of sport. The football team also came close to defeating Stamford, losing by a 0 to 7 score, while the basketball team in two over time periods lost by a score of 37 to 36. It was one of the best years Bulkeley enjoyed with Stamford as her opponent, and it is possible that history will repeat itself when the teams meet on Friday night.

Another slight change has been made in order to get the best possible working combination together. Watterson who jumped center, will go back to guard and Vogt who teamed up with Huck Taylor at the forward berths, will fill the vacancy caused by the shifting of Watterson from center to guard. Parisi who was benched for the three games played last week, will again occupy his old position at right forward. It seems that this team will bring best results, and will be watched in the next few games.

PRELIMINARY BOXERS NEED NOT POST ANY FORFEITS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 29.—A radical change in the rules of the boxing of this state effective February 1 finds all future boxers engaged in preliminary bouts are not required to post a forfeit to insure their appearance as in the past. Chairman Thomas K. Donohue of the boxing commission supported this statement in an interview with a Bulletin reporter this evening.

This new enactment to the rules was made at the last meeting of the commission but was not announced for publication by Secretary Keeley until this evening. However, while the boxers engaged in preliminary bouts are relieved of the obligation of a forfeit, the principals in star bouts will find that a forfeit is still required of them as previously.

Friday evening the commission meets in Waterbury and they will entertain as their guest Sparrow Robinson, sporting editor of the Paris Edition of the New York-Herald Tribune.

O'CONNOR AND DOLAN TESTIFY IN BRIBERY CASE

New York, Jan. 29.—Leslie M. O'Connor, secretary to baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, and Cozy Dolan, former coach of the New York Giants, who has been barred from baseball, were the principals today in the state's investigation into the attempted bribery of Heinie Sand, shortstop of the Philadelphia National baseball club, during a game in this city last season.

Jimmy O'Connell, Giants' outfielder in that contest, confessed that he offered Sand $500 if he would "not bear down," and with Dolan went out of the National game forever. Today O'Connell's attorney wired to Assistant District Attorney Brothers that his client would not come east to aid him in the investigation unless immunity was promised. Such a course is impossible at this time, Mr. Brothers replied.

O'Connor is believed to have furnished the authorities with every particle of evidence in the hands of the commissioner, including questions and answers at the time the matter became known and telegrams and letters which have passed between the commissioner's office and various players whose names have been mentioned.

Emil Yde of the Pittsburgh Pirates, one of the leading pitchers of the 1924 season, today sent in full a denial that he had stated that there had been talk among players regarding the "fixing" of the "higher-ups." It was in the form of a transcript of the correspondence he had with the commissioner.

William A. (Bill) Cunningham, former Giants outfielder now with the Boston Braves, denied saying in a press interview that he had been told by Ross Young of the Giants, named with Frank Frisch and George Kelly in the O'Connell confession, that the whole bribery business had been started through "kidding" among the players. Cunningham called the story a "mass of lies" and insisted that he had not been interviewed in the O'Connell affair since last October.

Cunningham is about to be operated upon in California and it is understood that his physician will not permit him to come east at this time.

Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, to whom Sand told the story of the attempted bribe, and Johnny Couch, pitcher, together with George Kelly of the Giants, are expected to arrive here for questioning tomorrow. Ross Young is reported on his way east from his home in Texas.

HALF DOZEN CANDIDATES FOR SHORTSTOP ON WHITE SOX

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Six and possibly seven candidates will contest for the berth of shortstop on the Chicago Sox, when training begins at Shreveport, La. The sixth condidate, Clyde Rentfrow, former independent player, of the Pacific coast tonight was added to the roster. Others in line for the position, considered the weakest spot on the club last season, are Ike Davis, Henry McClellan, Bill Barrett, Johnny Cortazzo, and a Quebec shortstop named Wojack. Roy Elsh, utility outfielder, also may be given an opportunity for the position.

Combs Getting Into Shape

Richmond, Kentucky, Jan. 29.—Earl Combs, New York Yankee outfielder, who received a fractured leg last summer sliding into a base while playing against Cleveland, has recovered to the extent of taking short workouts with the Eastern Teachers' College basketball squad here of which he formerly was a member. Combs will battle for a regular berth in the Huggins outfield this year.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE WINS FROM K. OF C. OF STAFFORD IN CLOSE CONTEST

One scant point decided the winner of the Army-Navy and Stafford Kacey games at Parish Till Thursday evening the small advantage being with the local five which won 35 to 34. It has been many moons since such a close score has decided a game at the hall and last nights contest was a thrill from the start to finish.

At no time during the game was either team more than four points ahead of the other and the outcome hung in the balance until the final whistle. It was a game where neither team could afford to slacken its pace for fear the other would take the lead. Every player on the two teams knew that he had been in a real basketball tussle and it was only the superb condition of the players that held them up.

The Taftville team got a way to a slight lead but could not increase it much, first one team scored and then the other. Joe Belair, flashing forward of the local team, upheld his reputation as a brilliant and elusive player and it was his remarkable floor work that aided materially in the home-team victory. Jimmy Murphy also played a brilliant floor game. For the Kaceys the Calchera brothers were the shining lights and played wel. The score:

NURMI RUNS AGAIN TONIGHT AT NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 29.—(By the A. P.)—With only two days' rest, Paavo Nurmi will continue his sensational campaign tomorrow night when he attempts to lower the existing standard for one and one-eighth miles at the indoor games of the Morningside athletic club.

Far from showing any signs of staleness as a result of his strenuous and unprecedented sweep, the phantom Finn appeared fresher than ever in establishing three more world's records in two victorious races at the Millrose A. A. carnival the past two nights. Unextended in either race, the invader romped to a victory at three quarters of a mile and a mile and one-half. He has hung up fifteen world's marks in nine races since he began knocking out time and outclassing all rivals on January 6.

Joie Ray, veteran Chicago runner who dropped out of last night's race against Nurmi because of slight illness, announced today he expected to resume running at the Boston A. A. meet Saturday night, when he will compete in the famous hunter mile.

Willie Plant, premier American walker and hero of an international victory last night over Ugo Frigerio, Italian holder of the Olympic championship, will compete tomorrow night in the Morningside games but doubt exists as to whether his foreign rival will be an opponent. Frigerio, disappointed but undaunted by his reversal last night, was prepared to meet Plant again but as yet no reply has been received from a request to Italian authorities to extend Frigerio's engagement list. Without such sanction the Italian cannot compete tomorrow as the only other meet in which he has permission to compete is the Boston A. A. event.

If Frigerio gets this sanction, he will meet Plant at 4,000 metres. Otherwise, the American will try for new records at a mile and one-eighth and 2,000 metres.

AMERICAN THREAD OF FALL RIVER AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

The stage is all set for what promises to be one of the fastest basketball games of the season when the American Thread team of Fall River lines up against the fast travelling Plainfield, Army-Navy team at the Community house tonight.

The Thread Co. team on their initial appearance in this state earlier in the season put up a grand exhibition of basketball defeating the Army-Navy team of Taftville by quite a margin.

Included in the Fall River team lineup will be "Scotty" Higgins former Willimantic Emerald Star and running mate of Belair and Normandin when that team cut such a swath through the state a few years ago.

"Scotty" acts as captain and coach and he sure has rounded together a pretty nifty bunch of "hoopsters."

At the rate the Plainfield quintet is travelling at the present time this should be about as nifty a battle as anyone should care to see.

Plainfield will use its regular lineup with Murphy and Normandi in the forward positions Dessinger at center and Belair, Provost and Nolan guards.

In the preliminary game the Buddies will play the fast quintet from Jewett City.

Mayrs to Box Garcia

Baltimore, Jan. 29.—Lew Mayrs, a Baltimore featherweight, today signed to meet Bob Garcia in a 12-round decision battle here on February 9. McNamara rode with Madden in the last Chicago race, but was ill and unable to do himself justice. McNamara and Madden have each won two six day races in Chicago.

CHARLEY WHITE ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT FROM RING

New York, Jan. 29.—Following the example set by Benny Leonard ,the champion of his division, Charley White, veteran Chicago lightweight and one of Leonard's foremost rivals for years, today announced his retirement from the ring through his manager, Ike Dorgan.

White, who plans to devote his future to business in Chicago, leaves the ring with a record of having fought eleven champions in bantamweight, featherweight and lightweight ranks in a career begun in 1906. Record books credit him with having engaged in 181 fights, of which 61 were knockout victories.

One of White's most remarkable encounters was with Benny Leonard in 1920 at Benton Harbor, Mich. White was knocked out in the ninth round of a terrific battle after he had sent Leonard through the ropes with one of his famous left hooks and came close to winning the lightweight champion.

White's only other knockout was sustained at the hands of Pal Moran in the fourteenth round of a bout at Madison Square Garden 1923. That was his last important fight, although afterwards he knocked out Bobby Barrett of Philadelphia.

Despite that setback, White entertained hopes of staging a comeback He announced, however, that Leonard's retirement, removing any chance of his gaining another fight with the champion, was a factor in his decision also to quit the ring.

White was born in Liverpool, England, in 1897.

Grab-Delaney Bout Tonight

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—Harry Greb Middleweight champion arrived here today for his 10 round bout tomorrow night with Jimmy Delaney, St. Louis lightweight. No title is involved in the fight. Delaney will weigh about 172 pounds, while Greb is expected to be near that mark. Greb holds two decisions over Delaney.

Brown, vice president of the U. S. A. H. A. announced today.

Roper Boxes Renault Tonight.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 29.—Captain Bob Roper and Jack Renault, contenders for the heavyweight title, will meet in a 10-round bout here tomorrow night. A knockout victory for either fighter is expected to eliminate the loser from any further championship consideration.

Cannefax-Hoppe Match

New York, Jan. 29.—A 600-point three-cushion billiard match between Robert L. Cannefax, present three-cushion champion, and Willie Hoppe, will be played at the Friars' club here beginning February 16.

Goldstein-Pancho Bout Off

Waterbury, Jan. 29.—The Abe Goldstein-Kid Pancho fight scheduled for tomorrow night in the state armory here, has been postponed until February 26. Goldstein was forced to postpone the bout because he is ill with the grippe. Barney snyder, of Boston is substituting for Goldstein tomorrow night, in the main bout with Kid Pancho.

GOULDING IS SENT TO SANATORIUM FOR REST

New York, Jan. 29.—George Goulding, famous Canadian walker who was forced by a breakdown to withdraw from competition on the eve of his attempted come-back last night against Ugo Frigerio of Italy and Willie Plant of the United States, was sent to a sanatorium today for a complete rest.

Physicians who examined Goulding today confirmed the announcement last night at the Millrose A. A. meet that it would have been dangerous for the veteran to have competed. Their examination showing that Goulding's heart had become seriously affected by his attempt to come back after nearly a decade of idleness, also confirmed the fact that Goulding will never be able to race again.

Goulding's breakdown came as a startling surprise, although he had shown in a handicap race Tuesday night that he was not up to the form he possessed when in his prime. He had been in training at his home in Vancouver, British Columbia, for some time and reports of his trials were that he had recovered the speed that carried him to many world's records and the Olympic championship in 1912.

SPORTS ORGANIZATIONS PLEDGE $150,000 TO CATHEDRAL FUND

New York, Jan. 29.—Representatives of a dozen national sports governing organizations today pledged themselves to raise $150,000 to provide a bay or section to the cathedral of St. John the Devine. This will be the contribution of the amateur sport world to the $15,000,000 Cathedral campaign.

The first means of raising the fund will be provided by a big track and field carnival in Madison Square Garden, February 25, under the auspices of the amateur athletic union. Paavo Nurmi, Joie Ray and other stars already signified their readiness to compete in this event.

An amateur boxing tournament will be staged in March to help the fund, also under A. A. U. direction, while governing bodies in tennis, golf, polo and other sports have agreed to arrange benefit performances with champions competing.

Prices in Bible Days

Abraham paid 400 shekels of silver ($200) for a piece of land for a burying place. In Solomon's time (I Kings 10:29) it is mentioned that the price of a chariot in Egypt was 600 shekels of silver ($250). The price of a horse was 150 shekels (about $72).

ACADEMY BASEBALL SCHEDULE IS BEST ARRANGED IN A NUMBER OF YEARS

Marty Gilman, manager of the 1925 Norwich Academy baseball team, has not been idle during the winter months and has arranged one of the strongest schedules played by an Academy baseball team since 1911 when the Academy was credited with being state high school baseball champions. The schedule arranged by Manager Gilman calls for 18 games, the team playing practically every Wednesday and Saturday from April 11th to June 19th. There are eleven games at home and seven out of town.

The schedule is arranged in anticipation of a strong team of which there is every pre-season indication. Coach Earl E. Brigham who will pilot the team this season is very much elated over the prospects of his charges and his team at the close of the season will be able to make a claim for state honors. There has been some good material entered in the freshman class which will bolster up the team to a considerable extent especially the pitching staff. Last year the team was woefully short on pitching material, Ellie Seigal being forced to bear the brunt of the mound duty without relief.

Jarvis, a freshman, hailing from Jewett City is regarded as a real find. Jarvis played ball all last summer with the Ashland team and pitched some mighty fine games. Johnny Green is another recruit for the hurling corp, being a right flinger Jarvis throws from the port side. Greene is a product of the playground teams and was under the coaching of Mr. Brigham last summer.

The infield remains intact for another season with Burke at first, Tombari at second, Capt. McGowan at third and Busch at short. Perry Hollander who caught last year and was one of the leading high school catchers in the league, will not be able to play until mid-season. It is probable that Jack Hinrichs will be pulled in from the outer defense and stuck behind the bat unless some very promising new material shows up.

There is every indication that the 1925 team will be the best in many years and even now there is talk of practice and an interest that has not been shown for some time. The call for candidates will be issued the latter part of next month and it is expected that indoor work will be started.

In glancing over the schedule it will be seen that many fast teams make their appearance on the slate. The Academy is not confining itself simply to eastern Connticut teams but is going after the bigger schools. On the schedule is Hartford High, LaSalle of Providence, one of the leading high schools in Rhode Island, Pomfret, Worcester Trade School and the Connecticut Aggie Freshmen. In these five teams together with Bulkeley the Academy is meeting the best there is and this renwed activity in baseball will be pleasing to the followers of Academy athletics. The schedule follows:

April 11—Alumni at Norwich.
April 15—Pomfret at Pomfret.
April 22—Old Saybrook at Norwich.
April 26—Bulkeley at New London.
April 29.—Stonington at Stonington.
May 2—LaSalle at Norwich.
May 6.—Chapman at New London.
May 9—Plainfield at Norwich.
May 13—LaSalle at Providence.
May 16—Bulkeley at Norwich.
May 20—Deep River at Norwich.
May 22—Westerly at Westerly. .. ..
May 23.—Hartford at Norwich. ....
May 27—Chapman at Norwich.
May 30—Conn. A. C. Freshmen at Norwich.
June 3—Stonington at Norwich.
June 6—Worcester Trade at Norwich.
June 10.—Westerly at Norwich.

MARANVILLE READY TO GO TO TRAINING CAMP

Chicago, Jan. 29.—"Rabbit" Maranville, captain of the Chicago Cubs and former Pirate second baseman, called at Cub headquarters today preparatory to leaving for training on Catalina Island, tomorrow morning. Maranville, whose hobby is fishing, will join Bill Killefer, manager, of the Cubs who is already on the island.

Little more than half of the cubs squad already have signed contracts, but President Veech said he expected to have all the players under contract before the train pulls out of Chicago on February 26.

HUGGINS SAYS SENATORS ONLY TEAM TO FEAR

New York, Jan. 29.—"Washington is the club we must beat if we win the American League pennant this year," Miller Huggins, Midget manager of the Yankees, made the above statement today upon his arrival here to talk training camp plans with his chief, Cononel Jacob Ruppert, and business Manager Edward G. Barrow.

Huggins said he considered the Senators the most formidable looking club, on paper. He also said that the Detroit team would be a barrier but that the Tigers still had some weaknesses which would have to be eliminated before they could be seriously considered as of championship caliber.

"Washington could never win again with the same pitching staff as last year but the acquisition of Coveleskie and Reuter gives the Senators the best all-around pitching material in either league and barring mishaps, which always play a prominent part in the game," he said. "Stanley Harris' club should come through if it can down the Yanks."

Huggins said he is satisfied with his team as it now stands but that he is still in the market for a utility infielder.

"I thought some of benching Everett Scott last season just to break the string of consecutive games in which he has played and remove the tension which I consider detrimental to his game, but he picked up and played good baseball, after I talked with him and I could see no good reason for such action," he said.

The Yankees' leader was particularly elated over the coming of Urban Shocker to New York. Shocker is overjoyed with the prospect of pitching for a club like New York, Huggins said, and expects to win many more games this year than he did last season.

The Yankee manager will remain in New York for two weeks after which he will go to St. Louis to attend the February meeting of the American league.

BULKELEY TO PLAY FORDHAM FRESHMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 29.—Two games over the week end, will climax a most unsuccessful basketball month for Bulkeley. On this (Friday) evening, Bulkeley will perform in Stamford, opposing Stamford High and the following day will journey to New York city where the Orange and Black will be the opponent of the Fordham freshmen in a preliminary contest before the Fordham-Holy Cross basketball contest at the Fordham gymnasium. The team will leave this afternoon at 1 o'clock, eight players with the coach and manager making the trip.

Stamford with a crackerjack outfit has been bowling over the leading high school teams in an daround New York state with a fine degree of success. In the first encounter of what will be a two day stay, Bulkeley will have a worthy opponent in the Lock City five. Bulkeley teams have been making an invasion of the Lock City teams on and off for a period of sixteen years with a varied degree of success. Only a victory in baseball in 1922 was the result of all the effort made by Bulkeley teams in all three branches of sport. The football team also came close to defeating Stamford, losing by a 0 to 7 score, while the basketball team in two over time periods lost by a score of 37 to 36. It was one of the best years Bulkeley enjoyed with Stamford as her opponent, and it is possible that history will repeat itself when the teams meet on Friday night.

Another slight change has been made in order to get the best possible working combination together. Watterson who jumped center, will go back to guard and Vogt who teamed up with Huck Taylor at the forward berths, will fill the vacancy caused by the shifting of Watterson from center to guard. Parisi who was benched for the three games played last week, will again occupy his old position at right forward. It seems that this team will bring best results, and will be watched in the next few games.

PRELIMINARY BOXERS NEED NOT POST ANY FORFEITS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 29.—A radical change in the rules of the boxing of this state effective February 1 finds all future boxers engaged in preliminary bouts are not required in to post a forfeit to insure their appearance as in the past. Chairman Thomas E. Donohue of the boxing commission supported this statement in an interview with a Bulletin reporter this evening.

This new enactment to the rules was made at the last meeting of the commission but was not announced for publication by Secretary Keeley until this evening. However, while the boxers engaged in preliminary bouts are relieved of the obligation of a forfeit, the principals in star bouts will find that a forfeit is still required of them as previously.

Friday evening the commission meets in Waterbury and they will entertain as their guest Sparrow Robinson, sporting editor of the Paris Edition of the New York-Herald Tribune.

The "Y" Emps added another notch to their string of victories last night by defeating the New London Kaybrooks on the local "Y" court by the score of 27 to 24. Although a trifle slow the game proved close and interesting and towards the close of the game the visitors threatened to gain the lead. Hutchinson proved the chief cager for the Kaybrooks while Brauman led for the Emps.

O'CONNOR AND DOLAN TESTIFY IN BRIBERY CASE

New York, Jan. 29.—Leslie M. O'Connor, secretary to baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, and Cozy Dolan, former coach of the New York Giants, who has been barred from baseball, were the principals today in the state's investigation into the attempted bribery of Heinie Sand, shortstop of the Philadelphia National baseball club, during a game in this city last season.

Jimmy O'Connell, Giants' outfielder in that contest, confessed that he offered Sand $500 if he would "not bear down," and with Dolan went out of the National game forever. Today O'Connell's attorney wired to Assistant District Attorney Brothers that his client would not come east to aid him in the investigation unless immunity was promised. Such a course is impossible at this time, Mr. Brothers replied.

O'Connor is believed to have furnished the authorities with every particle of evidence in the hands of the commissioner, including questions and answers at the time the matter became known and telegrams and letters which have passed between the commissioner's office and various players whose names have been mentioned.

Emil Yde of the Pittsburgh Pirates, one of the leading pitchers of the 1924 season, today sent in full a denial that he had stated that there had been talk among players regarding the "fixing" of the "higher-ups." It was in the form of a transcript of the correspondence he had with the commissioner.

William A. (Bill) Cunningham, former Giants outfielder now with the Boston Braves, denied saying in a press interview that he had been told by Ross Young of the Giants, named with Frank Frisch and George Kelly in the O'Connell confession, that the whole bribery business had been started through "kidding" among the players. Cunningham called the story a "mass of lies" and insisted that he had not been interviewed in the O'Connell affair since last October.

Cunningham is about to be operated upon in California and it is understood that his physician will not permit him to come east at this time.

Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, to whom Sand told the story of the attempted bribe, and Johnny Couch, pitcher, together with George Kelly of the Giants, are expected to arrive here for questioning tomorrow, Ross Young is reported on his way east from his home in Texas.

HALF DOZEN CANDIDATES FOR SHORTSTOP ON WHITE SOX

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Six and possibly seven candidates will contest for the berth of shortstop on the Chicago Sox, when training begins at Shreveport, La. The sixth condidate, Clyde Rentfrow, former independent player, of the Pacific coast tonight was added to the roster. Others in line for the position, considered the weakest spot on the club last season, are Ike Davis, Henry McClellan, Bill Barrett, Johnny Cortazzo, and a Quebec shortstop named Wojack. Roy Elsh, utility outfielder, also may be given an opportunity for the position.

Combs Getting Into Shape

Richmond, Kentucky, Jan. 29.—Earl Combs, New York Yankee outfielder, who received a fractured leg last summer sliding into a base while playing against Cleveland, has recovered to the extent of taking short workouts with the Eastern Teachers' College basketball squad here of which he formerly was a member. Combs will battle for a regular berth in the Huggins outfield this year.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE WINS FROM K. OF C. OF STAFFORD IN CLOSE CONTEST

One scant point decided the winner of the Army-Navy and Stafford Kacey games at Parish Till Thursday evening the small advantage being with the local five which won 35 to 34. It has been many moons since such a close score has decked a game at the hall and last nights contest was a thrill from the start to finish.

At no time during the game was either team more than four points ahead of the other and the outcome hung in the balance until the final whistle. It was a game where neither team could afford to slacken its pace for fear the other would take the lead. Every player on the two teams knew that he had been in a real basketball tussle and it was only the superb condition of the players that held them up.

The Taftville team got a way to a slight lead but could not increase it much, first one team scored and then the other. Joe Belair, flashing forward of the local team, upheld his reputation as a brilliant and elusive player and it was his remarkable floor work that aided materially in the home-team victory. Jimmy Murphy also played a brilliant floor game. For the Kaceys the Calchera brothers were the shining lights and played wel. The score:

NURMI RUNS AGAIN TONIGHT AT NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 29.—(By the A. P.)—With only two days' rest, Paavo Nurmi will continue his sensational campaign tomorrow night when he attempts to lower the existing standard for one and one-eighth miles at the indoor games of the Morningside athletic club.

Far from showing any signs of staleness as a result of his strenuous and unprecedented sweep, the phantom Finn appeared fresher than ever in establishing three more world's records in two victorious races at the Millrose A. A. carnival the past two nights. Unextended in either race, the invader romped to a victory at three quarters of a mile and a mile and one-half. He has hung up fifteen world's marks in nine races since he began knocking out time and outclassing all rivals on January 6.

Joie Ray, veteran Chicago runner who dropped out of last night's race against Nurmi because of slight illness, announced today he expected to resume running at the Boston A. A. meet Saturday night, when he will compete in the famous hunter mile.

Willie Plant, premier American walker and hero of an international victory last night over Ugo Frigerio, Italian holder of the Olympic championship, will compete tomorrow night in the Morningside games but doubt exists as to whether his foreign rival will be an opponent. Frigerio, disappointed but undaunted by his reversal last night, was prepared to meet Plant again but as yet no reply has been received from a request to Italian authorities to extend Frigerio's engagement list. Without such sanction the Italian cannot compete tomorrow as the only other meet in which he has permission to compete is the Boston A. A. event.

If Frigerio gets this sanction, he will meet Plant at 4,000 metres. Otherwise, the American will try for new records at a mile and one-eighth and 2,000 metres.

AMERICAN THREAD OF FALL RIVER AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

The stage is all set for what promises to be one of the fastest basketball games of the season when the American Thread team of Fall River lines up against the fast travelling Plainfield, Army-Navy team at the Community house tonight.

The Thread Co. team on their initial appearance in this state earlier in the season put up a grand exhibition of basketball defeating the Army-Navy team of Taftville by quite a margin.

Included in the Fall River team lineup will be "Scotty" Higgins former Willimantic Emerald Star and running mate of Belair and Normandin when that team cut such a swath through the state a few years ago.

"Scotty" acts as captain and coach and he sure has rounded together a pretty nifty bunch of "hoopsters."

At the rate the Plainfield quintet is travelling at the present time this should be about as nifty a battle as anyone should care to see.

Plainfield will use its regular lineup with Murphy and Normandi in the forward positions Dessinger at center and Belair, Provost and Nolan guards.

In the preliminary game the Buddies will play the fast quintet from Jewett City.

Mayrs to Box Garcia

Baltimore, Jan. 29.—Lew Mayrs, a Baltimore featherweight, today signed to meet Bob Garcia in a 12-round decision battle here on February 9. Garcia gave world's champion Kid Kaplan a great fight in the elimination tournament held in New York. Mayrs in his last two contests beat "Boney Boy" Finnegan, and Abe Friedman, both of Boston.

McNamara rode with Madden in the last Chicago race, but was ill and unable to do himself justice. McNamara and Madden have each won two six day races in Chicago.

CHARLEY WHITE ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT FROM RING

New York, Jan. 29.—Following the example set by Benny Leonard the champion of his division, Charley White, veteran Chicago lightweight and one of Leonard's foremost rivals for years, today announced his retirement from the ring through his manager, Ike Dorgan.

White, who plans to devote his future to business in Chicago, leaves the ring with a record of having fought eleven champions in bantamweight, featherweight and lightweight ranks in a career begun in 1906. Record books credit him with having engaged in 181 fights, of which 61 were knockout victories.

One of White's most remarkable encounters was with Benny Leonard in 1920 at Benton Harbor, Mich. White was knocked out in the ninth round of a terrific battle after he had sent Leonard through the ropes with one of his famous left hooks and came close to winning the lightweight champion.

White's only other knockout was sustained at the hands of Pal Moran in the fourteenth round of a bout at Madison Square Garden 1923. That was his last important fight, although afterwards he knocked out Bobby Barrett of Philadelphia.

Despite that setback, White entertained hopes of staging a comeback He announced, however, that Leonard's retirement removing any chance of his gaining another fight with the champion, was a factor in his decision also to quit the ring.

White was born in Liverpool, England, in 1897.

GOULDING IS SENT TO SANATORIUM FOR REST

New York, Jan. 29.—George Goulding, famous Canadian walker who was forced by a breakdown to withdraw from competition on the eve of his attempted come-back last night against Ugo Frigerio of Italy and Willie Plant of the United States, was sent to a sanatorium today for a complete rest.

Physicians who examined Goulding today confirmed the announcement last night at the Millrose A. A. meet that it would have been dangerous for the veteran to have competed. Their examination shewing that Goulding's heart had become seriously affected by his attempt to come back after nearly a decade of idleness, also confirmed the fact that Goulding will never be able to race again.

Goulding's breakdown came as a startling surprise, although he had shown in a handicap race Tuesday night that he was not up to the form he possessed when in his prime. He had been in training at his home in Vancouver, British Columbia, for some time and reports of his trials were that he had recovered the speed that carried him to many world's records and the Olympic championship in 1912.

SPORTS ORGANIZATIONS PLEDGE $150,000 TO CATHEDRAL FUND

New York, Jan. 29.—Representatives of a dozen national sports governing organizations today pledged themselves to raise $150,000 to provide a bay or section to the cathedral of St. John the Devine. This will be the contribution of the amateur sport world to the $15,000,000 Cathedral campaign.

The first means of raising the fund will be provided by a big track and field carnival in Madison Square Garden, February 25, under the auspices of the amateur athletic union. Paavo Nurmi, Joie Ray and other stars already signified their readiness to compete in this event.

An amateur boxing tournament will be staged in March to help the fund, also under A. A. U. direction, while governing bodies in tennis, golf, polo and other sports have agreed to arrange benefit performances with champions competing.

Notes

A bill was introduced in the senate by Senator Robbins that authorizes the state to sell the island that is located in Gardner's lake. Many have desired to buy it for the purpose of establishing a summer camp, but were unable to do so as the ownership of the land was uncertain.

While there is no evidence of any sentiment in favor of the 20th amendment concerning child labor heard, the action of the senate in refusing a hearing on the matter is condemned on every side, and it is more than probable that when the matter comes from the senate the house will insist upon a hearing being held.

Representative Sisson of New London remembered that today was McKinley's birthday and wore a carnation in the lapel of his coat. He was the only one seen that seemed to have remembered the event. He has never failed to wear McKinley's favorite flower on this anniversary.

NEW LONDON TO HAVE A LODGE OF SONS OF ST. GEORGE ORDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 29.—New London is to have another secret society—the Sons of St. George. It is proposed now to institute the local lodge and call it Steadfast lodge. That is a suggestive name and the new organization may prove to be worthy of it. About 30 members are expected to join the order Saturday night when it will be instituted in Odd Fellows' hall, with a team from Bridgeport doing the work of initiation.

The Sea Food restaurant, which has been out of business for about three weeks during which the building in which it was located has received a new front, is not to resume under the old management. The members of the firm that conducted it have given up business. It didn't pay.

The sidewalks of this city were in the most dangerous condition this evening they have been in during the winter thus far. The snow that covered the walks turned into hail and then to rain, so that the sidewalks were icecoated and all who used them were in danger of falling. The way to and from the railway station along the south side of State street was as smooth as a bottle. Few could stand upon it and many did not try to do so, preferring to take to the street where vehicles had roughened the surface.

There is talk that the bread makers —that is the bakers—will attempt to raise the price of bread, because the cost of wheat is advancing and they cannot buy at the prices they have been paying. The size of the loaves is regulated by law at present, but this can be overcome by an advance in the price. Wheat sold yesterday in the west at $2.02 1-2, and at that price the bakers cannot sell at the price they have been getting.

People going to and coming from the Groton ferry last night and who were compelled to use the overhead bridge at the railway station when trains were discharging or receiving passengers, declare that they might as well climb the Alps as go over the tracks. The wind was blowing a howling gale from the northeast and persons had to cling to the railing to avoid being blown away.

Officer Linehan will enter Lawrence hospital within a few days and submit to treatment.

Officer Linehan was on duty at the corner of State and Main streets about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when an automobile owned by Adams & Hillyer, Howard street, auto salesmen, became stalled on the tracks of the Connecticut company. The stalled machine was holding up traffic, particularly trolley traffic and to assist in relieving the situation, Linehan and others pushed the stalled automobile through the snow to one side of the highway. Holt, the suspension of the officer becoming effective today and as a result of violation of the rules and regulations of the police department. He is well known, having been a pugilist and has appeared at boxing shows in several cities about the state.

A letter was sent to Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney yesterday by a resident of Jay street, notifying the head of the department that Murphy was in the habit of entering his home on Jay street while on duty every night and remaining there from two to three hours. Last night Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney, in charge of the night force, was instructed to ascertain the truth of the allegation and with Murphy going on duty it was quickly apparent that he was not on his beat. A further investigation revealed the officer at his home. A report of the violation of the rules and regulations of the department was made to Captain Pinney by Lieut. Gaffney and the former filed a copy of the violation with City Manager Holt this morning, with the result that the city manager at once ordered Murphy suspended.

MAYOR CHAIRMAN OF CIVIC OPERA COMMITTEE

Assurance that the forthcoming opera engagement in this city would have official support of the leading representative citizens of Norwich was given Thursday when Mayor Milo R. Waters accepted the chairmanship of the civic opera committee which is being formed, and on which will be represented leaders in every field of activity. With Mrs. Waters the mayor will head this list, and he expressed his personal enthusiasm that this city should have the opportunity of hearing such a noted organization as the San Carlo Grand Opera company, which is to present the great Verdi opera, "Il Trovatore," at the Palace theatre.

It is planned to complete the list of patrons and patronesses on the civic opera committee at once. The heads of the various service and musical organizations, prominent business leaders and others who are deeply interested in the musical development of the city are expected to be members of this committee. The formation of such a group is in line with the work done in other cities by public spirited citizens who want to assure their fellow citizens of obtaining the very best in artistic entertainment.

That the business, musical and social fields will not be the only ones represented was shown when it was announced that Rev. W. A. Keefe had accepted membership on the civic opera committee as one of the representatives of the clergy of the city. In addition Father Keefe stated that his entire St. Mary's parish choir and the St. Mary's Players, who are to give their own play in March, will attend the opera in a body.

In speaking of the coming of the opera, Mayor Waters said that he was fully in accord with any undertaking which would tend to develop the artistic sense of the city, and one which he believed would also have benefits for the business angle as well. He said that he favored the coming of the finest in musical entertainment, and that such presentations were beneficial to the best interests of the city.

Father Keefe, in speaking of the opera, and of the appearance in this city of Gerald Griffin, the internationally famed concert artist, said: "We have all criticized the theatre for not giving the public the best entertainments. Many of us have found fault with the nature of the offerings many times. And justly so. Now we have the opportunity to give our young people the very best entertainment, lovely music and something worth while. These are the sort of presentations which mean something to a city. There is no use in criticizing the theatre unless we can offer something such artists as Mr. Griffin and the San Carlo's splendid ensemble of noted singers, Norwich has an opportunity to enjoy the very best. Give our young people more good music and less vulgarity and they will be much better off."

WANT STATE REPRESENTED AT LEXINGTON CELEBRATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Jan. 29.—The bill introduced by Representative Sisson of New London in the house today for representation of Connecticut at the celebration of the battle of Lexington is of special interest to the eastern counties of the state. Jonathan Trumbull of Lebanon was governor of Connecticut at the time, and Israel Putnam was one of the Connecticut heroes of the call to arms.

In Connecticut, especially in the eastern section, colonial spirit took deep root when Massachusetts in 1774 was made the subject of restrictive measures by the British home ministry. A convention of delegates from New London and Windham counties was held in Norwich and recommended their towns to keep up their stock of ammunition and to attend to the exercise of the train bands. The news of the skirmish at Lexington reached the people of Windham on April 20th at noon and it reached Governor Trumbull at Lebanon soon after. Prepared to a certain extent a large number of able-bodied men in Connecticut hurried off to Massachusetts.

The records show that in some cases the companies or train bands collected and marched off under their officers, the colonels taking the lead. The number of men who are reported in the records to have marched was about four thousand.

The number of companies that went from Connecticut for the "Lexington alarm" is recorded as follows: Ashford 1, Bolton 2, Branford 1, Canterbury 2, Chatham 1, Colchester 2, Derby 2, Durham 1, East Haddam 1, East Windsor 4, Enfield 2, Fairfield 2, Glastonbury 1, Greenwich 1, Guilford 2, Haddam 1, Hartford 4, Hebron 1, Killingly 5, Killingworth 2, Lebanon 3, Lyme 1, Mansfield 1, Middletown 1 infantry and 1 troop of horses, New Hartford 1 company, New Haven 2d Co. Governor's Foot Guard and 18 men (unassigned). New London 4, Norfolk 1, Norwich 3, Plainfield 1, Pomfret 1, Preston 2, Saybrook 1, Simsbury 3, Stafford 2, Stamford 1, Stonington 1, Suffield 1, Tolland 1, Union 1, Voluntown 3, Wallingford 2, Wethersfield 1, Willington 1, Windham 4, Windsor 1, Woodstock 6.

The bill introduced Thursday authorizes the attendance of the First and Second companies of the Governor's Horse and Foot Guards as an escort to Governor John H. Trumbull and his staff.

Times have changed in the opinion of Mrs. Eliza G. Rhodes, who at eighty-one years of age enjoyed her first air flight at this year's Iowa state fair. When she attended the first Iowa fair, held seventy years ago, a ride in an ox cart provided her only thrill.

THIS SINCERE LETTER FOR SURGEONS, PHYSICIANS, DENTISTS

We are calling the attention of the good people of Norwich and vicinity to the most powerful, non-poisonous, non-alcoholic, non-irritating Antiseptic known Kojene.

In this newspaper we will tell the people, and especially the ailing people, to whom it will prove a blessing, just exactly what physical ills it will help, and in spite of our enthusiasm for this wonderful antiseptic will stick to the truth in every statement we make.

We will not exaggerate — although some of the things we write may seem exaggerated.

Nothing equals Kojene for irrigation of the antrum; for Pyorrhea and Gingivitus; for Stomatitis, Trench Mouth, pus pockets and all cases of infection.

Kojene, so we will tell more people who need it, is four times as powerful as an antiseptic than Carbolic Acid. It is muc hmore powerful than poisonous bichloride of mercury, and will not burn or even irritate the tenderest membrane.

We will tell the readers of this paper of its wonderful and quick effective action in Tonsilitis and sore throat; of how completely it drives out the offensive mucous of catarrh and thoroughly cleans the entire nasal tract.

We will tell them of its remarkable success in the treatment of cankers in the mouth and how quickly it succeeds when used for Eczema, itching skin, ulcers, boils and skin eruptions.

And last but by no means least, we will tell them that as a germ destroying mouth wash it is as far ahead of the highly flavored and bubbling kind as daylight is to candlelight.

It is seventy-five times as powerful as the weak kinds whose popularity seems to lie in their weakness and the ignorance of those who use them.

A sixty cent bottle (6 ounces) of Kojene, will make one-half gallon of a stronger, better and more efficient mouth wash than the high priced doubtful ones you buy ready made.

Medical men like to join in any effort to drive menacing poisons from the home and give their support to any great and worthy preparation that destroys pernicious germs and helps humanity — that is just what Kojene does.

In six ounce bottles at Lee & Osgood Co. and every progressive druggist in America. 60c with the understanding that money will be returned if any purchaser is dissatisfied.

ZALINSKI IS PROMOTED TO QUARTERMASTER GENERAL

Col. Moses Gray Zalinski, brother-in-law of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee of New London, has been selected for quartermaster general, with the rank of brigadier general, succeeding Brig. Gen. John T. Knight on the latter's retirement, April 18.

Colonel Zalinski enlisted in the United States army as a private in 1885. He was then 23 years old, having been born in New York city on Jan. 23, 1862. Promotion followed promotion until Nov. 1, 1916, when he was promoted to colonel. Colonel Zalinski was a lieutenant stationed at Fort Trumbull at the time he met and married Helen Brandegee, sister of the late senator. The colonel was in attendance at the funeral of Senator Brandegee, remaining in New London for several days. His wife died some time ago.

GUMPTION

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

"Gumption."

I didn't really feel sure there was such a word in the dictionary till I just looked it up. It's there, all right.

Of course, I knew there used to be such a thing, for I've heard my father mention it as something which, at one time, was considered essential to the management of a farm. Also, I fancy that I've seen, now and then, in occasional instances, faint traces of its survival.

"Gumption—capacity; shrewdness; address." That's how Noah Webster defines it. It seems that it is a straight old Anglo-Saxon word, with first cousins in Danish and German. It comes of good family and has deserving connections. It's a pity we don't find it more generally received in higher society. It seems, like a good many more of our old-fashioned relations, to be considered too rustic for the modern living-room.

As we've seen, Webster defines it as meaning "capacity; shrewdness; address." No one can question that it means all these. And one finds exceeding difficulty in affixing other definitions or synonyms. Yet, after all, the three words given don't, somehow, quite fill the bill. They leave something out; some faint shade of meaning which it seems almost impossible to spell out, but which is unmistakably contained in that word "gumption."

"Capacity?" - Of course. No one would ever think of ascribing gumption to a neighbor unless that neighbor was a capable fellow. And yet—when you say that "Jones has capacity" you don't mean exactly what you do when you say, "That Jones chap has a lot of gumption."

"Shrewdness?" Also of course. But there's a very real difference in your meaning when you say, "Robinson's a pretty shrewd chap," and when you say, "Smith's full of gumption."

"Address?" I find Noah still further defined this and as "skill, dexterity, adroitness." All three included in "gumption," I'll admit. But yet they don't cover the ground. For there's something more than all these qualities involved in "gumption." It's the one word which can alone describe and express the particular thing meant, and no substitute or synonym will quite take its place.

I'm not going to try to beat Noah Webster at his own game, and attempt any amendment or improvement on his definition of "gumption." He undoubtedly got as near to it as he could, which is closer than any tyro like me would be likely to come. We'll have to let it go at that, to wit, namely, that when you want to express the idea of "gumption" you'll just have to say "gumption," since there is no other word or combination of words that will take its place.

Capacity means a great deal when applied to any man as an admitted virtue. Skill and dexterity are wonderful helps. Shrewdness is an invaluable counsellor. But "gumption" is a compound of them all, with a certain something added which takes them right out of the dictionary and puts them to work in real life—put them to the right work at the right time and in the right way. There's a homely straight forwardness about the word which agrees perfectly with the homely effectiveness of its ministrations. It might not seem quite the word to use behind the white-goods counter or at the office desk or in the attorney's consulting-room. But on the farm, in the stables, at the garage, in the kitchen, in practically all the primary and fundamental functionings of life the quality meant by the word "gumption" is indispensable.

Would to heaven that members of congress and legislatures could beg or borrow some and use it in their incursions into law-making!

"Gumption" implies a great many things. It is a sort of condensed package into which are crammed more meanings than almost any other word I know of carries.

It implies not only the knowing what to do and how to do it, but also the ability to see through a knot-hole and 'round a corner and into a dark hole and yank out a better way to do it.

It implies not only shrewdness of calculation and aptitude of application but also ability to use tools or makeshifts nearest at hand, even the crudest, and do a weather-proof job with them.

It involves all sorts of odds and ends of picked-up knowledge and all sorts of inherited or acquired handinesses and all sorts of clever devisings. But, chiefly, it consists of the 100 per cent. application of common sense in common affairs—"Common sense," so-called, according to the Philosopher, because it is so exceedingly uncommon.

As might be inferred, "gumption" is not a universal human trait. There are men who are six feet and three inches tall, and there are men with "gumption." There are others who are not so tall nor so endowed. I don't think "gumption" is a thing which can be taught. It unquestionably can be acquired, in some measure, but by contagion rather than teaching. It is "catching" in some cases, and it develops with the years in others. The germs of it are almost always present. More's the pity that they are not generally cultivated.

It may not be "gumption" that makes the world go 'round. But it's "gumption" which keeps the wabbly old sphere spinning fairly true to its course, and fixes it up when a colliding meteorite biffs it some few millionths of an inch off its orbit, or some earthquake rips its innards open.

It needs only industry and grit to work a farm. But it takes "gumption" to make a living and a profit off one.

It's more often lack of "gumption" than lack of energy or of capital that keeps farmers back.

I used to work, winters, by the side of an older man, splitting up wood into stove sizes. Now, anyone who has ever amused himself with this sort of sport knows that there are occasional sticks which seem perfectly willing to split any old way, and certain others which are of different spirit, which are hard to get into halves or quarters or eighths, as the case may require. Well, my neighbor used to tackle these obdurate chunks in just about the same way he did a length of easy-cleaving chestnut. He went at them, regardless of knots or curled grain, and would sometimes work hard for 15 or 20 minutes at one be'ore he would succeed in seperating it into the four or six or eight pieces he set out to slam off. Yet those same chunks, if looked over carefully and struck shrewdly would usually yield, along their own hidden lines of cleavage, in half or a quarter the time. If he had only had the "gumption" to see it, he might have split twice as much wood in the same time by humoring the stubborn block, instead of dunderheadedly smashing away at it regardless of its interlocks. You see, he knew exactly what size and shape sticks he wanted to split, and he must get them that way, even if he had to hew them or even rip-saw them off. He could have "slabbed" some off and "checked" others with comparative ease. But no; he was going to show that stick that he was its master, if it took all day, beetle and wedges, and broke an ax-helve. He was surely industrious. But he lacked "gumption."

I know a farmer who works as hard as his grand-dad did 60 years ago. He's up at sun-rise and he keeps at it till sun-set, even in June and July. Yet he doesn't seem to get anywhere. He has no bad habits; is economical as well as industrious. But he shows no "gumption." He hasn't the faculty of making emergencies serve him. One busy day last summer he discovered that the top strand of a wire fence had broken, letting the whole fence slump to the ground. After vainly trying for some time to "hook" the broken ends together, he was about to set out after a new length, when another neighbor came along, bringing his "gumption" with him. Borrowing the fence pliers, this chap simply stepped up to the end post, beyond which some two feet of fence projected idly, being the overlap not needed when the fence was originally built. Snipping it off, he speedily soldered up the break and went on, leaving a fence which, if not as good looking as a new one, was nevertheless good enough for all practical purposes.

Now, these are two trivial illustrations of the difference between "gumption" and lack of it. Probably there isn't a farmer who reads this who can't supply numerous instances, involving more serious matters, from his own memory.

I'm not inclined to accept everything new as necessarily better, just because it is new. Nor to decry everything old because it is old. It is judicious to give the new a good tryout before substituting it, wholesale for that which we have been accustomed to. Similarly it shows good sense to hang on to the old, till something provenly better has been supplied in its place.

For us farmers, especially, the two old ideas connoted by the two words, "gumption" and "thrift" mean a good deal. Praiseworthy efforts are being made in various directions to restore "thrift" to the language and to life. There is need of them. For the age of thriftless is almost beyond precedent.

Likewise there is need for a renewal of the old "gumption." possession and use of which by our forefathers made them masters of a continent. They've left it to us. What will we do with it?

Oh, there's no doubt we're "smart." We've got brains enough. Nor is there general lack of energy and industry. But how about that undefined and indefinable "gumption," without which we are about as likely to get anywhere as a motor without a carburetor?

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Shadow Enjoys a Hunt.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Beware of one who without sound
Delights to hunt and snoop around.
—Peter Rabbit.

Shadow the Weasel yawned and stretched. He had been asleep most of the afternoon. He had no regular time for sleeping. He curls up for a nap whenever he happens to feel sleepy, whether it be by day or night. It was just dusk now as Shadow started out to hunt for something to eat. He was hungry. He usually is hungry when he awakens.

"If I follow it long enough I'll catch up with him," muttered Shadow

Shadow the Weasel is like Bowser the Hound in that he dearly loves to hunt. He has a keen little nose, and there is nothing he likes better than to find the trail of one of the little people of the Green Forest and follow it with his nose just as Bowser follows the trail of Reddy Fox. But there is one great difference between Bowser and Shadow. Bowser tells everybody what he is doing, but Shadow makes no sound. The one he is hunting may not know that he is being followed until too late, or almost too late.

Shadow ran swiftly over the snow, twisting and turning, looking into every place it was possible for any one to hide. He is very clever and he knows he is clever. He has boasted that no one can hide where he can not find them. So for a time Shadow enjoyed that hunt. He found the tracks of Peter Rabbit. They were old tracks, so old that only here and there could his keen little nose pick up the scent left by Peter's feet. But Shadow kept right on following Peter's trail.

"If I follow it long enough I'll catch up with him," muttered Shadow. "There doesn't seem to have been any one else around here. And, after all it is fun to find out where Peter has been and what he has been doing. I hope he hasn't left the Green Forest."

As a matter of fact Peter had left the Green Forest. He was at home in the dear old Briar Patch. But even there he would have been frightened half to death had he known that Shadow the Weasel was on his trail. But he didn't know, which was just as well.

Whether or not Shadow would have followed Peter across the snow-covered Green Meadows to the dear Old Briar Patch I do not know. You see, something else caught the attention of Shadow. Peter's trail had led Shadow right up to the foot of a tall, dead stump. Shadow paused and looked up. Near the top was a round hole. It was a small hole. But Shadow saw it. "Ha!" exclaimed Shadow to himself. "I wonder if it is worth while for me to climb up there. That looks to me like just the place for Whitefoot the Wood Mouse."

He ran around the stump, smelling of it all the way around. He was smelling for the scent of Whitefoot the Wood Mouse. If Whitefoot were living in a hollow in that stump he would have to go up and down it, and he would leave a little scent in doing this.

"Ha!" exclaimed Shadow again, and stopped to smell very carefully at a certain place on that old stump. "Ha! I smell Squirrel! Squirrel is better than Mouse! Timmy the Flying Squirrel has climbed this old stump. I wonder if that can be the entrance to his home up there. Anyway, I guess it is worth looking into."

So without wasting any more time Shadow the Weasel began to climb up that old stump toward that little round hole.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Through all these periods of their existence thousands of women toil on, often suffering with backache, pains in side, headaches and nervousness, all telltale symptoms of some local derangement. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one great remedy that will overcome such ailments. All over America women are telling other women how this wonderful medicine has restored them to health and the joy of living.
